HIGH COURT OF R. ISLAND: ITS BIRTH AND LIFE

End a Chapter Only Voters Can Write.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Providence, R. I., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—On the stroke of 10 there is a sound of doors sliding back behind the powder blue velvet curtains that hang between the Corinthian columns. The lawyers and the spectators, a little group in the center of a beautiful chamber paneled in Philippine mahogany, get to their feet and stand respectfully.

A grizzled colored servitor parts the powder blue curtains and discloses the justices standing in their robes. They advance solemnly in line with slow dignified tread to their chairs at the bar. The crier cries. The justices with dignity and solemnity take their seats. The clerk intones and a lawyer respectfully begins his argument.

Thus opens the session of Rhode Island's Supreme court—referred to by the irreverent as "Rhode Island's kangaroo court."

De Facto if Not de Jure.

Whether the irreverent are justified in this flippancy nobody precisely knows, not even the five justices who are deciding what is and what is not legal in Rhode Island. Whether they themselves are legal has not come before the Supreme tribunal at Washington, but the lawyers expect it to whenever a cause involving a life or a large amount of property shall furnish strong reason to contest the validity of the Rhode Island court's tenure. Said one eminent man of the law who often addresses these justices:

"We have a de facto but not a de jure Supreme court. But for heaven's sake don't quote me."

This de facto court is one of the products of the Democratic coup d'état of last January, engineered by Gov. Theodore Francis Green, likewise dubbed by the irreverent "the Hitler of Rhode Island."

By this midnight coup the Democrats seized complete control of the state government, abolished eighty commissions manned by Republicans and replaced them with seven departments manned by Democrats, and removed the five Republican justices composing the Supreme court and replaced them with three Democrats and two Republicans.

Take Over Armed Forces.

They extended their control to the police force of Providence in addition to the state police and, with the sherif and the National Guard, they were prepared to protect the fruits of victory by force, if necessary.

The cloud on the title of the Supreme court set up by the Democrats was caused by the high handed methods employed to get rid of the Republican court and replace it by a body dominated by the party in power. Under the state constitution the members of the court are elected by and are removable by the legislature.

The Democrats wanted a new Supreme court because of the jobs there would be to distribute; but even more important to them was the necessity of having a court that could be relied upon to legalize the coup. For they felt certain that the old court, if allowed to endure, would have declared invalid all their acts involving seizure of the control of the state government.

Senate the Only Obstacle.

But there was one obstacle. While the governor and the lieutenant governor, who presides over the senate, were Democratic and the house was Democratic by a majority of 8, the senate was still Republican by a majority of 2. It was necessary to the success of the plot to transform the Republican into a Democratic senate in order to obtain a majority of each house for removal of the justices and election of their successors.

This the Democrats, after a day of plotting in Gov. Green's office, proceeded to do. Robert E. Quinn, the Democratic lieutenant governor, called the senate to order but refused to administer the oat to two Republican senators-elect on the ground that the validity of their certificates of election from the state returning board had been contested. Refusing to entertain any motions by Republican members or even to grant recognition to Republicans, Mr. Quinn appointed a committee of two Democrats and one Republican to count

LEWIS FLOORS UNION LEADER AT CONVENTION

Engages in Brawl with Hutcheson.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Bitter personal animosities engendered by the rivalry between industrial and craft unionists broke out on the floor of the American Federation of Labor convention today in a fist fight between John L. Lewis, president of United Mine Workers of America, and William S. Hutcheson, president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

The fight occurred a few hours before the convention was adjourned after two weeks of stormy sessions.

While the delegates were in an uproar and President William Green pounded his gavel repeatedly for order the heads of two largest and most powerful unions in the federation crashed to the floor pummeling at each other until separated by other delegates.

Face is Cut.

When they were pried apart the side of Mr. Hutcheson's face was covered with blood from a cut and his lip was swollen. Mr. Lewis adjusted a torn shirt and collar and smoothed his ruffled auburn hair.

"A Union Carpenter of Kansas City."

Delegates were deeply moved by the encounter between the two leaders and some feared that the difference in viewpoint would not remain a matter of debate but would break out in the future in similar encounters among partisans of both groups. The coming year, it is feared, will mean "war to the hilt" between adherents of these groups.

Debate Starts It.

The fist fight marked the culmination of several defeats of the industrial unionists, who were led by the miners' president. It occurred during a debate on the request of the rubber workers' union for an industrial union charter rather than the modified charter presented to the rubber locals in August.

The case for the rubber workers was presented by William Thompson of Akron, O., who said that a charter granting his union jurisdiction over 90 per cent of the production workers and reserving to the craft unions jurisdiction over 10 per cent of the remaining members would not work. He said that several times he and his associates had organized the rubber employés into an industrial union and the craft unions had selected their own men from the group to the detriment of the industrial union.

Cites Point of Order.

It was while Delegate Thompson was warning that the rubber union would never again divest itself of the craftsmen that Mr. Hutcheson interrupted with a point of order. He said that the industrial union question had been disposed of in the general debate on policy when it had been defeated and that the Thompson speech was out of order.

Mr. Lewis agreed that the general principle had been disposed of but that specific resolutions by mass production industry workers asking for industrial union charters were still before the convention and that the delegates from these unions had a right to discuss these specific questions. The point of order, he said, was "small potatoes" and merely to keep the delegates from the small unions off the floor.

To which the carpenters' chief re-

Baby Training Doesn't 'Take,' Tests Disclose

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Proponents of the popular notion that a child's personality is unalterably molded by his experiences during the first two years of life suffered a severe setback today. Dr. Myrtle B. McGraw, assistant director of the Normal Child Development clinic, who conducted the experiment in infant behavior with the twins, Jimmy and Johnny Woods, revealed that after a year and a half of freedom from special exercises, both of them barely could stand up on roller skates.

Last Tuesday Dr. McGraw brought the three and a half year old twins from their home, back to the clinic, and sought to find out whether Johnny, who, during the first two years of his life, was subjected to a series of strenuous exercises, had retained his physical superiority over Jimmy, who, as to control, was left severely alone during the most of the experimental period.

Observations Back Theories.

Her observations of the two youngsters in the course of the ensuing three days clearly substantiated the theories which Dr. McGraw advanced in her book, "Growth: A Study of Johnny and Jimmy," recently published.

After outlining the details of the experiment in the clinic, a part of the Neurological institute at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical center, Dr. McGraw wrote in "Growth" the conclusion that retention of an activity during a long period when there was no practice depended on the "fixity" of the activity at the time the practice was withdrawn.

On the other hand, she reported in the book, if the conditions which brought out the activity in early development are continued, the special activity will persist in developing in the child.

Placed on Skates Again.

Such proved to be the case when the twins were placed on roller skates again this week. When he left the clinic's supervision at the age of 2 Johnny had been skating for a year and was proficient at it, while Jimmy, who had only ten weeks of practice, barely could keep his balance.

Johnny now has a better skating movement but is inclined to fall more often than his untutored brother, because the former apparently recalls the days when he could glide easily about the floor and is now more daring in his efforts. But his skill has left him and, while he works harder at skating than Jimmy, he falls more often.

Dr. McGraw believes that the twins have lost their skating ability because, during the last year and a half, their centers of gravity have changed.

Dr. McGraw was particularly interested in finding what evidence the twins retained of their early training because so many laymen have asked her if Johnny had continued to be superior to Jimmy after both were sent home from the clinic. If not, the general feeling was that early training was a waste of time. To this, her answer now is that a trait can be developed earlier than normal in a child, but if it is to be preserved, the conditions which produced it must be continued as long as the child is growing.

'Make Letters Talk!' Job Hunters Advised

How to make letters and forms of application fulfill their function as "keys" to interviews which lead to jobs is described today in the fourth of a series of articles designed to help the unemployed find buyers for their services. "Make your letters talk!" is the gist of it. This article will be found in the classified advertisment section.

Even those who have had educational advantages are often guilty of costly blunders in their letters of application, according to one of the placement directors who contributed suggestions from a background of long experience with job hunters.

Love Laughs at Locksmiths —and Jailers

A stern father-in-law was responsible last night for the early and unhappy breakup of the party that Louis Kala, 21 years old, gave in his home at 13901 South Halsted street, Riverdale, in celebration of his marriage to Miss La Verne Eldridge, 18 years old.

Early in the evening the girl's father, the Rev. Elmer Eldridge, 2158 Mobile avenue, who said he was pastor of the Free Methodist church at 62d and May streets, requested the assistance of the Blue Island police in a search for her. He was under the impression, he said, that La Verne was contemplating an elopement with Kala.

Party on When Police Arrive.

The Blue Island authorities learned that Kala lived in Riverdale, and they turned the search over to Lieut. Henry Andel of the Homewood station of the county highway police. When the lieutenant arrived at the house, the party was in full swing.

"You can't have La Verne," said the happy bridegroom. "We got married in Crown Point at 5:30 p. m. We'll see her father later."

The Rev. Mr. Eldridge went to Police Magistrate Joseph Flaherty of Harvey and obtained a warant charging his son-in-law with disorderly conduct and fixing bonds on the charge at $1,000. With this document Lieut. Andel went back to the party and seized the bridegroom.

Bride Forbidden in Cell.

He was locked up in a cell at the Homewood station. Mrs. Kala insisted on going into the cell with him, but was refused this courtesy. The utmost concession she could obtain was permission to sit in the corridor and watch him through the bars.

"All right," she said, "I'll stay here till you let him out."

Father Eldridge had gone home and it appeared at 2 a. m. that the bride would have a long wait. The case is scheduled to come up before Magistrate Flaherty on Tuesday.

Deer Takes After Mulligan; High Fence Halts Chase

Dansville, N. Y., Oct. 19.—[U. P.]—Bernard Mulligan, employed on an Ossian farm, today was tranquilly walking through the woods to his home when a deer, wounded in the shoulder, took after him. Mulligan hurdled several short fences—and so did the deer. The deer pursued Mulligan for a quarter of a mile and gave up the chase only after Mulligan negotiated a high fence.

Ethiopian King Nips Massacre of Foreigners

Await Italian Attack

The stage was set on the northern Ethiopian front last night for a new Italian push south from Adowa, with the mountain town of Makale the objective. A huge Ethiopian army was reported entrenched on the mountain tops around Makale, awaiting the Fascist attack.

In England Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin declared that the United States, despite its isolation policy, was in danger of being drawn in if war breaks out in Europe.

In Rome the Italian government issued a communique saying Britain had promised not to attack Italy alone, but to confine its action against Mussolini to collective sanctions adopted by the league of nations.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Oct. 19.—[Exchange Telegraph.]—What was described as an attempt by thousands of wild Gofa tribesmen to storm Addis Ababa and kill all foreigners, including Americans, was averted today by Emperor Haile Selassie's Imperial troops and armed police.

Warriors Defy King's Order.

When he learned of the impending march, Emperor Haile Selassie threatened instant death to any rebellious tribesman who dared to set foot in the capital. The tribesmen, nevertheless, left their encampment and started toward the town.

Imperial troops rushed out and compelled the turbulent warriors to march beyond the town.

It was believed a number of Greek shopkeepers on the outskirts of the city were held up by the Gofas, who intended to loot their stocks, but the timely arrival of armed police saved the situation.

Gofas a Wild Lot.

The Gofas, it was recalled, with flashing swords and wildly beating war drums, acted in a frenzied manner when the emperor reviewed his troops Thursday. Later they were forced to encamp at a safe distance from Addis Ababa.

The Gofas, who make themselves frightful when preparing for battle by daubing themselves with ochre, are reported to have little reverence for the throne and pay obedience only to their tribal leaders.

YOUNG WOMAN SLAIN BY ROBBER IN HER GIFT SHOP

Miss Ellen Anderson, 30 years old, 2861 Lyndale avenue, was shot and killed last night, supposedly by a robber she resisted, in the Ellen gift shop at 2125 North Rockwell street, which she owned. One bullet fired by her assailant struck her in the head and death was almost instantaneous.

Robert Kretz, 2207 North Maplewood avenue, who was passing the store, saw a young man, without a hat or overcoat, run out of the shop and flee north in Rockwell street. Going inside Kretz found the body of Miss Anderson lying behind a counter. He then ran to a nearby drug store and telephoned the police.

Investigators were unable to find any one who saw the shooting. The money in the cash register apparently had not been molested. Kretz said he did not hear a shot fired and went into the place to see what had caused the man to run away so rapidly.

Edward Schmuldt, 50 years old, 2046 Nebraska avenue, resisted two robbers who attempted to hold him up last night in front of 3025 Dickens street. One of the men fired and a bullet grazed Schmuldt's chin. The robbers fled and Schmuldt, whose wound was slight, went to the Lutheran Memorial hospital for treatment.

FIREMEN BATTLE MICHAEL REESE HOSPITAL BLAZE

Smoke from a fire in a basement linen room of the Michael Reese hospital ascended late last night into the corridors of the first and second floors of the main hospital building and alarmed a number of patients.

Members of the hospital staf, headed by the superintendent, Dr. Herman Smith, allayed their fears and firemen, arriving promptly with a large amount of equipment, extinguished the flames after chopping holes in the floor of a first floor hallway. Dr. Smith said that it was not necessary to move any of the patients and that the amount of smoke that reached their rooms was not great. Lights on the first floor were turned off as a precautionary measure.

Because of the supposed danger to those in the hospital, a large number of ambulances were hurried to the scene and a crowd collected.

52 NATIONS ACT TO STOP DUCE'S WAR IN AFRICA

U. S. Invited to Join Embargo.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Oct. 19.—The league of nations forged the last link in the chain of economic sanctions against Italy by declaring a boycott on all her goods and an embargo on various key exports to Italy. At the same time it launched a drive to win American participation in the proposed boycott.

This first timid move to talk the United States out of its hankering for neutrality consists of a decision to transmit to Washington the minutes of the sanctions committee. The document will be accompanied by a cautiously worded letter "welcoming any communications" which President Roosevelt's government may wish to make.

Sidetracks Direct Appeal.

Originally Joaquim de Vasconcellos of Portugal, chairman of the sanctions committee, planned to make a vibrant appeal to the American conscience—a sort of moral ultimatum. However, he was persuaded by Capt. Anthony Eden, British minister for league affairs, and other craftier heads to suppress his statement after it had been turned over to the secretariat of the league for mimeographing.

The following are some of the moral excerpts from Vasconcellos' suppressed declaration:

"States which are nonmembers can help or hinder the common measures adopted for repression of aggression and the vindication of international law. I want to emphasize particularly the moral side. Those states which are not members of the league are nonetheless parties to the Kellogg-Briand pact outlawing war. The record speaks for itself. We must leave it to the conscience of each nonmember of the league to determine how far it shares our common purposes and in how far it is willing to coöperate in an action similar to ours."

Aim to Ruin Italy's Trade.

The decision of the fifty-two countries on the sanctions committee to cease all purchases from Italy, cuts off—if rigidly enforced—approximately two-thirds of Italy's export trade.

Italy depends upon this trade to obtain foreign currency for the purchase of goods she needs to wage a lengthy war.

The ironclad boycott against Italy binds the fifty-two nations to prohibit the importation of "all goods consigned from and grown, produced or manufactured in Italy or in Italian possessions from whatever place they arrive."

Other Measures Listed.

Other measures winding up the first phase of the campaign to bring Premier Mussolini to his knees and force him to abandon his war against Ethiopia through economic pressure are as follows:

FIRST—An embargo on the export to Italy of various "key articles," including horses, mules, donkeys, camels and all other transport animals, rubber, bauxite, aluminum, aluminum oxide, iron ore, scrap iron, tin and tin ore, chromium, manganese, nickel, titanium, tungsten, vanadium, a number of other ores and several alloys, and all "true forms of minerals and metals mentioned in their ores and alloys."

SECOND—The engagement by all countries applying sanctions to aid one another in compensating losses by increased trade facilities, credits, cash and loans if possible, and discriminating against league members such as Austria and Hungary which continue to trade with Italy.

THIRD—Giving the league committee of eighteen a permanent mandate to supervise the execution of measures already decided upon and to propose any new sanctions which may seem advisable.

Two Weeks of Grace.

The sanctions are scheduled to become effective Oct. 31. Thus, Mussolini has another two weeks or so in which to come to terms before he feels the pinch of the penalties.

Only three nations—Austria, Hungary and Albania—spoke against the sanctions. Switzerland, which has been hedging, kept silent, and the reservations made by various South American countries were so involved that it was hard to tell what they meant.

Maxim Litvinov, foreign minister of soviet Russia, took a crack at the objectors in a long speech. He started out by saying he trusted that in future cases of aggression the league would not consider itself limited—even in the field of economic sanctions—to the measures taken against Italy.

Then he lashed into the backsliders and the lukewarm members who have been impeding sanctions by constant hedging and demands for special exemption or compensation.

"All the states are equal before the covenant," he cried, "and no exemption should be allowed in the execution of common obligations.

"If exemptions threaten to render the whole effort to apply sanctions ineffective my government reserves the right to reconsider the decisions taken."

Save for the probable extension of the list of key exports the league has now reached its limit in application of the sanctions fixed by passive agreement before the assembly is convoked.

These are "all the safe" sanctions that exist. It is true that without resorting to force the league can go further by expelling Italy, breaking off diplomatic relations, interrupting postal communications and travel, and even extending the embargo to foodstuffs and other necessities of the civilian population.

All these measures, however, are deemed provocative and the league still is hoping that if Mussolini is punished "gently" he will eventually be ready to stop his war.

ITALY CALLS UP MORE MEN; ARMY OF 1,200,000 SEEN

ROME, Oct. 19.—[U. P.]—Italy soon will have 1,200,000 men under arms, it was estimated today after announcement that the military class of 1915 will be drafted soon.

One million men of this huge army will be in Italy. Thus increasing the home defense force by about 300,000 men. Best estimates indicated between 650,000 and 700,000 men now are under the Italian colors on the continent.

Additional naval classes will be called to the colors if the Mediterranean tension fails to lessen in the next few days, according to rumors here.

Before Christmas, according to military experts, Italy's first line air force will be doubled to total nearly 3,500 planes. Bombing planes are being manufactured at the rate of seven a day.

The communique announcing the forthcoming calling to arms of the 1915 class also said that citizens of the classes of 1911, 1912, 1913, and 1914, previously exempted from the full time period, now would be called, bringing army divisions up to a war time footing.

SABOTAGE RULED OUT IN BLASTS ON ITALIAN LINER

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Oct. 19.—(AP)—A suggestion that sabotage was responsible for two boiler explosions and the death of seven persons aboard the Italian liner Ausonia was rejected today by an official inquiry of the Italian consulate.

Evidence given by the captain and other senior officers left the cause of the explosions probably permanently shrouded in mystery. The chief engineer who was on duty in the boiler room said he had not detected anything that could have been responsible for the catastrophe.

The Italian community was deeply impressed by the prompt and efficient aid rendered by British ships.

PRINCE OF WALES IS NO LONGER POPULAR IN ITALY

ROME, Oct. 19.—[U. P.]—Even the prince of Wales has lost his popularity in Italy because of anti-British sentiment inspired by the East African situation.

One of Rome's smartest haberdasheries, fashion setter for years, has changed its name from "The Prince of Wales" to "Prince of Piedmont," after the heir to the Italian throne.

BRITAIN PLEDGES NOT TO ATTACK ITALY BY ITSELF

Will Take Only Collective Action Against Duce.

ROME, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Double barrelled peace negotiations gave some hope tonight of preventing war in Europe and a much dimmer one of halting the war in Africa.

Premier Mussolini and Sir Samuel Hoare, Great Britain's foreign secretary, are trying to liquidate the Italo-British quarrel, while Premier Laval of France is seeking a method of carving up Ethiopia so every one will be satisfied.

[Emperor Haile Selassie said in Addis Ababa he would emphatically reject a French proposal to give Italy a slice of his kingdom.]

Holds Two Situations Separate.

A government spokesman made it clear, however, that while negotiations are under way with Britain, they have no direct influence on the situation in East Africa and that Rome will continue with its Ethiopian campaign. The talks with London were said to be "restricted solely to the Mediterranean problem."

Reports from the front that Ethiopian armies are gathering around Makale, 60 miles south of Adowa, coincide with indications that Italy's army is ready for another advance.

Tension between Britain and Italy was said by Mussolini himself recently to have in it the threat of war. But the assurances given to him yesterday by Sir Eric Drummond, the British ambassador, that Britain intended only collective action quieted somewhat the fears of a blockade.

Communique Is Issued.

The Italian government issued a communique on the situation this evening. A similar communique was issued in London. It follows:

"The British ambassador called on the chief of the Italian government at 6:10 p. m. and again assured him his majesty's government does not intend to undertake any action regarding the present conflict between Italy and Ethiopia beyond what is demanded by its collective obligations in its quality as a loyal member of the league of nations, nor beyond what might be agreed to or recommended by the league on conformity with the dispositions of the pact.

"Sir Eric Drummond also explained that the attitude of his majesty's government in the question is in no way determined by its own interests. All assertions in such sense are absolutely without foundation and cannot have been circulated except by persons badly informed or desirous of creating trouble."

Seek Withdrawal of Fleet.

Negotiations now, well informed quarters said, seek an arrangement whereby Britain would withdraw much of its fleet from the Mediterranean.

[A London dispatch said Britain is determined to maintain most of its fleet in the Mediterranean.]

Italy, under such an accord, would be expected to reduce its forces in Libya, where Britain sees a threat of attack upon Egypt. Officials said these conversations are continuing, but gave no indication of their trend.

"There has been a terrible danger of a European conflagration," an official source said. "We hope the critical period has passed, but we cannot say definitly because there are still too many doubts. We must only wait and see.

"It is difficult to place much faith in diplomatic declarations when arms are being delivered to our adversaries in east Africa. Certainly nothing can be accomplished while Geneva persists in applying the pressure of sanctions."

Italy Opens Drive for Trade.

Despite league sanctions, Italy opened a campaign today for foreign trade. The government passed a decree forcing the exportation of silk by ordering the price fixed at 10 per cent under the world's price. This is to encourage the holders of silk stocks to market them abroad.

The decree applies only to 1934 production. Italy exports about half of its 7,000,000 pounds of silk annually, but often at a loss, although the commodity is subsidized at 45 cents a pound.

Announcement that Gen. Emilio de Bono, commander of the northern Italian army, had issued a proclamation abolishing slavery and pledging respect of Ethiopia's laws and religions fitted into the picture Italy is trying to paint of itself as a "liberator" rather than an aggressor.

Vittorio Mussolini can point to Ethiopian bullet holes in the wings of his plane, like those the ship of his brother, Bruno, received a few days ago. Vittorio, son of Premier Mussolini, received his "baptism of fire," Italian press dispatches said, in another flight over Ethiopian territory. Sharpshooters struck his plane but he returned uninjured.

BRITAIN TO BUILD UP FLEET WHEN NAVY PACTS DIE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Despite the much talked of weakness of her fleet, Great Britain intends to conform strictly to the provisions of the Washington and London treaties. According to Hector Bywater, naval correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, the government has decided not to invoke the "escalator" clause which would entitle Britain to build above the treaty quota to offset the rapid naval expansion of non-treaty powers.

Once the treaties expire at the end of 1936, however, Britain will start a big program of cruiser replacement.

Provisions for these ships, as well as battleships, destroyers, and convoy sloops, probably will be contained in next year's naval estimates so that work may begin without delay after Jan. 1, 1937.

The number of cruisers to be started early in 1937 is mentioned as eight. A program has been drawn up with a view to giving the British navy at least 60 and possibly 70 effective cruisers—practically double the number of modern ships now available. Details of the replacement program are to be published as soon as the situation has been clarified by talks with other powers.

ITALIANS EMPLOY NAPOLEONIC WILE TO CAPTURE CITY

Officer Tells Strategy in Taking of Adowa.

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMIES AT ADOWA, Ethiopia, Oct. 14 [Monday].—By Air Mail to Rome.—(AP)—The military strategy of Napoleon was summoned for the capture of Adowa, Gen. Nino Villasanta, commander of the Gavinana division, said today.

"Napoleon always said that to win a victory an army should not stick to its ground," Villasanta said.

"The Gavinana division in crossing the frontier earlier in the morning arrived at the town of Mai Enda Baria around noon. At that point two routes offered themselves—one passing by Daro Tacle and Gasciorski pass, whose maximum altitude is 2,000 meters [about 6,560 feet], and the other via Mai Cio and Mai Daru, access to which is more difficult and 1,000 meters higher.

"Ras Seyoum, governor of Adowa, who intended to defend the city, stationed 2,500 men near Gasciorski pass. The largest part of his forces, consisting of 15,000 men, he employed about Mount Sulloda, at a point where the two routes came together near Addi Abuna.

"His intention followed the Ethiopian tradition of attacking the Italian flank and cutting the column if possible. He counted on the Italians taking the easier route.

Italians Take Hard Route.

"But, on the contrary, the major portion of the Italian forces moved over the harder route. Only the secondary column, formed of an infantry regiment, a battalion of Black Shirts and a group of mountain artillery, went the easier route.

"The principal column ascended the mountain pass rapidly, although subjected to enemy fire and although running the risk of having the convoys cut from behind. The men carried virtually nothing more than munitions.

"Meanwhile the secondary column was stopped between Daro Tacle and Gasciorski pass by the 2,500 Ethiopians who held the heights. But the Italian maneuver was so fast Ras Seyoum saw his plans fail.

Threatened from Rear.

"At 5 p. m. on Oct. 5 my advance guard passed Addi Abuna and reached the Italian consulate a mile outside of Adowa.

"The principal column was now threatened from the rear by the Ethiopians, who had resisted at Gasciorski pass. The natives had to retire in order not to be caught between two fires. They withdrew hastily to Aksum, which was abandoned next morning.

"Ras Seyoum drew his principal force back into the province of Tembien. The capture of Adowa, therefore, was effected with slight bloodshed through an able maneuver."

Two Irishmen to Form Ethiopian Medical Corps

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland, Oct. 19.—[U. P.]—Capt. Marius Brophil and James Hickey, both of Dublin, Ireland, left for Addis Ababa on today's train to organize a medical corps for the Ethiopian army.

BRITISH FORTIFY COAST FAMOUS IN ANCIENT HISTORY

Wars Fought at Acre Before Christ.

ACRE, Palestine, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The British fortification of the Palestine coast has added a page to the military history of this ancient city, which first found record in the conquest lists of the Egyptian monarchs as long ago as 1500 B. C.

It is, perhaps, most famous as the scene of the battle of 1189 during the second crusade, which was a prelude for the third crusade and Acre's conquest by Richard Cœur de Lion.

Since its earliest times, Acre, strategically placed on the military highway along the coast and the natural port for Galilee and Damascus and the Hauran, has been both politically and commercially important.

In the Old Testament it is mentioned [Judges] as one of the places to which the Israelites did not drive the people from Canaan.

About 104 B. C. Alexander Jannæus captured Acre, but relinquished it in fear to Ptolemy Lathyrus, who in turn yielded it to his mother, Cleopatra. Tigranes of Armenia held it briefly.

Roman Base in Jewish Wars.

It was in this city that Herod entertained Cæsar, and where St. Paul spent a day going from Tyre to Cæsarea. The Romans made it the main base for their armies in their wars with the Jews.

The Arabs captured the city in 638 A. D. King Baldwin I., with aid of the Genoese fleet, captured it in the first crusade, 1104. Saladin recaptured it for the Saracens in 1187.

Saladin's seizure set the stage for the famous battle of Acre. The crusading army under Guy de Lusignan laid siege in 1189, and on Oct. 4 the battle of Acre began. The Christian armies scattered to plunder after a partial victory, which gave Saladin time to rally relieving troops to slaughter 7,000 of the invaders.

The city finally fell to the crusaders under Richard Cœur de Lion [Richard I. of England] on July 12, 1191. Thenceforward Acre was the chief Christian stronghold in the holy land, until it fell into the hands of the Turks in 1517.

Resisted Napoleon in 1799.

Fallen into decay, its revival began in 1749 and it achieved prosperity and prominence under "Ahmad-el-Jezzar" [the Butcher]. Supported by Sir Sidney Smith's British naval command, it successfully resisted Napoleon's army in 1799.

It was captured and wrecked by Ibrahim Pasha of Egypt in 1832. The allied fleets [Britain, Austria, and Turkey] reclaimed it for Turkey in 1840. It remained in Turkish hands until Sept. 23, 1918, when it surrendered without opposition to the Egyptian expeditionary force.

ETHIOPIAN ARMY MANS FORTRESS ON MOUNTAIN TOP

Warriors Await Italian Attack at Makale.

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Concentration of Ethiopian troops for a major clash with an Italian army was disclosed today by Ethiopian authorities.

The government announced that a carefully prepared plan had been completed for a strong stand against the Fascist invaders. It is expected to take place at Makale, 60 miles southeast of Adowa.

Emperor Haile Selassie's warriors have been strengthened by a stream of war materials into the country following the lifting abroad of munitions embargoes.

Italian Flyers Kill Child.

Ethiopian officials said the populace around Ambaalaji, northern Tigre province, was infuriated by the killing of a child by Italian air bombs.

Although the government did not state the quantity nor the places to which the arms and munitions shipments were going, it is known they include American machine guns and Belgian and Czechoslovakian rifles and cartridges, and are modern. Other secret sources are also sending older arms over the borders.

As officials said Italian planes had attacked Makale, apparently as a prelude to a ground advance, observers here expressed the belief that if Italian troops attempted to take Ethiopia's mountain strongholds in the north, which are reported held by warriors with machine guns, rifles and mortars, they would face a severe task.

Italians Face Uphill Attack.

They pointed out that if the Italians strike at Makale they would have to attack up a northward sloping hill from whose top a few sharpshooters could make an almost impregnable defense.

The soldiers of Ras Seyoum, holding this area, were not being allowed to gather in great masses, officials said, thus forcing Italian airmen to forego bombing and necessitating attempts to inflict casualties by swooping low and using machine guns.

Some military strategists did not expect Ras Seyoum to move from his position in an attack, expressing the opinion he would be content with his strong defensive position if the expected battle occurs. Makale is situated on the front line of the main interior defense of Ethiopia, a great mountain range, and is a strategic point on a caravan route into the hinterland.

Emperor Bars Looting.

Emperor Haile Selassie today wiped out the 2,000 year old tradition that soldiers have the right to plunder villages while en route to the front or to seize animals, foodstuffs, and other commodities from farmers. He signed a new law under which all his armies must pay for everything taken except fodder, which still must be furnished for war needs.

The emperor also established a flat rate of eight thalers for the hire of each mule to be taken to the front, regardless of the distance.

Calling attacks from the sky cowardly, Selassie said the use of bombing planes is contrary to Ethiopian ideas of gallantry in war. Even if he had sufficient money to buy bombing planes, he said, he would not do so. Hand to hand fighting, he added, is the true test of human courage.

Ethiopia's "air fleet" consists of about a dozen mediocre scouting planes. The country has a number of anti-aircraft guns, but they are believed inadequate to cope with Italy's hundreds of modern bombing planes. The emperor also has about twenty aviators, of which six, including John C. Robinson of Chicago, are foreigners.

Protests Use of Dumdums.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Oct. 19.—[U. P.]—Ethiopia is preparing a protest to the league of nations against the alleged Italian violation of the Red Cross convention forbidding use of dumdum bullets.

A formal charge that Italian troops have been reversing bullets within their cartridge cases was made earlier today in a government communique. It said "bullets so treated wreak terrible havoc upon the human body.

After denying Italian charges that Ethiopian troops had used dumdums and characterizing the accusation as a "calumny," the communique said.

"Every one knows the Italian leaders' taste for this weapon. The real truth is that upon a large number of dead Italian soldiers clips were found containing bullets which had been reversed within their casings. In this regard, as all others, Mussolini's subjects are the advance guard of civilization."

Claim Ethiopians Plan Drive.

ASMARA, Eritrea, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Italian sources were advised today that the Ethiopians in the south are preparing actively for a counter-offensive.

Scores of automobiles loaded with munitions are said to have arrived from Addis Ababa at Harrar, 160 miles inland from Djibouti, French Somaliland.

In addition, it was reported, Ras Nasibu, an Ethiopian commander, is said to have started for Harrar with a caravan of hundreds of mules similarly burdened.

Ras Desta Demtu, another Ethiopian commander, was said to be moving with 120,000 men from Albera, the capital of his province in the south, against Gen. Graziani's forces on the Italian Somaliland front. Military authorities here predicted that Ras Desta would encounter vast difficulties on his march because of Italian aerial bombardment and the fact that the Italian troops, occupying positions near Dolo, control the roads.

Another strong concentration in Ethiopia was understood to be in progress in the Uollo region close to the frontier of Italian Somaliland. This concentration is said to be under the command of Ras Asfanossen, who is governor of that territory.

The forces of Ras Seyoum, who is in command of the Ethiopian troops in the north, continue to mass around Makale, south of Adowa. The Italians believe, however, that their bombing planes have seriously handicapped Seyoum through the destruction of Ethiopian munition dumps.

Military planes rained manifestos on the Ethiopians beyond the Italian lines, warning the natives that unless they make acts of submission they "will be treated as enemies."

The manifestos were signed by Gen. Emilio de Bono. They notified the natives that De Bono has assumed command of the district government in the name of King Victor Emmanuel and henceforth they are to consider themselves under the protection of the Italian flag.

Italian officials announced that a road has been completed from Adigrat to Adagahamus, 20 kilometers [12 miles] beyond Adigrat.

Bare Raid by Ethiopians.

ASMARA, Eritrea, Oct. 15.—[Delayed in transmission. — (AP) — Ethiopian warriors who attempted a swift raid into the Italian colony of Eritrea were thrown back with heavy losses today. Italian officials announced.

A sharp fight took place along the Setit river, which marks the western end of Eritrea's frontier. The raid took place near Omager. Many Ethiopians surrendered.

Count Galeazzo Ciano, aviator son-in-law of Premier Mussolini, said today seven Italian planes have cracked up in landing. This was caused, he said, by the fact that in the rarefied atmosphere of 7,900 feet the planes are obliged to come down at a higher speed than in a lower altitude, where the heavier air supports the machines.

Guido Jung, former minister of finance, has arrived here to fight in the Italian army. Jung, a volunteer, has the rank of lieutenant colonel. In his eagerness to reach the front he boarded the S. S. Ganges at Naples without proper papers, but the ship's captain cleared him of the status of technical stowaway.

More Desertions Claimed.

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMIES AT ENTISCIO, Ethiopia, Oct. 16 [Wednesday].—(AP)—[Delayed in transmission.] —More Ethiopian chieftains surrendered today to Gen. Pirzio Biroli, ommander of the middle column, military authorities announced. The surrendering chiefs included some fituauari [local governors] of the districts of Madahin, Uonde, Anda, Tella, and Sahalu and also the cagnasmasc [lieutenant governor] of Tafari Cosciu. Cheraius Gasci, governor of Amba Augher region, where the middle column battled sharply before reaching Entiscio, also surrendered.

ETHIOPIANS LED BY A WOMAN AMBUSH PATROL OF ITALIANS

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Oct. 19.—[U. P.]—Out of the hills to the south came word tonight that Weyzero Asurgadite, Ethiopia's fiercest fighting woman, had defeated an Italian reconnaisance force while her chieftain husband waited for the Italians to attack. Many Italians were were killed and the others were routed, the report said.

Asurgadite went with her warrior husband, Dedjasmatch Habte Mikael, when he was given one of the most important sectors on the southern front to guard. The unspecified mountain where Mikael is stationed is filled with caves where sentries keep continual watch. Friday the farthest sentry reported the approaching reconnaisance force. Mikael called a council of his leaders and argued until Asurgadite feared he would be surrounded by the Italians.

Chafed by the delay, Asurgadite led a company of men from another cave down to meet the advancing Italians. She dropped suddenly with her small force upon the invaders and, fighting like a tigress, spurred her troops to the kill.

MEXICAN WORKERS STRIKE IN PROTEST AGAINST DUCE'S WAR

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Workers' organizations throughout the country staged a brief general strike today in protest against what they called "imperialistic war" being waged by Premier Mussolini against Ethiopia.

The strike, ranging from 10 minutes among railroad, street car, and bus workers to one hour in a majority of the industries and businesses, was without incident except for an unsuccessful attempt by taxi drivers in Mexico City to block street corners.

Flags denouncing Italy flew from many buildings.

LIFE TERMS FOR TWO.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Ralph Hackenholz, 23, and Leonard Bookman, 20, both of Omaha, charged with murder of Clarence Haight, South Omaha school teacher, during a holdup this summer, pleaded guilty to second degree murder charges here today and were sentenced to life terms in the Nebraska state penitentiary.

ROBBER AUTOISTS STAGE 5 HOLDUPS IN AN AFTERNOON

Two robbers who committed five robberies in less than four hours yesterday afternoon were being sought last night by police of the five districts in which the crimes took place.

The pair first curbed the car of Anthony Sowil, 4825 North Rockwell street, at Western and North avenues, and took his watch and 50 cents. Their next appearance was in a filling station at 3455 South Ashland avenue, where they forced the attendant to put five gallons of gasoline in their automobile, then seized $25 from him.

Two hours later they entered another filling station at 3601 North Laramie avenue and exacted $15 of the the manager, Richard Arndt. The oil station at 4422 Belmont avenue, attended by Louis Dahlen, also yielded them $15, and the cash register of yet another station at 3935 Armitage avenue gave up $16.

Dr. Osgood Gives Talk on Ethiopian Slavery Problem

Slavery in Ethiopia cannot be "stamped out in a moment," and Haile Selassie's government has made "a sensible effort to get rid of slavery gradually without a civil war" since 1923, Dr. Wilfred H. Osgood, who spent a year there in 1927, said yesterday. Dr. Osgood, who is curator of zoölogy for the Field Museum of Natural History, spoke before a crowded hall in the museum's auditorium on "The Ethiopians and Their Stronghold." More than 1,600 persons crowded in the hall, and many were turned away.

WOMAN DIES OF CLUBBING.

Mrs. Jeanette Farrell, 54 years old, 1521 Cleveland avenue, died yesterday in the county hospital from injuries incurred on Oct. 8 when she was beaten by two men with whom she had been drinking. Police are hunting them.

117 ITALIANS LEAVE NEW YORK; CHEERED; WILL FIGHT IN AFRICA

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—There was wild enthusiasm today by 117 volunteers for Italian army service and 700 friends and relatives who saw them off on the liner Rex, which left pier 58 in the North river shortly after noon.

Deputy Chief Inspector Alexander C. Anderson had 133 policemen handy in case of trouble with a group of communists. The Reds simply held a meeting at the water's edge, with banners and speeches, the gist of which was down with war.

The 117 volunteers, all bachelors, who are returning to fight, were part of a passenger list of 311, of whom 20 traveled first class.

The Rex band played "Giovinezza," the Fascist anthem, and "Inno Del Piave," the Italian equivalent of "Tipperary." The volunteers, crowded at the bow of the vessel, waved Italian flags, sang and shouted. So did the 700 persons seeing the Rex sail away. Some of the latter ran all the length of the pier as the ship backed out.

SEES U. S. DRAWN INTO WAR; INVITES HER INTO LEAGUE

British Premier Seeks Aid in Enforcing Peace.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, addressing a Conservative rally at Worcester today, reaffirmed the British faith in the league of nations as an effective peace agency and in effect renewed the long standing invitation to the United States to join up and make it more effective.

He bolstered the invitation with a warning to America that "not one country today, if war broke out, could regard itself as secure until the war ended."

Wants Police Help.

He indicated further that Great Britain does not relish the job of being the lone world policeman and would like to have some help from other nations now outside the league. He denied the Italian accusation that Britain has as its object in pressing the present league action against Italy the overthrow of Premier Mussolini and the destruction of Fascism. To assert that such is the British objective "is a dangerous lie," he said.

It was in considering the possibility that the league might fail to end the Italo-Ethiopian war that Baldwin issued his "invitation" to America:

"If this first attempt by the world to secure peace fails, let us see whether our machinery or whether our work may have been at fault; let us try again and let us see once more whether we cannot get those still outside the league to join the league."

Insists Peace Only Motive.

The British leader insisted vehemently that his country's motives in seeking to stop Italy's conquest of Ethiopia are purely unselfish and concerned only with the preservation of world peace, not with the preservation of the British empire.

"The object we seek is peace and we seek it with the nations composing the league of nations," he asserted in support of his purity-of-motive statement. "In no step do we go before them, in no step behind, and no step do we take except in full unison with those who are working with us.

"This conflict is no British-Italian conflict. It is a conflict rather between Italy and the league. There has been too much talk about war in many quarters and all such talk is bad and evil. Our path, we think, is peace. We are treading a new path. We cannot tell what that path will turn out to be.

Claims No Alternative Action.

"If any one feels that there are any grounds for saying that the course Britain is taking in the present international situation is not the right one, let him ask himself and find the answer to this question: 'What alternative was there?' There could be no alternative in this case.

"Sanctions became inevitable under the obligations of the league covenant. We are always ready, however, to avail ourselves of the first opportunity which may present itself for conciliation. I have never lost faith in the league of nations for it is either the league or the arbitraments of war."

Regarding naval armaments, Baldwin said:

"The British government will try, I hope with some prospect of success, for an agreement among nations for the purpose of insuring that there shall be no naval competition in the next ten years."

Anglo-Italian Tension Eased.

Baldwin spoke at a time when the Anglo-Italian tension was considerably eased as a result of a burst of diplomatic activity in Paris, Rome and London in the past two days. A genuine feeling of relief exists here and it is felt that for a time at least a dangerous situation has been averted.

Mussolini apparently has been convinced by British and French representatives that Britain will take no military action to stop Italy from conquering Ethiopia, which indicates that if Il Duce can capture Ethiopia despite league economic sanctions, he will be allowed to reap his harvest.

It was repeated in semi-official quarters tonight that the British intend, as a sign of good faith, to withdraw two British battle cruisers, the Hood and Renown, from the Mediterranean. This move, however, is also considered a result of the favorable French reply to the British inquiry as to whether France will aid Britain in the event of an Italian attack upon the British fleet.

LABOR LEADERS SWING FISTS

plied with a taunt concerning Mr. Lewis's "dramatic" manners and rising to his six feet three inches, said that he had been raised "on small potatoes and that is why I am so small."

Mr. Lewis moved over toward Mr. Hucheson and the two conversed in low tones.

Suddenly, Lewis, fully as broad as the carpenters' chief but not so tall, crashed his right fist into the taller man's jaw. Hutcheson fell backward, Lewis on top of him. The pair carried a table with them. Both continued to punch.

Delegates jumped on tables and chairs. Mr. Green called for order and others separated the two disputants.

Later Mr. Lewis said that the minority on the resolutions committee had informed the majority that it would not make a report on resolutions dealing with specific industries like rubber, automobile, and radio, which were asking for industrial union charters, but that the minority wished it understood that the delegates from the small loyal unions were to have a chance to make their speeches.

Seek Industrial Charter.

Another resolution concerned a request for an industrial charter by the automobile workers. This resolution evoked a long debate on the industrial versus craft union issue in the course of which Sidney Hillman of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers pleaded for labor unity against "reckless aggregations of capital."

Proposal for the formation of a Labor party was defeated.

W. C. T. U. HEAD APPEALS FOR AID IN BIG CAMPAIGN

Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, president of the Women's Christian Temperance union, in a statement issued yesterday from the national headquarters in Evanston, appealed to all "friends of temperance" to join on the "world temperance Sunday," Oct. 27, in planning a campaign against the liquor trafic. Among the points to be emphasized are the efforts of liquor interests to break down all laws against the trafic's invasion of the home.

ETHIOPIANS HAVE LONE HOSPITAL FOR WAR INJURED

Missionary Tells Lack of Medical Facilities.

THE REV. J. J. STRAHLE.

Only one hospital in Ethiopia will be available for treatment of war wounded. This is the eighty room Zauditu Memorial hospital perched on a knoll less than a quarter mile from the imperial palace in Addis Ababa. It is operated by eight white men and women, American medical missionaries of the Seventh Day Adventist faith and forty young natives.

These facts were disclosed here yesterday by the Rev. J. J. Strahle of London, a director of missionary work for the denomination who was in Chicago. He visited the hospital less than a year ago, just after it was finished, and officially received the buildings as a gift from Emperor Haile Selassie and the Ethiopian nation.

It is to this hospital, pitifully small for the need, that the Red Cross has been shipping medical supplies of all sorts since the Italian military forces began to gather in Africa. At present it is possible to transport such supplies over the French railroad from French Somaliland to Addis Ababa in three days. Once that railroad is cut it will take at least two weeks to bring them in by camel caravan, he said.

Headed by Fever Expert.

The Zauditu hospital is headed by Dr. George C. Bergman, a veteran of more than ten years' experience in the fever ridden country which even on the high plateaus is unhealthy for white men. His assistant is Dr. T. C. Nicola who has been there two years. Recently the Red Cross has dispatched a number of other doctors and nurses to the hospital but it is not known whether they have arrived.

Drs. Bergman and Nicola gave medical advice to the late Will Barber, CHICAGO TRIBUNE correspondent who was the first American newspaper man to reach the capital after it became apparent a clash with Italy was impending.

"Every one in that country not a native must be careful of his health," said the Rev. Mr. Strahle. "We ate five grains of quinine a day even when we were on the plateau, 8,100 feet high. You can't let the malaria get hold, for once it does it proves fatal."

Only Modern Buildings in Capital.

Aside from the emperor's palace the hospital buildings, of which there are five, all of one story, are the only ones in Addis Ababa which could be called "modern." Well screened against ubiquitous mosquitoes, with its own electric light plant, its own boiling plant for the water supply, and with an X-ray, hydrotherapy, surgery, and other departments, it compares favorably, the Rev. Mr. Strahle said, with such institutions elsewhere.

USE OF TAX TOKENS IN CHAIN STORES TO BE MADE OPTIONAL

Complaints from customers that the sales tax tokens are a nuisance have resulted in a decision by the Chicago drug, grocery, tobacco, and five and ten cent store chains to give the patrons the option of paying the tax by the token or bracket plan, beginning tomorrow.

Many stores never used the tokens, collecting the tax on the bracket system with 1 cent being paid on purchases from 15 to 49 cents, 2 cents from 50 to 83 cents, and 3 cents from 84 cents to $1.16. This is the system which the chains will follow when the tax is not paid in tokens. It was pointed out that the tokens gradually will disappear if only a minority of the chain store customers continue to ask for them.

FRANCE VOTES TODAY; ELECTS THIRD OF SENATE

The new left wing popular front, in its first test of voting strength, is out to beat him and has a complete list of candidates for the Seine department's ten seats. Among those seeking to defeat Laval is Marcel Cachin, leader of the communist party, and two other communists.

Laval's note to Great Britain, generally considered a favorable reply to the British request for assurances of naval aid if the British fleet is attacked by Italy while carrying out sanctions against Italy, was expected, however, to satisfy both left and right groups in general.

French Balk At Sending Ships.

A development following the note was the report in high French circles that there seemed little possibility that France would sent any of its warships to replace British units in the Mediterranean. An official interpretation of Laval's note said:

"British ships presumably are in the Mediterranean solely to protect British interests, which France has no obligation to safeguard."

Although the premier feared the possibility of domestic trouble because of France's position in the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, he himself seemed sure of keeping his seat in the senate regardless of the outcome of tomorrow's voting in the Paris region. He is a candidate from Aubervilliers. He also is a candidate from his home department of Puy de Dome.

A third of the senate's seats will be filled for nine years with the election of 107 members under the law whereby a third of the body is renewed every three years.

The struggle among the new left wing popular front, the dominant Liberals of Deputy Edouard Herriot's Radical-Socialist party, and the conservative right provides exceptional interest, for this test of strength is but a forerunner to the more important election of a new chamber of deputies next spring.

A gain in strength of the left, which is disputing with the "Fascist" forces of the nationalist right, such as the Croix de Feu veterans' organization, is predicted.

Expression of popular feeling will be only indirect because senators are elected not directly by the people but by members of departmental general councils and delegates of municipal councils, usually meeting in city halls.

HITLER PRAISES STRIDES IN NAZI AUTO INDUSTRY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—"Without automobiles, airplanes, or loud speakers the Nazis would have been unable to conquer Germany," Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler told leaders of the Nazi automobile corps at Coburg today. "The failure of our opponents to make use of these technical devices finished them politically."

"German automobiles proved in this year's races that they are able to master foreign competition," he said in praising the reich's automobile manufacturers after reviewing the corps.

"The automobile plays an important part in the military defense of the country," Maj. Huehlein, leader of the automobile corps said.

BAKING INDUSTRY TAKES WALLOP AT AAA PROPAGANDA

Act Today to Refute Bread Price Raise Charge.

An attempt by the AAA brain trusters in Washington to plaster the blame on the baking industry for increased bread prices in some parts of the country [not Chicago] will be combated today at the convention of the American Bakers' association in the Hotel Sherman. A promise to this effect was made last night by Henry Stude of Chicago, president of the association.

The controversy will be brought before the bakers' organization in the form of an open letter written to Stude by Donald E. Montgomery, consumers' counsel for the Agricultural Adjustment administration. In this letter Montgomery propounded 15 questions, many of which he answered himself in his enthusiasm to demonstrate that the bakers, rather than the New Deal, ought to get the public blame for bread price raises.

Stude Gives Some Answers.

Although the full text of the missive was not available in Chicago last night, Stude answered such of the questions as were carried in news dispatches from Washington, and also some of the statements.

For example, Montgomery wrote that "trade press reports" indicated [to him] that one question for discussion at the convention would be "How to Raise Bread Prices."

"The gentleman is mistaken," declared the bakers' president. "There was no such subject on the program. It has always been a policy of this association to avoid any hint of price fixing. We believe in competition and in letting the members fight for their own economic lives. The only reason we'll discuss bread prices is because Mr. Montgomery asked us to. He seems to want to make a national issue out of matter that has always been regarded in the past as local and individual. We'll accommodate him, even if the election isn't until next year."

Calls One Cent Increase "Silly."

Montgomery wrote: "Is it your opinion that all bakers should increase their prices of white bread one cent a loaf?"

Stude answered: "No, I do not. I think it would be a silly thing, as well as an illegal one, to set a national price rise. If I were a baker in a locality with a good bread price I'd try to hold that price; if I were in a price war community I'd cut prices. That's just plain common sense."

Montgomery stated: "Average bread prices reached their present level a year ago. Have ingredient costs of a pound loaf increased as much as one cent since then?" Then he answered his own query: "The department's information is that the average increase in cost of ingredients in a formula calling for types of flour which have shown largest increase in price has been only one-half cent a loaf."

No Rise in Chicago Price.

Stude replied: "Mr. Montgomery is doing some verbal shadow boxing with himself. Why is he asking questions if he knows the answers himself? It can't be that he wants information on price rises. He has them in his own department reports. But I'll give my answer to that one. The ingredient costs have not risen a cent a loaf in the last year.

"Price rises in bread over the nation have not been uniform. Some bakers in Texas have gone up a cent a loaf, but there has been no rise in Chicago."

Thomas Smith of Chicago, who is secretary of the bakers' organization, said that the industry had been giving increased service to consumers and that this cost money.

And Don't Forget the Tax!

"Wrapping and slicing has been added," he asserted. "Wages, increased under the NRA, have been maintained and—lest it be forgotten while Mr. Montgomery is asking his questions—there's a processing tax on wheat products. That is costly to the consumer, too."

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace launched his "blame the baker" campaign Wednesday, when he announced that recent rises in material costs were half a cent a loaf and that an increase of a cent a loaf would give the bakers an additional 150 million dollars a year profit.

SAFETY WHISTLE TO WARN WHEN CAR REACHES 50

White Plains, N. Y., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—When Bernard Koch, county clerk and head of the Westchester county automobile bureau, remarked recently that automobiles should be equipped with a stop-horn "like singing tea kettles" to warn motorists they are driving at dangerous speeds, his statement was received with amused interest. Executives of an insurance company, however, took the idea seriously and set an inventor to work perfecting such a warning whistle.

Today, Koch gave permission to place the safety device—which will start tooting at fifty miles an hour—on his car. The horn will blow until the car slows down.

BALMY WEATHER LURES CHICAGO OUTDOORS

Two More Nice Days

After experiencing virtually midsummer weather for a week, Chicago still can look forward to probably two more equally pleasant days, Weather Forecaster A. W. Cook predicted yesterday. The outlook is for clear skies, though with somewhat cooler temperature, and moderate southerly winds. The mercury climbed to 74 degrees yesterday afternoon, and while this was short of the high mark of 80 degrees set last Thursday, it was some ten degrees above the normal for this time of year. Week-end crowds thronged the parks and forest preserves.

SAFETY BOARDS IN ALL COUNTIES OF U. S. URGED

Organization of public safety committees in all of the 3,062 counties in the United States to reduce motor vehicle fatalities was urged yesterday by Sidney J. Williams, director of the public safety division of the National Safety council. He spoke at the closing session of the American County association's first national convention held in the Hotel La Salle.

Aldermen to Offer Plan for Pedestrian Tunnels

Ald. Joseph Kacena Jr. [23d], said yesterday that he will introduce at the next council meeting a proposal to construct pedestrian tunnels at each loop and outlying street intersection heavily congested with motor and pedestrian trafic. "A survey will determine the number of such streets and the cost of the tunnels," Ald. Kacena said. "I believe we can get government money for the construction."

TRUCK SWERVES TO AVOID CRASH AND TAKES LIFE

Victim, Standing in Drive, Is Crushed.

Morris Rothbart, 78 years old, 3711 Grenshaw street, was fatally injured yesterday afternoon when he was struck by a motor truck which swerved suddenly into a driveway of a gasoline filling station at Roosevelt road and Keeler avenue. Rothbart, who was standing in the driveway, was crushed against a signboard. He died last night at the Mount Sinai hospital.

John Price, 24 years old, 2317 Cambridge avenue, driver of the truck, employed by the Stockholm Cleaning and Dyeing company, 231 North Pulaski road, told the police he was going east in Roosevelt road and that he swerved the truck into the driveway to avoid a collision with an automobile that turned in front of his truck.

Girl Loses Fight for Life.

Miss Pauline Sonnanstein, 23 years old, of Morency, Mich., died in the Highland Park hospital yesterday of injuries incurred Thursday when the automobile in which she was riding struck a parked truck on Skokie road in Highland Park. Miss Anne Brindley, 29 years old, of Mount Clemens, Mich., a night club entertainer, was killed in the crash.

Policemen Patrick Walsh and Joseph Jennings of the accident prevention bureau were injured when their squad car collided at Division street and Central Park avenue with another car driven by William Clayton, 2244 South 50th avenue, Cicero. Clayton was arrested on a charge of reckless driving.

Massacre Toll Up to 756.

Up to 3 p. m. yesterday 756 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. In that period 589 had been killed in trafic accidents within the Chicago city limits and 13,754 injured. Other Cook county deaths were:

Melvin Jackson, 13 years old, 11312 Aberdeen street. Fatally injured when he fell from a truck on which police said he was hitching a ride at 111th street and Stewart avenue.

James Currie, 60 years old, 2231 Warren boulevard, a plumber. Fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile in front of 2215 Madison street.

Michael Trippiedi, 19 years old, 823 North Harding avenue. Fatally injured yesterday afternoon when the motorcycle he was riding struck an embankment at Augusta street and Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park. He died last night at St. Anne's hospital.

$10,000 PRIZES OFFERED; KNOW SCREEN STARS?

Tribune Starts Contest in Misplaced Faces.

That is the offer announced by THE TRIBUNE in the picture section of today's issue. It is open free of charge to men, women, boys and girls everywhere. It is presented for the entertainment of TRIBUNE readers. It is called "Misplaced Faces of Movie Stars."

Each Sunday, starting today, a set of three photographs of movie stars will appear in the picture section of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. Each photograph is in three sections. As printed in THE TRIBUNE the forehead of one star appears with the eyes and nose of another star and the mouth and chin of a third star. Readers are asked to cut apart the photographs, put the parts in their proper places and name the stars. The stars are screen celebrities known to every one who attends the movies.

The stars whose photographs appear in this contest will at the same time appear in motion pictures at Balaban & Katz theaters. Seeing them on the screens will aid those who may need assistance in naming the stars.

The $10,000 in cash prizes will be divided into 428 sums. The first prize is $2,000, second prize $1,000, and third prize $500. There are 425 other cash prizes of $200 each and less.

There are no essays to write. There are no subscriptions to solicit. Contestants will be required to do nothing more than put the pictures together properly and name them. There are thirty-six pictures in all—three each Sunday for twelve Sundays.

Full particulars of the offer will be found in the two page announcement appearing in the picture section of today's TRIBUNE.

HIGH COURT OF R. ISLAND; ITS BIRTH AND LIFE

the ballots in the two election districts, which numbered 2,640.

Two hours later the committee reported that it had counted the ballots and had found that the two Democratic candidates had been rightfully elected. The Republican member of the canvassing committee joined in making the report unanimous. He now holds a $5,000 state job, the gift of the Democratic administration.

In the meantime the lieutenant governor had conducted the proceedings with a high hand. He declared motions carried by voice vote and refused to recognize Republican senators who were on their feet demanding roll calls, despite the guarantee of the constitution of a roll call upon demand of one-fifth of the members present.

He also refused to permit a stenographic report of the proceedings. No roll call was permitted until Republican senators began to leave with a view of breaking a quorum. When only three Republicans remained, because they had been taken into custody by the sergeant at arms in order to preserve the quorum, a roll call was allowed for the first time.

All of this time the statehouse was in the utmost confusion, with National Guardsmen, called out by the governor, patrolling the corridors.

Then They Fire the Court.

As soon as the two Democratic senators had been seated, giving the Democrats a majority in the senate as well as the house, the legislature proceeded to remove the members of the Supreme court in less time than it takes to tell it and to elect the new members. After the seizure of the state government had been completed Gov. Green was inaugurated some time after midnight of New Year's day, the legislature was adjourned, and the conspirators dispersed. For the first time in the history of the state its government was entirely in Democratic hands.

If the validity of the acts of the new Supreme court should be questioned in the United States Supreme court, it would be on the ground that the tribunal was illegally elected by a legislature illegally constituted by the high-handed procedure in the state senate.

What Bar Association Thinks.

On this point the American Bar Association Journal said:

"The legality of seating the two senators whose seats were protested has not been judicially tested. The only judicial forum for testing such legality is the (state) Supreme court. The present functioning justices of that court are a de jure court only if the senators declared seated were legally elected. For the court to upset the seating would be to declare itself out of office, and if out of office it should of course not hand down any decision at all unless it might be 'per curiam coram non judice' (by a court without jurisdiction, an illegal tribunal).

"Needless to say, no one has had the academic leisure or temerity to raise this interesting question. The Republicans say the whole action is illegal. The Democrats say the Republicans got just what they deserved. Many thoughtful members of the bar say that the state of Rhode Island did not deserve what it received, namely, the complete destruction in the minds of most of its citizens of any thought of the independence of the judiciary."

May Face Parallel Decision.

While the body now functioning as the state Supreme court has not passed on the legality of the seating of the two Democratic senators, it may soon be confronted with the decision of a case involving parallel circumstances. The police commissioners of Warwick are prosecuting an injunction suit against the Democratic mayor, John A. O'Brien. The mayor is accused of declaring their offices vacant by strong-arming the city council in the same manner that Lieut. Gov. Quinn strong-armed the senate. The case is now in the Superior court, headed for the Supreme court.

The coup d'etat caused a serious setback in the work of the court. When the old court was ousted there were 33 cases which had been argued but not decided. It became necessary to hold rehearings of all these cases at great expense to lawyers and clients as well as the state, and only a few of the cases have been decided up to date. As a result the court's calendar is greatly congested.

At first it was suspected that influential interests desiring a different action in these and other cases than could be expected of the old court had instigated the coup d'etat, or at least that part of it pertaining to the high tribunal. Such charges, of course, are difficult to prove.

One Case Appears Murky.

There is one case, however, in which the new court has reversed the old court. In 1934 Mr. O'Brien was declared elected mayor of Warwick by a majority of 7 votes. The Republican candidate was Pierce H. Brereton, chairman of the Republican state central committee. Mr. Brereton charged he had been counted out by the Democratic election officials. He carried the case to court and one of the last acts of the old Supreme court was to sustain him. Mr. O'Brien promptly asked a rehearing. Then came the coup, after which the new court granted the rehearing and validated the election of Mr. O'Brien.

In defending the forcible removal of the Republican judges, Gov. Green charged they had been grossly partisan in the decision of political cases. He said that in suits brought by Republican officials and in suits brought by Democratic officials the court always decided in favor of the Republicans, although the grounds of the suits were identical. The Republicans deny this charge, citing, among other instances, the decision of the old court in favor of the Democratic officials of the town of Coventry.

Plot Follows Election.

According to the Republicans, Democrats began hatching the plot that resulted in the coup d'état right after the reëlection of Gov. Green and Lieut. Gov. Quinn and the return of a Democratic house in November, 1934. That they had designs on the Supreme court was evidenced, the Republicans say, by the large number of election and other political suits that were instituted by the Democrats on fanciful grounds. Adverse decision of such suits by the Supreme court was exploited to inflame public opinion against the tribunal.

The Democrats, however, according to the Republicans, were motivated less by a desire to control the decisions of the court in the ordinary run of cases than by other considerations. In the first place, it was essential to the success of their seizure of the state government that there should be a Supreme court that would not invalidate their acts. In the second place, a new Supreme court offered Gov. Green a chance of kicking upstairs two Democratic officials who stood in his way.

Casts Sheep's Eyes at Senate.

Triumphantly reëlected, Gov. Green began to cast longing eyes on a senatorial seat in Washington. His friends began booming him for the Democratic nomination for senator in 1936 to oppose Republican Senator Jesse H. Metcalf. The only difficulty was that Democratic Congressman Francis B. Condon was looming up as a candidate for the nomination for senator and Mr. Condon was admittedly very popular. It was exceedingly doubtful that Gov. Green could beat Congressman Condon in the primary. But it turned out that Congressman Condon would accept election to the new Supreme court and Gov. Green was only too glad to accommodate him.

So Mr. Condon was elected to the Supreme court immediately after the old court was ousted in the coup.

Another thorn in the governor's side was Edmund W. Flynn, Democratic floor leader of the house. Mr. Flynn, an able lawyer and political leader, was anything but subservient to Gov. Green. He did not belong to the Green faction and his independence threatened to disrupt the governor's plans for the passage of legislation. Mr. Flynn, however, was prevailed upon to accept election to the office of chief justice of the new Supreme court.

Republican Congress Victor.

Thus the governor's road was cleared of political obstacles. The third Democrat placed on the court was William Moss, an assistant attorney general. To take the partisan curse off the proceedings the Democrats promoted two Republican judges, Hugh B. Baker and Antonio A. Capotosto, from the Superior court to the new Supreme court.

It was to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Justice Condon from congress that Charles F. Risk, Republican, was elected in the August by-election, the result of which was heralded far and wide as evidence of the turning of the tide against the New Deal.

And now it appears that Gov. Green may have kicked Mr. Condon upstairs all in vain, so far as the governor's senatorial ambitions are concerned. Gov. Green went strongly pro-New Deal and sought approval of bond issues to finance state participation in numerous federal work relief projects of a boondoggling nature. The Rhode Island electorate rejected them, to the impairment of the governor's prestige. Moreover, with public sentiment running against the New Deal, Senator Peter Goelet Gerry, Democratic national committeeman, who never was a New Dealer, is understood to be regarding New Dealer Green's senatorial ambitions with a very glassy ege.

Homeward Bound

EN ROUTE WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ABOARD U. S. S. HOUSTON, Caribbean Sea, Oct. 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt headed homeward tonight after a day of tarpon fishing in a driving rainstorm.

Sailing for Charleston, S. C., the Houston and Portland turned northward at a 20 knot clip toward Windward passage, between Cuba and Haiti. The President will hold to his original plan to disembark Wednesday, arriving at the White House Thursday.

Disregarding the rain, President Roosevelt stopped on the high seas just outside San Blas bay and set out before noon in an open boat to fish. Schools of tarpon inhabit the deep sea in that vicinity. The President returned to the Houston late in the afternoon.

Physician Eats Glass to Show It's Harmless

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Supporting his testimony that a small amount of glass can be eaten without danger, Dr. Mosby G. Perrow, Lynchburg director of public welfare, today calmly chewed and swallowed a fragment of plate glass before jurors in court. He had been called as a defense witness in a suit for $5,000 damages brought by Mrs. Bertie C. Conn who contended she had swallowed fragments of glass when eating peanuts and had suffered injury.

ORIENTAL RUGS

Our huge purchases in the Orient could not have been more opportune

The war in Ethiopia has already caused a shortage of raw wool (which is used in soldiers' uniforms), and this, in addition to increased insurance and freight rates, is adding to the cost of Oriental Rugs landed in America.

Our enormous import shipments now on sale were not only received by us BEFORE any rise in prices but were bought by our resident buyers in the Orient at the old, unbelievably low "depression" prices.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

WHEN ARE CLOTHES REALLY CLEAN?

How white is white and how brilliant is robin's-egg blue after they've been laundered at home about fifty times? As we launder clothes by our Approved methods the answer would be: as white and bright and as spotlessly clean as when they were new.

Clothes are not really clean until every trace of soap has been removed from the fibre of the cloth. Home laundering can in no way be compared to the modern, laboratory tested methods with which we wash and iron anything and everything that's washable. Our final rinse water is as clean as the water you drink.

Our methods are guaranteed to be safe, scientific and certified by America's highest laundering authority, the American Institute of Laundering. Take your choice of one of our eight family services. You'll get the finest possible washing and ironing at the price you want to pay.

SWEITZER TO ASK 7TH DELAY IN HIS CRIMINAL TRIAL

Shortage Case Allowed to Lag, Records Show.

An effort to obtain a seventh continuance of the trial of Robert M. Sweitzer, veteran Democratic politician, will be made tomorrow morning before Judge John C. Lewe of the Criminal court. Sweitzer has been under indictment since June 20 on a charge of withholding $414,000 of public funds from his successor as county clerk, Michael Flynn. Sweitzer, who left the office of county clerk to become county treasurer, was ousted as treasurer when the shortage in the clerk's office was discovered.

The continuance plea, it was indicated by defense attorneys, will be based on the fact that Sweitzer and his lawyers have been occupied in the recent civil suit whereby Sweitzer unsuccessfully attempted to get back his office of county treasurer, which was given to Joseph L. Gill by the county board after the ouster of Sweitzer. The defense lawyers will contend that they have not had sufficient time to prepare for the criminal trial.

State to Oppose Delay.

Assistant State's Attorneys Marshall V. Kearney and Leslie Salter announced that they are ready for trial and will oppose any further continuance. Judge Lewe has cleared his call for the start of the trial and has been given no formal notice, he said, that the defense will ask for another continuance.

The court records show that Sweitzer was indicted on June 20 and was arraigned in court the following day. He entered a plea of not guilty and the case was assigned to Judge E. I. Frankhauser and continued by agreement to July 22. The records from then on is as follows:

JULY 22: Motion to quash made and continued to Aug. 12.

AUG. 12: A rule entered allowing the defendant to file his motion to quash and continued to Sept. 3.

SEPT. 3: Continued on order of court to Sept. 17 by Chief Justice Normoyle. Judge Frankhauser in the meantime was reassigned from the Criminal court to the Civil court.

One of Oldest Cases on Docket.

The Sweitzer case is now one of the oldest on the court dockets. In the last two years an effort has been made to dispose of all criminal cases within 30 days, and 60 days at a maximum.

In contrast to the continuances in the Sweitzer case is the case of Ralph Pecho and James DiForti, which appear on the court records just ahead of that of the Democratic politician. They were indicted for robbery on the same day as Sweitzer and on Aug. 8 were sentenced to 1 year to life each on robbery charges after a jury trial.

The indictment against Sweitzer charges that when he relinquished the office of county clerk, which he held continuously from 1910 to 1934, he failed to turn over to his successor $380,000 which he had taken from the tax redemption fund and interest of about $72,000. The audit shows he paid back $39,000 of the redemption fund account, leaving a shortage of $341,000. The interest amount is only for a 12 year period as covered by the audit ordered by the county board.

Check for $200,000 Traced.

The audit shows, it is charged, that Sweitzer took one check of $200,000 from the fee account and later used this money to cover part of the shortage in the redemption fund account.

The length of the trial will depend, the prosecutors say, on the fight made by the defense on the book records necessary to be introduced to show the alleged withholding of funds. If the defense does not make much of a fight on the records the state will not take more than a few days to present its side of the case.

Sweitzer will be defended by an old school day chum, Attorney Benedict J. Short, who has a reputation among the lawyers as being the outstanding Criminal court defense lawyer. He is the dean of the Criminal court practice. Attorney I. Harvey Levinson, who handled Sweitzer's civil suit to recover his county treasurer job, and Attorney Ode L. Rankin will be associated with Mr. Short.

EMBEZZLER OF FIREMEN'S FUND SENT TO PRISON

Rockford, Ill., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Ernest A. Gustafson, 45, former secretary of the Rockford fire department, was sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Joliet penitentiary on each of three charges of embezzlement and larceny. The sentences will run concurrently. Gustafson pleaded guilty.

Indictments returned this week by the grand jury here charged Gustafson with embezzlement of $9,000 from the Rockford Firemen's Relief association, $1,034 from the Rockford Firemen's association, and $2,000 in tax anticipation warrants from the firemen's pension fund.

Following his arrest last August, he confessed he lost the money in the stock market.

HASTINGS HITS NEW DEAL RULE 'BY DECEPTION'

Starts G. O. P. Senators' National Campaign.

BY PARKE BROWN.

SENATOR HASTINGS.

Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware, chairman of the Republican senatorial committee, began in Chicago yesterday what is intended to be a steady, nationwide campaign against the New Deal by Republican members of the upper house of congress. Speaking at the Hamilton club under the auspices of the Republican Round Table, he told a luncheon crowd that if an accurate history is written future generations will see a chapter entitled "Franklin D. Roosevelt's Administration: The Era of Deception—1933-1937."

"Some of the great issues in the next campaign," he said, "will be economy vs. extravagance and constitutional government vs. dictatorship, but the real issue will be "sincerity and honesty vs. broken pledges and deception."

Reads Bill of Particulars.

Reading a carefully written speech, Senator Hastings listed one "deception" after another, finally charging that the voter cannot rely upon any future promises made by President Roosevelt.

"I might call your attention," he said, "to the fact that the President recently announced that there would be no further increases in taxes and that there would be no new taxes. But, in view of the evidence that is within your knowledge as well as in my own, may I respectfully ask whether there be a single American who can rely upon such a promise?

"Is there an American anywhere who knows what Mr. Roosevelt will be advocating tomorrow, next week, next month, or next year? Is there a single American who can be without fear as to what the consequences of such a course will be?

Basis for Many Doubts.

"Is there an American anywhere who feels certain that if Mr. Roosevelt is a candidate again that the American people would be justified in relying upon any promises he may make?"

In listing the deceptions he charged against President Roosevelt, the senator reviewed hurriedly the differences between his campaign platform and his performances, turning soon to the Executive's official acts and taking up first the message to congress on March 10, 1933, in which extraordinary powers—later granted—were sought to permit immediate reduction of governmental expenses.

"Can there be any doubt," he asked after quoting at length from that message, "that the President was deceiving congress and the country when he asked for this legislation? Is it possible he was frank and honest? Is it at all surprising that the man who was then budget director should have publicly charged on Oct. 14 last that the 1936 budget of Roosevelt is 'deceptive' and purposely intended to deceive?

Sheep's Clothing Cast Aside.

"This effort at economy did not last long, And the subsequent actions of the President lead one to believe that his principal object in having the act passed at all was to give him greater power than any president ever had up to that time."

Senator Hastings charged that there was deception in the passage of the national recovery act.

"In the Democratic platform," he said, "the promise was made to strengthen the anti-trust laws and much was said about how the monopolies were imposing upon the poor people of the nation. The NRA, instead of strengthening the anti-trust laws, definitly and positively set them aside and for a period of two years gave immunity to those practicing monopoly. This was deception in the name of recovery, but it was none the less deception."

Cites Scorn of Constitution.

His next emphatic use of the word he had chosen as a text came in his discussion of the Roosevelt plea that the Guffey coal bill should not be opposed on grounds of unconstitutionality.

"Think of a President who was sworn to support and defend the constitution," he exclaimed, "urging another body whose members had taken a similar oath, to practically ignore their own oaths in order that the failure of a great labor group to get what they demanded be placed upon the doorstep of the Supreme court of the United States.

"It is not too much to say that this amounts to government by deception."

The AAA Tax Situation.

His comment on the conduct of the administration after the NRA decision was bitter. He especially condemned the effort to prevent the government from having to refund taxes illegally collected under the Agricultural Adjustment act.

"I can imagine nothing more unfair," he said, "nothing more un-American, than to undertake by legislation to prevent a citizen of America from suing the government for a sum of money that it has illegally collected.

"No honest administration would suggest such a course. No President who stoops to such methods should be permitted to remain in power."

COL. M'CORMICK TO TALK TO YOUNG REPUBLICANS, INC.

Young Republicans, Inc., announced yesterday that Col. R. R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, will address a rally of young men and women voters under the auspices of the organization at the Hamilton club next Wednesday evening.

Deneen Watson will preside at the meeting and a number of party leaders have been invited to attend. The Young Republicans, Inc., plan to have similar meetings every month until the 1936 election.

Col. McCormick also will speak before the Young Republicans of Evanston at the Georgian hotel Tuesday evening.

New York Will Curb Jaywalking Pedestrians

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Pedestrians who cross streets against the trafic lights or in the middle blocks are to be curbed by the police as a part of the city's anti-noise campaign, it was announced today.

STATE ST. STORE VETERANS TO GET HORSE CAR RIDE

Employés who have been associated with State street stores for 40 years or more will board a horse-drawn street car tomorrow evening and after a ride down State street will get out in front of the Palmer House to be greeted by Mayor Kelly and by Edward F. Dunne, former mayor and governor. Their arrival at 6:30 p. m. will be a part of "The Pageant of State Street," to be followed by the third annual dinner of the Association of State Street Seniors in the hotel.

A round table conference of the 14 "pioneers of State street," founders of what the State street council terms the world's greatest retail thoroughfare, will be dramatized. Henry C. Lytton, 90 years old, proprietor of The Hub department store, is the only one of the 14 surviving. The others were Marshall Field, C. W. Partridge, Charles Netcher Jr., John T. Pirie, H. N. Higinbotham, A. M. Rothschild, Elijah Peacock, Potter Palmer, Leon Mandel, Levi Z. Leiter, Charles A. Stevens, Ernest J. Lehmann, and Andrew MacLeish.

Among the 1,000 guests at the dinner will be the oldest employés of leading Chicago industries.

SENATOR NORRIS ON FENCE FOR 1936 AT PRESENT, HE DECLARES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Nebraska's independent Senator Norris gave a spotted indorsement to the New Deal today. He added he didn't like politics in the postoffice department and that there was too much spending.

Senator Norris, who supported Franklin D. Roosevelt for president in 1932, did not say whether he would renew that support in 1936. He declared as to that:

"I'm going to support whatever I think is right and which I want to see succeed."

The Nebraska senator cited a recent displacement of a postmaster in Boston whom, he said, had a career of 37 years' satisfactory service, by a "purely partisan, political appointment." Norris added, though, that the Republicans had indulged in the same sort of "machine politics."

"My own idea is that the best friend of the administration is one who offers constructive criticism," Senator Norris said.

WESTERN G. O. P. DEMANDS BONUS BE PAID TO VETS

Convention Urges Youth Help Oust New Deal.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Republican leaders of eight intermountain states concluded a two day conference today with a call for "broad minded Democrats" to join them in ousting the Roosevelt administration. The invitation was coupled with an appeal for support of the nation's youth.

"There should be no blank wall of prejudice separating the young and the old, the east and the west, the Republican and the broad minded Democrat," said a resolution.

"Therefore we extend an invitation to all citizens to join with us in the fight for the preservation of American ideals, laws, and standards of living."

Raps New Deal Farm Program.

Other resolutions favored payment of the soldiers' bonus, decried government in business, hit at the present adiministration's farm program, and, in a lengthy enumeration, indicted federal policies generally on more than 20 points. Of the bonus, the resolution said:

"We deplore the injustices of the so-called economy bill which took from veterans the compensation and allowances voted under Republican administration. Opposing financial experiments and inflation, we advocate the payment of the acknowledged obligation to those who have served our country."

The Roosevelt administration was charged with responsibility for increasing the number of government employés from 565,000 to approximatly 758,000; failure to reduce unemployment below the 11,000,000 depression peak; destroying foodstuffs and necessitating the importation of foreign supplies to replace them.

Find Calmer Seas

ABOARD PRESIDENT GRANT EN ROUTE TO FAR EAST, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Calm seas and sunshine greeted Vice President Garner and party of 46 senators and representatives today on the third day of their voyage to Manila to represent the United States at the inauguration of the Philippine commonwealth government Nov. 15.

High seas caused much seasickness the first two days out from Seattle. Mr. Garner, who was not affected by the rough going, said:

"I must be a good sailor, considering the little ocean traveling I have done."

U. S. FREES CITY SEWER GRANT OF $11,533,000

Gives $21,300,000 WPA Cash to State in Day.

United States Controler General J. R. McCarl released yesterday $21,376,716 for 223 Illinois work projects, according to an announcement here by Works Progress administration officials. The projects, with the sums to be paid by the local governments, will cost a total of $26,567,428. They include one project for Chicago sewer development which will cost the PWA $11,533,000. The $21,376,716 release is the largest since $32,543,000 was granted for Chicago's street repair program.

State WPA officials were not prepared to say how far the funds will go toward the goal of having 183,500 relief clients at work by Nov. 1. They estimate it would hire 26,000 for a year, or more for a shorter period. Only 10,217 thus far have been provided with WPA employment in Illinois.

Robert J. Dunham, state WPA administrator, is empowered to give priority to those projects in yesterday's approved list which he believes can be started immediately.

O. K. 65 Projects Here.

Forty-five projects sponsored by Cook county agencies were approved in the release of funds, while Chicago governmental bodies were authorized to proceed on twenty projects. The $11,533,000 is for sewer extension and rehabilitation in the area bounded by 87th street, the south city limits, Wentworth avenue and Western avenue. This would be for "open cut relief sewers," as distinct from the tunnel sewers to be built by the sanitary district with loans from the Public Works administration.

Largest of the projects for Cook county outside Chicago was a grant of $1,128,710 to the village of Maywood for new storm sewers.

Proposals Approved Here.

Besides the Chicago sewer project, grants for works within the city provided for in yesterday's release, and the local governments sponsoring them, are:

CITY OF CHICAGO—$9,680 to employ assistants for doctors at the Municipal Hygiene clinic, 1121 South State street; $1,718 for physical improvements at the Chicago Public Library, $2,578 for improvements at the Chicago airport, $392,320 for rehabilitation of street signs throughout the city, $45,350 for the construction of three steel scows for river work.

COOK COUNTY—$3,600 for improvements at the Criminal Courts building, $152,749 for the rehabilitation of the old criminal courts building and its conversion into an office building, $48,420 for clerical assistants at the county recorder's office, $16,304 for improvements to the Juvenile Detention home and court building, $14,670 for the repair and painting of voting booths and ballot boxes.

CHICAGO PARK DISTRICT—$3,632,974 for improvement of the park area along the Outer drive from Montrose to Lawrence avenue, $438,786 for improvement and rehabilitation of Grant par kalong Leif Ericson and Columbus drives, $50,315 for rehabilitation of 20 acres of wooded islands in Jackson park, $68,343 for development of north shore parks; $370,593 for improvements and additions to the Soldiers' field stadium.

STATE OF ILLINOIS—$32,879 for clerical help at the Illinois Eye and Ear infirmary. struction of a boys' club and community MISCELLANEOUS—$68,596 for the con-center at 1145 Vernon place.

Officials here were striving yesterday to get as many projects and jobs going as possible by Nov. 1.

PLAN 85 ILLINOIS CCC CAMPS WITH 117,000 IN RANKS

Total Strength of Corps to Be 500,000 Men.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Plans for expanding the Civilian Conservation Corps and its work program, including proposals to establish 85 camps comprising 117,000 men in Illinois, were announced today by Robert Fechner, CCC director.

The number of CCC camps throughout the country will be increased to 2,427 as the corps is recruited from its summer strength of 300,000 up to 500,000 this winter, according to Director Fechner. The largest number of camps will be in national forests, where the recruits will be put to work on forest conservation and improvement projects.

Approximately 235,000 of the men in the camps supervised by the department of agriculture will carry on forest protection and improvement work in the national forests and on state and private forest lands. Another 103,000 CCC men will be assigned to 500 soil erosion prevention camps, where the work will be supervised by the soil conservation service, and 4,800 men will work on wild life conservation projects under the supervision of the biological survey.

Five hundred and seventy-five CCC camps occupied by approximately 119,000 men will be located in national and state parks and on reclamation and grazing control projects where the work will be supervised by the department of the interior.

Means 22 New Camps.

The 85 camps which are planned for Illinois will mean an increase of 22 over the average number maintained in the state thus far. Out of the 85 camps, 34 will be located on state park projects with special attention being paid to Skokie Lagoons State park; 32 will be on soil erosion projects, 12 in national and private forests, six on drainage projects, and one on a military reservation.

The Illinois cities and towns near which the camps will be located are: Murphysboro, Alto-Pass, Tamms, Eddyville, Herod, Equality, Wolf Lake, Sparks Hill, Jonesboro, Simpson, Pekin, Camargo, Gilman, Eldred, Hull, Mason City, Hooppole, Dixon Springs, Leroy, Galva, Gongerville, Charleston, Grayville, Oregon, Durand, Jacksonville, Elmwood, Aledo, Galesburg, Henry, Mount Carroll, Jerseyville, Pittsfield, Havana, Waterloo, Norris City, Greenville, Decatur, Marion, Rushville, Carrollton, Camp Point, Macomb, Sparta, Carlinville, Lawrenceville, Edwardsville, Willow Springs, Lockport, Joliet, Marseilles, Ottawa, Springfield, Grafton, Makanda, Utica, Pole, Palos Park, Hinsdale, West Chicago, Palatine, Decatur, Petersburg, Park Ridge, Western Springs, Des Plaines, Lemont, Thornton, Naperville, Charleston and Rock Island. Eight camps will be near Winnetka.

NEW DEAL DOES AN ABOUT FACE ON PRICE FIXING

Copper Wire Firms Cited by Trade Body.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Doing an about face, the New Dealers are now cracking down on large business groups for practices which were permitted under the NRA, inquiry showed today. Their present actions tacitly admit the charge that the NRA fostered monopolistic control.

General Electric company, in which President Roosevelt and his mother owned stock, is among the latest group of businesses to feel the sting of government punishment for continuing practices which were sanctioned under the NRA.

The large copper cable and wire manufacturing companies, among which General Electric is officially charged with being a ring leader, have been cited by the federal trade commission for continuing a price posting and control system which was embodied in their NRA code. The trade commission declares the system to be illegal and in restraint of trade.

Bottle Cap Makers Cited.

Before the copper companies were cited for alleged violation of the anti-trust laws the bottle cap makers had been haled before the trade commission on similar charges of price posting and control. The Birmingham, Ala., Automotive Jobbers association also has been accused by the trade commission of price fixing on automobile parts and repair work. In all three cases the violations of which the New Dealers now complain are systems fostered under NRA.

In the copper companies case the trade commission points specifically to General Eelectric and two other companies as assuming the "leadership" in price freezing attempts. General Electric, Okonite company, and Habirshaw corporation are accused of compiling and circulating detailed price lists, "offering and assuring such other respondent manufacturers, their competitors, that if the latter would not quote and sell at less than the list price of the respective competitors, then said competitors would maintain the prices of their respective lists and would immediately notify their respective competitors of all proposed changes in price."

All Bids Are Same.

A recent example of the alleged price fixing by the copper cable and wire companies has been disclosed in the bids submitted to the Metropolitan Water district of Los Angeles, which is using easy money from the Reconstruction Finance corporation to build a transmission line from Boulder dam to the city.

General Cable corporation, Anaconda Wire and Cable company, Phelps Dodge, Inc., and American Steel and Wire company all bid, and their bids were identical, despite the fact that the cable they offered to furnish was not a standard product, but would have to be manufactured specially.

In the Los Angeles case the Aluminum Company of America entered a competing bid, offering aluminum cable, which was $220,000 lower than the copper bids. The copper companies persuaded the water district to throw out the first bids and call for a second set after the Aluminum company appeared to be low. Again on the second set of bids the copper companies, except American Steel and Wire, entered identical bids. The Aluminum company was again low and won the contract.

GULLS DROP SHELLS ON SPECTATORS ON NEW YORK BRIDGE

New York, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Atlantic beach bridge was shelled heavily in an "attack" from the air today—by sea gulls.

Casualties, an official police communique said, were slight injuries to two or three pedestrians and small damage to several.

The invaders, a squadron of fast flying sea gulls, dropped a steady bombardment of clam shells on the concrete bridge surface, then darted low to snatch from the broken shell a luscious clam.

ILLINOIS' ROAD PROGRAM GIVEN U. S. APPROVAL

$8,145,000 to Be Available in Few Weeks.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 19.—[U.P.]—Approval of an emergency road building program in Illinois to cost $8,145,000 had been received today by state highway officials from the federal government's bureau of roads at Washington.

The federal bureau's announcement stated that a few minor changes in the proposed construction plans would be required and that some alterations in specifications would have to be made to meet technical requirements.

Money Ready Soon.

The program as a whole, however, was given complete approval by the bureau with indications that the money would be released within a few weeks in order that preliminary work might get started at once.

The federal allotment for the construction program represents 92 per cent of Illinois' proportional share of the $200,000,000 allotted for roads out of the government's $4,000,000,000 work relief fund.

Previously the government had approved the state's program for expenditure of $10,317,814 in the elimination of dangerous railroad crossings from the highway system. That sum represents the state's full share of an additional $200,000,000 allotment.

41 Per Cent for Secondary Roads.

Approximately 41 per cent of the program approved yesterday will be expended on secondary roads outside of municipalities, 16 per cent will be used in the extension of existing federal aid roads, 9 per cent on nonfederal roads and streets, and 27 per cent in extending federal highways outside municipalities.

Labor to be used on the work is expected to come principally from unemployment relief rolls, since the program is designed to return thousands of unemployed to work throughout the country.

Admiral Downes' Daughter to Sponsor U. S. Destroyer

Miss Sarah Fairfax Carlyle Downes, daughter of Rear Admiral John Downes, commandant of Great Lakes Naval Training station, will act as sponsor at the launching of the United States destroyer Downes, it was learned yesterday. The ship is to be named in honor of her great-great-grandfather, Capt. John Downes, U. S. N. It is under construction in the Norfolk, Va., navy yards and is scheduled for completion in June.

Select 9 Realty Dealers to Aid Assessment Work

The selection of nine real estate men to aid in correlating land values in Cook county, a task considered the most important phase of the 1935 reassessment, was announced yesterday by Assessor John S. Clark. The committee will recommend unit land values which will prevail until 1939. Members of the committee are Graham Aldis and Harry Goldstine for the loop; Charles E. Fox and Peter Foote, south side; Joseph B. Ford, Emil Gnaedinger and Albert Schorsch, west side, and Warner G. Baird and Henry G. Slavik, north side.

GERMANY OUSTS CHURCH DICTATOR TO SETTLE FEUD

Bishop Mueller Ordered to Surrender Office.

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller, a storm center of German church affairs, has been deprived of his office for some time except in name and will soon resign, church circles said today.

Churchmen opposing Mueller, however, asserted the resignation of the reichsbishop and his bishops may not mean immediate peace in the German Protestant church.

"We are waiting to see what action the new eight man church committee will take on important matters such as the Bible, Nazi racial theories, and other moot points," they said.

New Council Attacked.

The committee, appointed by Hans Kerrl, head of the Nazi department of church affairs, was described as having "no legal foundation" by confessional synod leaders in a letter to their congregations.

The letter said, however, the pastors had accepted the committee in a message to the government.

[The committee, in a statement Wednesday, supported the Nazi party and asked Christians to stand by the reich and Reichsfuehrer Hitler.]

It was learned that Reichsbishop Mueller, whose dictatorial policies enraged the pastors, has lacked permission to deal in church affairs since Kerrl was elevated to the rank of church minister. Mueller, it was revealed, has not recently received a salary nor been permitted to use his bishop's automobile.

Pastors Ordered Freed.

Kerrl today ordered the release of all pastors who had been in a concentration camp in Soxony, and directed that they, with other pastors previously released, be restored to their positions. The number removed from the camp today was not announced, but was believed to be about thirty.

AUSTRIA JAILS FOREIGN WRITER; 'DAMAGED STATE'

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, Oct. 19.—Laszlo Benes, editor of the American-European Press Service, today was sentenced to five days' imprisonment in addition to an order of expulsion for "publishing alarming and untrue rumors calculated to damage the Austrian state."

The case is the first attempt to extend suppression of the freedom of the press—long in force for Austrian newspapers—to foreign correspondents. If the decision is upheld it means the beginning of the end of Vienna as the journalistic center for newspapers of democratic countries.

Benes gave notice of appeal pending which, although he has already been in prison more than a week, he is held. In view of the gravity of the situation thus created for the press it was decided immediately by the Anglo-American Press association in Vienna to ask Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg to receive a protest deputation Monday.

Elias Graffs to Mark 63d Year of Marriage Tonight

Elias Graff, 5036 Sheridan road, 85 years old, and his wife, Goldie, also 85, will celebrate their 63d wedding anniversary tonight at the Rogers Park hotel, 6805 Sheridan road. Fifty guests, all relatives, are expected to attend. They will represent four generations, the youngest Arnold Graff, 3 years old. Seven children of the couple are still living. The Graffs were married in Russia.

TWO CHILDREN DEAD IN POISON FUME TRAGEDY

Third May Die; Four Others Stricken.

Two children are dead, a third was dangerously ill yesterday, and four other children in a family of 11 persons were suffering from lead poisoning in a tragedy caused when deadly fumes escaped from a kitchen stove where lead impregnated storage battery casings were being burned as fuel.

The source of the unusual poisoning was traced after Irene Widick, 5 years old, 735 North Cicero avenue, died in the county hospital yesterday. Irene's sister, Shirley, 2 years old, died under similar circumstances Friday. A third girl, Mary, 12 years old, was taken to the county hospital yesterday in convulsions. The fumes also killed the family's pet dog on Tuesday, it was learned.

"Fuel" Found in Alley.

Mary was taken to the hospital by her grandmother, Mrs. May Harrington, who with her husband, George, resides with the Widick family at the Cicero avenue address. Mrs. Hollis Widick, mother of the stricken children, declared the family has been on relief a year.

The discarded battery casings were picked up during a hunt along alleys for fuel. Mrs. Widick stated they looked as though they might burn.

Stove Lets Fumes Escape.

A crack in the dilapidated apartment stove allowed the deadly fumes to escape after the heat from other fuel had generated them.

Investigators for the coroner's office found that the small family flat is barely furnished, with three chairs, a large round table, four beds and a coal stove. The one stove is in the kitchen and furnishes heat for the entire apartment.

The other four children who are ill are Ida, 14 years old; Eloise, 10; Betty, 9, and Richard, 8.

Duchess of Kent and Her Baby Are "Doing Nicely"

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The duchess of Kent, wife of King George's fourth son, and her baby are making good progress, it was said in a final bulletin from the home today. "Her royal highness the duchess of Kent," said the bulletin, "has made an uninterrupted recovery. The infant prince is doing well in every way and is steadily gaining weight."

BURNED LIGHTING STOVE; DIES.

Burns suffered when his clothing caught fire while he was lighting a stove in the dining room of his home at 2407 South Trumbull avenue, caused the death yesterday of Matthew Puntochar, 69 years old, in the county hospital.

PARENT-TEACHER GROUPS DEMAND SUNSHINE TIME

Will Hold Meetings to Push Proposal.

Parent-Teacher association groups throughout the city are planning meetings this week to discuss the proposal that Chicago gain 210 hours of daylight annually by adopting eastern standard time. Most of the highest officials of the organization have indorsed the plan as a health measure for children, the position also taken by child specialists, the board of education, and William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools.

All of the P.-T. A. officers declared that they would urge members to attend the hearing in the city hall Thursday on the eastern time ordinance introduced in the city council by Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th]. Many of the units will vote on the proposal before that time.

Give Summary of Arguments.

The arguments for eastern time as a child health measure have been set forth by Dr. Julius Hess, president of the Chicago Medical society; Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the city board ot health; other child specialists, and in a resolution of the board of education. These points are summarized as follows:

1. Children, and adults, will have 210 more hours of daylight a year than under the present time system. These hours will come in the afternoon, after school, when children especially can enjoy them in the open air. Children will get both sun and exercise if they can be outside, and these are especially needed in the winter months.

2. Children and adults will be safer from trafic accidents. There will be daylight instead of darkness for the late afternoon trafic rush, when, according to Judge John Gutknecht, of the Trafic court, most accidents occur. Children can have an extra hour of sun and yet be in their homes before darkness and also lessen trafic dangers.

Just as Much Sleep.

3. Children will get as much sleep, and better sleep, under the new system. In all the months of the proposed extension it will be dark by the time the youngest child is ready for bed. The extra exercise in the open air will mean better health and better sleep.

4. Children will not go to school in darkness, with the exception of a few high school students who will go to school by dawn. On only thirty-three school days does the sun rise as much as five minutes after 8 o'clock under eastern time.

5. Earlier dismissal of the schools means that many students, especially in high schools, will spend one less hour under artificial light, with the exception of the 33 days, when a part of this advantage would be lost in the morning. For elementary school pupils, there would be no morning loss.

6. No change in children's schedules twice a year, as is necessary at present.

P.-T. A. Leaders Tell Views.

MRS. CLARK L. REED, director, district 25: "Eastern time is a splendid idea. I am impressed by the physicians' argument that the general health of the community will benefit. The young people come first, and they will benefit most. Their logical play time is after school, and the extra hour of light would enable them to take more outdoor exercise."

MRS. JAMES E. GRANT, director, district 1: "We should give the plan a trial. There is no doubt that most people would get more sunlight, and that means dividends in health and wholesome recreation. The idea of more daylight for children after school especially appeals to me."

MRS. CHARLES CLAUSS, director, district 3: "Daylight saving the year round will do away with present confusion incident to changing time twice a year. That's upsetting to children who are being brought up on schedule, as most mothers will tell you. The extra hour of sunlight in winter means more exercise for the children, for every one, in fact."

Daylight for Leisure Time.

MRS. WILLIAM NEWMAN, president, west central council: "I should like to see it come. Almost all workers would appreciate that extra hour of sunlight. Even those who might have to get up in the dark would benefit by having daylight when it counts most—in their leisure time. The children, too, would get more fun out of sunlight after school than before school, not to mention the health angle."

MRS. E. G. MIDDLETON, president, midwest council: "Our children should come first, and even if grownups may not all want it, it's a marvelous idea for the children. The plan would be of immense benefit to them."

MRS. H. M. MULBERRY, president, southwest council: "I'm strongly for it, and most of the mothers I know seem to be. It's a task for mothers to change their children's feeding time and bedtime twice a year, as is necessary under summer daylight saving. The new plan would give us all an extra hour of sunlight just when it's needed most for health. It means an extra hour of outdoor play for the children."

Advantage to Business Women.

MRS. A. I. OLCHOVY, president, south central council: "The plan will be especially advantageous to business men and women—it will mean an extra hour of sunlight to them at the time of day when they can best use it. As for school children, most mothers would rather have them get up in darkness, if necessary, than to come home in the dark after school. And for the children who get out of school earlier, it will mean more play out of doors, for most parents bring them in when darkness falls."

MRS. ARTHUR A. ADAMS, president of the Hirsch High school P.-T.A.: "Parents who oppose daylight saving on their children's account seem to misunderstand what the change will mean. Even if they have to get up in the dark, it is surely more important to have that added sunlight in the afternoon when they are free to be out of doors. As for the argument that they'll have to walk to school in the dark, any parent surely would prefer to have his child go to school in the dark than come home in darkness at an hour when so many dreadful things always happen. The safety angle seems as important as the health argument to me. Then, those parents who complain that their children won't go to bed when it's still light should remember that that applies only to the months when we already have daylight saving."

MRS. WILLIAM JOHNSON, president, high school council, districts 1 and 25: "One set time through the year appeals to me as the best plan for every one—the present changes are hard on both children and grownups. Of course, we want daylight saving in summer, and extending it through the winter offers many advantages. The children certainly would benefit."

MRS. RUSSELL LYON, president, northwest council: "I see no disadvantages and there are many advantages obvious to every one. Certainly it will be a big help to have that extra hour of daylight in our short afternoons in winter."

MRS. RAYMOND MILLER, president, north side council: "I personally favor eastern time, but I have not discussed the measure with members of my organization."

In addition to P.-T. A groups, Mrs. Henry W. Hardy, president of the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations, and other officials of that body have declared that the federation favors the adoption of eastern standard time.

COLORED MAN SLAIN BY BLOW.

Joseph Hooks, colored, 30 years old, was found dead last night in his home at 2970 South La Salle street. The police, who were sent there as a result of an anonymous telephone call, said that Hooks apparently had been killed by a blow on the head.

QUAKE WRECKS HELENA BUSINESS BUILDINGS

The earthquake which jolted Helena, Mont., Friday evening showered bricks from this building upon a colored man who was on the sidewalk, killing him. One other man lost his life, nine were severely injured, and the property damage has been estimated at close to $2,000,000. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

The state capitol at Helena, Mont., was rocked by violent earthquake Friday night. The building's interior was damaged, but the walls withstood the shock. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

HELENA SCHOOLS, HOMES BATTERED BY EARTHQUAKES

200 Houses Wrecked, Says City Engineer.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—With estimates of losses mounting rapidly as surveys of earthquake damage proceeded, Montana's capital city tonight experienced more shocks at intervals of one to ten minutes. Two are dead, nine seriously hurt and many slightly injured.

Under a state of emergency A. N. Shellady, director of public safety, was given general charge of the city. The entire populace has been placed under orders of Shellady. National Guardsmen patrol the deserted business district and army trucks manned by guardsmen cruise the city to prevent looting.

Inspection of public buildings and homes today convinced Oscar Baarson, city engineer, that at least 200 homes are uninhabitable, that hundreds of others must have extensive repairs, that several large structures must be reconstructed or abandoned. The loss may run between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.

School Buildings Wrecked.

Two school buildings were almost demolished. One was the new $250,000 high school, which was completed with PWA funds this summer. The other was a grade school nearby. Damage was so extensive to the Algeria Shrine temple, a $1,000,000 structure, that preliminary examination indicated no attempt at repairs would be made.

Three buildings at Intermountain Union college, co-educational institution maintained jointly by Methodists and Presbyterians, were damaged and two have to be rebuilt.

Arthur C. Parsons, state fire marshal, today placed a ban on all public gatherings and ordered the closing of beer parlors, schools, churches and other places of congregation until the extent of the damage to buildings can be ascertained and until the tremors cease.

Count 180 Shocks.

The Helena weather bureau tonight had recorded 180 distinct shocks since the major one at 9:47 last evening.

The quake, described by Dr. Charles Richter of Pasadena, Cal., as "the fourth large shock felt in the United States in the last two years," jarred points as far north as Canada and Washington, dipping into Idaho and Sheridan, Wyo., and affecting a large slice of western Montana.

ZENGE LAWYERS BEGIN BATTLE TO AVERT LIFE TERM

Draft New Trial Pleas and Consider Appeal.

While Mandeville Zenge, taciturn young Missouri farmer-carpenter, sat in the county jail facing sentence to life imprisonment for the mutilation murder of Dr. Walter J. Bauer, his attorneys yesterday began drafting their arguments for a new trial. It was indicated that if the motion is denied at the hearing before Judge Cornelius J. Harrington on Oct. 25 an immediate appeal will be taken to the Illinois Supreme court.

Zenge was found guilty and the sentence of life imprisonment recommended Friday night by a jury in Judge Harrington's Criminal court.

Laughs with Reporters.

Throughout the trial, in which he was frequently painted as a savage sadist who brutally killed the man who was his successful love rival, Zenge sat silent and apparently emotionless. Even when the life sentence verdict, which will compel him to serve at least twenty years behind bars, was read, Zenge's impassive expression was unchanged, and he walked from the courtroom with a jaunty step, and even smiled for the photographers.

Yesterday Zenge granted an interview to reporters in the office of the jail warden. His stoicism was gone for the moment, but he still betrayed no fear or worry. He laughed good naturedly at the sallies of reporters, and answered questions in a bantering tone.

The "Hidden Motive" Angle.

"How did you feel during the course of the trial?" he was asked. "You know you were called 'a man of iron.'"

Zenge shrugged and smiled. "Well, I made up my mind that nothing would get my goat," he said, "and nothing did."

"Were you irritated when the state called you a cold blooded murderer?"

"Yeah, I guess so."

Repeated rumors were circulated yesterday, as was the case throughout the trial, that all of the evidence bearing on the mutilation of Dr. Bauer had not been introduced. These rumors concerned particularly the strange relationship between Zenge, Dr. Bauer, and Louise Schaffer Bauer, sweetheart of Zenge's childhood and manhood days, whose marriage to Bauer, the Kirksville, Mo., chemistry professor, inspired the mutilation murder.

Why Evidence Was Withheld.

It was learned that two considerations guided the defense in its decision to withhold from evidence several intimate details bearing on the trio's strange relationship.

One of these was the Zenge family's long affection for Louise Schaffer and her family, who lived in the town of La Grange, Mo. The Zenges lived in Canton, Mo., only six miles away. The second consideration was the defense opinion that the nature of this "hidden motive" evidence, if revealed in court, would only persuade the jury that Zenge was endeavoring to besmirch the name of the girl he had loved, and would end only in convicting him.

Zenge was asked about this.

"Is that so?" he asked good-naturedly. "I did not talk during the trial and I'd be a fool to say anything now. I will not affirm or deny anything."

Concern Only Over Mother.

Zenge's only apparent concern was for his mother, Mrs. Alice Zenge, who fainted after testifying for him. He appeared relieved when told that she was "all right" and was on her way back to the family home in Canton.

In connection with their impending battle for a new trial, the two defense attorneys, Joseph E. Green and Joseph A. Roach, said that they are sure the trial record contains reversible error and they indicated that if a new trial is granted the evidence withheld in the first trial will be bared in its entirety.

One of the important defense contentions, aside from the insanity evidence, was that the state had failed to prove that the crime was committed in the state of Illinois. This point of venue may be one of the principal defense arguments in case of appeal.

ZENGE LAUGHS; WILL FIGHT LIFE TERM

Three poses of Mandeville Zenge in the warden's office of the county jail yesterday, when he joked goodhumoredly with interviewers. He will appeal life sentence for mutilation murder of Dr. Walter J. Bauer.

MORE TAXES GO TO DOWNSTATE SCHOOL FUNDS

To Get $300,000 Soon on Millions Claimed.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 19.—(AP)—S. S. du Hamel, attorney for the Illinois State School Board association, today said the state had agreed to pay $300,000 to downstate school districts as partial settlement of claims that Cook county received more than its share in past years from the state school distributive fund.

Mr. du Hamel said an agreement had been reached that the money, collected in delinquent property taxes, would be turned over to the downstate schools and further payments made from delinquent tax revenue until $2,733,231 had been paid. He said his suit against State Auditor Edward J. Barrett and Treasurer John Stelle is being held up under the agreement.

The suit was filed in June following allegations that the auditor's office had given Cook county more than its share of state school funds for the 1930 to 1932 revenue years.

Information at the state auditor's office was that the procedure to be used in making the payments will be settled next week.

This year the legislature appropriated $7,000,000 from the delinquent property levies. The school payments are to made as those taxes are collected.

Barrett had claimed that the alleged higher payments to Cook county were made, starting during the term of his Republican predecessor, because of a technical situation arising from the property tax delinquencies.

The controversy reached the floor of the legislature. Attorney General Otto Kerner ruled that the wrong system had been followed, and that downstate schools had received less than their share.

78 VESSELS WILL BE BUILT AT ONCE FOR COAST GUARD SERVICE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—(AP)—The treasury reported tonight that seventy-eight vessels for varied duties in the coast guard and a large number of surf and light boats would be included in a $18,446,000 construction program now under way.

The largest item is the construction of seven cruising cutters to cost $16,446,000. Each will be 327 feet in length, larger and faster than any domestic cutter now afloat, and will be designed to carry aircraft. They will be named after former secretaries of the treasury.

Other items include nine 80 foot patrol boats, four 64 foot wood patrol boats, eight wood anchorage and boarding boats, two 62 foot harbor boats, seven wood airplane crash boats, twenty-one 38 foot picket boats, and thirteen 26 foot motor boats.

$500 ROOSEVELT ROAD BLAZE.

Fire of undetermined origin yesterday cause damage estimated at $500 to a four story brick building at 1010 West Roosevelt road.

BRITISH STRIKERS EMERGE FROM PITS ON 8TH DAY

NEWTON, Monmouthshire, England, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Blinking at the daylight after 177 hours spent underground in their mine pits 90 employés of the Nine Mile Point colliery returned to the surface today, ending a strike which had spread widely in the English and Welsh coal fields.

They had been urged to ascend by representatives of the South Wales Miners' federation after the mine owners had promised the strikers would not be penalized.

The question of a general strike for a raise of 2 shillings [about 50 cents] a day remained unsettled until a general ballot is taken in three weeks. The "stay down" strikers, who had protested employment of nonunion labor in the pits, sang hymns to amuse themselves underground.

200 Unemployed Teachers March on N. Y. WPA Office

New York, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The first large scale demonstration against the Works Progress administration since Victor F. Ridder, took over the administrator's job took place today. Two hundred unemployed teachers marched on Ridder's office demanding jobs. Ridder was in Washington. A member of the WPA staf told them to come back Monday.

DEV-LIN TO STAY CLOSED, ASSERTS LAIRD AFTER RAID

"Honest Bill" Johnson Is Sure He Means It.

Chief Lester Laird of the county highway police said yesterday that he had put the "anti-gambling sign" on the Dev-Lin, gambling house near Devon and Lincoln avenues in Tessville, and that his force would prevent further operation of the place as a gaming resort.

A raid was made on the establishment Friday afternoon and Chief Laird's men quietly ushered out about 400 patrons and arrested some twenty of the seventy-five employés. Yesterday Laird declared that he did not, as was reported, leave most of the gambling paraphernalia intact. He said he smashed three roulette tables, four poker tables, six blackjack layouts, and twenty slot machines.

May Operate as Tavern.

The resort may remain open as a tavern, he asserted, since it has a license for that purpose, but Bill Johnson may no longer operate it as a gambling establishment.

Two score or more men gathered there yesterday, sitting at tables in the barroom and whiled away their time at cards, obviously for small stakes, the house getting no "rake-off." It was announced that Johnson, the amiable accommodator to those with the urge to gamble, had recognized Chief Laird's single cross and recognized the handwriting on the wall. Moving day had arrived.

Rumor Handbooks to Return.

For weeks the sharp ones who get their daily bread because of the difference of opinion regarding which horse will win in every race run in this country or Mexico have been speculating on the rumor that handbooks will be smiled on again in Chicago after the season closes at Sportsman's Park. Mayor Kelly and Police Commissioner Allman are reported not to be the sources of the rumor, but among horse race folks the less authentic a tip is the more rapidly it circulates.

Anyway the word out at Tessville yesterday was that Johnson would be doing business in Chicago very soon. The handbook men have systems all their own of notifying their customers when and where the books will be open to the betting public, and none of the interested ones doubted but that the message would come soon.

"An Honest Gambler."

Johnson for a dozen years has been known in Chicago as a gambling king—a square gambler he is called. He operated for years at one location or another in the vicinity of 22d street and Crawford avenue, and near Lawrence and Kedzie avenues. He was associated politically with the late Mayor Cermak and the late Moe Rosenberg, a Democratic ward committeeman.

When gambling was tolerated in the city Johnson prospered. When it was banned he moved outside the city. Reports are that the Dev-Lin was the best patronized gambling house in the country. However, the new chief of highway police has made his move and Johnson's attitude was explained yesterday to be that he will let bygones be bygones; that as long as the public has money there will be gambling, and wherever there is gambling, there also, will be Bill Johnson.

HUNT KIDNAPERS OF PENNSYLVANIA GIRL IN 3 STATES

Erie, Pa., Oct. 20 [Sunday].—(AP)—A search extending to three states was under way early today for two men who are reported to have abducted an unidentified girl 22 years old after a terrific battle. One of the men is said to have been stabbed in the back by a would-be protector of the girl.

The affair climaxed a series of attacks on girls and women during the last four days, the tactics in each case being the same, police said.

The machine in which the abductors fled was reported to have carried an Ohio license. All roads leading out of the state to New York and Ohio were patroled.

CANCEL ALL FETES PLANNED IN HONOR OF ROYAL WEDDING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Because of the death of the duke of Buccleuch early today, all arrangements for the state wedding of Lady Alice Montagu-Douglas-Scott, the duke's daughter, to the duke of Gloucester, third son of King George, have been canceled. The wedding, set for Nov. 6 at Buckingham palace, will be attended only by members of the royal family and Lady Alice's relatives.

Instead of brilliant uniforms the men will wear morning dress. No change in the bridesmaids' arrangements has been made, nor has any change in the honeymoon plans been suggested. There will be no procession of troops, however, and other attendant functions have been canceled.

Lloyd's will suffer considerable financial losses, as a large amount of "contingency" insurance was underwritten in connection with the state wedding. The insurance covered not only those who erected stands along the proposed route, but dressmakers, restaurant owners, and others anticipating extra business.

THE BREAD TAX.

In the 160 years since the American people kicked out their king because he insisted upon taxing what they drank for breakfast their governors have used a great variety of methods to get money from them. They have been taxed for living and for dying; taxed for moving about and for staying at home, provided they had a home to stay at; taxed for making promises to pay and again for paying what they promised; taxed for being exhilarated and for just being amused. Nor is this all. The people have tolerated a heavy and varied exaction from the republic which succeeded the monarchy, which taxed unwisely.

But exacting as some of our rulers have been, there has been until recently one bound which was not transgressed. No administration, starting with Washington's and running past Hoover's, ever dared to assess people for buying the barest necessities of life. We have been exempt from hunger taxes. But that was only down to the New Deal. Mr. Roosevelt in taxation as in other matters of finance is a departure. He has levied taxes on the foods people have bought to keep body and soul together. He has done it at the time when the largest numbers have had difficulties in getting enough to eat without becoming public charges.

The worst of the objectionable hunger taxes is the bread tax. That is a tax of which many are unaware. The collector of internal revenue does not send a bill for it as he does for the income tax. And it isn't shown separately on the sales tax like the Hopkins-Horner sales tax. But the G-men see that they get something every time the baker wraps a loaf up. It is chiefly responsible for making bread prices high. And it is what is going to drive bread prices higher before very much more comes out of the oven.

During the last year the bread tax has amounted to between one-fourth and one-fifth of the cost of flour. Actually it has boosted prices much more than that because the government has used the proceeds of the tax to pay off farmers for raising less wheat. They have raised so little grain under this inducement that farmers of foreign countries are now supplying a good deal of the wheat for making bread in the United States.

The reason that the public does not rise in protest against the outrageous bread tax is because it is hidden. Indirect taxes are the worst kind for the payer and the best for the politician because the taxpayer isn't aware that he is paying. The government collects the bread tax not from the housewife but from the miller. The housewife is aware that bread prices are up, but she thinks that it's because the Italians are fighting Haile Selassie or because there wasn't so much rain out west. The miller who pays the government 30 cents tax on every bushel of wheat he grinds simply adds the tax to the price of the flour sold to the baker. A baker who tried to absorb the $1.35 extra cost on each barrel of flour would soon be in the bread line himself. The bread tax is paid on every loaf that is sold. Some bakers may hide the tax by chiseling off a piece of dough for Uncle Sam. Others may conceal it in inferior flour. Usually the price is raised openly. Any way that it is collected the bread tax is on the consumer.

And like other taxes the bread tax cuts down the amount that is consumed. During the year which ended June 30 the amount of flour consumed in the United States was 11 million barrels less than six years ago. That is enough flour to make three billion loaves of bread, or 24 loaves for each man, woman, and child. The bread tax has very materially reduced the amount of bread which can be bought by many families at the margin of subsistence.

And now by an interpretation of the secretary of agriculture the effective tax on bread is to be raised. The tax rate is 30 cents per bushel. Ordinarily a bushel of wheat weighs 60 pounds, and a barrel of flour can be made from 4½ such bushels. But this year's wheat is not only short by government planning but is of inferior quality, and much of it weighs only 50 pounds to the bushel. To make flour out of this inferior wheat takes substantially more wheat. The processing tax on a barrel of flour milled from six bushels of wheat will be $1.80. This would increase the bread tax by 35 per cent.

When bread prices are raised, as they certainly must be before very long, the administration will make a statement about being outraged and will appoint one of the burocrats to make an investigation of profiteering. A form letter will be sent to all ministers of the gospel asking them what ought to be done about it. A new alphabetical administration will be set up to do away with middle men. All this and other familiar shenanigan should not enable Mr. Roosevelt to escape accountability for the price of bread. Bread is high and going up because of the bread tax. The apparent purpose of the administration is to force upon the relief rolls families which have been fighting a losing battle to stay off. If that is not the real purpose of the bread tax and the other hunger taxes it is the inevitable consequence of them.

AMERICA IN AUTUMN COLORS.

A young Italian woman astonished some Americans in Rome by remarking that America was so beautiful. Their recent experiences had been with April around Naples and Capua, the Gulf of Gaeta and the Volscian mountains. Prepared as they were to maintain the beauties of America, they were disinclined to think it precisely the time and place and they were puzzled to understand how Italian thought could revert just then to something pleasantly recalled of the American scene.

A traveler in the United States, unless captured early and confined where charm abounds, will look out of car windows at great stretches of utilitarian and democratic landscape. Industries can have a Vulcanian splendor, a Cyclopean magnificence, which may take more perceiving than comes with a glance through a moving window, and our democracy, to the restless view, does not run to English neatness of hedge, field, cottage, manse, manor, baronial hall, hunting preserve, and deer park. It has still a good deal of the frontier shack. Horrors and beauties lie cheek by jowl in the Pennsylvania anthracite region, a probably extreme illustration of our checkered scene.

If the shears and fingers of busy jinn were to cut and reassemble the territory of the United States for splendor alone there would be from New England to California a land say half the size of Europe and without a flaw. The alien traveler cannot see it that way, but the young Italian woman explained herself. She had known America in autumn, in the coloring which for the last month has been spreading like flames down from the northernmost states. Italy did not have that, she said.

This is the shortest lived of our great natural phenomena, which may account for the insatiability of its admirers. Hereabouts an average of two weeks will see the sudden burst of the conflagration and its increasing glow into full display of living color. Then it fades to brown. Within that time the well of delight is never filled. The yearning for the scene grows with satisfaction of the senses. Seemingly if the view were interminable and the time infinite there would be nothing taken away from an ever fresh rhapsody. The ephemeral appears exhaustless.

DEFENSE OF THE AMERICAN HERITAGE.

Leading men of Michigan, impressed with the subversive activities of radical propagandists, have determined to meet it by a vigorous campaign of education in Americanism. A branch of the Constitutional Protective league has been organized for Michigan, with a distinguished surgeon, Dr. Ferriss Smith of Grand Rapids, as chairman of the organization committee, and leading citizens from all parts of the state have been pledging their efforts to spread the league organization and its educational work. A rousing meeting was held the other day at Detroit and we hope will inspire the formation of like branches by loyal citizens in other states. "We intend," says the Michigan chairman, "by the use of printed matter, films, and lectures, to carry fundamental American doctrins directly to the class of people now in danger of being drawn in by the false doctrins being quietly and insidiously spread by the communists."

Subversive ideas have been filtered into the American consciousness for many years without much effective criticism or exposition of American ideas. Generations have been born and grown up in or come to America with no clear knowledge of the principles and institutions which have fostered American progress and prosperity. Instruction in schools has been largely dry and of superficial influence. Educated adults are surprisingly ignorant of our institutional ideas and even of the explicit provisions of our written constitution. Especially since the Brain Trust arrived in office the attack on the American system has been carried on from high places, which naturally has given moral support to the radical propaganda and emphasized the demand for counter measures of defense.

The Constitutional Protective league is one of several associations formed for patriotic ends, such as the Crusaders, the Sentinels of the Republic, the Paul Reveres, the Liberty league, and committees of older organizations such as the Union league. The Protective league branch in Illinois has been quietly under way for some months and is to be congratulated on its first contribution to patriotic education in the form of a pamphlet, "The Path to Prosperity." The compiler and editor, Maj. Howard Gardner Wade, has reprinted in this handy form the texts of the Declaration of Independence and the federal constitution and its amendments, timely extracts from the farewell message of Washington, the immortal Gettysburg speech of Lincoln, and relevant quotations from great American statesmen with apt and thoughtful comment of his own.

Material of this significance and high quality should be circulated widely as we enter the electoral campaign which is likely to decide the fate of free democratic government in the United States. For years radicalism inspired by foreign ideas has been at work to pervert the American morale and undermine the patriotic faith upon which the republic is founded. The rise of militant loyalty is the most fortunate event of this troubled period. Citizens devoted to the American political and social order have now the means of making their devotion effective through patriotic organizations able to answer the fallacies of subversive propaganda and to reassert the principles the American nation has cherished through a century and a half of unequaled material progress and unsurpassed social well-being.

DRIVING THE CHURCHES ON THE ROCKS

BY REMBERT GILMAN SMITH, D. D.

The Methodist Federation for Social Service is an agency of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church and it publishes monthly the Social Questions Bulletin at 150 Fifth avenue, New York, under the editorship of Dr. Harry F. Ward and Miss Winifred Chappell. Most of the space in this bulletin is not given to the matter of social service, but to political and sociological problems, and to comment and criticism on political developments and leaders. One of the most pressing obligations recognized by these editors is to give the public their judgment as to these matters and to point out the paths of progress toward the political objectives which they have decided to be best for the nation. They condemn President Roosevelt because they think he favors the profit system, which is anathema to them, and the very thought of it moves them to rabid reactions. This bulletin charges, as did the New England conference in the report above quoted, that this nation is in danger of Fascism; it points out similarities, as the editors think, between President Roosevelt and Hitler and Mussolini, and carries on a constant barrage on the two European systems of national socialism and Fascism, because they favor communism.

While these church agencies claim not to favor violent revolution the bulletin of January, 1935, strongly appeals to Methodists and other readers to do all possible to keep the congress from passing a law to punish any one who advocates the violent overthrow of government. "We must mobilize," say these editors, Dr. Harry F. Ward and Miss Winifred Chappell, one or both, "all our resources to defeat these proposals." They are opposed to a law that would provide a punishment for any one who might advocate the violent overthrow of government, the assassination of the President or the governors, the dynamiting of capitols and jails, the sandbagging of lawmakers. These churchmen feel that those who advocate violent, bloody methods for the change of our government ought not to be punished at all; they believe, it appears, in the abolition of all the laws, state and federal, aimed to restrain conspiracy, and think that the criminal who fires the gun or throws the bomb is the only one who ought to be punished. Those who urged him to the crime should be subject to no punishment. It has long been the law that the one who incites to a crime is as guilty as the one who does the criminal act. Do these eminent Methodists think that John Wilkes Booth should have been executed for the murder of Abraham Lincoln, but that those who conspired with him before he struck the blow should not have been punished? Why do these prominent churchmen, who disavow desire to subvert our government by force, put forth such strenuous appeals to make the United States safe for anarchists?

The social service commissions of some of the eastern conferences of the Methodist Episcopal church, no doubt under the influence of prominent radical clergymen in that vicinity, are preparing standardized reports on the social scene and are passing them around in many annual conferences in the hope that they will be adopted. In some instances these reports are being most aggressively resisted and tabled. The Ohio conference tore one of them to pieces, and it is said that some of the "diehards in the northern Minnesota conference" tried very hard to defeat it, but without success. It is very evident that a group of radical Methodist ministers in the east are seeking to get support for their beliefs as to political and economic problems in all the conferences of the Methodist Episcopal church. In the effort to accomplish this they are bringing division into every conference they touch. If their influence is strong enough to determine the direction in which this church will move it will be driven head-on through the storm until it strikes a rock that will divide it from stem to stern.

Political ministers usually lose their confidence in spiritual power and turn more and more to laws and systems of human devising. A prominent Methodist clergyman recently declared that no family can be Christian unless it has a minimum income, and he named an amount far above any average that has ever been reached in any nation. He further affirmed his conviction that the government ought to guarantee this income, in which event the families will not only have social security but religious fidelity. Thus the taxing power of the state will make unnecessary the spiritual power of the church and of the pulpit, and the outpouring of dollars from the government treasury will be a substitute for the outpouring of the holy spirit in which Methodism had its origin and its progress, a progress sure to be arrested if the materialism of some of its titular leaders is not soon made ineffective.

In the presidential campaign of 1928 the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, influenced by Bishop James Cannon Jr. and his disciples, went deeper into politics than ever in its history in the effort to elect Mr. Hoover President. The resulting campaign by these bishops and preachers had much to do with the success of the Republican party in the south. During this campaign it was dangerous for ministers in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to vote the Democratic ticket. Some of those who did were demoted and otherwise punished by political bishops and presiding elders. The activities by these church leaders were said to be for the defense of prohibition, but it was afterward found that some had heavy expense accounts in their political campaigns, paid not in checks but in currency. Their political activities did not save prohibition, but contributed to its premature defeat.

The editor of one of the leading papers in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has lately written: "We doubt if American Protestantism has as much influence in shaping public policies and social conduct as it had ten years ago." This opinion is correct, as proved by the downfall of prohibition, the increasing laxness of divorce laws, the orgy of nation-wide gambling, and the intensified preparation for war. Why has the influence of the church grown less in these ten years?

One of the chief reasons is the growing political-mindedness of many church leaders and their increasing participation in personal and party politics. More and more have come to accept the heresy that an environment conceived by sociologists and created by statesmen will assure welfare and righteousness. Believing this, they have made great efforts to have laws passed, and they have sought to control and even to coerce the politicians by reminding them of the large number of voters who are also church members. By this sort of culpable political terrorism both church leaders and politicians have been degraded. The ideal of "a free church in a free state" is surrendered when ecclesiastics assume and apply political power to control the votes of legislators.

Pure Christian churches send no pleading or threatening ambassadors to Presidents, governors, congresses, or political conventions. If this is proper, it is equally so for Presidents, governors, congresses, or political conventions to send pleading or threatening ambassadors to bishops, priests, conferences, assemblies, or synods.

[To be concluded next Sunday.]

"How much of a family has she?"

"Four children, your honor."

"Who is their father?"

WHY WE AGE.

FROM the beginning of time man has been seeking the fountain of eternal youth, and fortunes have been expended in fruitless search. The picture of the old alchemist who spent a lifetime endeavoring to compound the "elixir of life" is pathetic. Bulwer-Lytton in his novel "Zanoni" handles this subject in masterly style.

Apocryphal stories crowd the literature. Lesebure, a physician to the court of Louis XIV. of France, claimed to have discovered a secret rejuvenating medicine. He applied it to an old hen and relates that after two weeks all her feathers fell out, to be replaced by a bountiful new crop. She began egg laying at a rapid rate. Lesebure did not make his discovery public because, as he said, he became frightened at what might happen in the world, although he did state that the effects of the drug on his own person were powerful. Many years ago an eminent physiologist, Brown-Sequard [1817-1894], announced that the gland secretions could be supplied from animal sources, thus preserving all the attributes of youth.

Brown-Sequard's prophecy was not fulfilled, though we have learned much about the functions of the endocrine or ductless glands, such as the pituitary, the adrenals, and the thyroid. And the end is not yet. It is certain, however, that the power of these glands depends largely upon the amount of blood that reaches the gland structures themselves.

Some persons age more rapidly than others and the process is largely one of circulation. In order to function normally, all living cells of the body demand blood, and upon their nutrition depends the well being and activity of the individual.

Naturally the quality and quantity of blood will influence the condition of the cells. If the circulating medium contains poisons, is inadequate in amount, or has been reduced in nutritional value, we can readily understand that body cells will be slowly but surely starved. If the blood vessels are reduced in caliber so that they are able to carry but half or two-thirds of the normal blood supply, the tissues will suffer. An irrigated field of grain may present a pleasing prospect, but cut off the water supply and the plants will wither and die.

It really makes very little difference about the "year" age of the individual, because processes looking toward the starvation and ultimate death of cells may begin at any period in life, depending upon all the factors that nourish the body. We have all seen persons who at 30 or 40 years of age have the appearance of those of 70. Conversely, we have observed individuals who are actually 70 years old, but who are practically as alert mentally and physically as at the age of 40.

There are several short cuts to old age. For example, diseases such as syphilis, gout, rheumatism, the excessive use of alcohol or drugs interfere with the proper functioning of cells and bring on a figurative "drying up." Overwork and physical and mental excesses of all sorts are contributing factors.

The real answer to the search for long life and the preservation of body functions with advancing years has been supplied by the teachings of good hygiene. During the middle ages the average span of human life was approximately 21 years. In France in the eighteenth century it was about 29 years. In the United States in 1925 life expectancy had been lengthened to 55 years, and it is steadily increasing.

Middle life—the decade between the ages of 40 and 50—is one of the most dangerous periods for all of us. We feel perfectly well and, in consequence, there is all too often a tendency to engage in activities that tax the resources of the body beyond the reserve or rebound limits. We must recall that changes are taking place in cells that are not discernible even under the microscope, and there is a gradual decline of functional activity of one or more per cent each year.

It just would not do for us to be eternal on this planet.

KNOCK KNEES.

W. D. N. writes: Is there an operation for knock knees and is it dangerous? The patient has difficulty in walking.

REPLY.

As long as the process is active in any degree, as shown by an X-ray, operative interference is questionable, because the bone is still soft and the deformity is likely to recur. When the active process ceases operation is the most satisfactory solution to the difficulty. Treatment in competent hands is not dangerous.

SNORING.

G. L. S. writes: What causes snoring? My husband stopped snoring for about a year, but now he is at it again. He is 33 years old and his tonsils and adenoids are out.

REPLY.

Snoring is often caused by congested or partially stopped air passages in the nose. In many cases, however, especially in obese men, there occurs during sleep a relaxation of the muscles of the mouth. The lower jaw drops and the offender breathes through the mouth, thus setting in vibration the soft palate and surrounding structures in the throat.

It is estimated that one out of every eight persons snores more or less regularly. Men indulge more frequently than women. If you can train friend husband to sleep with the mouth closed his snoring will cease.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—The colonial office has ordered an inquiry into the great increase of marriages between colored men and white women in Great Britain. There is to be an immediate tightening up of the system by which passports are issued in certain British possessions on the West African coast.

It was revealed recently that Liverpool alone had 500 families of which the fathers were colored men and the mothers white women. The average number of children in each family is three, which means that there are more than 1,500 half-castes in the city.

In Cardiff, where there are more than 3,000 colored men, the rise in the half-caste population has reached even greater proportions. Hull, which a few years ago boasted that it had no color problem, now finds itself with a rapidly forming colony of half-castes. Similar conditions are reported in many other British seaports.

There is a high tuberculosis rate among half-caste children and many of them have inherited venereal diseases.

A recent investigation revealed that nine-tenths of the unions between white women and colored men in this country turn out disastrously.

The great increase in mixed marriages in this country came to light after the death of a West African colored man in a brawl at Liverpool. Police investigation showed that the man, whose name was given as Jeroma Grata, and who possessed a British passport issued in West Africa, had arrived in Liverpool as a stoker. His vessel stayed in port for ten days and when it left again for West Africa Krata was not on board. He had "fallen sick."

Krata applied to the public assistance authorities for relief. Since he had a British passport and no means of livelihood, the authorities could not deny him assistance. Before financial aid was granted they suggested that he should go into the poorhouse, but Krata pointed out that this would part him from his wife. He produced a marriage certificate which revealed the fact that he and a Liverpool girl were man and wife.

Investigation showed that he had met the woman at a colored men's dance held in the cellar of a Liverpool house where several of them lived and in which Krata himself had taken up his quarters. The public assistance authorities, unable to part a man from his wife, had no alternative but to give him an allowance.

Krata lived in Liverpool for seven years, occasionally doing odd jobs to enable him to continue to draw relief money from the public assistance authorities. During this period he became the father of five children—three girls and two boys. One of these children is suffering from tuberculosis and another from a disease which Liverpool doctors have not yet been able to define, but which has paralyzed the child's lower limbs.

Krata was killed in a brawl and Liverpool taxpayers are now forced to support the wife and five half-caste children.

VANDALS RESPONSIBLE.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—[Friend of the People.]—There is a building across the street from my house which is so dangerous that it isn't safe for people to pass by there. Questionable men make this their hangout night and day. Couldn't you make the people who own this building close it up or have it torn down before something dreadful happens? M. J.

This is a vacant three story brick store and flat building, subject to vandalism and open. Parts of floors and partitions removed. All openings were boarded up but were later removed. Owner has been notified to put building in good and safe condition or wreck building. Notices not complied with and matter was referred to law department for prosecution. RICHARD E. SCHMIDT,

BARKING DOG.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—[Friend of the People.]—The motor sales company on Halsted street in our block keeps a dog tied in their lot at night whose barking deprives us of sleep. Why can't this company employ a watchman if needed and give the neighbors a chance to sleep? Who should this be reported to to get some action? P. M.

Officers interviewed the owner of the motor sales company referred to who states he has the dog in the car lot for protection as there have been a number of thefts from the cars parked in the lot for sale. He was informed that he would have to keep the dog quiet or remove him from the lot to avoid further complaints from the neighbors. As he had no license for the animal he was served with a summons for violation of section 3955. JAMES P. ALLMAN,
Commissioner of Police.

1. No, but if the lease contains the common judgment clause, the landlord can enter a judgment without serving a summons.
2. Yes.
3. Yes.
4. The personal property exemption is $400 worth. The garnishment exemption is $20 per week. There would be no exemption for the bank account.
5. The personal property exemption for single men is $100 worth and there is no garnishment exemption.

GUARDIANSHIP.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband died two months ago leaving me with six children. The youngest is a minor. My lawyer said the court will appoint a guardian. There is a business and that is why he needs a guardian, but I don't seem to understand why I must pay a stranger a big fee when I can have my brother-in-law to act as such and he would take more interest in the boy than a stranger. The lawyer said the other party will look up the estate first before giving his price. Do I need an outsider for him? M. E. C.

If your brother-in-law is competent, we see no reason why the court should not appoint him, but in general, your lawyer is in a better position to advise you than we are.

If the man does all the work himself the case would not be covered by the compensation act, since the employment would be casual; but it is possible that the man might employ helpers who would be covered by the act. It is customary to insist that compensation insurance be carried.

PITY POOR ELLIOTT.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 17.—In view of the attacks being made on Elliott Roosevelt on account of his accepting a position with a radio chain while the radio companies are kept under the thumb of the administration by the six months' renewal of licenses, I suggest that you call attention to the fact that he cannot well engage in any line of business in this country without being subject to similar criticism. Holding companies and utilities generally are being investigated. Telephone companies are being stood against the wall. Three thousand employés of the defunct NRA are working on plans to control other business enterprises. He cannot have any income, cannot even die without being involved in government investigations and taxes. The poor boy cannot be a farmer without government agents attempting to regulate the production of his crops and of all animals on his farm except cats. He cannot become an automobile racer on account of the family speed record. Within a short time it probably will be impossible for him even to do home cooking or wash dishes without licenses, consents, or approvals from some federal office or other.

Please defend this poor boy against unjust criticism.

PORTRAIT OF A DERELICT.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—In Lincoln park, near the duck pond, a ragged wreck of humanity lives under a viaduct. Poor old fellow; his feet stick out from his wornout crooked shoes. One could never believe that a human being could ever be as filthy as he is. There he lives, a few old newspapers for his bedding; a wrinkled paper bag his larder; his bed a park bench. These cold nights is he warm? No, indeed.

Is there not somewhere in this city where he can be taken care of? His needs are simple: A warm place, food, and a place to sleep. The poorhouse? The Transient home?

The Father said: "What you do unto the least of my brethren, you do also unto me." Surely this is one of the least of our brethren. A NURSEMAID.

EDUCATION.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—This afternoon about 3:15 I saw an incident that needs some attention. There was a large group of boys, presumably from Lane Tech, waiting for an Irving Park street car at Western avenue. One group was waiting to get on the front platform under the supervision of a representative of the street car company. In the group that was waiting to get on the rear platform were several elderly women and a young woman with two children. Some of the boys stood about 25 feet away from this group and when the street car pulled up to the corner these boys jumped on, knocking down and injuring one of the elderly women. I should certainly dislike very much to have a similar accident occur to my mother.

MUSSOLINI'S POLICE RECORD.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—Many people know that Mussolini was a Socialist, but very few people know his record. Here it is:

April 15, 1904, he was arrested at Geneva for having falsified a passport.

July 22, 1908, condemned at Forli to three months and 200 lire fine for armed threats.

Sept. 10, 1908, condemned by the Pretura [court] of Meldola to 100 lire fine for having held a meeting without permit.

Nov. 10, 1909, imprisoned for ten days for not having paid said fine.

Oct. 10, 1911, arrested at Ferli following a manifestation against the expedition to Tripoli (Africa).

Nov. 23, 1911, condemned by the tribunal of Ferli to five months of confinement for delinquency against public order.

This is the record of "Il Duce," who has "civilized" forty million people by instituting a government by force, violence, assassination castor-oil, and years of prison imposed on every one who disagreed with him. ALDO SPERO.

ST. LOUIS CONFRONTS THE MASSACRE.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—St. Louis, with a higher motor vehicle casualty toll than Detroit or Chicago, has finally taken drastic measures to minimize auto fatalities and injuries.

A city driver's license bill has recently been approved which should be very helpful in reducing auto casualties and trafic violations in that city. The various phases of the bill are:

1. Applicants must undergo eye test. Those needing glasses must wear them at all times while driving.

2. For serious violations licenses may be revoked. Those offenses include manslaughter, intoxication while driving, perjury in connection with registration, conviction of a felony, three charges of reckless driving, and failure to stop at the scene of an accident.

These are the outstanding points of the bill. Add to this measure the compulsory testing of brakes several times a year and it would be a bill that would be useful in Chicago. CAREY O'FALLON.

ANATHEMA.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Your recent editorial "Roosevelt Can Be Beaten" was very interesting, yet Hoover is in your columns with very much space nearly every day. You may claim that what he thinks or says is news, but it is not only not news to the people but anathema. The policy of THE TRIBUNE calls for the defeat of Roosevelt at the coming election, but by continually featuring Herbert Hoover you are operating against that idea, for we are led to believe that if he is so important a person in the Republican party that his utterances must be heralded from day to day, then we may as well remain with Roosevelt.

But why must we choose between negative quantities? A. K.

Now on display! THE NEW 1936 PONTIAC

Silver Streak

SIXES and EIGHTS

A General Motors Value

More beautiful than ever and BUILT TO LAST 100,000 MILES!

ALL THAT'S BEST OF ALL THAT'S NEW

1. Solid Steel "Turret-Top" Bodies by Fisher
2. Improved triple-sealed hydraulic brakes with new chrome-nickel alloy drums
3. Enclosed Knee-Action on "8" and De Luxe "6"
4. Smoothest of "6" and "8" cylinder engines with silver-alloy bearings and full-pressure metered lubrication
5. Electroplated light-weight nickel-alloy pistons
6. All-silent Syncro-Mesh transmission
7. Simplified starting with automatic choke
8. Concealed luggage and spare tire compartment
9. New full-length water-jacketed cylinders
10. Even stronger double K-Y frame

When you see the 1936 Silver Streaks, you'll see one of the greatest value achievements in recent history. The two new lines of Sixes and the great, new Straight-Eight introduce scores of improvements in appearance, safety, comfort, economy, performance and dependability—yet Pontiac's 1936 prices are just a few dollars above those of the lowest-priced cars you can buy!

The new Pontiacs are actually even more beautiful than before, with a new front-end designed to emphasize the famous Silver Streak . . . with an entirely new headlight mounting . . . with a different hood, different running boards, and a decidedly different rear-end treatment. What's more, the luxurious new interiors show just as much improvement!

And that's only the outside story of the new Pontiacs. The inside story is even more remarkable. The 1936 Silver Streaks present no less than 101 of the finest features money can buy—because that's what it takes to build motor cars to last 100,000 miles.

The brakes, for example, are big, triple-sealed hydraulics with new warp-proofed drums of fused iron on steel and molded linings. The bodies are solid steel "Turret-Top" Fisher Bodies with No Draft Ventilation, insulated roofs, and built-in luggage and spare tire compartments. Clutch action, brake action and engine performance have been smoothed out to an incredible degree, while the Syncro-Mesh Transmission is now silent and clash-proof in every speed, forward and reverse. Starting and driving have been greatly simplified—in fact, the new Pontiacs are as automatic as a car can safely be! And the smooth, even more economical engines feature cooling and lubricating systems that are models for the entire industry!

These, of course, are merely the highlights of what awaits you now at your Pontiac dealer. Be sure to get the rest of the story today, including the startling facts about Pontiac's low prices. And if you must delay your visit, by all means remember—keep an open mind until you see the low-priced cars with the finest pledge of quality in the history of motoring—built to last 100,000 miles!

G. A. R. VETS MAKE RINGING PLEA FOR THE CONSTITUTION

Party Becomes Rousing Rally of Patriots.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Illinois veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic had a two hour party in Chicago yesterday afternoon and long before the flag-decked festivities were over that party turned into a spontaneous and pretty outspoken rally around the constitution of the United States.

The youngest Grand Army comrades on the scene—Henry Stanley and James Crugom of Chicago—cheerfully acknowledged to 85 years each, and the oldest—courtly William Brown of Chicago—said with equal cheerfulness and some pride that his years number 102.

Elevators Crowded, They Walk!

All the other civil war veterans present are in their late eighties, early nineties, and midnineties, and many of them, seeing at the close of the party that the elevators to the street floor were crowded with ladies, said "O, come on, boys; let's walk!"—and they took to the marble stairway at the north end of the public library.

When the fireworks of the constitution rally began to go off the lesson of the occasion seemed to be that the men who most love the constitution of the United States are the men who in a crisis most served the cause of its preservation.

Express Their Devout Feeling.

That document the veterans assembled yesterday in Memorial hall on the second floor of the library take very seriously—not to say devoutly—and appear to feel that they have a right to say a few burning words about it. And Comrade Thomas Ambrose, new commander of Illinois department of the Grand Army of the Republic, in whose honor the party was given, said them in a very heartfelt and impressive way.

As Commander Ambrose is still in active business in Chicago, he does not tell his age, but hearing his ringing tones, looking into his bright eyes, and feeling the grip of his handshake you would say, "about 50"—which, of course, cannot be the fact.

Makes a Historical Comparison.

Beginning his speech in the pleasantest way, he touched upon the significance to the present generation of the service his comrades had rendered to the constitution, and then uttered these words, not so much vehemently as solemnly:

"For the young people of a generation which seems not invariably to appreciate the blessings of the form of government under which we live I want to make a comparison of two great Virginians—two very great men. Virginians—two very great men.

"According to the newspapers our misrepresentatives in congress have declared in favor of erecting in Arlington National cemetery and at the nation's expense an equestrian memorial to the great Virginian, Robert E. Lee. Arlington is solemnly dedicated as the last resting place of patriots who gave "the last full measure of devotion" to preserve the nation which Robert E. Lee did his utmost to destroy. He therefore should have no place of honor in that consecrated ground.

Suggests Another Virginian—Thomas.

"These congressmen would do themselves and their country more honor by substituting for Robert E. Lee, Virginian, another Virginian who was also an American, a loyal son who held his country paramount to his state. I am proud to be a member of the Grand Army post named for that valiant Virginian and unswerving American who bore his country's flag to unfailing victory and who never met defeat; the only general of the civil war who destroyed an opposing army upon the battlefield; the victor of Mill Springs, the saver of the day at Stone River, the rock of Chickamauga, the hammer of Nashville, and the bludgeon that battered Bragg from well-nigh impregnable Missionary Ridge — modest, unassuming George H. Thomas!

A Ringing Declaration.

"In these troublous times when our constitution seems lightly regarded by some who have sworn to support it I am sure that I speak for every member of the Grand Army when I say that they stand today, as they stood, shoulder to shoulder, from '61 to '65, for one country, one flag, and the constitution of our fathers."

Such a thumping of canes by the comrades and such fluttering of handkerchiefs and such handclapping by the members of the Woman's Relief corps and of Daughters of Union Veterans and of the Ladies of the G. A. R. as greeted those words made the party memorable.

Members of the Sons of Union Veterans, and of the Auxiliary to the Sons, and of the American Legion caught up the note of approbation, and the lofty hall—lettered in gold with the names of twenty battles—rang with it.

Richard F. Locke, Glen Ellyn, Ill., national commander of the Sons of Union Veterans, who had marched into the hall at the head of Sons from fourteen states now holding their national convention in Chicago, sounded the same note in his speech of fealty to the veterans and to the constitution. The party had become a rally.

Many G. A. R. Notables Attend.

Among the Grand Army notables present were Milton H. Myers, commander of George H. Thomas post and master of ceremonies at the party, aged 94; James C. Thomas, 92; Maj. George Mason, 96; Lieut. Julius H. Reed and John A. Hood, each 93; John M. Kennedy of Aurora, 92; William Turner, one of the three surviving members of Evanston post, 91; Comrade Guller of Decatur, 91; Arthur Dawson, 90; Dennis Finley, both civil war and Indian fighter, 87; Charles W. Beam, Joliet, chaplain of the Illinois department and an old-time printer, 87; the mere striplings of 85, Comrades Stanley and Crogom, and the veteran of veterans, William Brown, aged 102.

As for the new Illinois commander, Mr. Ambrose, who helps run the American Book company, he said, when asked about his age, "Years alone do not constitute age. I have led and still lead an active life, and its varied interests leave me little time to think of growing old."

Last Party? "No, By Golly!"

Somebody was tactless enough to suggest that the reception in honor of Mr. Ambrose might be about the last of George H. Thomas post's "parties."

"No, by golly," rumbled one of the nonagenarians, "not as long as the cod liver oil holds out!"

And had you seen them marching into the hall behind their drummer, Comrade Cornelius Clark, aged 91, you would have agreed that there will be many another of these wonderful parties in Memorial hall.

ALLIED GROUPS PLEDGE AID

Yesterday—the 154th anniversary of the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown—was eloquent with other trumpet calls to protect and maintain what Commander Ambrose had acclaimed as "the constitution of our fathers."

In an all day session at the Hotel Sherman delegations of Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War from fourteen states laid down the lines of a nation-wide campaign to preserve the constitution from "assault by burocrats, demagogs, and cranks."

Pledge "Army of Defense."

The sons, some of whom look almost as old as their fathers of the Grand Army of the Republic, pledged themselves to help in the enlistment of an army eight million strong for the defense of the document drawn up in Philadelphia by the founding fathers in 1787. Those eight million will be the descendants unto the third generation of Union veterans of the civil war.

"We resent," said Frederick K. Davis, who has been placed in immediate charge of the movement, "the attitude of Washington burocrats that the constitution is an out-dated instrument of government."

Draw Up Emphatic Platform.

The Sons of Union Veterans appeal to their fellow countrymen on an emphatic platform three clauses of which read:

"We declare our adherence and loyalty to the fundamental principles of our government as set forth in the constitution and demand of all citizens respect for it and for properly constituted authority.

"We demand the teaching of truthful American history and government, stressing the constitution, and insist that the public school system of America is primarily for the purpose of the development of character and the building of good citizenship.

"For the purpose of maintaining and advancing the objects and purposes for which we are organized, we declare our approval and support of an adequate army and navy, the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, the National Guard, and Citizens' Military Training Camps."

Yorktown day was celebrated last evening by the Illinois State Society of Sons of the American Revolution with a banquet and speeches at the Hotel La Salle.

Preservation a Sacred Duty.

"We celebrate tonight," said L. Hubbard Shattuck, director of the Chicago Historical society, "not merely the anniversary of a victory. We celebrate the crowning of a struggle that gave to the American people a lasting impulse for political freedom. The impulses, the ideals of our people still are for self-government and independence, and the sacred duty of you whose forbears won for you your freedom is to preserve it for your children."

A touching incident of the occasion was President Wilbur Helm's introduction to the cheering banqueters of Mrs. Eleanor Gridley, aged 90, of Chicago, who told them how one of her ancestors inspired the painting of the famous picture "The Spirit of '76."

Among other speakers was De Loss Walker of New York, who said: "These super-wise men who would now curtail our freedom will never solve an economic problem. They have not produced the nation's wealth. They never will. They will only dissipate it."

POLAND EXPELS TWO CONSULS OF CZECHOSLOVAKIA

Warsaw Stirred by Ousting of Own Official.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 19.—Following a cabinet meeting today to discuss the new crisis in relations between Poland and Czechoslovakia, Jan Szembek, acting foreign minister, informed the charge d'affaires of the Czech legation in Warsaw that the Polish government had decided to expel two Czech consuls. They are Dr. Artur Miesner, who is stationed at Cracow, and Dr. Jasomir Dolescal, whose post is at Posnan. Both men have been ordered to leave the country at once.

The Polish action follows the expulsion of Alexander Clotz, Polish consul at Morovska-Ostrava, Czechoslovakia. Clotz was accused of stirring up dissension among the Polish minority of 100,000 in the district of Teschen. The Poles and Czechs began a war over this district in 1919, but a council of ambassadors refused to permit them to finish it.

Papers Attack Czechs.

According to the Czech legation here, the two expelled consuls have been residing in Poland for several years. Legation officials added that no complaints have been made against them.

Answering the violent attacks of the Czas of Cracow, the Polska Zbonrja at Warsaw and other Polish newspapers, which accuse the Czechs of undermining the two nations' relations, the Czech diplomats charge that Poland began a campaign to rid Poland of Czech citizens in 1930. They said that since then more than 600 Czechs have been compelled to leave Poland because Warsaw canceled their working and residential permits.

President Ignace Moscicki has announced an extraordinary session of parliament for next week. The parliament will award special powers to the new cabinet to enable its members to enforce the new deal program of Vice Premier Eugene Kwiatkowski, the president's protégé.

Budget Deficit Grows.

The stiffest problem confronting the government is balancing the budget, which has been running a deficit of $5,000,000 a month for the tlas five years.

Gen Edward Rydz-Smigly, inspector-general of the Polish army, has refused to permit the cabinet to cut the pay of officers or reduce the war ministry's appropriations, which comprises more than 50 per cent of the budget.

May Go to World Court.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Czechoslovak officials said tonight the situation between this country and Poland, brought to a head by the expulsion of consuls, was becoming serious and they were ready to submit the differences to The Hague court. They blamed the Polish-German 1934 treaty of friendship for arousing territorial aspirations at the expense of this country.

AUSTRIA UNITES PRIVATE ARMIES AS STATE UNIT

VIENNA, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The Austrian government wrote the final chapter today in the history of its so-called private armies by issuing an order for their unification under the state army. The order was the first act as the reorganized government of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg and Vice-Chancellor Prince Ernst von Starhemberg took up its task.

The program of Schuschnigg's reconstructed cabinet appeared to be going forward without a hitch. Interference with the jealous and often discordant private armies had in the past seemed a ticklish procedure, but today they submitted quietly to Starhemberg's leadership.

Unified in the new state militia were Schuschnigg's Catholic Storm Troops, Von Starhemberg's Fascist Heimwehr, [Home Guard], the Freiheitsbund, the Christian Turners, and other armed formations.

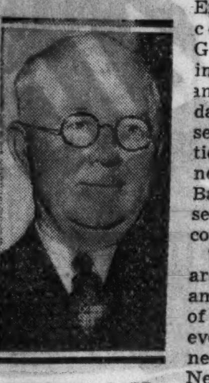
GEORGE A. BARR QUITS IERC TO FIGHT NEW DEAL

Out of Sympathy with All Its Policies, He Says.

George A. Barr of Joliet, who was appointed a member of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission by Gov. Emmerson in March, 1932, announced yesterday that he had sent his resignation to Gov. Horner on Friday. Barr has been secretary of the commission.



GEORGE A. BARR.

"My reasons are, first, that I am entirely out of sympathy with everything connected with the New Deal," he declared, "and, secondly, that I didn't think that any one who expects to take an active part in the coming political campaign should be connected with any New Deal agency.

"So far as the relief commission is concerned, it functioned as well as it could, in view of the hampering effects of all the rules, orders, and regulations coming out of Washington."

Plans Harmony Campaign.

Mr. Barr, who is a brother of State Senator Richard J. Barr [Rep., Joliet], a veteran of the assembly, said he has no intention "at this time" of becoming a candidate for any office. He said, nevertheless, that he did expect to be active in both the state and national campaigns, promoting harmony among the various Republican factions.

George Barr, an attorney and business man, has been mentioned as a possible Republican nominee for governor in 1936. He has been a trustee of the University of Illinois since 1924.

Gov. Horner gave no indication yesterday of whom he would appoint to succeed Mr. Barr on the relief commission. His only comment was that Barr had served "long and faithfully and he asked to be relieved."

Appeal for Education Funds.

A telegram was sent to Washington relief officials yesterday demanding that earmarked funds be granted to carry on the Emergency Education program until the Works Progress administration is prepared to shoulder this burden. Most of the teachers of adult education classes have been shunted onto the direct relief rolls since a "stop work" order was issued Oct. 3 by Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the IERC. Moreover, 300 teachers were unable to qualify for direct relief.

H. J. Gibbons, president of the Chicago Teachers of Adult Education, said that about 200 of the 1,000 unemployed teachers are continuing their classes voluntarily without pay. He explained that if they do not do this they might not be able to find a place in the program when WPA finally takes it over because their classes would dissolve during the interim. Each teacher must recruit his own students before he can draw pay.

U. S. RULING APPROVES A TAX-FREE STATUS FOR CITY UTILITIES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—In ruling today that the Citizens' Water Works, Inc., of Litchfield, Ill., is not exempt from federal taxation the United States board of tax appeals today opened up the way for allowing the New Deal's city power plant program to be free from income taxes.

Although ruling that the Litchfield corporation, which is privately owned, is not tax exempt even though it is "performing an essential government function," the tax board nevertheless added: "It may not be amiss to point out that income accruing to any political subdivision of a state which is derived from any public utility or the exercise of any essential government function is exempt from taxation."

This ruling discloses that the New Dealers will not tax income from city owned power plants which they are sponsoring with easy money and which they are putting into competition with private utilities paying income taxes.

The Litchfield corporation lost its fight for tax exemption because its stock is privately owned, and its stockholders, rather than the city, enjoy the income from it. The board ruled that the corporation must pay $4,832 in additional income taxes assessed on it by the government.

Attorney in Jail Plans to Rewed Bride of Year

Los Angeles, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Behind jail bars, Donald Ambrose Rothrock, attorney charged with shooting a cafe waitress because she removed a bowl of soup before he was through with it, went ahead today with plans to remarry Winifred Agnes Holland, his bride in a Tia Juana ceremony a year ago. Declaring she intended to stand by Rothrock, Miss Holland yesterday filed notice of intention to remarry and the attorney signed the document in the county jail.

131st Infantry to Hold Reunion Here on Dec. 5

From almost every point of the union veterans will gather here on Dec. 5 to attend the eighth annual reunion of the 131st infantry of the Illinois National guard, the old 1st Illinois infantry. Brig. Gen. John V. Clinin, chairman, and Lieut. Col. N. J. Budinger, vice chairman, met yesterday with the various committees and began organization of the program.

Greta Nissen Files Suit to Annul Mexico Wedding

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 19.—[U. P.]—Greta Nissen, blonde Norwegian motion picture actress, tonight sued for annulment of her marriage to Weldon Heyburn, actor. She charged their marriage in Tia Juana, Mexico, on Nov. 30, 1933, was illegal, violating legal witness and residence requirements.

BUSINESS ASKS FEDERAL DOLE BE ABANDONED

Suggests Loans to States and Cities Instead.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—A proposal that the federal government abandon the dole and only make loans to states or cities for relief was advanced today by the federal finance committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The committee, which is beginning a study of federal taxes with especial attention to "unfair and harmful provisions," includes Fred H. Clausen, chairman, Horicon, Wis., manufacturer; Lammont du Pont, president of E. I. du Pont de Nemours, and E. C. Allsworth, treasury tax expert under former Secretary Andrew W. Mellon.

As a part of its program for balancing the budget, the committee suggested that "disbursements of the government for direct relief and for work relief would be limited to loans to states and possibly local governments, with liberal provisions as to interest and repayments."

Other "Principles" Outlined.

This relief proposal was one of several "general principles" which, according to an official announcement, the committee discussed at this opening session here today. Other principles suggested were:

"That the present excessive proportion of the nation's total income exacted by federal, state, and local governments should be substantially reduced.

"That there should be immediate steps taken to assure the establishment of a well coördinated fiscal plan, looking to a balancing of the federal budget in the near future.

"That the fiscal plan should provide for a balanced budget through a reduction of expenditures and not through adoption of new or increased taxes which would retard business expansion and thus tend to continue unemployment.

"That the fiscal plan should contemplate a reduction in federal taxation when federal expenditures can be brought down to more reasonable levels."

The committee had before it demands from many business groups that taxpayers' money should not be used to finance government operations that compete with activities of private citizens.

$20,000 Evanston Blaze Gives Firemen Real Fight

Fire which threatened an entire business block in Evanston caused damage estimated at $20,000 to the annex of the First National Bank and Trust Company of Evanston at 1580 Sherman avenue yesterday.

PURE OIL BLDG. OWNERS SUE CITY FOR $10,000,000

A $10,000,000 suit was filed against the city in Superior court yesterday by a group of Pure Oil building bondholders alleging that the building will be damaged in that amount by the failure of the city to complete condemnation proceedings brought against the forty foot strip of land [a projection of Holden court] immediately west of the building.

The action states that the building was erected at the southwest corner of Wacker drive and Wabash avenue with the understanding this strip would become a public thoroughfare, but that due to the city's neglect to proceed with condemnation the owners of the land now contemplate erecting a building which would "make certain parts of the Pure Oil building useless by shutting off light and air."

The suit was filed by Attorney Howard F. Bishop in the name of Charles E. Driver, chairman of the bondholders' committee.

ADMIT 'SPECIAL' CLEMENCY FOR GUNMAN ROBBER

Bandit Leader Paroled in Mystery Action.

W. C. Jones, chairman of the state parole board, admitted yesterday that special consideration had been given Nick Maentanis, whose crime was the invasion of a private home with four other bandits, the robbery of the residents and their guests, and engaging in a gun fight with policemen, endangering a dozen lives. Maentanis was paroled after serving but three years and eight months, but, Mr. Jones declared, Maentanis' companions still are in prison.

Maentanis, Paul Rossi, Frank Tuffano, and Joseph Perello were convicted of the robbery at the same time, and Dominick Di Nardi was captured and convicted later. All were given the same sentence—one year to life—by juries. Under the indeterminate sentence law, that term is automatically applied upon conviction of robbery while armed, and it then becomes the duty of the parole board to decide on the actual time to be served by each convict.

Maentanis Term Shortened.

"For Maentanis and the three men convicted with him we set a time of servitude of eight years each when their cases were first before the board in 1933," Mr. Jones said yesterday. "Later, upon the recommendation of a subcommittee of the board, consisting of two members, the term of Maentanis was shortened. The eight years "setting" still applies for the others."

Chairman Jones said that no politician had interceded for Maentanis, but he did not divulge the reasons for the special consideration. Gov. Horner asked reports from the two board members—whose names were withheld—as to why they asked that the first decision of the board regarding Maentanis be set aside.

It was understood that Mr. Jones was not one of the two members who lopped nearly two years off Maentanis' "setting." The report to the governor may or may not, it was said, contain the board's opinion of what sort of a crime would merit the maximum penalty on an indeterminate sentence.

The Penalty as Set by Law.

A street holdup, the robbery of a storekeeper, a bank robbery, or the robbery at pistol point of a person in an automobile all carry the same penalty, it was explained, and the law does not specify a different punishment when a band of robbers violates the sanctity of a home and imperils men, women, and children. It is the theory of police and prosecutors that the armed robber is always a potential murderer.

Maentanis and his fellow members of the "42 gang" of Chicago traveled fifty miles to commit a planned robbery at the home of William H. Mitchell, 901 Rosemary avenue, Lake Forest. They forced the men and women to lie on the floor after they were robbed of jewelry valued at $150,000. They rifled the bedrooms of the home, but were dissuaded from molesting the sleeping children.

Shots Fired into Home.

Police were summoned by a butler who risked his life to telephone. The butler had not been able to tell the police of the desperate situation, so they were surprised and held captive for a few minutes by the robbers when they entered the home in response to the call. One of them, however, managed to retain his gun and when the robbers fled he opened fire and they fired six shots back into the Mitchell home. By a lucky chance, no one was hit.

"The parole board's judgment was that Maentanis had paid his debt to society by serving three years and eight months for an atrocious crime like robbery at the Mitchell home," said State's Attorney Charles E. Mason of Lake county, who declared he had not been notified that clemency was being considered for Maentanis. "What would a robber have to do to be kept in prison for ten years?—twenty years?—or for life as contemplated by the legislature in extreme cases? I wonder what the board would consider an extreme case?"

SEIZE 4 PAROLED ROBBERS AS BANK RAID SUSPECTS

Confess Holdup of Toledo Brewery.

Four men who were paroled from the Michigan City penitentiary, where they were serving a ten year term for bank robbery, were held here yesterday by police investigating the raid on the University State bank on Sept. 30, when nine desperadoes shot five persons.

The prisoners are: Thomas Gathright, 46 years old, 6620 Kenwood avenue, who police say, served five terms as a bank robber; Samuel Goldstine, 43 years old, 6622 Kenwood avenue; James Radecki, 41 years old, 1500 West 17th street, and Frank Pauley, 33 years old, 6620 Kenwood avenue. The four later confessed they had held up a Toledo, O., brewery on Oct. 7, shooting a policeman, investigators stated.

Police added that the four were convicted of taking $25,000 in a robbery of the Maywood State bank in Hammond, Ind., in 1930. Their ten year terms were cut short when they returned $16,000 of the loot.

Gunfight Leads to Arrest.

The events which led to their capture began last week when four men in an automobile fought a gun battle with Hammond police. Their car was wrecked and they escaped on foot. The car, however, was traced to Goldstine, who was located at the Kenwood avenue address. Other members of the gang were seized as they appeared at the Goldstine home.

Also taken into custody yesterday were two women and a youth. The women are Marian Heckler Goldstine, who police say is Goldstine's wife, and Miss Esther Hartman, a sister of Mrs. Goldstine. The youth is Harold O'Donnell, 19 years old, 6733 Prairie avenue, who was with Goldstine at the time of his arrest but who, police say, is not connected with any crime.

Suspect's Wife Seized.

Mrs. Goldstine was ordered arrested and charged with perjury when she appeared before Chief Justice Denis J. Normoyle in Criminal court to obtain a writ of habeas corpus for her husband.

Police were told by underworld tipsters that the four bank robbery suspects had been involved in the kidnaping of John S. Labatt, wealthy Canadian brewer, on Aug. 14, 1934, but a search of the records showed all save Gathright had been in jail on that date.

Close Fullerton Av. Bridge for Minor Repairs Today

Necessary repairs will require the closing of the Fullerton avenue bridge over the north branch of the Chicago river this morning between 6:30 and 9 a. m., according to an announcement yesterday by Thomas J. Pihfeld, city engineer.

MEXICO ARRESTS 31 PRIESTS ACCUSED OF FIGHTING GOVERNMENT

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The war department announced today the arrest of thirty-one priests in Guadalajara, and said they had been turned over to the federal attorney general for trial on charges of rebellion and violation of religious laws.

Gen. Antonio Guerrero, commander of the Guadalajara military zone, reported he had learned that priests were "meeting to organize and intensify seditious labor activity against the government." He said he raided a house and seized "propaganda" against the government's Socialistic education program. At the time of the raid, the general stated, the priests were practicing religious rites "which constitutes rebellion and a violation of religious laws."

Meanwhile, a lull occurred on the Sonora "revolt" sector as federal troops under a new commander, Gen. Juventino Espinosa, reached the scene of recent raids. Gov. Ramon Ramas of Sonora asserted that the rebels are nothing more than a small band of outlaws who hide in the mountains. He denied he would resign.

Coast Guardsman Praised by Admiral on Lake Rescue

Surfman O. E. Berger of the South Chicago coast guard station was commended by Rear Admiral H. G. Hamlet, United States Coast Guard commandant, yesterday for plunging into the lake on Sept. 18 and saving the life of Maurice O'Connor, 21 years old, 7201 South Ashland avenue.

DO AS DOCTORS DO

PLUTO WATER

QUICKER, SAFER RELIEF

from

CONSTIPATION

Used or Recommended for Years by Over 50,000 Doctors

When a doctor is constipated, what does he take for relief? That ought to prove beyond question how safe, how gentle, how effective a laxative is.

Now here's an amazing fact! For many years, more than 50,000 doctors have used or recommended Pluto Water. For they know, from personal experience, that Pluto is the sure way to eliminate dangerous accumulated poisons. They know it is not a habit-forming medicine. They know its action is gentle and quick.

WHAT DOCTORS SAY

Dr. T. C. G. of Iowa says: "I prescribe Pluto daily for my patients." Your own doctor too, will tell you there is nothing better. And—will warn you against habit-forming drugs of all kinds. That's why you also can always depend on this famous laxative.

So, the next time you are constipated, do as doctors do. Follow the gentle "water way" to relief. Take the tasteless, non-habit-forming dose—1/5 Pluto with 4/5 glass hot water. In one hour or less you'll get relief. And what a remarkable difference it makes!

Remember, too, Pluto Water is a highly beneficial, saline laxative mineral water bottled at famous French Lick Springs, Indiana. All drug stores have it. Two sizes—25c and 50c. Two hundred million bottles of Pluto water have already been used—millions more are sold each year. You'll find it one of the most economical, most effective laxatives you can buy! Get some today.

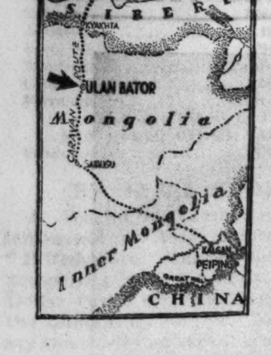
RUSSIA REPORTS JAP THREAT TO SEIZE MONGOLIA

Tells of Ultimatum Sent Soviet Satellite.

MOSCOW, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Soviet dispatches from Ulan Bator, capital of the soviet dominated Mongolian peoples' republic, said tonight Japanese and Manchukuoans had threatened to occupy the city if the Mongolians do not comply with demands for the rights to maintain permanent observers there.



Other dispatches reported the slaying of a young soviet border official Oct. 12 in a clash with a Japanese-Manchukuoan detachment.

Negotiations between the Mongolians and the Japanese and Manchukuoans are being carried on at a point on the border.

Most Drastic Proposal Yet.

Soviet sources said the foreigners previously had threatened part of Mongolian territory but had not proposed anything so drastic as was reported tonight.

The talks are revolving around proposals to appoint a mixed commission to investigate border disputes. The Japanese-Manchukuoan members would reside in Mongolian territory and the Mongolian members in Manchukuoan territory.

Soviet dispatches said the Japanese some time ago demanded not only that the head of the delegation be permitted to reside in Ulan Bator but also that they have the right to build their own communication line direct to Manchukuo.

Mongolians Clam.

The dispatches tonight said the Mongolian delegation "remained calm" in the face of the latest demand and referred the matter to the government for decision.

"This demand," said Tass [soviet] News agency, "is unprecedented in the history of international negotiations and caused great indignation in Ulan Bator. It is expected that the Japanese government will call its too free diplomat to order."

Reports tonight said the threat of occupation was made by the Japanese chief, Kanki, of the Japanese-Manchukuoan delegation negotiating border disputes with Mongolians. He was quoted as having said that under instructions from his government he was compelled to announce that if the Mongolians did not accept the demand, the Japanese-Manchukuoan authorities will be obliged "to penetrate to Ulan Bator and solve the question by means of force."

Story of Border Clash.

Soviet accounts of the slaying of the border official said a force of 40 foreigners penetrated more than two kilometers inside Russian territory and clashed with 20 members of a soviet border patrol.

The slain official was named Kotelnikoff and he was said to be chief of a platoon. The vice commander of the soviet district of frontier police was wounded as was a member of the patrol, said the dispatches.

The report said there were casualties among the Japanese and Manchukuoans, but the number was not given. After the skirmish they were reported to have returned to Manchukuoan territory. The clash occurred near Novi Alexeyevka.

A fight last week-end along the same border lead Moscow to make strong representations to Japan. They have not been answered.

FEDERAL CLUB OVER EVERY FARMER SAID TO BE NEW DEAL AIM

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—A federal club would be held over the head of every farmer in the country if the present policies of "planned economy" were carried to the conclusion aimed at by the planners, Representative James W. Wadsworth of New York said here tonight.

Mr. Wadsworth described the potato control law as "but the logical and thus inevitable development of economic planning" and said that the planners intended to "go a great deal further along this road, in fact to the end of it."

He gave the final address at the constitution exhibit sponsored by the Sentinels of the Republic, which has been attended by more than 5,000 persons daily.

CAPT. GIMMLER WINS MITCHELL TROPHY AIR RACE

Lieut. Crabb Second; Wind Cuts Speed to 212.96.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Selfridge Field, Mich., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Capt. Karl G. E. Gimmler of Milwaukee, Wis., today won the army's annual Mitchell trophy race by flying 100 miles around a 20 mile closed course at an average speed of 212.96 miles an hour. Although 3.87 miles slower than the previous record of 216.83 miles an hour, it actually represented a considerable advance in speed since the pilots were bucking a 40 mile wind so gusty that the heavy little fighters bounced and wavered as they skimmed the tree tops.

Second place in the race went to Lieut. Jarred V. Crabb of New Harmony, Ind., the only officer of rank less than captain among the ten competitors. Lieut. Crabb's average was 211.93 miles.

Maj. Warren A. Maxwell of Indianapolis, Ind., was third with an average speed of 211.43 miles an hour. The remaining officers were bunched so closely that only a few tenths of one mile an hour separated them, the last place ship having an average only five miles an hour less than the winner.

75,000 Persons Watch Show.

Fifty-five thousand persons jammed this military post and another 20,000 watched the races and the air show from surrounding fields and roads. Automobiles lined the 26 mile motor route between the field and Detroit proper for three hours after the races were over.

In order to prevent bunching of the little Boeing P-26 low wing fighters, which each of the pilots were flying, the takeoffs were made at five second intervals. Each ship made a wide circle and then the race started as the competitors dived across the starting line into the teeth of the wind. Despite these efforts to string out the racers, the first three ships fought bitterly at the turns on each of the five laps. Near the finishing wire the first three ships appeared tied until Capt. Gimmler pushed the nose of his plane down, getting a last flash of extra speed which enabled him to cross first.

Only Race of Class in U. S.

The Mitchell trophy race is the only speed contest in which military flyers are allowed to fly military ships. It was begun in 1922 when former Brig. Gen. William Mitchell offered the trophy in memory of his brother, John, who was killed while flying with the first pursuit group in France during the world war. Only pilots of the first pursuit group are eligible to compete.

Lieut. Col. Ralph Royce, commandant of the post, ruled before the race today that only pilots with more than 1,800 hours flying time on their log books could enter. This accounted for the absence of low ranking officers in the race, since in the army such an amount of flying time seldom is piled up until after many years of service.

The ships flown in this race are the heavy air corps machines equipped with highly supercharged Wasp motors developing 550 horsepower at 10,000 feet.

Clipper Plane Reaches Hawaii from Midway Isles

JAPANESE SILENT ON AIMS IN CHINA AS PARLEY OPENS

SHANGHAI, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Japan's diplomatic, military, and naval officials were uncommunicative today on the first day of their discussion of the empire's policy toward China.

"There is no such thing as a new China policy; the discussion referred solely to the manner in which the established policy may be carred out," said Maj. Gen. Yasuji Okamura of the army general staf. "The Japanese government always had a definite policy toward China and that is to seek the awakening of that nation."

Attending the discussion are Ambassador Akira Ariyoshi, Rear Admiral Osamu Sato, naval attaché, and all resident and military officers in China.

Voliva Defied; Forbidden Goods Are Sold in Zion

Oysters, pork, lard, tobacco, and patent medicines were sold yesterday in Zion despite the edict Friday of Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of the Christian Catholic church, that court action would be started against the sellers of such forbidden merchandise. Martin Ruesch, chairman of the Zion Democratic Voters' league, who opened a new market Friday, said yesterday that one of his biggest selling items was boiled ham. "No idle threats can scare me," said Ruesch.

THE NEW FORD V·8 FOR 1936

Distinguished new beauty of line has been combined with the outstanding comfort, safety and performance that have put the Ford V-8 in a class by itself. The car that led all others in 1935 has been made still better for the new year. It has been proved by the past and improved for the future. The New Ford provides every modern feature, with the assurance of satisfactory service. There are no experiments in it—nothing that has not been tried and tested. This means a great deal to motorists—especially in mechanical construction and in safety. . . . The Ford gives you distinctly better performance because of its V-8 engine—it stands out also because it is such a safe car to drive. The Steel Body, Safety Glass all around and Super-Safety Brakes provide exceptional security. . . . The Ford V-8 for 1936 is the finest, safest, most reliable Ford ever built.

FEATURES OF NEW FORD V·8 FOR 1936

New Modern Lines—New longer hood extends gracefully over the distinctive new radiator grille, accentuating the length of the car. New larger fenders, with a wide flare, contribute to the imposing front-end appearance. Horns are concealed behind circular grilles beneath the headlamps. New hood louvres. Steel wheels of entirely new design. Rich, enduring upholstery. Attractive appointments.

New Gear Shifting—Easier, quicker and smoother in the New Ford V-8 for 1936. Shorter distance for the gear shift lever to travel. Quiet shifting. Quiet running in all speeds because of silent helical gears.

Super-Safety Brakes—Safest, most reliable type of brakes under all driving conditions. Mechanical brakes of the same proved design as have been used for years on America's finest cars. Extra large braking area. Easy to apply.

Welded Steel Bodies—The Ford V-8 has a genuine all-steel body structure—electrically welded for still greater strength.

Safety Glass Throughout—All Ford body types are equipped with Safety Glass in the windshield and all windows at no extra cost.

V-8 Engine—Fine-car power, speed, acceleration and smoothness. The reliability of the Ford V-8 engine has been proved in actual service by more than two million motorists—over a million Ford V-8s purchased in the last year. Figures show that the Ford V-8 is the most economical Ford car ever built. Every year the Ford costs less to run.

No "Breaking In"—The Ford V-8 engine is made to such high standards of precision that it requires no tedious period of breaking in. You can drive it 60 miles an hour the first day.

Efficient Cooling—The cooling system of the 1936 Ford V-8 circulates 5½ gallons of water through a new, larger radiator. Natural thermo-syphon action is assisted by two centrifugal water pumps. New louvres permit rapid flow of air around the engine.

Bodies Insulated for Quiet—The floor, dash and body panels of the Ford V-8 for 1936 are insulated with new materials that absorb and deaden sound. The Ford V-8 engine is quiet. The Ford body is quiet.

Center-Poise Riding—All passengers ride near the center of the car—cradled between the soft, flexible springs. Exceptional comfort on every road. The Ford V-8 gives a front-seat ride to back-seat riders.

Unusual Body Room—Short, compact Ford V-8 engine takes up less space under the hood and permits more of the car's length to be used by passengers. Increased room in 1936 Fordor Sedans because the rear quarter trim is recessed above new arm rests.

POLICE SUPPRESS HARVARD PAPER AS 'TOO VULGAR'

"The Glittering Pie" Upsets The Advocate.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Harvard's staid literary bi-monthly undergraduate publication, the Harvard Advocate, was banned from the Cambridge news stands today by the police after an anonymous letter had denounced two of its articles for "indecency" and "the smuttiest of vulgarity."

The action was taken by Police Chief Timothy F. Leahy, who said the letter was written by an alumnus who graduated in 1902 and was himself a former editor of the Advocate. The letter appeared today in the Harvard Crimson, daily undergraduate newspaper, and, Leahy said, formed the basis for his ban.

Recalls Previous Bans.

Harvard student editors, especially of the Crimson and the Lampoon, monthly humorous magazine, are well known for their inspiration of similar police bans on their publications, it was recalled after the police acted. How much log rolling might be inherent in the Crimson's publication of the "protest" was not immediately apparent. "Lampy" habitually calls the Crimson the "Crime's Own."

The letter said that "never since its founding in '66 has the Advocate printed such un-Harvardian trash. The Lampoon has been penalized for less offense."

One of the articles was entitled, "A Natural History," Leahy said, and was written by James Laughlin IV. of Pittsburgh, Pa. "Glittering Pie," the other article which Leahy said caused police action, was by Henry V. Miller, a writer who lives in Paris and never has had any connection with the university.

"Glittering Pie" Attacked.

The letter in the Crimson said "the conclusion of 'A Natural History' story contains bare faced indecency," and "Glittering Pie" was described as "the smuttiest of vulgarity."

Shortly after the seizure of the Advocate on the news stands, Leahy said, policemen visited the editorial rooms and informed the editors they would hear from him soon. Leahy said he planned a conference with them on Monday.

The current issue of the Advocate has been available since the latter part of September. The allegedly offensive articles had attracted no special attention until today's letter in the Crimson drew attention to them.

A statement issued by the editors of the Advocate said the articles were "published with the best of intentions as examples of recent experimental writing."

FOUR KILLED, 12 INJURED AS TRUCK SIDEWIPES AUTO

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Four men were killed and 12 others were injured when a truck from a relief work camp at McKenna sidewiped another machine and careened into buildings at the outskirts of Tacoma today. State patrolmen said witnesses told him the truck was traveling 50 miles an hour. Some of the men in the truck were hurled through the plate glass front of a restaurant and the others were strewn along the highway.

Loot Bungalow and Set It Afire While Owner Is Out

Burglars not only looted but also set fire to the bungalow of John Nadvornik, 2556 North Austin avenue, yesterday while he and his wife were out for the afternoon. When they returned they found smoke pouring from a bedroom. The fire department extinguished the flames before they gained much headway. Nadvornik said he found the house had been ransacked, but could not tell at once what had been taken.

Federal Agents Destroy a Still in Building Raid

Federal agents of the alcohol tax unit yesterday raided a building at 3411 North Natoma avenue and found a moonshine still capable of turning out 250 gallons of alcohol daily. The still and 3,000 gallons of mash in tanks were destroyed. The building, a two story frame structure, is owned by Henry Miller, 3407 North Natoma avenue, who said he had rented it six months ago to a man he knew only as James Nego.

ASSERTS HAWAII IS READY NOW TO BECOME A STATE

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

HONOLULU, T. H., Oct. 19.—Representative Ernest Lundeen, Minnesota Farmer-Laborite and a member of the house subcommittee on territories, which concluded yesterday its inquiry into the fitness of Hawaii to become a state, indicated today that he felt conditions here waranted such a step.

Lundeen expressed as his opinion the belief that Hawaii in size, wealth and population is ready to take its place as a full-fledged member of the Union.

Representative Eugene B. Crowe of Indiana, however, said the large volume of privately expressed opinion brought to his attention was opposed to statehood at this time. Most of those objecting, he said, feel it would be wiser to wait until another generation or two of American citizens of Oriental ancestry have had the opportunity to absorb American ideas and training.

U. S. AGENTS GET REBUKE IN HOTEL MAN'S ARREST

United States Commissioner Walker rebuked three agents of the federal alcoholic tax unit yesterday when they brought Harold Hayes, hotel owner, before him shortly before noon when the courts were closing. The federal men said they found five bottles of liquor bearing counterfeit strip stamps in the Metropole hotel, which Mr. Hayes owns and manages, at 2300 South Michigan avenue. The agents asked that Hayes be required to put up a $2,000 bond, which at that hour probably would have meant that he would have to go to jail for the week-end.

When the commissioner learned the counterfeit liquor labels had been found on July 5, more than three months ago, he permitted Mr. Hayes to sign a personal bond and rebuked Agents F. D. Oglo, James Kominakis, and C. P. Rossner.

Samuel Potucek, 3624 North Western avenue, was held up by two armed men last night in front of the Schlesinger meat market at 2001 North Western avenue, of which he is manager. The men forced Potucek into an automobile and took him to the 2300 block of Carolina avenue, where they thrust him out after taking $230 from him.

Two men who entered the Quality meat market at 3954 Milwaukee avenue compelled Mrs. Joanna Novak, wife of the proprietor, to surrender $280.

Police Trying to Identify Boy Scout Injured by Train

Chicago boy scouts and scoutmasters were helping police last night in their efforts to identify a boy, wearing a new scout uniform, who was injured by a switch engine on the Burlington railroad right-of-way at Cicero avenue, in Cicero, last night. The victim was unconscious from a fractured skull in the Berwyn hospital. He was described as 5 feet 3 inches tall, weighing 120 pounds, and having light brown hair. In his pocket police found a ticket stub of the Portage Park theater.

COUNTY WORKERS TO PICK PENSION BOARD MEMBER

Doubt Forest Preserve Staf Has Right to Vote.

County and forest preserve employés will ballot Wednesday on the election of one member to the county employés' benefit fund retirement board. The same members form the board for the forest preserve employés' fund. With a half dozen candidates campaigning for the office, some argument has developed over the question whether the preserve employés are entitled to vote.

Legally the preserve employés have no right to vote, according to county building lawyers. Legislation passed in 1931, which made the county retirement board the ex-officio board for the preserve fund, does not specify voting privileges for the preserve employés, the lawyers say.

Ballots to Be Kept Separate.

The number of county employés eligible to vote is approximately 5,000. The votes of the preserve employés in question would total only 260. The preserve employés have voted before and, after some indecision, Ernest J. Camit, a retirement board trustee, has ruled that they may in this election. If precedent is followed, however, the ballots of the forest preserve employés will be kept separate to determine whether they have any bearing on which way the election goes.

Camit has been criticized by State Representative William J. Gormley, secretary of the forest preserves, and by Assemblyman Bernard J. Kewin, head of the preserves real estate department, on the ground that the voting privilege is not in the pension legislation.

Camit's Views on Disputes.

The trustee replied that the representatives might have detected the omission before they voted for the legislation.

A recent amendment to the pension law making membership compulsory for county employés also has been under attack. Many employés now joining the fund thought that they would get full pension rights without making contributions to the fund for past years of service.

It is optional with these employés, according to Camit, whether they pay up for past years of employment or let their pension be based on the years during which they contribute henceforth.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Grave fears for the safety of the crew of 37 of the British steamer Vardulia were felt tonight after a wireless message had been received reading "now abandoning ship." The location was given as 420 miles northwest of the Hebrides Islands in the north Atlantic. Six ships were reported speeding to the scene.

Meanwhile, the worst gale in years swept Scotland and northern England, leaving death and destruction in its trail. At Glasgow a man was lifted off his feet, flung against a passing truck and killed. At Sunderland a man was severely injured in saving his sleeping children when the roof of their home caved in.

Property damage was estimated at more than $5,000,000. Shipping and telephone companies were especially hard hit. Coast guards reported many large vessels in distress and many small vessels sunk or wrecked. The Anchor liner Transylvania, which was due to leave Glasgow yesterday with 240 passengers for New York, was prevented from leaving by the gale.

Maj. C. D. McAllister of the army air corps was at the Chicago airport yesterday procuring supplies of liquid oxygen and nitrogen for the second stratosphere flight of the year to be attempted soon at Rapid City, S. D.

Maj. McAllister said he would leave with the supplies as soon as he has received instructions from Capt. A. W. Stevens, flight commander, who is now at Rapid City. It is hoped to send the huge balloon now ready for the flight to a 75,000 foot altitude as soon as weather conditions are favorable, Maj. McAllister said.

FLIGHT IS DELAYED.

Rapid City, S. D., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Decision against inflation of the stratosphere balloon tonight for flight tomorrow was reached at the flight bowl this afternon after a study of noon weather maps.

Chicago Fugitive on Dope Charge Seized in Paris

A dispatch from Paris last night stated that Edward Bender, 44 years old, had been arrested there and was being held at the request of the United States bureau of narcotics for extradition to Chicago. Bender, a former German sailor, was found guilty of transporting narcotics in the federal court here in 1931. He fled after he had been released on bonds pending an appeal.

Robber Caught in Act Is Shot by Policeman

John Scott, colored, 30 years old, 3845 Elmwood avenue, was shot in the abdomen early today by Policeman Lawrence Walsh of the Stanton avenue district, who interrupted him as he was holding up Charles Williams, colored, 3734 Langley avenue, at 38th street and Elmwood avenue. At the Bridewell hospital it was said the condition of Scott was critical.

POLICE ARREST DANCING GIRLS IN STATE ST. SHOW

Four policemen, not in uniform, halted late last night in front of the Museum at 462 South State street and listened to the ballyhoo man at the door. Then they paid 5 cents each and went inside.

The first part of the show consisted of sword swallowing. When this was over the policemen paid a quarter each to see a dancing show. Then they paid another quarter to see a second dancing show, which they were assured would be more interesting.

Having witnessed this performance, the policemen disclosed their identities. They were Thomas V. Lyons, Frank Cervenka, Frank O'Sullivan, and Francis Maher of the vice and gambling squads. They arrested 14 men working in the museum and eight dancing girls. All were charged with giving an indecent show. Fifty men, patrons of the place, were allowed their freedom.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

DON'T BE TERRIFIED
by these infections unless you're failing to get proper medical care

Both the venereal diseases can be cured if promptly and persistently treated by a capable physician instead of by yourself or a quack

IT'S foolish, these days, to be terrified by either gonorrhea or syphilis. For modern medical treatment practically assures a cure—provided you consult a good doctor soon after infection and follow his instructions faithfully. In fact, it is now possible to arrest further progress of long-standing cases of syphilis!

But it's equally foolish to (1) neglect a venereal disease, (2) attempt to cure it yourself, or (3) consult one of those quacks who pose as "specialists in the diseases of men." They usually advertise by means of sensationally alarming and misleading pamphlets passed out in public places.

If any of these serious mistakes is made, gonorrhea may result in sterility, crippling rheumatism, or prostate, bladder and other troubles. And syphilis may lead to heart disease, blindness, apoplexy, locomotor ataxia, paralysis or even insanity!

Skill and experience needed

It requires much skill and experience to cure a venereal infection, hence you should choose your doctor with the utmost care. Your family physician is a good man to consult, or you can get excellent medical attention at very low cost from the well-trained doctors of the Public Health Institute.

The Public Health Institute is recognized by the medical profession as the largest venereal disease clinic in the world. Since 1920 it has given over 4,000,000 treatments to more than 220,000 individual patients! Thus you can have implicit confidence in the medical service it offers.

Every man and woman physician on the staff of the Public Health Institute is a graduate of a reputable medical college, and is thoroughly experienced in the most modern methods of treating venereal infections. Each is duly licensed to practice in Illinois by the State Board of Medical Examiners.

The Public Health Institute goes to great lengths to insure privacy and peace of mind for its patients. Numerous individual treatment rooms are provided, and for the sake of even greater privacy each patient is known by a number rather than by name.

Treatments as low as $1.00

Organized by public-spirited citizens as a corporation "NOT-FOR-PROFIT" under the laws of the State of Illinois, the Public Health Institute specializes in venereal diseases at remarkably low fees. A complete examination for gonorrhea and syphilis, including urinalysis and Wassermann test, costs only $3.00, while some treatments for syphilis cost as little as $1.00 and some of those for gonorrhea still less.

Hence there is no need for any sufferer from gonorrhea or syphilis to be frightened by his or her disease. For not only can virtually all new infections be cured, but first-class treatment is now available at charges within the reach of all. Even persons who are temporarily pressed for funds can arrange to be treated.

NOTE: The Public Health Institute has no connection with any other Chicago health or medical institute, and should not be confused with those operated for personal gain!

TROVATORE AND FAUST END WEEK FOR SAN CARLO

A New Manrico Gets a Warm Welcome.

"IL TROVATORE."

Opera in four acts by Verdi.
Presented by the San Carlo Opera company at the Auditorium theater.
THE CAST.

Leonora	Bianca Saroya
Azucena	Dreda Aves
Inez	Philine Falco
Manrico	Pasqual Ferrara
Count Di Luna	Mario Valle
Ferrando	Harold Kravitt

Incidental Dances by the SAN CARLO OPERA BALLET

Conductor	Carlo Peroni

BY HAZEL MOORE.

A rousing performance of the famous old war horse of opera, Verdi's "Il Trovatore," rounded out a highly prosperous week for Fortune Gallo's Dollar Opera company, last night at the Auditorium theater. Needless to say there were no vacant seats. "Trovatore" is truly "grand" opera, and beloved of the masses, though few could probably trace its rambling story of battle, murder and sudden death. Many, however, can hum the Miserere or the Anvil Chorus.

The heavy artillery of the San Carlo roster was called into service last night. Bianca Saroya, who has for many years headed the Gallo forces, appearing with great versatility in dramatic and lyric soprano rôles alike, was a splendid Leonora, negotiating the florid music in fine style, and looking beautiful.

A New Manrico.

A Manrico new to the company, Pasqual Ferrara, was warmly received after his first envisored offstage solo. Harold Kravitt's Mephistopheles of "Faust" in the afternoon having merely warmed him up for the evening's duties, he got a fine hand for the bass' big moment in the first scene. Dreda Aves received fulsome applause for her really fine singing of Azucena's famous aria. Mario Valle and Philine Falco completed the good cast. Peroni conducted his seventh performance of the week.

Today will be presented the operatic twins, "Cavalleria," and "Pagliacci."

'FAUST' A BIT OF A POLYGLOT

"FAUST."

Opera in four acts, by Gounod.
Presented by the San Carlo Opera company at the Auditorium theater.
THE CAST.

Marguerite	Mary McCormic
Faust	Dimitri Onofrei
Mephistopheles	Harold Kravitt
Valentine	Stefan Kozakevich
Siebel	Charlotte Bruno
Wagner	Fausto Bozza
Martha	Philine Falco

Incidental dances by the San Carlo opera ballet.

Gounod's "Faust," presented at the matinée, turned out to be a somewhat polyglot performance, with a number of high spots and some not quite so high. This is easy to understand, as "Faust" remains one of the really difficult operas of the standard répertoire to present. Each rôle is a major one, and each demands real vocalism, and an almost equal amount of impersonation.

Curiously enough, yesterday's performance was in most ways musically satisfactory, with high rating to Maestro Peroni and his orchestra. Staging and lighting were excellent, the chorus properly vociferous and the ballet adequate.

McCormic's Singing Uneven.

Mary McCormic made her first appearance of the season as Marguerite, a rôle which she has sung at various times during the last few years in Chicago, and in which she has been well liked. Yesterday her singing was uneven, with lovely phrasing alternating with a too explosive tone or a too sudden pianissimo, and an occasional lapse of pitch which seemed to indicate that Miss McCormic was not at her vocal best. Her characterization was coquettish and very young in the garden scene.

Onofrei, resplendent in green tunic and violet cape, was his usual resourceful self.

Kravitt a Good Mephistopheles.

Harold Kravitt, the company's most used bass, as Mephistopheles proved to be an inventive devil with a sense of humor. Singing the rôle for the first time in Chicago, he scored a good success. In the garden scene quartet he and Miss Falco won an especial bit of applause for their excellent comedy.

Kozakevich was the Valentine and Charlotte Bruno the Siebel. The performance as a whole was scarcely Gallic, with French rating from good, bad to indifferent, and the Gallic flavor was almost entirely supplied by the thoroughgoing prima donna, Mary McCormic.

Elks Celebrate 59th Year of Chicago Lodge Founding

The 59th anniversary of the founding of the Chicago lodge, No. 4, of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks was celebrated last night with a banquet and initiation at the Morrison hotel. The honor guest was Judge James T. Hallinan of New York, Grand Exalted Ruler. More than six hundred members from midwestern states attended. One of the largest classes of initiates in the history of the lodge was inducted into membership. Among the initiates were State's Attorney Courtney and Ald. Oscar Nelson.

Helen Jepson at Blackstone hotel after her arrival in Chicago yesterday. With John Charles Thomas she will head an all-American cast in the opera, "Thais," to be presented Nov. 11 by the Chicago City Opera company in the Civic Opera house.

PICK 16 WINNERS OF MARY GARDEN CLASS AWARDS

Sixteen young men and women out of 65 contestants have been awarded scholarships in Mary Garden's master class in "opera stage deportment and song interpretation" which the singer is conducting in the Chicago Musical college, 64 East Van Buren street, it was announced yesterday. Harold McCormick, Chicago capitalist, Paul Cravath, board chairman of the Metropolitan Opera company, and Grace Moore, singer are sponsoring a number of the scholarships.

One of the winners is Paul Pence, formerly of Cedar Rapids, Ia., 28 years old, who has been engaged by the Chicago City Opera company as a baritone. Other winners are Janina Laboda, Leonard Balsamo, Robert Long, Donna Blackwell, Lola Fletcher, Phil Culkins, Bessie Brown, Will Blailock, Gertrude Morse, MacKenzie Ward, Maryam Horn, Glenn Rickert, Sara Ann McCabe, Louisa Mae Hoe, and Marjorie Gilam.

Helen Jepson, who made her debut with the Metropolitan Opera company last year, arrived yesterday from Grand Rapids and took the first of several lessons she will take from Miss Garden before she sings in "Thais" with the Chicago City Opera company.

DRUSILLA LYNCH, HARVESTER CO. LIBRARIAN, DIES

Funeral services for Mrs. Drusilla Lynch, for 27 years librarian at the Deering works of the International Harvester company, will be held tomorrow morning from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Anna G. Crumb, at 3845 North Springfield avenue, to St. Viator church. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery. Mrs. Lynch, who was 74 years old, died Thursday of a heart ailment. Surviving also is a second daughter, Mrs. Drusilla Young, 3932 North Keeler avenue.

"Three Men on a Horse" Cast to Give Benefit

Members of the cast of "Three Men on a Horse," the comedy which is enjoying a record run at the Harris theater, will give a benefit performance Thursday afternoon for the Actor's Fund of America, a theatrical charity organized in 1882. Walter L. Gregory, president of the State street council, was the first business man yesterday to purchase a block of seats for the performance. Because actors have always been among the first to offer their services for charity, Mr. Gregory urged business men to support the benefit liberally.

DENMARK VOTES TUESDAY; FARM REVOLT IS ISSUE

New Lower House to Be Named at Polls.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Denmark will proceed to a general election next Tuesday to name a new lower house in parliament, with the problems and demands of the Danish farmer one of the chief questions of the day.

The action of Prime Minister M. Stauning in dissolving the lower house and forcing a new election, has been accepted as a direct challenge to farmer extremists who want further devaluation of the Danish krone.

Tight Government Policy.

The new farmer movement has indicated its stubborn resistance to present government policy through the recent "peasant march" to Copenhagen and through announced plans for a "valuta strike" to force devaluation.

In dissolving the lower house the prime minister is regarded by observers as playing for time and public opinion.

It is in the farmer, who has suffered severe financial losses during recent years, especially in exports of dairy products to Great Britain, that Denmark has an increasing political confusion.

Seek to Devalue Currency.

The farmer extremists now insist on a devaluation of the krone to 30 to the pound, as compared with 22.40 krone to the pound at present, in order to receive more in krone for their exports to Britain. [The pound's current value is 84.92 and the krone's is about 22 cents.]

Government parties, seeking new trade treaties, and trying to foster domestic industry as compensation for blocked export markets in agriculture, are vigorously opposed to further devaluation which would hamper imports of raw materials.

CUSHING WIDOW WILL ADMINISTER $500,000 ESTATE

Mitchell C. Robin, clerk of the Probate court, yesterday awarded letters of administration to Mrs. Harriet M. Cushing, 900 Edgemere court, Evanston, for the estate of her husband, John F. Cushing, president of the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company, who was killed Oct. 6 in the crash of an air liner near Cheyenne, Wyo.

Personal property of the estate is listed as not more than $500,000. There was no real estate.

Because Mr. Cushing died without leaving a will one-third of the estate will go to the widow and the balance will be divided equally among the Cushings' seven children—Jerome, Vincent, Gregory, Mary Elizabeth, Martha Elaine, Paul of Oakland, Cal., and Francis of Buffalo, N. Y.

STARR W. CUTTING DIES; VETERAN OF U. OF C. FACULTY

Word of the death of Starr Willard Cutting, professor emeritus of the University of Chicago department of Germanic languages and literature, was received by the university yesterday. Prof. Cutting died Friday in Brattleboro, Vt. He was 77 years old. He was a member of the University of Chicago faculty from 1906 until his retirement in 1923. Surviving him are his widow, Edith, and three children. Mr. Cutting was born in Brattleboro and will be buried there, it was learned.

Cost of Chicago Dairy Strike to U. S. Is $7,000

The recent strike of dairy farmers in the Chicago milk shed which cut down the city's milk supply for more than a fortnight cost the United States government more than $7,000, it was revealed yesterday. This sum was paid out yesterday by United States Marshal William H. McDonnell to a force of 75 special deputies who acted as guards on milk trains of two railroads. With the cessation of violence in the strike area, Marshal McDonnell recalled the special guards, received their guns, and paid them their wages.

Illinois Cow Wins Title with 245 Lbs. of Milk

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Aces Aster, a Guernsey cow owned by R. C. McReynolds of Litchfield, Ill., today held the dairy derby championship of the National Dairy show. She produced 245.6 pounds of milk in 96 hours that ended yesterday. It tested 12.6339 pounds of butterfat. Miss Tretonia, a Holstein-Freisian owned by P. T. Stewart of Maynard, Ia., won second place. She produced 229.5 pounds of milk that tested 10.3318.

MURDER OF OLSON STILL A MYSTERY TO MOLINE POLICE

Moline, Ill., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Moline police, after 24 hours of questioning of business and personal associates of Thomas A. Olson, Powers-Thompson Construction company superintendent, said tonight they had no worthwhile clews to his mysterious murder last night in the company's office on the Mississippi river in Moline. Olson's body was taken this afternoon to the home of his parents at Morris, Ill. Funeral services are scheduled for Tuesday.

The authorities said two theories were being given consideration: One involving a woman and a jealous motive. The other pertaining to supposedly disgrunted employé of the construction company. No arrests have been made.

A woman friend of Olson's and a man, also a friend of hers, were questioned by the Moline police but were released.

REP. H. M. KIMBALL OF MICHIGAN'S 3D DISTRICT IS DEAD

Victim of Stroke; Serving First Term in Office.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Representative Henry M. Kimball, 57 years old, Third district congressman who was elected last November to his first term, died this morning after a prolonged illness following a stroke suffered on July 8 in Washington.

Representative Kimball was the fifth successive representative of the Third district to die in office since 1920.

Born on Aug. 27, 1878, in Orland, Ind., Mr. Kimball was graduated from the Hillsdale, Mich., college and served as superintendent of schools at Orland. He was graduated from the University of Michigan and practiced law twelve years in Portland, Ore., before coming to Kalamazoo in 1917. He is survived by his widow and a daughter.

Private funeral services will be held Monday at 10 o'clock, after which the body will be cremated in Detroit. Burial will be in Orland, Ind.

NOV. 4 SET ASIDE AS WILL ROGERS DAY IN OKLAHOMA

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Gov. E. W. Marland by proclamation today set aside Nov. 4 for the observance of Will Rogers day. That date is the birth anniversary of the famous cowboy, philosopher, and actor, who was killed in Alaska when the plane piloted by his friend, Wiley Post, crashed on a small lake.

Although no state or nation may claim Rogers exclusively, Gov. Marland said, Oklahoma feels a just pride in being his birthplace and the state in which he grew to young manhood. Because of this, the governor announced, he was dedicating Rogers' birthday as a day of remembrance for the qualities of the man which made him the "most famous private citizen of the world."

"Will Rogers prided himself in the thought that he never met a man he did not like," stated Gov. Marland. "He knew human nature as no other man in the world, and he made the world laugh, but never at the expense of the feelings of the most sensitive soul."

ISLANDERS' RAID ON GROCERY LAID TO LARD FAMINE

Fort Smith, Ark., Oct. 19.—(AP)—A raid on a grocery at isolated Arbuckle's Island, where a score of persons walked off with armfuls of food, was blamed today on a shortage of lard in the community and the incident apparently was closed.

John Self, owner of the grocery, the sole food store on the Arkansas river island near here, estimated his loss at $130.

"But I've made my profit on these fellows when they had money, so it looks like I'm just up against it now," the grocer said.

NOTRE DAME WINS, 9-6; OHIO DEFEATS N.U., 28-7

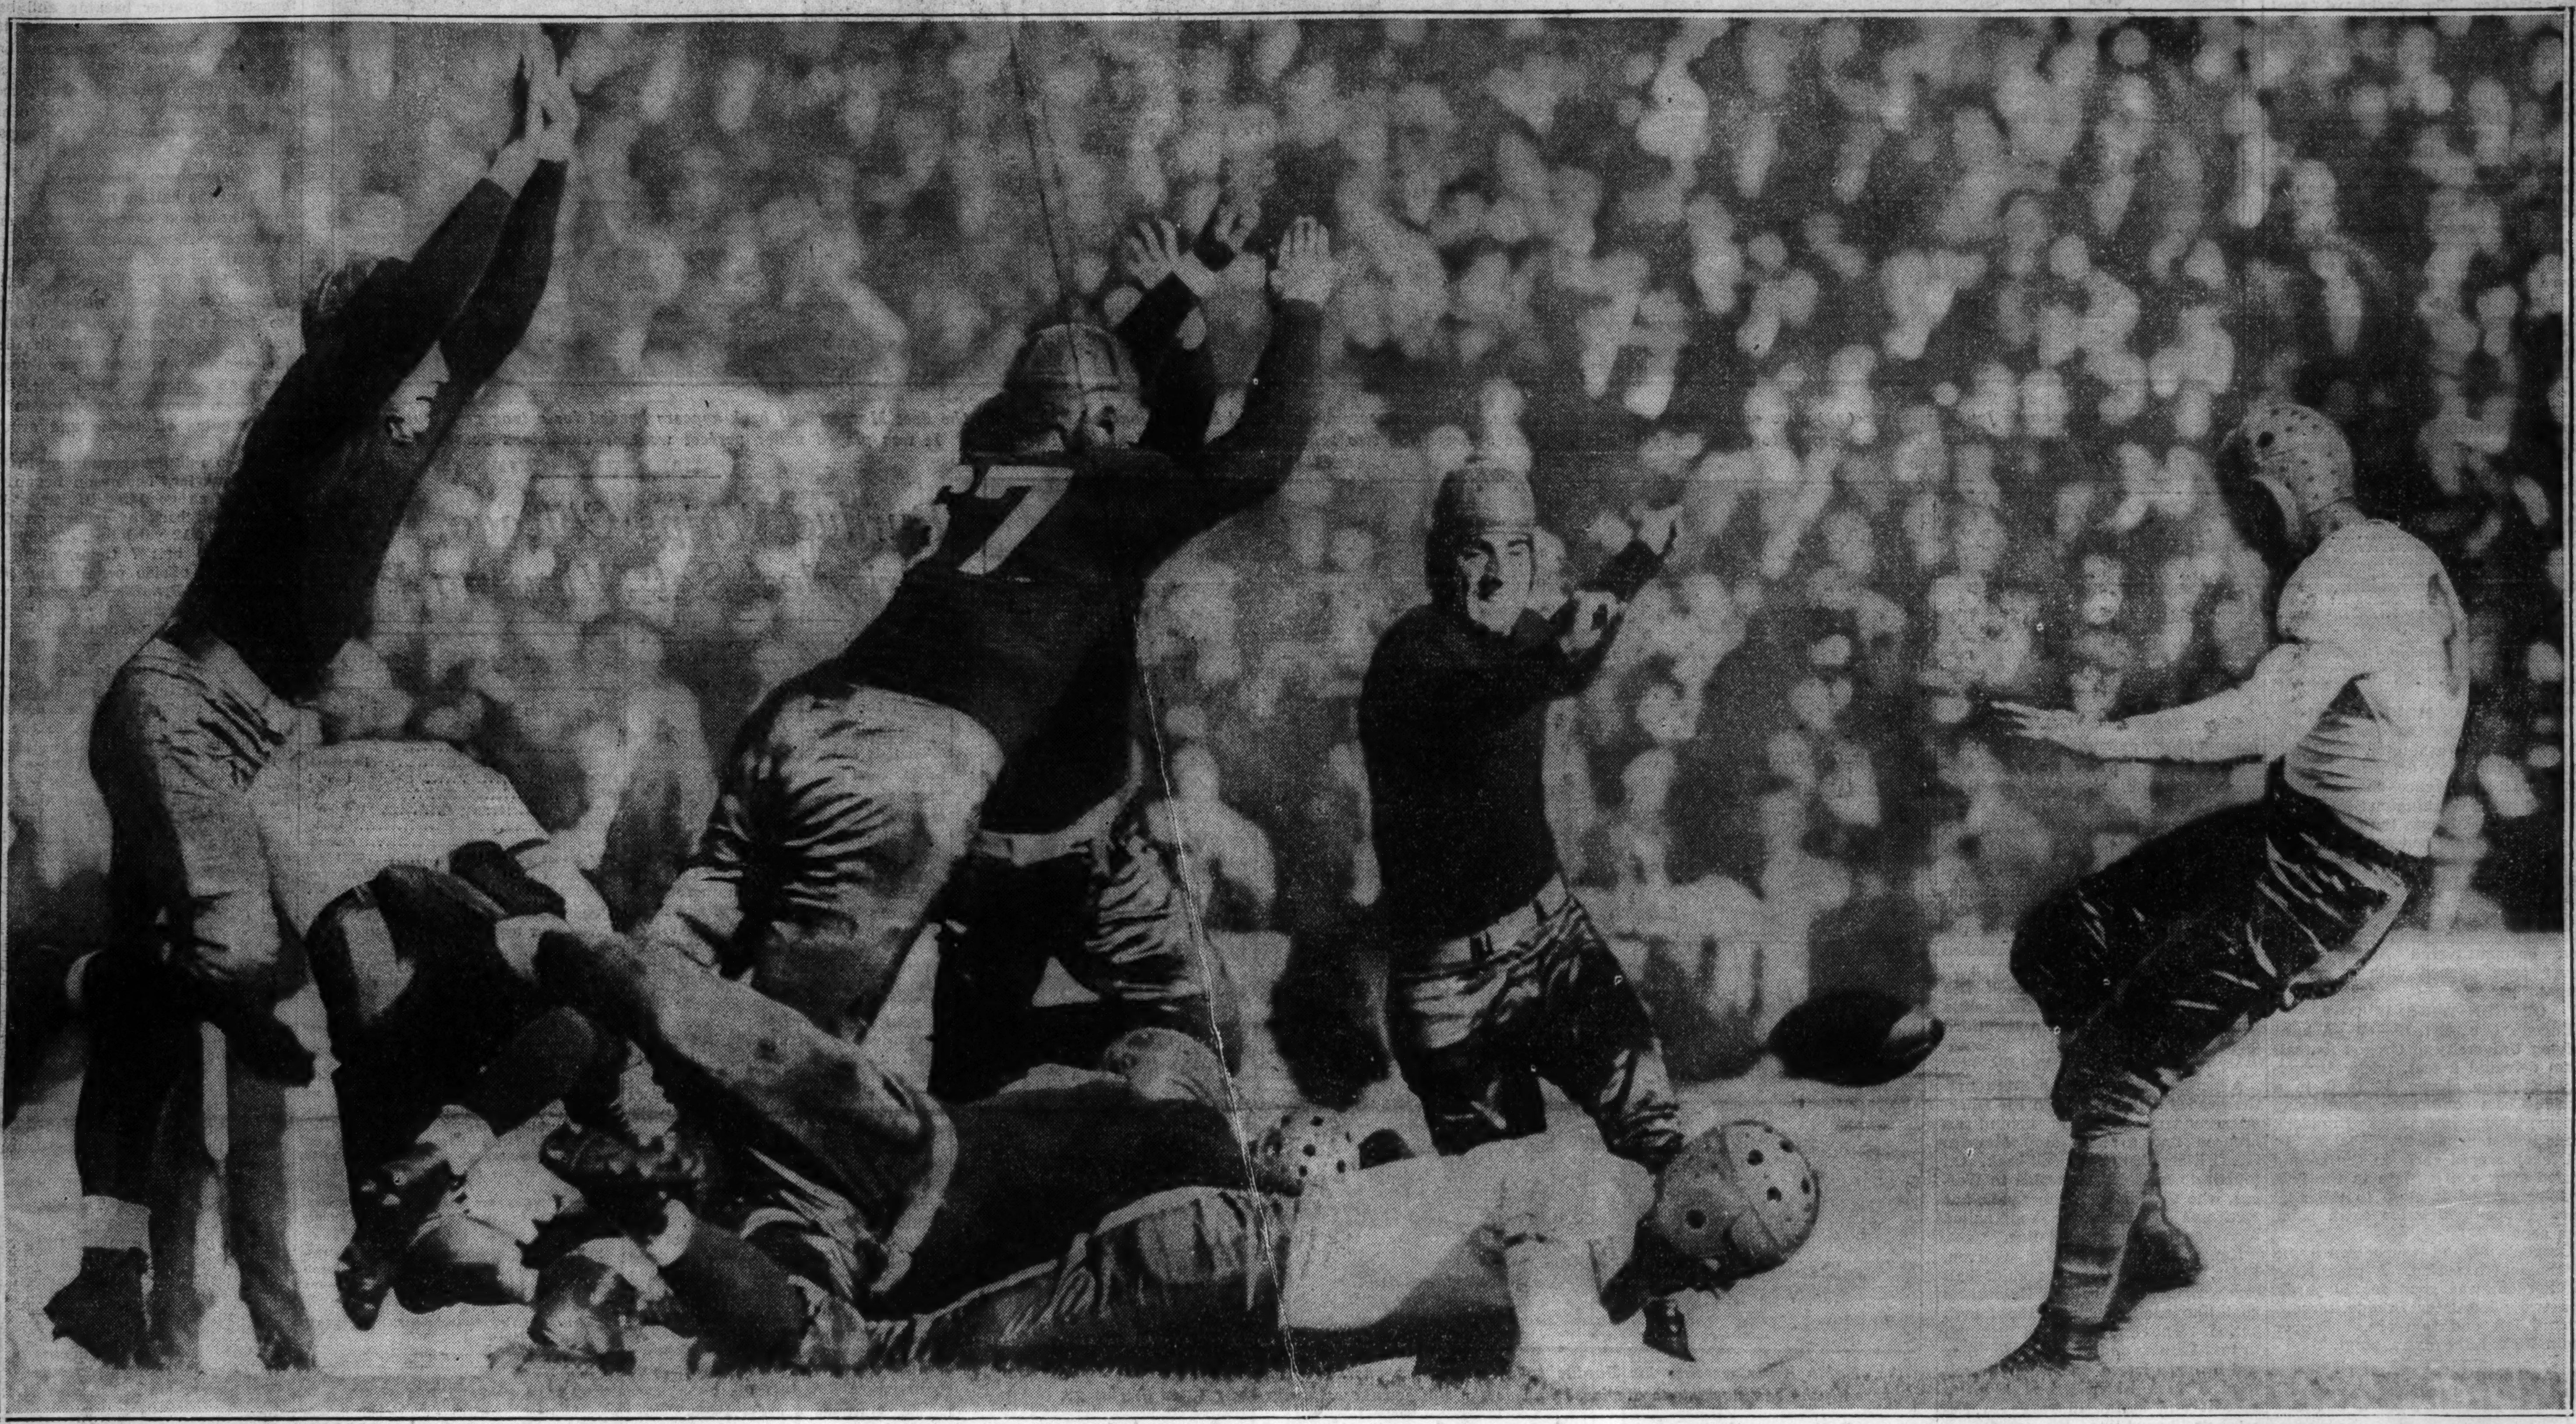
CLOSE, BUT THE IRISH COULDN'T BLOCK THIS KICK



Michelosen, Pittsburgh quarter back, gets off a punt despite the efforts of four Notre Dame men to block the ball during yesterday's game at Notre Dame, where a crowd of 51,000 saw the Irish rally to win, 9 to 6. No. 67 is Frank Kopczak, former Harrison High school star of Chicago, who won a starting assignment at right tackle for Notre Dame following the injury to John Michuta. The victory broke a string of three Pittsburgh victories over the South Bend school. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

PETERS' FIELD GOAL IN LAST TWO MINUTES DEFEATS PITT

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 19. — The spirit of Notre Dame flamed anew this afternoon, and Pittsburgh, perennial champions of the east, thrice conqueror of the Blue and Gold, went down in defeat, 9 to 6.

Fifty-one thousand, a mighty partisan throng, watched Notre Dame's doughty men write another brilliant page of football history. And in that writing it was asserted emphatically that another fighting Irish eleven is on the march.

These thousands, banked in circling seats within the gray brick stadium, had seen the tide of battle swing to Pitt, then to the defenders. They had watched a brilliant battle that after 58 minutes had left the Titans locked in a tie, 6 to 6.

The Last Chance.

Two minutes to play. A story book title become fact. Notre Dame, dominant throughout the fourth period, had a final opportunity. It was fourth down for the Irish and they had the ball on Pittsburgh's 19 yard line.

In the huddle, Wallie Fromhart, Notre Dame's quarter back, gave the word. Notre Dame must try for a field goal, an offensive weapon it seldom has used. Fromhart nodded to Marty Peters, acting captain. The decision rested on the power of his foot, the accuracy of his aim.

Up to the line of scrimmage trotted the Blue shirted players. They crouched, silently waiting while Fromhart and Peters made ready for Fred Solari's pass from center.

Drama—and Victory.

Fromhart held out his hands. At the signal, Solari passed the ball, an accurate low spiral which the Notre Dame quarter back took and poised on the ground. Peters stepped forward. He kicked, and the ball, tumbling high in the air, dropped over the cross bar as Referee Frank Lane held his arms high above his head, a signal of success.

From the top reaches of the stadium a mighty roar reverberated, caught up the cascade of sound from both sides of the bowl, a mighty pean of praise to Peters and his teammates. Notre Dame had won.

Pitt Fights Back.

Pitt was defeated, but the Panther did not give up. In the few remaining seconds there were packed additional thrills. The stadium was an uproar as Notre Dame, with Peters kicking, sent the ball down to the possession of the Panthers. The thousands stood. Perhaps they were thinking of Pitt's great surge in the first quarter when Hubert Randour ran 63 yards and barely failed of a touchdown.

Could Pittsburgh repeat? The thought kept the spectators in their places. Notre Dame stopped Frank Souchak, receiver of the kickoff, on Pitt's 40 yard line.

Gophers Beat Tulane, 20-0; Lose Seidel

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 19.—Minnesota's Gophers announced before this afternoon's football endeavor with Tulane that the regulars would make two or three touchdowns early in the game, then devote the rest of the afternoon to laboratory work.

The Gophers made a touchdown and added the point in the first four minutes; four minutes later they rang up another touchdown and point, and in the first minute of the second quarter they made their third and final touchdown, but failed to add the point. Thus was the final score—Minnesota, 20; Tulane, 0—acquired.

The remainder of the afternoon 42,000 customers saw the Gophers in the rôles of guinea pigs as their football professors made observations for future scientific application when the going is tougher.

Tulane Goes Both Ways.

The boys from the big end of the Mississippi river were no match for the husky fellows from the little end of the nation's biggest creek. The score might have been 100 to 0 but for the bond of fealty that has existed between Minnesota and Tulane ever since 1915.

The main versatility of the visitors from New Orleans was in that they ran toward and away from their own goal with equal facility. In the first half, for instance, the Green Wave rushed 56 yards in the right direction and 49 yards in the wrong.

Seidel Is Hurt.

This gave them a net of seven yards during the time the Gophers were in an accumulating mood, despite the fact they had six first downs as compared with Minnesota's seven in the first half. In the entire game Tulane gained 90 yards from rushing and lost 88, so their total net gain, despite nine first downs, was two yards.

Tulane made only one threat, in the ninth minute of the final quarter, when Capt. Barney Mintz carried the

BOILERMAKER 'CRIPPLES' SET PACE IN 19 TO 0 TRIUMPH

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

Purdue's Boilermakers played an anvil chorus to nip budding Maroon hopes at Stagg field yesterday before 25,000 spectators. Thirty master workmen and apprentices fabricated three touchdowns, yielding 19 points, against a fighting but futile Maroon eleven whose closest approach to the Purdue goal line was 23 yards, where a fumble vitiated a drive from their own 37 yard mark.

This 19 to 0 victory riveted to the Boilermakers' rising Big Ten title structure their second conference victory. By its decisiveness, it spurred anew visions of triumphs over Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, and Indiana ahead, a long journey, but now figured more than a possibility.

Purdue superiority, early evident to the spectators, was confirmed by the statistics of 20 first downs for the visitors and 7 for the Midwayites. Purdue yardage from scrimmage was 269 and Maroon only 72.

Jay Does His Part.

More versatile in the backfield, except for Capt. Berwanger of Chicago, who again displayed his real worth against odds, and driving harder in its attack, Purdue always carried a touchdown threat. In the line, where Chicago played wide on defense, the margin was not as great, but Maroon backs were unable to gain consistently. Purdue's thrusts gained steadily, but Whiteside, Nyquist, and Skoning had a notable afternoon of praiseworthy defense in cutting them down.

While alert Boilermakers prevented Berwanger from getting away for any touchdown jaunts, his punting was good throughout, he was on the projecting end of completed passes yielding 97 yards, the only real Maroon scoring threat, and three times he nailed Purdue runners goalward bound when all other Maroons had been blocked out or distanced. So necessary was his presence that he played sixty minutes without substitution.

Considering advance estimates of its own partisans, Chicago's showing was somewhat disappointing. Tackling, in particular, was ineffective, Purdue runners dodging or slipping away from opposition which should have nailed them. Purdue, the eleven which already had beaten Northwestern, 7 to 0, and Fordham, 20 to 0, was clicking, but apparently not pressing

Badgers Dazed by Wolverine Aerial Thrusts

BY FRENCH LANE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 19.—University of Michigan's Wolverines this afternoon emerged from the hazy position they have held for a year and a half in Western conference football when they fought their way to a spectacular 20 to 12 victory over the Wisconsin Badgers.

An early attack which soon rolled them into a 20 to 0 lead smacked of the power and ability of the Wolverines when they were champions. They had only to coast on home from there. and while statistics show that the Badgers outgained them in yardage almost to the tune of 2 to 1, they never were dangerously near losing this 18th battle with their old rivals.

Renner's Passes Bring Touchdowns.

Three times in the first half Bill Renner, Michigan's dynamic quarter back, sent passes flying down the field which resulted in touchdowns. These sensational plays thrilled 20,000, who garbed in their football weather clothes almost melted away beneath a blistering sun which beamed down in Indian summer weather.

The courageous Badgers, playing better football than a lot of their admirers believed they could play, staged a belated rally in which they scored two touchdowns, but it was evident from the time they started doing things in a big way they could never catch up, regardless of what might happen.

Tuneful "On Wisconsin" began to sound like a funeral dirge to the unhappy Badger rooters during the early part of the afternoon. Within six minutes after the struggle was under way the arm of Quarter Back Bill Renner had asserted itself.

Tommerson Hit Hard, Fumbles.

At the start Tommerson of Wisconsin had smashed through for a gain of 11 yards, but was hit so hard by a Wolverine that he fumbled. Everhardus fell on the ball on the Michigan 45 yard line. On the next play

FLEET BUCKEYES PROVE SKILL WITH POWER AND DECEPTION

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Oct. 19.—Ohio State's scarlet robed football machine is just about all that has been said of it. Before 42,355 it steam rollered its way into the season's Big Ten competition today and the process of ruthless rolling flattened Northwestern's Wildcats, 28 to 7, on the stadium turf.

The so-called Scarlet Scourge, apparently operating under orders to get results without delay, tore loose with two touchdowns in the opening period. They came steaming back with one more in the second for a lead of 21 points.

But the Wildcats then swung into a menacing stride and from then to the end it was a battle of consequence. The Ohioans, although their superiority was always in evidence, couldn't indulge in the loaf they had anticipated. The Wildcats, briefly, were tough even after they knew their struggles were futile.

The Advantage of Breaks.

It was partly the breaks that enabled the Ohioans to leap out in front, but they had the goods to carry on when the chance came. They paraded to their first touchdown after a somewhat puny punt by Steve Toth. They went on to their second touchdown when Toth's kicking toe erred for the second time. The next scoring spree was engineered by the introduction of the flashy, twisting Joe Williams in the second period.

Display Speed, Blocking.

The Ohioans were just about finished, skilled performers at every point barring the distressing minutes when the Purple had them backing up in the second period. The Buckeye backs, faster than their foes, enjoyed better blocking. There was a noticeable edge in the entire Ohio line. And the Wildcats, for some unknown reason, were constantly hampering their own attacking efforts by fumbling the ball. They fumbled seven times, and although six of them were recovered, the errors resulted in losses of yardage.

The Buckeyes' score was reflected in the statistics of the game. Ohio made 20 first downs, 16 from rushing and 4 from passing, against 12 by the Wildcats. Two of the Cats' first downs came from passes, 8 from rushing and 2 from penalties.

Ohio gained 285 yards from rushing to Northwestern's 169. In the air the Bucks were far superior. In attempting 8 passes, 4 were completed for a gain of 95 yards. Northwestern in trying 17 aerials completed 6 and had 1 intercepted for a gain of 57 yards.

The Purple, after getting the ball

BACKWARD PUNT AIDS CALIFORNIA IN 6-0 TRIUMPH

Beats Santa Clara to Preserve Record.

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 19.—(AP)—California remained undefeated today with a 6 to 0 victory over the University of Santa Clara before 50,000.

The touchdown was scored after a peculiar break in the second quarter. Joe Kelley, Santa Clara quarter back, kicked the ball back over his own head on a punt that turned the tide.

Fumble Halts Drive.

From a defending team, in its own territory, California suddenly became the attacker. The backward punt gave the Bears the ball on Santa Clara's 37 yard line. California drove down to Santa Clara's 18 yard line.

Pass Scores Touchdown.

The touchdown drive opened immediately. A four yard plunge was followed by a pass from Floyd Blower to Henry Sparks, at end. Sparks caught the 24 yard throw and ran nine yards for the score. Sparks' kick from placement was wide.

Except for the reverse punt the two elevens battled on even terms. In the closing minutes Santa Clara tried desperately to score but intercepted passes stopped two threats.

WASHINGTON MOVES ON, 21-0.

Pullman, Wash., Oct. 19.—(AP)—The University of Washington continued undefeated in their drive for the Pacific Coast conference championship today, beating Washington State, 21 to 0, before 20,000. It was the first defeat Washington State had suffered on its home field since Babe Hollingbery became coach 10 years ago.

On the first play of the game Byron Haines dashed 70 yards for a touchdown. The Huskies outcharged and outmaneuvered State, which never once opened with a serious threat.

OREGON WINS, 14 TO 0.

Eugene, Ore., Oct. 19.—(AP)—A hard driving University of Oregon football team defeated a fast, tricky University of Idaho eleven, 14 to 0, in a Pacific Coast conference game today before 6,000. Half Back Braddock made both touchdowns.

Oregon scored early in the second period after a drive late in the first quarter carried it close to the goal line. Pepper's kick for extra point was good.

Oregon's second touchdown came in the fourth period. A pass, King to Riordan, was good for 10 yards, and two plays later Braddock raced around left end to score. Pepper again kicked the extra point.

Millikin Beats Wesleyan on Aerials, 13-7

Decatur, Ill., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—James Millikin university football team turned two passes into touchdowns this afternoon to defeat Illinois Wesleyan, 13 to 7, before a homecoming crowd of 3,000. It was the second straight conference victory for last year's Little Nineteen co-champions and spoiled Wesleyan's conference debut. The victory also broke a two year streak of scoreless ties between the two rivals.

Millikin scored midway in the first period when Giraitis took a lateral from Rochkes and threw a 35 yard pass to Dixon, who had shifted to the end position. Dixon stepped out of bounds as he caught the ball on the two yard line, but Rochkes plunged over on the third down. Giraitis' 20 yard pass over the goal line to Allan in the third period accounted for Millikin's second touchdown.

A desperate passing attack carried Wesleyan to its fourth quarter touchdown. The final aerial, a 20 yard toss from Benson to Hawkins, brought the touchdown after a 60 yard march.

Millikin, playing without the services of its two regular tackles and left half back, outpointed Wesleyan in first downs, 10 to 4.

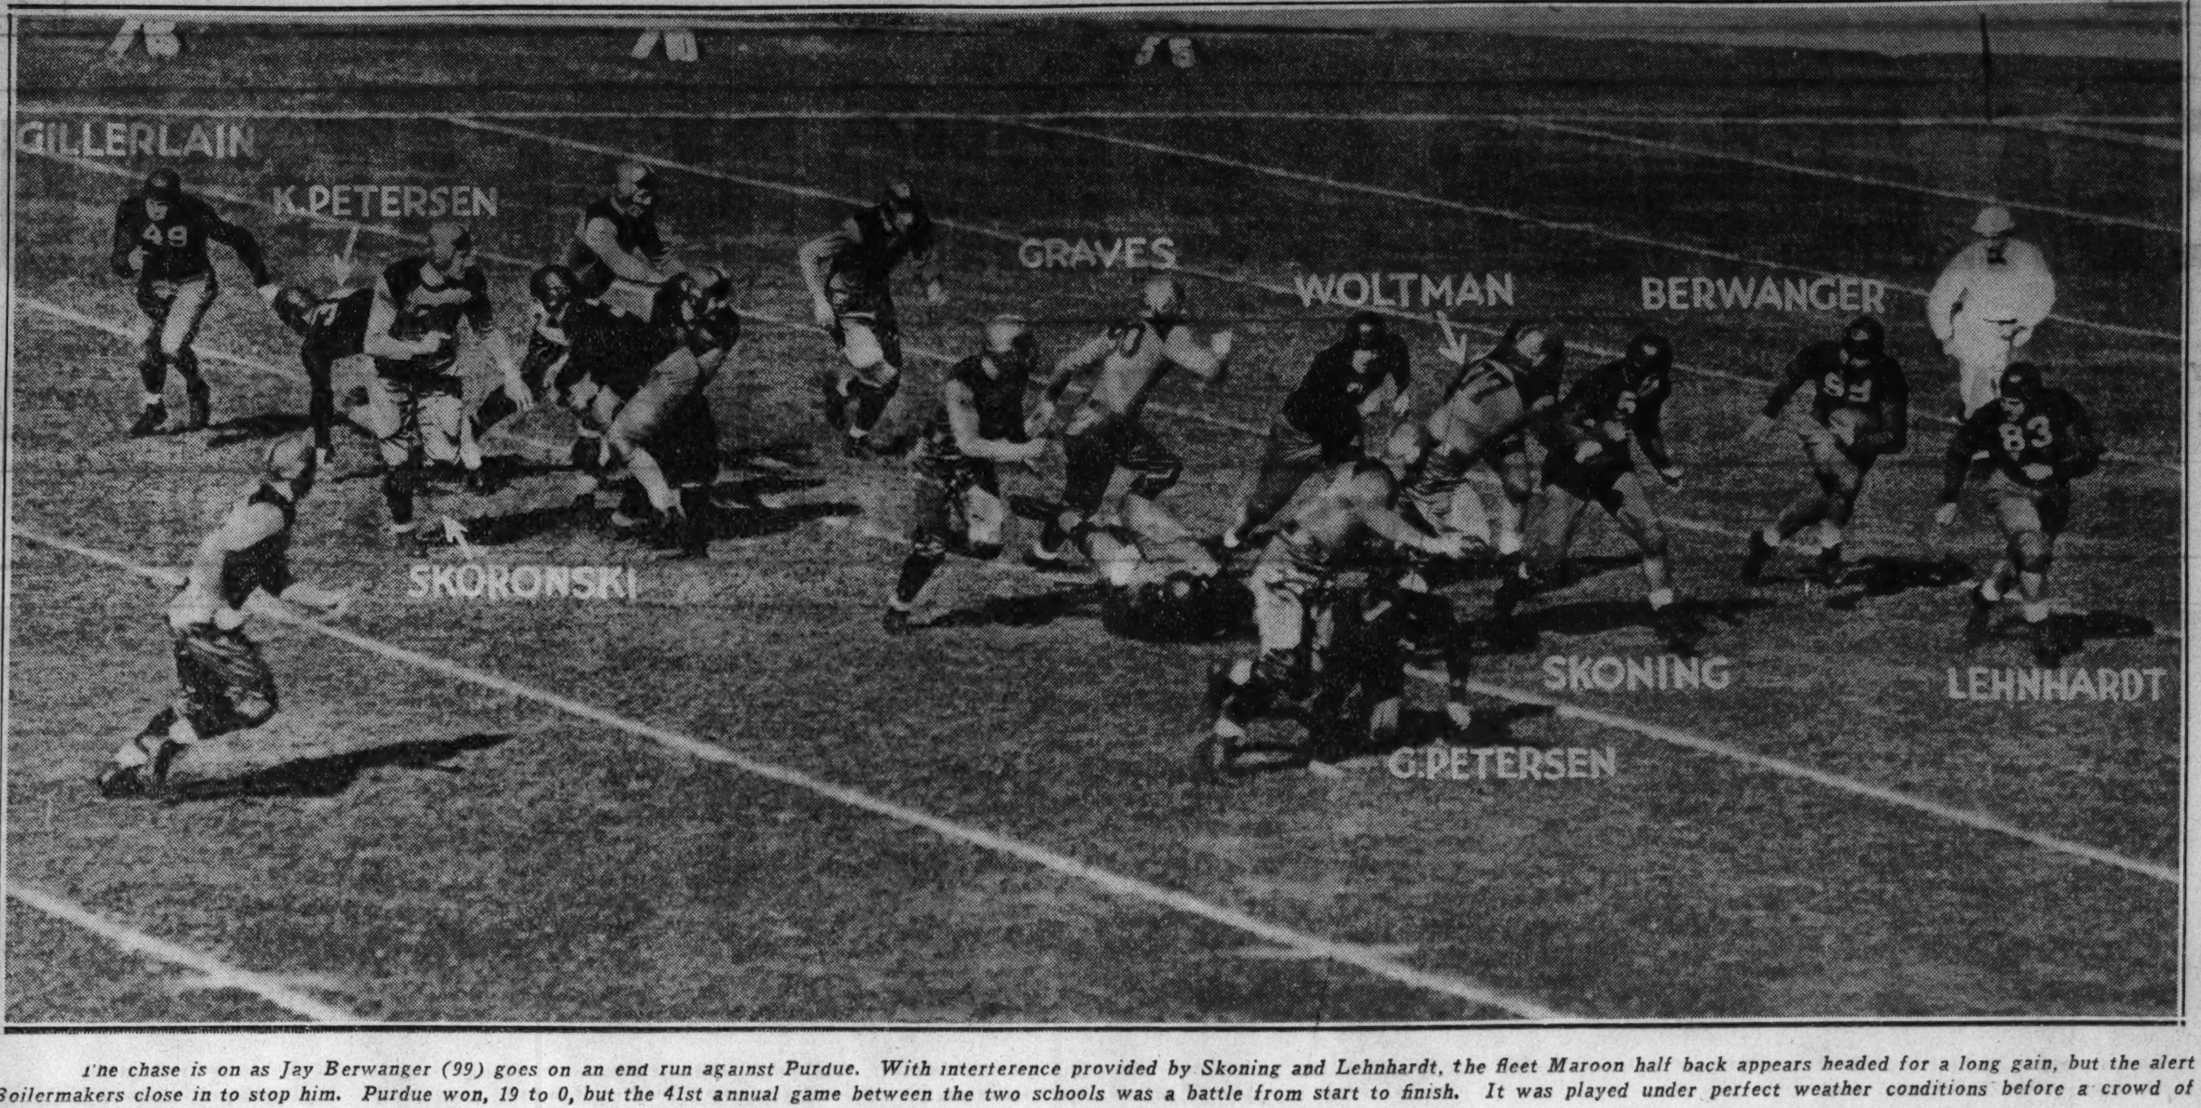
Dudas Gets Decision Over Terry Mitchell

New York, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Steve Dudas, 198, Edgewater, N. J., tonight outpointed Terry Mitchell, 186½, New York, in the feature ten round bout at Ridgewood Grove, Brooklyn. Dudas piled up points in the early rounds to offset the late round rallies of Mitchell. Red Burman, Baltimore, Md., scored a technical knockout over Tony Celli of Worcester, Mass., in the third round, in the semi-final.

IT'S A BATTLE WHEN BOILERMAKERS AND MAROONS GET TOGETHER



The chase is on as Jay Berwanger (99) goes on an end run against Purdue. With interference provided by Skoning and Lehnhardt, the fleet Maroon half back appears headed for a long gain, but the alert Boilermakers close in to stop him. Purdue won, 19 to 0, but the 41st annual game between the two schools was a battle from start to finish. It was played under perfect weather conditions before a crowd of 25,000 at Stagg field.

Kansas State and Nebraska Battle to Tie

Manhattan, Kas., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Kansas State, defending Big Six football champion, and Nebraska, the preseason favorite, played a scoreless tie today.

Two great goal line stands by a Nebraska line which faltered in midfield, were all that saved the Cornhuskers who never were inside Kansas State's 30 yard line.

Kansas State followers among the homecoming crowd of 16,200 screamed as Barney Hays, an end, took a 22 yard pass from Quarter Back Leo Ayers and was downed on Nebraska's three yard line midway in the third quarter.

Four Smashes Fail.

A penalty gave Kansas State half the needed distance. Then the Husker secondary pulled in behind its aroused line to help stop Maurice [Red] Elder, 190 pound full back. On fourth down Elder lateralled to Warren, who tossed it wide to Ayers, but McGinnis was waiting and nailed Ayers on the three yard line.

Kansas State, with Ted Warren, Elder, and Leo Ayers as chief ball carriers, took the ball to Nebraska's goal line again early in the fourth period. The line swarmed through to toss Lanoue and Cardwell for four and six yard losses, and when Howell tried a pass Elder leaped high to take it and sprint 16 yards to Nebraska's 42 yard line. Warren flipped a wide lateral to Ayers, who finally was cornered on the six yard line.

Kick Goes Awry.

After three attempts at the line, Warren tried a placement from an angle on the 14 yard line, but it was wide and low. From then on the cautious elevens played it out in midfield.

OKLAHOMA, 16; IOWA STATE, 0.

Norman, Okla., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Capt. Biff Jones' University of Oklahoma football team made its debut in the Big Six conference today with a powerful ground game and defeated Iowa State, 16 to 0.

Oklahoma gained 328 yards rushing to the visitors' 37. Oklahoma had only a 3-0 lead at the half, but punched and drove to a touchdown in each of the last two periods.

Manchester Blocks Punt to Beat Franklin, 7 to 6

North Manchester, Ind., Oct. 19.—[U. P.]—A blocked punt in the fourth period enabled Manchester to beat Franklin, 7 to 6, in an Indiana conference football game here today. McCarty scored Franklin's first points of the season when he went over for a touchdown in the second period. Allman, tackle, blocked a Franklin punt on the latter's seven yard line, and Capt. Herb Banet plunged over for a touchdown in two tries. He added the extra point.

St. Viator Eleven Beats Southern Teachers, 20-7

Kankakee, Ill., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—St. Viator college defeated Southern Teachers of Carbondale here tonight, 20 to 7. Fifteen hundred saw the game, which was the annual Viator homecoming contest. All of the scoring was done in the first half. The ball was in possession of Carbondale on Viator's 1 yard line as the game ended.

Morton and South Side Juniors Play 12 to 12 Tie

Noble Kizer watches his Purdue football team in another winning performance against Chicago. Apparently he saw nothing to displease him as the Boilermakers ran up their 19 to 0 triumph.

Weaver was a guard on the Tavares team when it played Ocoee High school nine days ago. His injuries sent him to the Leesburg hospital, where pneumonia developed.

Purdue Whips Chicago, 19-0; 'Cripples' Set Winning Pace

after it had secured a 13 to 0 advantage in the first half.

Boilermakers Are Too Good.

To this observer, Purdue strength, rather than pronounced Maroon weakness, was responsible for the workmanlike and conclusive victory.

Despite pre-game tales of the infirmities of Purdue's Cecil Isbell from Texas and John Drake from Chicago, those young men were the healthiest cripples ever to race over Stagg field, taking part so long as their services were needed. At the end Purdue had second stringers in gaining experience.

Purdue won the toss, Chicago then electing to receive the kickoff. Jay Berwanger received the kickoff of Capt. Skoronski, one time Chicago prep star, carrying it back 25 yards. Several exchanges of punts followed without imminence of touchdowns for either side.

Although the Maroons were holding their own, there was that indescribable something which left the impression that sooner or later Purdue would capitalize on its power. This status lasted until the middle of the second period, when Purdue received a Maroon punt at its own 40 yard mark. Charles Wright, Cripple Drake, and Tom McGannon earned a first down at Chicago's 42 yard mark. The same trio advanced in three attempts to Chicago's 28. Nearly all these gains were line thrusts.

Maroons Are Set Back.

Then Cripple Drake, in two limps, landed at Chicago's 13. The Maroons were penalized five yards for offside and McGannon was stopped two yards from Chicago's goal line. On the next play Drake crashed through the line to count standing up. Wendell Sandefur place-kicked the extra point.

Chicago's biggest threat of the day followed. Berwanger ran back the kickoff for twenty-five yards to the Maroons' 37 yard line. Berwanger then completed a long pass to G. Petersen far down the field. It was close to the side line and in avoiding Purdue's safety man, Petersen went out of bounds by inches at Purdue's 28 yard line with an otherwise open field before him. Lehnhardt added five through the line and a pass grounded. McGannon then recovered Berwanger's fumble to end the threat.

The Big Parade Stars.

Purdue counted again thirty seconds before the half ended with a drive from its own 19 yard line. Cripples Isbell and Drake bore the stretcher most of the route, carrying instead of being carried. The last 30 yards were made on two passes, one to Stalcup and the second to McGannon in the end zone. Isbell's attempt for the extra point failed.

Chicago never threatened seriously in the second half. Purdue's final touchdown came with six minutes to play in the final period. McGannon intercepted a pass at Chicago's 40 yard line. Decker and McGannon alternately carried to Chicago's 8 yard line without losing the ball. Decker picked up five yards through the line and on third down McGannon passed to Powell in the end zone. Dailey's place-kick was good but Purdue was penalized fifteen yards for holding. Dailey's pass was knocked down by Fitzgerald, making the score Purdue, 19; Chicago, 0. The game ended with the ball in the Maroons' possession on Purdue's 45 yard line.

First downs—Purdue, 20; Chicago, 7.
Yards from scrimmage—Purdue, 269; Chicago, 72.
Passes—Purdue completed five of ten attempted with none intercepted for 65 yards. Chicago completed eight of twenty-four attempted with two intercepted for 97 yards.
Total yardage—Purdue, 334; Chicago, 169.
Punts—Purdue, 9 for an average of 37.2 yards; Chicago, 10 for an average of 37.1 yards.
Penalties imposed—Purdue, four for 40 yards; Chicago, four for 20 yards.

TEXAS BREAKS CENTENARY JINX TO WIN, 19 TO 13

Austin, Tex., Oct. 19.—[U.P.]—The University of Texas broke a long standing jinx held over it by Centenary today by coming from behind to hand the Louisianians their first defeat of the year, 19 to 13, before 8,000 spectators.

Texas, however, almost fumbled away the game, eight miscues providing Centenary with her first touchdown and ending one Longhorn drive on the five yard line. Half back Neal Crowther led the Centenary offense. He scored early in the first period after recovering a Texas fumble on the 14 yard line. Again in the third quarter Crowther crashed through for a touchdown from the three yard stripe.

Texas made two touchdowns on passes and one by rushing. In the second period, a 23 yard pass to Quarter Back Johnny Morrow netted six points. In the third quarter, Half Back Morris Sands passed 18 yards to Jack Collins, Texas end, for a touchdown.

Texas' last score came in the fourth when Bill Pitzer, full back crashed over from the one yard line.

OREGON STATE'S PASSES DEFEAT TROJANS, 13 TO 7

Thompson Saves U. S. C. from Shutout.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 19.—Breaking a tie which had endured through 1933 and 1934, Oregon State scored two touchdowns in the second period against a faltering Southern California team today and won by 13 to 7 before 45,000.

Southern California came back viciously in the final quarter behind the smart quarter backing and ball carrying of Glenn Thompson, a 190 pound sophomore. Thompson had been held on the sidelines with an injury for two weeks, but was forced into the game when the only other U. S. C. quarter back, Nick Pappas, was hurt.

Thompson Goes Over.

Taking the ball on his own 45 yard line, Thompson carried it six times and threw a five yard pass to Rodeen, a substitute end, to score a touchdown. Max Belko kicked the extra point. Thompson's abilty to pierce the Oregon line which had turned back prior thrusts, rallied the Trojans and the big black haired ranch foreman's son from Oceanside, Cal., was given laudable assistance in his steady gains off tackle and around end.

With 5 minutes remaining in the fourth quarter, Thompson began another march good for 57 yards, but was turned back by inches on Oregon State's 12 yard line. Thompson carried the ball 7 times, aided by one 5 yard offside penalty and Full Back Cliff Propst's 20 yard run around the Oregon State college right end on a spinner when the defense massed against Thompson.

State Takes to Air.

Oregon State won by exploiting U. S. C.'s weakness on pass defense in the first half. It took to the air for the bulk of its yardage leading up to two touchdowns in the second quarter. On the last play of the first quarter a reverse and a lateral, Swanson to Full Back Valley, advanced it from Oregon's 41 yard line to U. S. C.'s 31. Half Back Bob Mountain passed to Swanson on the Trojans' 17 yard line, and then on seven line bucks, five by Valley, aided by one 5 yard offside penalty, Valley bucked over for a touchdown. Mountain failed to kick the extra point.

Toward the end of the second quarter, U. S. C. was compelled to punt from its own 2 foot line where Mountain's kick rolled out of bounds. Mountain returned Cameron's punt 17 yards to Southern California's 28 yard line. One five yard penalty against U. S. C. and a 24 yard pass, Mountain to Casserly, who took the ball in the end zone, scored a touchdown. Swanson made the extra point.

U. S. C. Stops Thrusts.

Southern California held for downs on the 1 yard line in the third quarter and on the 5 yard line in the first quarter. Oregon State made 12 first downs to U. S. C.'s eleven. Oregon completed 4 of 6 passes, 3 of which figured in touchdowns. Southern California completed nine out of 19. Oregon intercepted four.

BEARS OPEN AT HOME AGAINST DODGERS TODAY

Unbeaten Cardinals Play Pirates in East.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

The itinerant Bears, homeless wanderers of the National league for the last four weeks, open Chicago's pro season today with a house warming at Wrigley field. A new temporary stand, running the full length of the gridiron, has been erected along the east sideline, from which vantage point fans will get a close up view of Brooklyn's Dodgers, who furnish the opposition for the former champions.

Schedule makers and the world's series prevented the Bears and their city cousins, the league leading Cardinals, from playing in Chicago up until today, but recent developments have made this afternoon's debut worth waiting for. Both contestants have proved themselves formidable opponents.

Homecoming for Schissler.

This is a new Brooklyn team. It has a new coach, Paul Schissler, to whom today's game also will be in the nature of a home coming. Schissler spent two years at Wrigley field coaching the Cardinals. A few accomplished veterans and several new stars have provided Schissler with the material for a strong club and he has made the most of the opportunity.

The Bears, too, may be called a new club, inasmuch as it has done a complete about face in the last 10 days. Long hours of drill for the All-Star game several weeks in advance of the regular season took a heavy toll from the former league champions, but during the last ten days they have regained the spirit and perfection which carried them through their schedule undefeated last year.

Bronko Nagurski will not be present and Beattie Feathers may play only a short while. But the Bears have become reconciled to the loss of Nagurski, an arthritis victim, and new men have dispelled the apprehension that might be expected to envelop a team accustomed to having the help of the league's champion ground gainer.

Ronzani Becomes Full Back.

The absence of Nagurski, which has made it necessary to switch Gene Ronzani from half back to full back as Jack Mander's relief, and an injury to Feathers gives Reds Pollock and George Grosvenor, two freshmen, an opportunity to start. Chicago saw Pollock briefly in the All-Star game. Grosvenor will be making his debut before a Chicago crowd.

These two men are considered among the best of the newcomers in the league, a group which included such highly touted stars as Bill Shepherd of All-Star fame, who is with Boston, and Stan Kostka, the Minnesota battering ram, a member of the Brooklyn team. Pollock is a triple threat half back, who starred at full back for Penn Military college last year. Grosvenor, a spindle legged, bald headed lightweight, is a kicker and one of the best running backs on the Bear squad.

Brooklyn has played the Bears seven times since it entered the league in 1929, and the best it has been able to do is tie one game, the first, in which neither team scored. It got its only touchdown of the series against the Bears last year, but that team, like its predecessors, did not possess the finesse, power, and sped credited to this year's Dodgers.

Brooklyn Proves Itself.

The Bears are the favorites. Their advantage, however, is not sufficient to make certain any advance predictions. Brooklyn has proved itself able to give the league's best a tussle and capable of winning with a break or two. Two breaks presented themselves in the Detroit game and the Dodgers hopped on them like starving wayfarers. The result was a 12 to 10 victory over the powerful Lions.

Brooklyn's revival is in step with the general trend toward greater strength throughout the league, a wholesale fortification which has led the prediction by leading coaches that the winners in the eastern and western divisions will be beaten at least twice. The Dodgers and Bears have been beaten, the Bears once, in their first game, and the Dodgers twice. Boston conquered them, 7 to 3, and the Giants won 10 to 7, when Ken Strong made a personal issue of the game last week.

The only unbeaten team in the league is the Chicago Cardinals, who make their first eastern appearance today at Pittsburgh. The Cardinals have beaten the Green Bay Packers twice and tied the Detroit Lions. They expect to get their offense going today against the Pirates. Injuries and two weeks of inactivity between league engagements thus far have prevented the Cardinals from reaching their offensive peak. If they survive today's game without serious injury, they will be in better condition for their New York debut against the Giants next Sunday than they have been for any previous encounter.

The probable lineup:

BEARS.		BROOKLYN.

Central Normal Eleven Beats St. Joseph's, 19-6

Danville, Ind., Oct. 19.—[U. P.]—Central Normal rallied in the last half to win its first Indiana conference victory of the season here today, defeating St. Joseph's, 19 to 6. A lateral pass, Johnson to Hatton, accounted for St. Joseph's touchdown in the first period. Albright scored two touchdowns and Wallace one in Central Normal's winning drive.

YOU'LL BE SEEING THESE BEARS IN ACTION TODAY

Bill Karr, one of the league's best all-around ends, is in his third year with the Bears.

Gene Ronzani, veteran Bear half back, has been made over into a full back to replace the injured Bronko Nagurski and has been playing well at the post.

Cincinnati Is Victor Over Indiana, 7-0

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 19.—(AP)—A rugged defense that beat off five Indiana goal line thrusts in the last half and the long distance punting of London Gant, colored back, gave the University of Cincinnati Bearcats a 7 to 0 victory over the Big Ten eleven from Bloomington today.

Outgained from the scrimmage line in the last half, the Bearcats five times were backed up against their goal line by a fast Indiana offense. As many times the Cincinnati line and secondary smothered the best that Indiana could offer.

Gant accounted for the only score of the contest in the second quarter when he pulled down a twenty yard pass from Linus Haby, Cincinnati quarter back, on the Indiana 18 yard line, shook off two tacklers and crossed the goal line standing up. Fred Yeager, blocking back, place kicked for the extra point.

Indiana's running attack netted 203 yards and their passes sixty-four. Cincinnati was held to twenty-eight yards by rushing and fifty-six by passes.

Indiana made thirteen first downs and Cincinnati two, both on passes.

MANHATTAN TIES HOLY CROSS, 13-13, IN LAST PERIOD

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—A Manhattan football team which refused to concede defeat wiped out a two-touchdown deficit in a desperate late period drive to gain a 13 to 13 tie with Holy Cross at Ebbets field yesterday.

Fifteen thousand spectators roared their acclaim as Jim [Junior] Whalen, Manhattan quarter back, picked a Holy Cross punt out of the air and raced eighty yards for the tying score in the waning minutes of the game. Shortly before this Dick Tuckey had put Manhattan back in the running by plunging over for a touchdown at the end of a 37 yard march.

Holy Cross, which entered the contest undefeated, untied and unscored on, had scored in the first period on a dash of 64 yards by Walter Janiak, and again in the third quarter on a short lateral from Vin Dougherty to Len Kuziora.

LOUISIANA STATE HANDS ARKANSAS 13 TO 6 DEFEAT

Shreveport, La., Oct. 19.—[U. P.]—Louisiana State university, the late Senator Huey Long's pride, handed the University of Arkansas a 13 to 6 defeat today.

In the second period Crass kicked to Martin, who returned the ball to the Arkansas 15 yard line. L. S. U. then began the drive which ended with Crass going over for State's first touchdown. He converted. Arkansas retaliated with an aerial attack, a pass, Robbins to Poole to Keene, accounting for the Arkansas touchdown.

Mihalich, L. S. U. substitute left tackle, recovered an Arkansas fumble on the Arkansas 30 yard line in the third period and Rohm, on a reverse, twisted his way off left tackle for Louisiana State's second touchdown.

Denver Attacks in Last Half to Beat Utah State

Denver, Colo., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Ray Johnson led Denver university to a 13 to 7 victory over Utah State today in a Rocky Mountain conference game. Johnson raced to two touchdowns in the last two quarters after Kent Ryan, the Aggies' all-conference half back, broke a first half scoreless deadlock by pounding 28 yards around left end for a touchdown shortly after the second half started.

North Central Eleven Beats Eureka, 6-0

North Central defeated Eureka college at Naperville yesterday, 6 to 0, to maintain a clear record in Little 19 competition. Mike Adler scored on a two yard plunge midway in the second quarter after runs by Heilman and Spiegler had put the ball in scoring position.

Jim Breen played a standout game at tackle, for North Central and co-Capt. Dittman, playing his first game of the season, gained consistently off tackle and around the ends. Eureka fumbled four times and North Central recovered all of them.

Notre Dame Rallies to Beat Pittsburgh, 9-6, Before 51,000

smashed the line, gained nine yards. A surprise forward was barely knocked down, and then Arnold Greene passed for a first down on Notre Dame's 48 yard line. Time out. Seventeen seconds remained, so the loud speakers bellowed. Still the shrieking crowd waited without movement.

Rally Is Stopped.

Another pass fell incomplete. Then, in a last desperate play, Randour threw down field, but Solari, racing backward, intercepted the ball as the timer's pistol ended the game. Notre Dame had broken Pitt's mastery.

Let's cut back to the first half and review the 30 minute fight which ended in 6 to 6 deadlock and might easily have found the Panthers leading except for Patrick's inaccuracy in place kicking from Notre Dame's 14 yard line. As later events proved, this kick would have tied, and might have beaten Notre Dame.

In that first half Pittsburgh drove through Notre Dame for six of its eight first downs. Midway in the first quarter, a test of fundamental football, Pitt shook Randour loose. From his own 19 yard line, on second down, the fleet half back raced outside of Notre Dame's left end, cut sharply down field and protected by a rapidly formed wave of interference, swept along the east side line.

Fromhart Gets Fancy.

He seemed on his way to score, but Fromhart, retreating cautiously, warding off blockers with his arms, slowed Randour in a pocket near the side line. He faked a thrust and finally his dilatory tactics gave Fred Carideo opportunity to close in from the rear to drop Randour on Notre Dame's 18 yard line.

"Hold that line!" boomed the Notre Dame fans, and the Irish held. Three times La Rue and Patrick smashed and the ball rested 14 yards from the goal, in mid-field. Patrick, the only man to play 60 minutes in the Pitt backfield, was nominated to kick. But his drive soared high and to the left of the posts.

Bill Shakespeare of Notre Dame, kicked out. But the ball, partly blocked by Glassford, fell short and was recovered on Notre Dame's 48 yard line. From here the Panthers advanced to a touchdown, a march of 12 plays involving four first downs.

Patrick Goes Over.

Pitt's second choice backs, except for the tireless Patrick, functioned perfectly. A nine yard forward pass put the ball on Notre Dame's two yard line and from here, on second down, Patrick smashed straight ahead for the score. Patrick's kick for the point was blocked by Wayne Millner, but Pitt led, 6 to 0.

Notre Dame received the kickoff. A penalty for holding on this play shoved the Irish back to their seven yard line. It was here that Shakespeare saved the day. From behind the goal line he kicked far down the field. The ball, helped by the favoring wind, soared over Shedlosky's head and dropped on Pitt's 10 yard line, from which point Shedlosky returned it to his 20 yard line.

Arnold Greene came in to kick for the Panthers. His high spiralling punt dropped on Pitt's 45 and shot back to the 21 yard line. Here was Notre Dame's opportunity. And the Irish seized it.

If Shakespeare had hobbled Pitt by his punt, it was Fred Carideo who now assumed the hero rôle and set up the scoring opportunity. After a fumble, which cost four precious yards, Carideo hammered center for a first down on Pitt's 10 yard line. Twice more he crashed at the middle of Pitt's line and the ball rested only four yards from the goal.

Now Shakespeare took command. He dashed at the Panther left tackle, struck a pile of tangled foemen, sidestepped, driving with short steps, and then shot unmolested through a narrow breach to race untouched into the end zone.

Fromhart tried for the point which would have given Notre Dame the lead. But Fromhart, looking up, stepped forward to dig a divot in the sod and the ball dribbled along the ground. There is no escaping the fact that Coach Elmer Layden, by his substitutions, was important in the battle on the gridiron. Throughout the first half, the starting Notre Dame team played without substitution and after the intermission the same eleven was on the field.

Rest for Weary.

Then, in the third quarter, after Pitt repeatedly had sent in replacements, Layden made his first move. A second team warmed up, and to the accompaniment of thundering cheers, reported to the umpire. This second team, while not overpowering Pitt as Layden might have wished, and even losing the ball by a costly fumble in Pitt's territory, at least gave the varsity opportunity to rest. And when the first choice men came back, they surged on to established an opportunity for Marty Peters to kick the winning points.

The struggle was fought in Pitt territory throughout the closing minutes. Andy Pilney, by his returns, helped neutralize Pitt's long distance kicking. Moreover, Notre Dame's line was stronger as each minute passed. When Notre Dame's varsity came back, it was a fourth down kick by Shakespeare which rocked the Panthers back to their 15 yard line.

From this point, the regulars surged through, and with aid of an offside penalty, had John Wood, a substitute, kicking from deep in his end zone. When Wood got the ball out, Fromhart carried it back 18 yards to give the Irish possession and a first down 34 yards from the goal.

Peters Goes to Work.

Shakespeare and Carideo smashed into the line and with the ball on Pitt's 19 yard strip, Marty Peters stepped back to the 26 yard line and kicked the winning field goal.

Notre Dame accomplished five first downs to Pitt's eight. But the Panthers only made distance twice in the second half. Five Notre Dame passes, not counting a shovel pass behind the line which was nullified by penalty, showed four failures and one completion for 11 yards.

Pitt tried 10 passes, completed two for 16 yards and failed seven times with one interception, the last play of the game.

The battle was decided by fundamentals of football. Intricate formations and trick passes were absent. But in this test, Notre Dame, first held Pitt, and then mastered the foe which had run up three consecutive victories.

GOPHERS WHIP TULANE, 20-0; LOSE SEIDEL

Captain Suffers Broken Collar Bone.

ball to the 1 foot line, where he was halted by Capt. Seidel of the Gophers with sad results. Examination after the game revealed Seidel's collarbone had been cracked as he made the tackle that gave his team a shutout. Physicians said tonight that because the break was a clean one Seidel may be able to play again before the season is over.

The southerners lost little time in getting themselves in a slough of despond. The opening kickoff by Minnesota went into the end zone and as soon as the ball was put into play on the 20 yard line Mintz fumbled a pass from center and lost 14 yards on the error. The Tulane captain then punted to his own 48 yard line and Minnesota promptly launched its previously announced early bird campaign.

Babe Le Voir ran his left end for 27 yards and George Roscoe and Sheldon Beise collaborated in three plays for first down on Tulane's 5 yard line. Beise made a yard on one plunge, then went over for the first scoring of the day. Le Voir added the point from placement.

Block Kick for Score.

The second touchdown came on a blocked punt after a flurry which had enabled Tulane to carry the ball to the center of the field. Mintz' punt was blocked by Bud Wilkinson, who picked up the ball and ran 43 yards for a touchdown. Le Voir again added the point from placement.

A drive in which the work of Roscoe and LeVoir featured brought the first quarter to an end as a pass, Roscoe to LeVoir, put the ball on Tulane's 12 yard line. On the first play of the second quarter, Whitman Rork made first down on Tulane's eight yard line, after which he added three. Clarence Thompson and LeVoir each made a yard, then, on fourth down, Thompson leaped through his right tackle for the final touchdown. LeVoir failed to add the point.

Gophers Get Tough.

Prior to the drive to the one foot line in which Seidel was injured, Tulane's farthest davance had been to the 27 yard line late in the second quarter. The fourth quarter scoring threat of the southerners became serious when a short pass, Mintz to Schneidau, gave Tulane a first down on Minnesota's 17 yard line. Mintz then ran his left end to the one foot line. Minnesota thereafter promptly smothered Tulane. John Andrews lost two yards and Doug Johnson lost two more. Two passes were incomplete and Minnesota took the ball on the five yard line. Andy Uram punted out and that was that.

The punting was perhaps the best feature of the game from the purely technical point of view. Minnesota averaged 50 yards and Tulane 48, which is, of course, swell booting. Other statistics of the game follow:

First downs: Minnesota, 10; Tulane, 9. By rushing—Minnesota, 9; Tulane, 5. By passing—Minnesota, none; Tulane, 2. By penalty—Minnesota, 1; Tulane, 2. Passes attempted: Minnesota, 4; Tulane, 13. Completed—Minnesota, none; Tulane, 4. Intercepted—Minnesota, 1; Tulane, 3. Yards on passes—Minnesota, none; Tulane, 54. Net gain by rushes—Minnesota, 192; Tulane, 2. Penalties—Minnesota, 75; Tulane, 5.

DePauw Eleven Defeats Ball State Teachers, 14-7

Greencastle, Ind., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—DePauw university won its homecoming football game this afternoon by defeating Ball State Teachers college of Muncie, 14-7. DePauw scored first in the second quarter, Schilling getting away for an eighty yard run. DePauw scored again in the third period when Frees, substitute half back, carried the ball over. Kinnally kicked both extra points. Ball State's touchdown did not come until the closing minutes, Haven carrying the ball across and Nelson passing to Feasel for the extra point. A crowd of 4,000 alumni, dads and students saw the game.

Wilberforce Is Beaten, 3-0, by Tuskegee

A field goal from the 25 yard line in the third quarter by Simms, right half back, gave Tuskegee institute of Alabama a 3 to 0 victory over Wilberforce of Ohio in the seventh annual football meeting of the two colored schools at Soldiers' field yesterday. Four thousand saw the game.

Jack Hart, former Chicago high school star, led the Southerners' attack with frequent dashes through the line and around the ends. It was his 18 yard run that placed the ball in position for Simms' game winning field goal.

Aside from the scoring, Wilberforce had a marked advantage on offense, rolling up nine first downs to five and completing six forward passes. Poor generalship probably cost the Ohioans a chance to tie the score early in the second half. A succession of passes and line thrusts had carried the ball to Tuskegee's 17 yard line, where it was first down, but quarter back Moberly elected to use line plays instead of trying for a goal from the field and the chance vanished when Tuskegee took the ball on downs.

Moberly, despite his one tactical error, was the outstanding figure for both sides, expecially in returning punts, at which he averaged 20 yards. Lineup:

FORDHAM SCORES 13 TO 7 VICTORY OVER VANDERBILT

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Fordham, showing signs of recovery after its defeat at the hands of Purdue last week, overcame a strong Vanderbilt team by the count of 13 to 7 today, to register its first major triumph of the season.

The Rams packed all their scoring into the first period, and from that point on devoted themselves mostly to keeping the Commodores from penetrating New York territory. They succeeded admirably with their plan until the final quarter, when the visitors from Nashville plowed their way through for one touchdown and came close to scoring another before the whistle ended the threat.

KRUEGER BEATS SARAZEN IN PRO TOURNEY, 2 AND 1

Laffoon Defeats Loos on 21st Hole.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—They told Gene Sarazen that Alvin [Butch] Krueger is a right smart bowler of baseballs when he isn't playing golf, but they forgot to tell the little bronze battler that Butch used to be a tidy hand at basketball, too.

Nobody was really aware of the versatile Krueger's court talents this morning until he hurdled a stymie with his niblick to beat Sarazen, 2 and 1, in the outstanding upset of the second round of the National Professional championship at the Twin Hills Golf club. It was a shot to warm the heart of any basketball loving Hoosier, for it didn't touch the rim of the hole as it fell into the cup with a convincing plop!

Laffoon Wins on 21st.

There were other snug contests in this second round of the professional world series today. Four of them went to the eighteenth hole before the losers gave up, and one, involving those two neighbors of Chicago's north shore, Ky Laffoon of Northmoor and Eddie Loos of Lake Shore, was prolonged to the twenty-first hole, the farthest distance reached in this party to date, before the veteran Eddie, who doesn't go in much for tournament play, was beaten by young Laffoon.

As close as some of these were, there were others far more comfortable to the victor. One of these saw the defending champion, poised Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., take a 3 and 2 decision from big Mortie Dutra of Detroit, 3 and 2.

Play 36 Holes Today.

In the third round tomorrow, which will see the first of the 36 hole matches that make the P. G. A. the most wearing tournament in golf, Runyan will meet the dapper Tony Manero of Greensboro, N. C., who fought his way to a 1 up victory over Clarence Doser of Rochester, N. Y., today. With sixteen of the original 64 qualifiers left, the boys are beginning to take notice of the little guy from New York who won the title last year. He's in a rough enough bracket, for it includes Krueger, Johnny Revolta, Milwaukee's western open champion, and four dark horses—placid Levi Lynch of Houston, Tex.; towheaded Al Zimmerman of Portland, Ore.; little Pat Circelli from Tarrytown, N. Y., and a husky German lad from Troy, N. Y., Eddie Schultz by name.

The upper bracket offers considerably more interest, certainly to Chicagoans. One match will see the angular Horton Smith of Oak Park go against Denny Shute of Westward-Ho. The latter, British open champion in 1933, who has already been a finalist and semi-finalist in the P. G. A., has been going along as quietly as Runyan thus far. Today he shot a shy 32, three under par, against the unwitting Henry Bontempo of Springfield, Mass., and went on from there to win, 3 and 2.

Smith Beats Mangrum.

In the meantime Smith was having a tense duel with Ray Mangrum of Oakmont, Pa., another of those tall boys who don't have to look up to Horton when speaking to him.

In the same bracket with these four will be Sam Parks Jr. of Pittsburgh, the National open champion, who has been staging a personal wrangle with the Twin Hills yard for three days.

Sam qualified at 149, six strokes back of the medalist, Walter Hagen. Then he put out Harry Cooper, 1 up, in yesterday's first round. Today he ran into the home town hope, Francis Scheider, and won again, 1 up. Tomorrow he will meet Al Watrous, the genial Detroit veteran who eliminated Sarazen in the second round last year. Watrous had a day's work in putting out Harold Sampson of Burlingame, Cal., today, 2 and 1.

Thomson vs. Dudley.

Another promising bout in the third round will bring together Jimmy Thomson of Ridgewood, N. J., the blond bomber himself, as the newspapers say, and Ed Dudley of Philadelphia. Jim ran away from Old Jock Collins of Mansfield, O., 6 and 4, while Dudley was having much more exercise in putting out Dick Metz of Chicago, 3 and 1.

The Sarazen-Krueger match, seventh of sixteen to go out today, brought out the largest morning gallery of the week, one which grew to 4,000 by the time they left the tenth tee. They had come up to the ninth all even, and the 11th saw Krueger go one up there. Sarazen evened it at the next hole, but Butch took the 14th and 15th with handsome golf, while the little Italian was struggling to stay on the fairways.

That two up lead was sufficient to save Krueger from one of the typical Sarazen finishes. All Butch needed to shut out the three time winner of this crown was that noble niblic on the 17th, just when it appeared that Gene would win the hole and prolong the match to the finishing hole.

Krueger Is Versatile.

Krueger, the 29 year old Beloit redhead, who is competing in his first P. G. A. tournament is probably one of the most talented athletes in the country. He has averaged three games a week pitching for the Madison Blues, and has a basketball record which made him considerable money on the professional side. He has been a golf professional only a little more than three years, but it didn't take him long to make himself known, for he is now one of the ablest of the younger pros.

Par—Out	444	354	344—35
Par—In	434	434	544—35—70
Krueger—Out	444	344	334—33
Sarazen—Out	444	264	244—34
Kruger—In	434	444	54
Sarazen—In	453	456	54

Kruger wins, 2 and 1.

In his match with Loos, Laffoon reached the turn with an assuring lead of 2 up, but Loos came back to go 1 up by winning the thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth with pars.

A 6 on the 580 yard sixteenth cost him that, and Laffoon went 1 up when he dropped a fifteen footer on the seventeenth. Ky's chip shot to the eighteenth was forty feet short of the pin, while Eddie, over the green with his second, came back to five feet and holed the putt to square the match.

Match Ends on Twenty-first.

Laffoon missed a five footer with a chance to win the nineteenth, but sank one to halve the twentieth. Loos was short of the twenty-first hole and lost the match by failing to drop a six footer.

Laffoon—out	453	354	345—36
Loos—out	554	354	354—38
Laffoon—in	335	545	535—38—74
Loos—in	335	434	644—36—74
Laffoon—out	444
Loos—out	445

Laffoon, wins, 1 up, 21 holes.

Pairings for tomorrow's 36 hole third round follows:

CREIGHTON AND DRAKE BATTLE TO 6-6 DEADLOCK

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Creighton and Drake battled to a 6 to 6 tie in a Missouri Valley conference game today before 11,000.

Both touchdowns were scored on spectacular runs in the third quarter.

Creighton got its touchdown on a 75 yard return of an intercepted pass, with Floyd [Moose] Nelson, substitute tackle, cast in the hero's rôle. Nelson intercepted Myron Ubl's pass on Creighton's 25 yard line, darted toward the sidelines and ran to midfield where, as he was about to be tackled, he pitched a lateral pass to Fred Borak, Creighton end, who raced down the sidelines for the touchdown.

Matthew Bokmueller was sent in to make the try for point but his place kick was blocked.

Drake cashed in on a poor Creighton punt to make its touchdown a few minutes later. Drake's scoring came after they gained possession on the Creighton 25 yard line and Ubl, a Minnesota transfer, tossed a perfect pass to Charles Orebauch, half back, who ran over the goal line. Ubl's placekick was wide.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN WINS, 19-14, FROM TEXAS A. AND M.

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Texas Christian university Frogs won their second 1935 southwest conference football game today by defeating Texas A. & M., 19 to 14.

The Christians scored their points the first two periods, and the Aggies scored in the third and fourth periods. A crowd of 15,000 saw the game.

Both teams engaged in terrific line pounding that sent player after player from the field with injuries.

BLOOMINGTON WINS, 21-0.

Lincoln, Ill., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—A powerful Bloomington high school football eleven defeated Lincoln High, 21 to 0, today.

Michigan's First Half Pass Attack Beats Wisconsin, 20-12

Then Renner started passing. His first shot went directly into the waiting arms of Smithers and it was first down on the Badgers' 32 yard line. Again Renner aimed a shot at Smithers. This, too, was ready to fall into waiting Wolverine arms. Mortell of the Badgers could not knock down the pass, but he could interfere with Smithers. He did just that and the pass was allowed. Thus Michigan still had the ball and it was on Wisconsin's 9 yard line.

The Wolverines were on their way. There was no doubt about that. Renner again took the ball. He saw Smithers standing just back of the Wisconsin goal line. He was so far away from the bewildered Badgers he actually appeared lonesome. He heaved the ball directly at Smithers' chin. The latter caught it and the first Wolverine touchdown went down in the score book. Viergiever placekicked for the extra point.

Another Pass, Another Touchdown.

Four minutes after he had tossed the first scoring pass Renner cut down the Badgers again. The ball was on the Wisconsin 12 yard line. Sweet, the Michigan full back, lateral passed to Renner. The latter drew back his trusty right arm and, like a shot from a cannon, the ball traveled on and hit Mike Savage in the chest. He put a half-nelson on it and dropped to the ground for the Wolverines' second touchdown. There was no score after touchdown this time, as Viergiever's place kick was blocked by Lovshin.

The Badger forces were retreating in disorder by this time. Still Michigan was not able to push them around sufficiently to score again until the second quarter had reached the half way mark. Then Renner shook the masterpiece of the afternoon out of his artistic fingers.

The Wolverines had backed the Badgers to the Wisconsin 25 yard line on an exchange of punts and another one of those Renner to Smithers passes.

Wilson Scores for Badgers.

Again Renner tossed the ball far down the field. He was back on the 35 yard line when he let it go. It sailed 30 yards down the field before it dropped into the outstretched arms of Everhardus. The latter, far away from all Badger defense men, trotted five yards untouched for a touchdown. Everhardus' place kick for the extra point was good on this occasion. Michigan was leading 20 to 0.

The Badgers made their first great threat toward the end of the third quarter. Tommerson, the Wisconsin right half back, and Johnny Wilson, the other half back, were balls of fire all through the early part of the period.

Finally a pass, Tommerson to Wilson, had put the ball on Michigan's ten yard line. An instant later Wilson passed to Bob Null on an end around play. This was good for seven yards and the ball was on the Wolverines' three yard line. A pass failed. On second down Wilson went around his own right end for a touchdown. Jankowski's kick for the extra point was low.

Takes Pass, Runs 60 Yards to Score.

The field judge had his gun cocked and primed and was ready to pull the trigger when the Badgers slammed over the final score of the game. It was a thriller and accounted for 92 yards of ground. Tommerson heaved a pass that almost put Renner's great football tossing to shame. It traveled 32 yards and Wilson caught it while in full stride. He raced on down the field 60 yards to a touchdown. The score was 20 to 12 in Michigan's favor when Wilson's kick failed.

The statistics showed that Wisconsin made 14 first downs to nine for Michigan.

The Badgers, taking to the air more than at any time during the last decade, completed 16 of 33 attempted passes for 281 yards. Thirteen of the aerials were incomplete.

Michigan completed six of nine attempted passes for 86 yards, the longest being a 25 yard toss by Bill Renner to Everhardus.

In running plays, Wisconsin gained 61 yards on 36 attempts and Michigan had 87 yards on 40 tries.

The total yardage gained was 342 yards for Wisconsin and 173 for Michigan.

Knox Held to 6-6 Deadlock by Lawrence

Galesburg, Ill., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Knox and Lawrence colleges, both undefeated this year, played to a 6 to 6 tie today before a homecoming crowd.

Knox scored in the opening quarter when George Ritchie raced around end for 15 yards. The two teams had been exchanging punts, with little gain on either side, until Osen's high kick went for only twenty yards. A seven yard pass from Ritchie to Stewart, plus a five yard penalty against Lawrence for offside, advanced the ball. Stevenson's attempted place kick was blocked.

Lawrence threatened in the second period, advancing to the five yard line on an accurate passing attack, but Knox took the ball on downs.

The visitors alternated line plunges and passes in the third and fourth periods, Holzwart scoring on a twenty yard pass from Leech as the final quarter opened. The ball bounced off three Knox players' hands and into Holzwart's and he plunged over the goal line. Straubel's attempt to place kick for the extra point was low.

MONMOUTH, 40; BRADLEY, 0.

Monmouth, Ill., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Monmouth crushed Bradley in their opening Little Nineteen game, 40 to 0, today. Tommy Wheland led the Monmouth attack by scoring four touchdowns and making two points after touchdown. Other scores were by Simonds, Monmouth center, who intercepted a Bradley pass on his own 10 yard line early in the third quarter, to run untouched across the Bradley goal line. Reed, Monmouth end, took a pass over the goal line early in the second quarter to score.

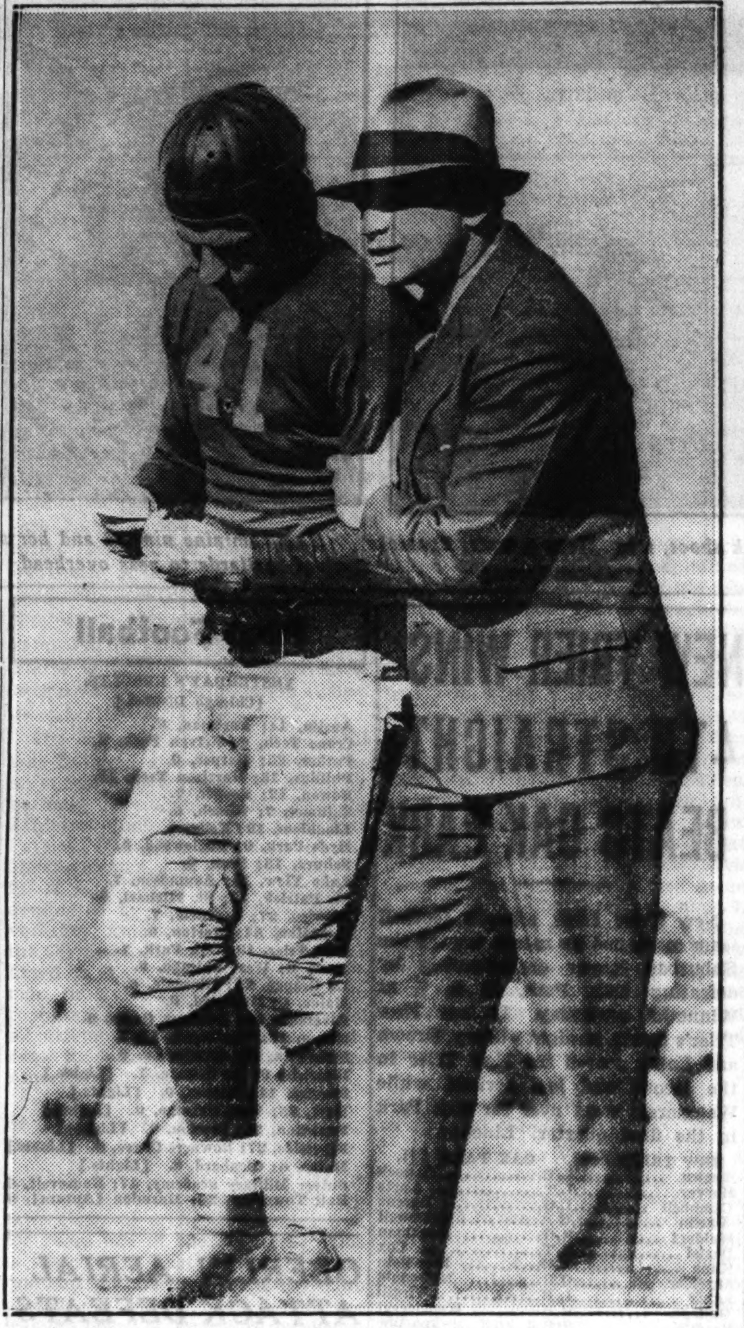
McKENDREE, 20; MACOMB, 0.

Macomb, Ill., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—McKendree, paced by Spike Wilson, unleashed a hard driving, deceptive attack to defeat Macomb, 20 to 0, before the latters' homecoming crowd today. It was Macomb's second homecoming defeat in nine years.

Wilson climaxed a 44 yard drive midway in the first quarter with a fifteen yard gallop around end for a touchdown. Rauth kicked the point.

The second touchdown came in the third period when Wilson tossed a lateral pass to Strecker, who went over behind good interference.

The final touchdown came with only three minutes to play when a sixty yard drive was topped off by Wilson's 25 yard sprint to the two yard line, from where Strecker went over again. Wilson kicked the extra point.



"We're going great. Go in there and keep up the good work," Coach Harry Kipke of Michigan tells Schuman as he sends him into yesterday's game with Wisconsin.

Ohio Turns on Power Early to Crush Northwestern, 28-7

at the start when Ohio fumbled, put on a big moment. Cruice went galloping around his own left end for 22 yards to Ohio's 27 yard line. It proved only a flash. The Wildcats played out their string of downs but were pushed back in each attempt and Ohio finally took the ball on its own 34 yard line. The Buckeyes promptly turned loose a quick kick by Boucher, which came to rest on the latter's 14 yard line.

Ohio's First Touchdown.

Then came the break that the Ohioans hurriedly converted into their first touchdown. Toth was forced to punt and the kick, a poor one, rolled out of bounds on Northwestern's 40 yard mark. Dye, trying to sprint around his right end, was forced to retreat and finally sailed a long pass down the field. Boucher caught it and was flattened on the Purple's 22 yard mark.

Boucher followed with a sprint around his left end for 15 yards, Swisher knocking him out of bounds. On the next play, the fourth since Toth's erring punt, Heekin charged through between the Purple's left end and tackle for a touchdown. Beltz place kicked for the extra point.

Ohio's second touchdown, close on the heels of the first, also had its start with another poor punt by Toth out of bounds on the Purple's 40 yard line. Beltz smashed the tackles for 9 yards in two plays. Kabealo bucked center for first down on the Wildcats' 30 yard line. Dye drifted back to toss a pass, but Tangora broke through and nailed him for a 13 yard loss. After a 5 yard tackle thrust by Beltz, Dye, standing on the 50 yard mark, shot a long pass to Boucher, who sprinted down the sideline to the goal. Beltz's kick made it 14 to 0.

Williams Charges Over.

Right after the second touchdown the squirming Williams was introduced. In his first effort as a ball lugger he breezed around his right end for 23 yards, putting the ball on Northwestern's 47 yard mark as the first period ended. Williams paced off 5 more as the second quarter opened. Bettridge traveled wide around his left end for a first down on the Purple's 35 yard mark. Then Williams did his stuff again. He popped out of a big opening in the left side of Wildcats' line and was running by himself as he crossed the goal line. Busich's kick added the 21st point.

The Purple suddenly snapped into action after about three minutes of the second period had been played. They marched to Ohio's 4 yard line and lost the ball on downs.

Boucher punted to Toth, who ran the ball back to Ohio's 25 yard line to start another drive, this one proving a success. Duvall smashed the line for 5 yards. Heap whistled a pass to Kovatch for first down on the Buckeyes' 3 yard line. Duvall smashed at tackle for a yard and at center for another. Cruice fumbled, but recovered on the 3 yard line. Heap was stopped in a thrust at the line, but in the next play he took a lateral from Duvall and went around Ohio's left end for a touchdown. Duvall's toe picked up the extra point.

Shortly after the start of the fourth period Ohio suddenly burst forth with a dazzling attack. Wasylik, back to throw a pass, found himself surrounded so he reversed his field and sprinted over Northwestern's left end for a first down on the Cats' 42 yard mark. Boucher, after some tricky passing, sprinted around the Purple's right end for another first down on the 25 yard line.

On a fake pass Antenucci tore through tackle for 8 yards. Williams, brought back into action because the situation suited his particular style, squirmed through his right tackle for a first down on the 13 yard mark. Pincura, the ailing first string quarter back who had just come into the struggle, then passed to Antenucci, who strolled over the goal line without being molested. Busich's kick raised Ohio's total to 28.

Albany College of Oregon Loses Its 28th Straight

Ashland, Ore., Oct. 19.—[U.P.]—The Albany Pirates, representing a small Presbyterian college in a town of 5,000, today became national consecutive defeat record holders.

It was the 28th straight loss today when Southern Oregon Normal defeated the Pirates, 14 to 0. Thus Albany shoved the eastern claimants, Hobart and Knox colleges right out of the picture.

"Oh well, you can't win 'em all," commented Coach Joey Mack after today's defeat.

Albany has not won a game since defeating Linfield, 7 to 0, Thanksgiving day, 1931. The record is not entirely credited to Mack. Coach Slim Balcom is accredited for one of the four victoryless years.

England Soccer Eleven Turns Back Scotland, 3-1

BELFAST, Ireland, Oct. 19.—(AP)—England defeated Ireland, 3-1, in an international soccer football match today.

ALABAMA SCORES 25 TO 0 VICTORY OVER TENNESSEE

Powerful Running Attack and Passes Crush Vols.

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Alabama's football team rolled over Tennessee today, crushing the Volunteers 25 to 0 in a Southeastern conference game witnessed by 18,000 fans.

The teams played on even terms for about seven minutes. Then Alabama marched to Tennessee's 21 yard line on a 19 yard pass from Stapp to Bryant. A forward-lateral, Stapp to Bryant to Smith, gained 15 yards, and Smith scored on a quarter back sneak through the center of the line.

Passes Advance Ball.

Later Riley tossed a 14 yard pass to Jimmy Walker and came right back with another heave for 15 yards to Bryant. Riley then sprinted around end for a touchdown.

The Crimson eleven drove to its third touchdown with Rhordanz racing 21 yards off tackle, seven through the center and 11 around end to place the ball on the two yard line. On the next play he plowed across the goal line.

Alabama marched 45 yards for its last touchdown, featured by a 15 yard run by Rhordanz and an 18 yard pass, Riley to Hillman Walker, that carried deep into Tennessee territory. Smith, on another quarter back sneak, scored from the two yard line and added the extra point from placement.

AUBURN BEATS KENTUCKY.

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Auburn scored a 23 to 0 victory over Kentucky today in a Southeastern conference game.

Auburn scored in every period, alternating touchdowns with a field goal in the second quarter from the toe of Haygood Paterson, tackle.

GEORGIA TECH, 6; DUKE, 0.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Georgia Tech defeated Duke today, 6 to 0.

Duke, recovering a Tech fumble in the second period, got within 20 yards of the Tech goal but never afterward reached closer.

GEORGIA WINS, 13 TO 0.

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Georgia of the Southeastern conference scored twice over North Carolina State college here today to win, 13 to 0, and continue its record of being unbeaten and untied this year.

OLE MISS BEATS FLORIDA.

University, Miss., Oct. 19.—(AP)—A powerful Ole Miss eleven met its first serious Southeastern conference test today but defeated the University of Florida 'Gators, 27 to 6, strengthening its early season bid for conference honors. Ole Miss held Florida in check until the final quarter when the 'Gators scored their only touchdown.

AUSTIN, 14; FOREMAN, 6.

Austin defeated Foreman, 14 to 6, at Mills stadium. The victory enabled Austin to tie Farragut for second place in the west division each with two victories, one tie and one defeat.

HYDE PARK, 0; ENGLEWOOD, 0.

Hyde Park and Englewood, traditional central division rivals, battled to a scoreless tie in the 45th meeting between the schools at Normal park. Don Page of Hyde Park played his last game. He will be ineligible for further prep competition because of the age limit. Englewood threatened to score in the fourth quarter when it reached the Hyde Park 4 yard line, but Hyde Park held.

PHILLIPS, HARRISON TIE.

Harrison Tech dropped to third place in the central section when it was held to a 13 to 13 tie by Phillips at Normal park. The deadlock sent Phillips into second place.

CATHOLIC U. USES PASSES TO BEAT DETROIT, 13 TO 7

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 19.—(AP)—A fifty-nine yard forward-lateral pass in the fourth period gave Catholic university of Washington a 13 to 7 victory over the University of Detroit here today. Fifteen thousand spectators saw the bitterly fought game.

Catholic U. took to the air for all its points, coming from behind to win in the final minutes. Detroit also had to take to the air, scoring early in the fourth period.

It was Lutz's 16 yard return of Foley's kick which started Detroit on its way to the first touchdown in the final period. Payne skirted end to the Cardinal 9 yard line, from where Jones passed to Payne for the touchdown. Shada kicked the extra point. Then Carroll twisted his way 43 yards with the kickoff, giving Catholic the ball on Detroit's 38 yard line. On the first play Adamaitis flipped a pass which Mulligan took with a great catch and continued on 8 yards to score. Mulligan missed the try for point.

Then Adamaitis went into action again. Two aerials worked the ball to the Catholic 41 yard line, from where Adamaitis rifled a long overhead to Mulligan. Tackled at the 12 yard line, Mulligan lateraled a short toss to Schmarr, who scored unmolested. Mulligan converted.

A DUCK HUNTER'S DAY IN THE MARSHES AND BLINDS

CENTRAL STATES DUCK SEASON TO OPEN TOMORROW

BY BOB BECKER.

At 7 o'clock tomorrow morning the 1935 duck season [doubtless going down in history as the one noted for more conservation, lawsuits and arguments than any in several decades] officially opens in Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, South Dakota and other states in the northern group. If the season produces just a small percentage of ducks compared to the host of arguments about it and the number of regulations governing it, sportsmen everywhere will have no cause for complaint.

Ever since last summer waterfowl hunters in every corner of the United States have talked ducks and argued about duck laws day after day. In spite of the fact that waterfowl hunters this year have to pay $1 for a duck stamp in addition to the state license, must leave all live decoys at home, can't shoot over baited area, must not start hunting any day until seven o'clock has struck, and then quit at 4 in the afternoon, can kill only ten ducks [or 15 mudhens] a day and never have more than ten ducks in their possession, cannot shoot 100 feet beyond the shoreline or an area of vegetation, and cannot use a gun holding more than 3 shells, indications are that the shotgun brigade will be in the marshes in full force tomorrow. Regulations are stringent and some even obnoxious, but opening day is opening day just the same!

It's a Short Season.

This year waterfowl hunters must take their sport "on the run." The season is short—just 30 days—opening tomorrow and closing Nov. 19. In southern states the season runs from Nov. 20 to Dec. 19. Not only is the season short but it is also inconvenient for a majority of shooters who in other years figured on a trip of two or three days for a duck hunt. Last season one could take a two day trip and get the most out of it as it was legal to bring home two daily bag limits. This year if you go down the river and kill 10 birds the first day you'll have to "eat" them immediately or otherwise have them disposed of before hunting the second day.

It's Opening Day on Geese, Too.

With the opening of the duck season tomorrow morning hunters again are reminded that it also is the opening day for jacksnipe, mudhens, and wild geese. The sport of wild goose hunting also has felt a tightening of regulations now that one may shoot and have in his possession only four geese.

Louisville Drives 95 Yards to Tie Hanover, 6 to 6

Hanover, Ind., Oct. 19.—[U.P.]—A 95 yard drive in the final quarter enabled Louisville university to score a touchdown and tie Hanover, 6 to 6, today. Lowe went over for the tying score from the two yard line. Hammond scored for Hanover in the second quarter after receiving a 40 yard pass.

STATEVILLE ELEVEN WINS.

Joliet, Ill., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—The Stateville prison team scored its second football victory of the season today, swamping the Gary, Ind., Sportsmen, 25 to 7.

Mount Carmel and Leo Play Today for Division Lead

Leo and Mount Carmel will meet this afternoon at Soldiers' field to decide first place in the east division race in the Chicago Catholic High School league. Proceeds will be given to the educational departments of both schools. The game will start at 2:15 o'clock.

It will be the first of two benefit games scheduled for Leo this season. The city champions next week will oppose St. Philip at the lake front arena in the annual Sisters of Mercy fund game. A crowd of 25,000 is expected to watch the contest.

De Paul vs. St. Rita.

Five other games are scheduled this afternoon. De Paul, which is also in the thick of the battle for first place, will meet St. Rita at De Paul field, Sheffield and Webster avenues.

In the west section St. Mel will seek its third consecutive victory against St. Philip at St. Philip field, Van Buren and Albany streets. St. Philip is tied for fourth place with one victory and one defeat.

Loyola Faces Joliet.

Other contests will bring together Loyola and Joliet at Loyola stadium; St. George and De La Salle at St. George's field in Evanston, and St. Ignatius and Fenwick at Mills stadium.

ST. PATRICK WINS, 19-0.

St. Patrick defeated St. Michael, 19 to 0, yesterday in a west section game in the Catholic league. King, Bennedetto, and Raynor scored for St. Patrick. Lineups:

MARSHALL GIVES OHIO U. A SCARE BUT LOSES, 20-13

Huntington, W. Va., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Marshall college made a gallant last period stand against Ohio university today, but finally lost, 20 to 13. Before a crowd approximating 6,500 the visiting Bobcats piled up three touchdowns in the first half with a powerful drive and a series of deceptive passing plays.

In the fourth quarter, E. Carney, Marshall guard, snared an Ohio pass and raced 73 yards for a touchdown, and a little later Provence intercepted another Bobcat lateral and ran 90 yards. Wilk's try for extra point failed.

Culver Passes, Runs Rout Roosevelt of Chicago, 47-6

Culver, Ind., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Long runs and effective forward and lateral passing featured Culver Military academy's 47 to 6 victory over Roosevelt High, Chicago today. Capt. Boetticher scored four of the touchdowns after long runs. The visitors flashed their only offensive power early in the third quarter and Benzinger plunged over for Roosevelt's six points.

OBERLIN AERIAL ATTACK DEFEATS HAMILTON, 12 TO 6

Clinton, N. Y., Oct. 19—(AP)—Oberlin college of Oberlin, O., defeated Hamilton college on Steuben field here today, 12 to 6, using a tricky aerial attack.

W. Cooper scored Oberlin's first touchdown in the second quarter on a sustained 45 yard drive aided by a 15 yard pass. The try for point was blocked. Harrison scored Oberlin's second touchdown after three tries, but W. Cooper's kick went wild.

In the final quarter Ruhl, Hamilton back, made an 85 yard punt, which was downed on Oberlin's 6 yard line. Cooper then punted to Massoth, Colonials' safety man, on Oberlin's 26 yard line. Massoth passed to Estabrook, substitute end, for Hamilton's lone score, Massoth's kick being blocked.

CERMAK SOCCER TROPHY FINALS CARDED TODAY

BY OFFSIDE.

The soccer finals for the Cermak Memorial trophy, postponed from last spring, will be played today at Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue. The Bohemians will battle the Germans in the second game of the afternoon, while in a preliminary game at 1 o'clock the Scandinavians will meet the British.

All other soccer games in the Chicago district have been postponed. Gate receipts will go to the Illinois State Soccer association and will be used to deferring expenses of that group. A record soccer crowd is expected to attend.

The Scandinavians will oppose a British team that is regarded as weaker than those of other years due to the disbanding of the Wieboldt Wonderbolts. The British team, nevertheless, is well balanced.

The Bohemians have won six victories in the ten Cermak trophy events already played and are favorites for today's match. Most of the Bohemian players are recruited from the Spartas, amateur champions. The Germans will present the strongest team they have mustered in several years. Riebe, German goalkeeper, is considered the best amateur in the central states.

Idaho, Southern Branch, Beats Western State, 13-0

Gunnison, Colo., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Presenting a driving offense with Dellinger, half back, setting the tempo, University of Idaho, southern branch, defeated Western State, 13 to 0, in an interconference game today.

O'MAHONEY AND LITTLE WOLF ARE FOES TOMORROW

Stadium Counts on Mat King to Fill Coffers.

Danno O'Mahoney, successor to Jim Londos as champion heavyweight wrestler of the world, appears to be the only financial winner in boxing or wrestling at the moment, as far as Chicago Stadium officials are concerned, and so tomorrow night he will head the second mat show there within the last few weeks. His opponent will be Chief Little Wolf, Trinidad, Colo.

O'Mahoney made his Stadium debut a success [as it seems all his matches eventually prove to be] by throwing Joe Savoldi with a flying body scissors Sept. 16. A crowd of 7,242 spectators paid $13,666 to see the entertainment, and a substantial profit was realized by all concerned. Then the fall boxing inaugural was held at the huge west side building Oct. 4 and only 2,838 turned out to watch the card headed by a ten rounder involving Alberto Arizmendi, Los Angeles featherweight, and Jimmy Christy. Receipts were $4,732, a sum approximately $2,000 less than that needed to break even.

It's Their Second Match.

So the Irish giant is back here for a struggle with Wolf, which will be their second. O'Mahoney won their previous bout with a flying body scissors after 28 minutes and 23 seconds at Yankee stadium, New York, July 8. Fans numbering 12,000 attended. The match followed Danno's dethronation of Londos at Boston, June 27.

Since his last Chicago start O'Mahoney has kept as busy as usual. He defeated Ray Steele at Minneapolis, Sept. 17; Emil Dusek at Trenton, N. J., Sept. 26; Jim Browning at New York, Sept. 24; Dr. Freddy Myers at Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 20; and Ed [Strangler] Lewis at Boston, Oct. 12. Lewis, weighing 245 pounds, was thrown in 1:04, thus giving the young champion revenge for a setback suffered at London last December. O'Mahoney embarked for this country shortly after and he hasn't done badly for himself since. It is estimated that he has engaged in more than 60 encounters since Jan. 4 when he made his first American appearance, being paid approximately $2,000 for each bout.

He'll Make Battle of It.

Wolf indicated in his first local start at the Stadium Sept. 16 that he will give O'Mahoney a merry time of it before he lies down and plays dead, if he does succumb as per the current custom of Dan's foes thus far.

An added attraction on tomorrow's card will be the unveiling of the bewhiskered Man Mountain Dean, reported to possess wrestling ability despite his 300 pounds of avoirdupois. He will oppose Floyd Marshall, Phoenix, Ariz. In other clashes Jim McMillen will meet Emil Dusek and Olaf Oleson is paired with Ernie Dusek.

Bouts on this week's boxing and wrestling schedule include:

Monday.

At Marigold Gardens—Frank Battaglia vs. Johnny Phagan [10], middleweights; Milt Aron vs. Marty McHale, and Jackie Sherman vs. Tom Habel, each five rounds, all welterweights; Mickey O'Shea vs. Harold Brown, welterweights; and Bobby O'Dowd vs. Duke Calloway, bantamweights, each four rounds; Ernie Peterson vs. Jim Landis [wrestling].

At Venetian hall—Orville Eighmey vs. Charles De Franco [5], and seven other bouts [amateur].

At Coulon club—Robert Wiley vs. Emile Schiarato, and Al Owens vs. Nick Gallotte, and six other bouts [amateur].

Tuesday.

At Midway Arena—George Nelson vs. Jackie Reed [5], welterweights, and other bouts [amateur].

At Boston, Mass.—Freddy Miller, featherweight champion, vs. Vernon Cormier [15], title.

At St. Paul, Minn.—Charley Retzlaff vs. Ford Smith [10], heavyweights.

Wednesday.

At Merry Gardens—Pat Newman vs. Young Lewis, 90 minutes time limit, light heavyweights, and other bouts [wrestling].

At Cincinnati, O.—Art Sykes vs. Nate Bartell, heavyweights.

Friday.

At Chicago Heights—Eight amateur bouts.

ARMY MARCHES TO 13-0 VICTORY OVER HARVARD

Monk Meyer, Fort Sheridan Star, Leads Attack.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 19.—[U.P.]—Harvard never had lost a football game to Army on the plains of West Point until today, but the Crimson also never had encountered little Monk Meyer, son of an army colonel from Fort Sheridan. Ill.

When Meyer, a slim, wiry lad weighing 159 pounds, was through for the day, Army vanquished the invading Crimson eleven, 13 to 0, and had accomplished what the Cadets have been trying to do since the two schools started playing football back in 1895.

Harvard had beaten Army 14 times on its own field, but part of the sting of that long string of Crimson triumphs was wiped out today as Meyer kicked, ran and passed the Cadets to their third straight victory this season.

With a capacity crowd of 27,000 packed into West Point's tiny stadium, Meyer alone gained more ground than the entire Harvard team. He ripped off 83 yards in running plays, and tossed four bull's eye passes which gained sixty yards. His running and passing resulted in both Army touchdowns.

Monk Goes to Work.

After a scoreless period, Meyer came into the game in the second period as a substitute at left half for Jimmy Craig. Army had the ball on its own 36 yard line. The first time Meyer carried the ball, he ripped off 7 yards. Bill Grohs, quarter back, picked up 3 yards, making first down on Army's 46 yard line. Meyer made three, but Ed Grove, right half back, lost the same amount.

Then Meyer sneaked around Harvard's left end for 15 yards. On the next play he passed to Grove for a 7 yard gain. Meyer plunged center for first down on Harvard's 30 yard line. On the next play Meyer rifled a pass to Capt. Bill Shuler, on Harvard's 1 yard line. Grohs plunged over for the touchdown. Goldenberg's attempt at goal was blocked by Capt. Kelly, Harvard end.

Cadets March Again.

Early in the third period Army started its second touchdown drive from its own 30 yard line. Meyer went around Harvard's right end for 24 yards. He picked up another 5, and then tossed a pass to Clint True, substitute full back, for 9 yards. Meyer hit the Harvard line for eight yards in two plunges, and Grohs made first down on the Crimson 20 yard line. Meyer gained three yards at center, and Grohs found the same hole for nine and first down on Harvard's 8 yard line. Then Meyer passed to Ed Grove, loose in the end zone, for the Cadets' second touchdown. Grove kicked goal. Lineup:

Touchdowns—Grohs, Grove.

The Quakers struck in the first period and kept pounding away until their winning margin was established by the end of the third quarter. It was the worst defeat the Lions have suffered since Lou Little became Columbia coach several years ago.

Penn took to the air for its first touchdown, Kurlish scoring. A few minutes later Kurlish went 13 yards to another touchdown. Warwick produced Penn's third score in the third period, and then Elverson counted twice. The lineup:

Touchdowns—Kurlish [2], Warwick, Elverson [2].

Points after touchdowns—Murray [4].

PRINCETON, 29; RUTGERS, 6.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 19.—(AP)—A final quarter rally which produced four touchdowns enabled the Princeton football team to defeat its oldest rival, Rutgers, 29 to 6, today and thereby hold its place as one of the east's undefeated teams.

The Tiger eleven scored on a safety in the first period, but lost the lead when a pass from Moe Grossman to Cuno Bender brought a touchdown for Rutgers shortly after the start of the second half.

Early in the last period Ken Sandbach crossed the goal line. Paul Pauk scored a few minutes later and Jack Irwin finished the rout. He scored twice, going around end from ten yards out for the first and ripping through center for the second.

Ken Sandbach added three extra points.

DARTMOUTH SWAMPS BROWN.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 19.—[(AP)]—Dartmouth's fleet and shifty Indians, still untested despite their mad rush for the national scoring lead, boosted their season's four game total to 186 points today while overwhelming one of the weakest teams in Brown's long history 41-0.

Dartmouth piled up a margin that was exceeded only once in the series, by the 1903 Indians who gained a 62-0 triumph over the Bruins at Manchester, N. H.

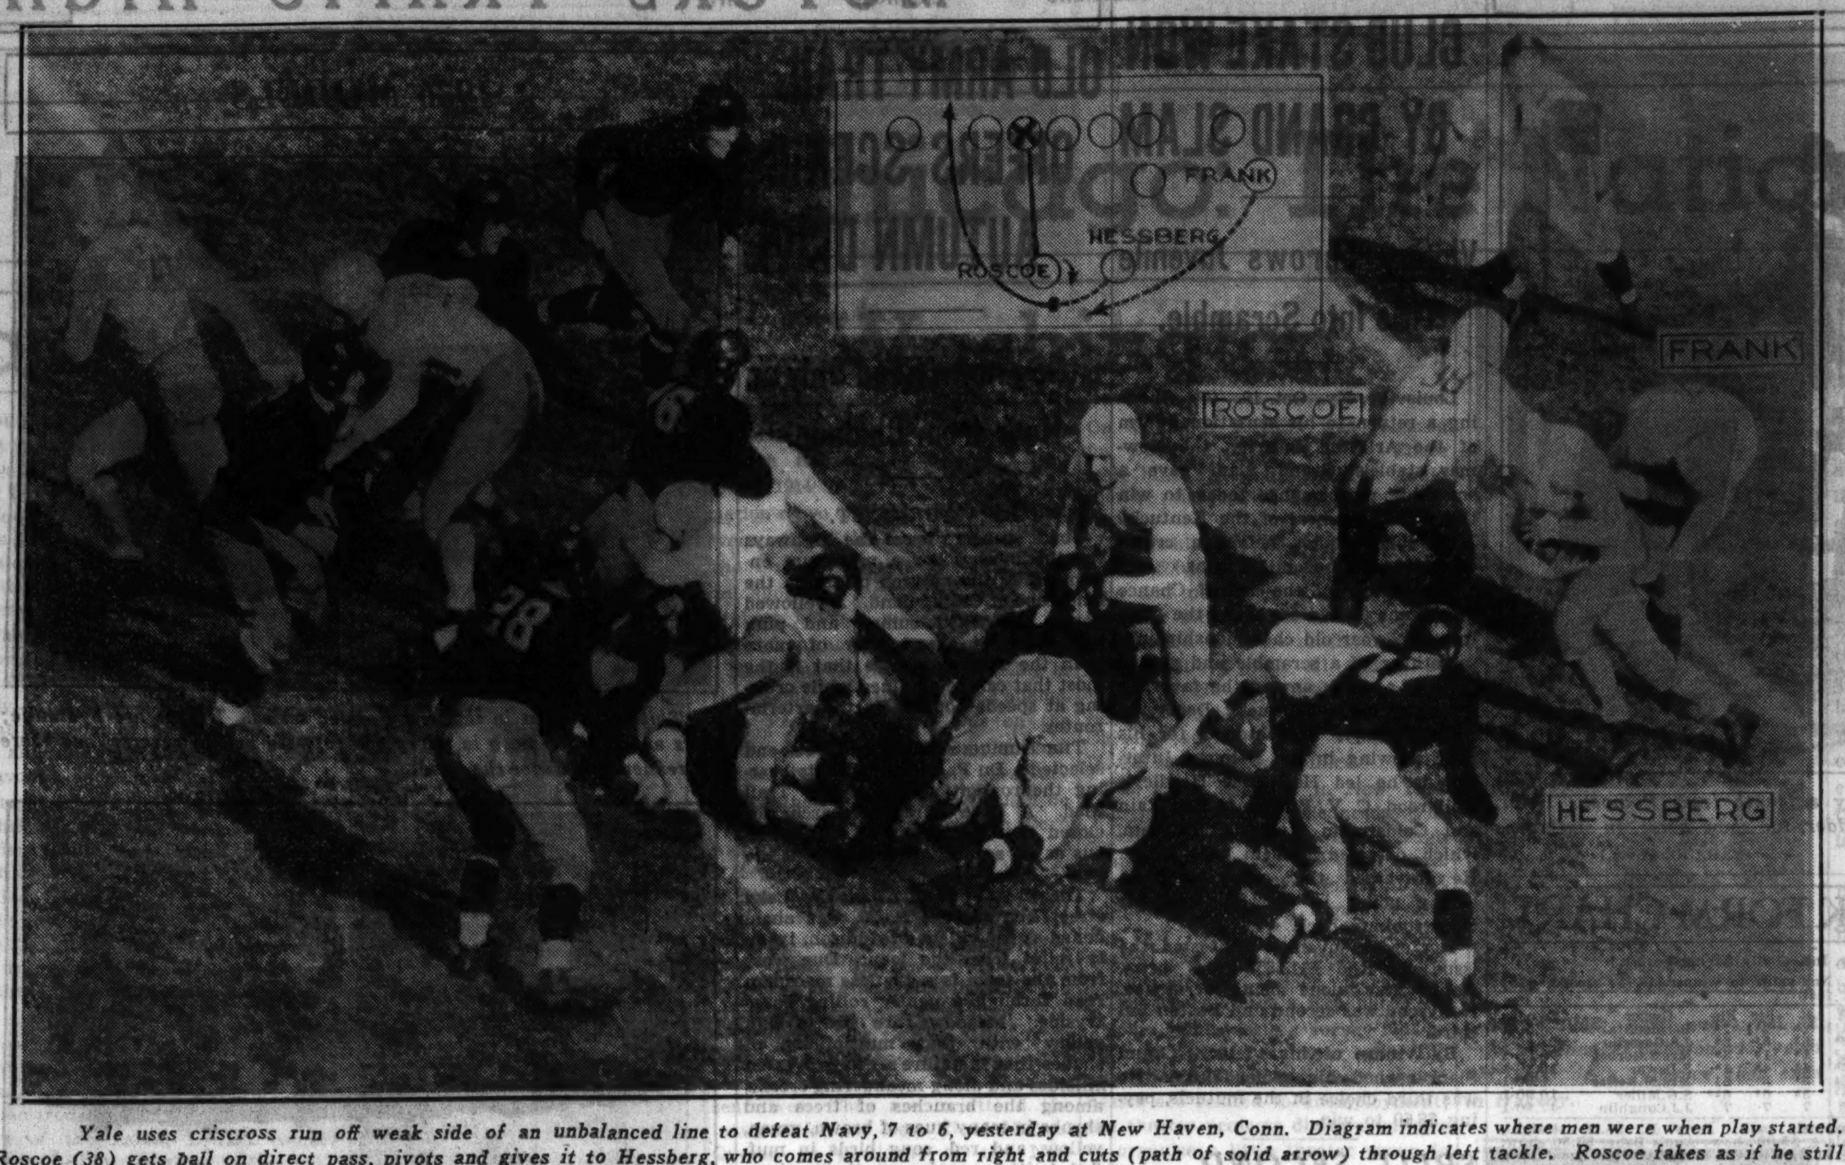
OLD ELI SINKS MIDSHIPMEN IN CLOSE BATTLE



Yale uses criscross run off weak side of an unbalanced line to defeat Navy, 7 to 6, yesterday at New Haven, Conn. Diagram indicates where men were when play started. Roscoe (38) gets ball on direct pass, pivots and gives it to Hessberg, who comes around from right and cuts (path of solid arrow) through left tackle. Roscoe fakes as if he still has ball and pretends to give it to Frank, who comes around from wing back position and can be seen faking at extreme right.

Navy Misses Kick, Loses to Yale, 7-6

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Navy beat Yale today at everything except the ball game. While 60,000 persons, the largest attendance at Yale bowl since the Yale-Army game of 1931, witnessed a see-saw duel that threatened to break wide open any minute, the Middies outrushed, outpassed, and outclassed Yale. But the place kick for extra point of a Yale back sailed between the uprights and that of a sailor struck a post, so Yale won, 7 to 6.

The victory was assured by the toe of Henry A. Gardner Jr., who did nothing else the livelong afternoon. The story would not have worked out this way, the majority of those 60,000 will bet you, but for Yale's 158 pound right half back, Bernie Rankin. Midway in the final quarter, with Yale leading by its single point, Newell Thomas, Navy's left half back, faded behind the line for a pass. A Middie reached the open to receive it almost on the Yale goal line. But Rankin seemingly shooting from nowhere, made a beautiful interception and sprinted back 68 yards before he was dropped on Navy's 23 yard line.

Yale Goes on Defense.

Unable to make first down on three attempts, Yale checked up on the time, and when only seven minutes remained to play, it settled down to an air tight defense which had the Middies stymied on their own end of the field when the struggle ended.

The interference of Bob Train, left end; Tom Wilson, left tackle, and Horace Davis, right guard, were things of beauty and joy to Yale partisans. The Train-Wilson combination began clicking in the first five minutes of play and cut the path for the first touchdown. With the ball on Navy's 48 yard line, Jerry Roscoe, Al Hessberg, and Capt. Kim Whitehead hit the line in turn for first down. Roscoe passed to Whitehead on Navy's 20 yard line. On the next play, Hessberg skirted left end and scored. Gardner came rushing in for his lone chore of the afternoon. He made the score Yale, 7; Navy, 0.

Navy got down to first principles in the third quarter and marched 52 yards for its touchdown. Schmidt crashed the line twice for seven yards and then went through left tackle for 25 yards to Yale's 30 yard line. Pratt and Schmidt then rammed through for another first down, and combined with Case to advance another 10 yards. King went around left end to the three yard line, whence the Middies literally shoved Schmidt over. But with a chance to tie, Irwin Fike bounced the ball off an upright.

Navy Has Edge.

Statistically, Navy gained 165 yards to Yale's 142; completed 3 of 13 passes for 34 yards, against Yale's one out of 8 for a gain of 12 yards.

Penn State Beats Lehigh for Third in Row, 26 to 0

State College, Pa., Oct. 19.—[U. P.]—Penn State won its third straight game of the season today, defeating Lehigh, 26 to 0, before a homecoming crowd of 10,000. The Nittany Lions scored once in the first two periods and added two more touchdowns in the third period. Lehigh had only one scoring opportunity, and that in the fourth period, when they reached State's 5 yard line, but were unable to push across a score.

Opposition to Olympics Stirs Sports Review of Week

With the departure of the first delegation of American athletes to the Olympic games less than three months away, opposition to the United States' participation in the quadrennial games in Germany in 1936 flared up with renewed vigor last week.

While the Olympic speed skating committee was meeting in Chicago last Sunday and picking William Miles Taylor of Bear Mountain, N. Y., as coach of the American skating team, the Jewish War Veterans assembled in Boston and opened their campaign to bring about the United States' withdrawal from the Olympics because of Nazi discrimination against Jewish athletes in Germany.

The action of the Jewish veterans was followed almost immediately by an outburst by Jeremiah T. Mahoney, national president of the Amateur Athletic union, charging that Maj. Patrick J. Walsh, president of the Metropolitan A. A. U., the most powerful A. A. U. group in the country, is dominated by Nazi influences in advocating American participation in the Olympics. Mahoney's charges were based on the fact that Dietrich Wortman, first vice president of the Metropolitan A. A. U., which has opposed all attempts to have America withdraw its teams, is active in German-American affairs.

St. Louis Eagles Hocky Team Bought Out.

When the National Hocky league was organized 18 years ago, the Ottawa club was a charter member and for years one of the strongest clubs in the circuit. Last Tuesday, the last remnant of the old Senators club passed out of existence when the league's board of governors purchased the franchise, players, and all rights of the St. Louis Eagles, successors to the Senators, and cut the league to an eight club circuit. Each of the eight remaining clubs contributed $5,000 to the $40,000 purchase price, the players being divided among all except the Chicago Blackhawks, the partition being based on relative team strength.

In recent years the Ottawa club has been a consistent money loser. It remained out of competition four years ago, returned the following season to experience even larger losses with a weak team. In an effort to salvage something from the wreck the franchise was transferred to St. Louis last year, but St. Louis fans, with their allegiance already won by the American association club, took no more kindly to a losing club than did Ottawa. Hence last week's transaction.

With the St. Louis problem solved the Chicago Blackhawks announced their season's schedule, the opening home game being set for Nov. 7 with the New York Americans. The Hawks began preparations for their 48 game campaign last Sunday at the University of Illinois ice skating rink in Champaign.

Cardinals Maintain Lead in Pro Football.

The Chicago Cardinals maintained their position at the top of the National Professional Football league by defeating the Green Bay Packers for the second time this young season at Milwaukee last Sunday. The score was 3 to 0, the winning points coming on a field goal from the 12 yard line by Paul Pardonner, former Purdue star. The Chicago Bears won easily from the Philadelphia Eagles, 39 to 0, at Philadelphia, Red Pollock scoring three of the Bears' touchdowns. The Detroit Lions beat Boston, 17 to 7, and the New York Giants, league champions, had some difficulty whipping Brooklyn, 10 to 7.

The Giants' road appeared a little easier after Monday when Harry Newman, Michigan's great passing star who won THE TRIBUNE's most valuable player trophy in 1932, signed a New York contract and started practice with the club immediately.

Discovery Runs Third in $25,000 Handicap.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's fleet 4 year old, Discovery, generally accepted as the handicap champion of 1935, ran third in the $25,000 Massachusetts handicap at Suffolk Downs on Wednesday. A. A. Baroni's Top Row, ridden by Jocky George Woolf, won the race, beating Whopper by a neck. Whopper was a nose ahead of Discovery. Top Row set a new track record for the mile and an eighth in 1 minute 49 2-5 seconds, breaking the old mark of 1:51 4-5, set by Discovery.

One possible explanation for Discovery's defeat was the fact that Jocky Frank Mann, astride Stand Pat, pulled Discovery's saddle cloth as the two horses ran neck and neck at the three-eighths pole. Mann drew a 30 day suspension for his act.

British Expert Ranks Helen Moody No. 1.

In the world of tennis the annual rankings made by A. Wallis Myers, British expert, are regarded much as were the all-American teams chosen by the late Walter Camp in the realm of football. Last week Myers announced his 1935 ratings with Helen Wills Moody once again ranked as the No. 1 woman tennis player of the world. Fred Perry, Britain's great star, was given the No. 1 spot among men tennis players. Followed in order, Jack Crawford, Australia; Baron Gottfried von Cramm, Germany; Wilmer Allison, United States; H. W. [Bunny] Austin, England; Donald Budge, United States; Francis X. Shields, United States; Vivian McGrath, Australia; Christian Boussus, France; Sidney B. Wood Jr., United States.

Paul Runyan Captures Louisville Open.

Golfers last week were on the trail of the last big prizes of the regular season before turning to the even richer plums of the winter league in California and Florida.

Paul Runyan won the first prize in the $5,000 Louisville open tournament on Sunday with a 72 hole total of 293 and then moved to Oklahoma City to defend his P. G. A. title in the national professional tournament which opened on Thursday. Walter Hagen displayed some of his old time wizardry in winning this medal in the qualifying round with a 36 hole score of 139.

The next day the 42 year old Detroit veteran was matched with Johnny Revolta, a 24 year old star from Milwaukee. Revolta promptly eliminated him in the first round of match play, 1 up. Runyan won his first round match, beating Louis Chiapetta of Jackson Shores, Mich., 5 and 3.

SO. METHODIST BEATS RICE IN LAST PERIOD, 10-0

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 19.—(AP)—A dazzling Southern Methodist team defeated Rice institute here today, 10 to 0, before 26,000. Rice didn't get past the Methodist 33 yard line.

Through the first three periods the Mustangs threatened. In the fourth they broke loose. Bobby Wilson wiggled around the ends to put the ball on Rice's 16 yard line and then Maurice Orr backed up to the 23 yard line and kicked a field goal.

Bob Finley and Wilson, five minutes later, had carried deep into Owl territory and Wilson finally got around left end seven yards for the touchdown. Orr kicked the extra point.

Meyer, Semi-Pro Umpire, to Be Buried Tomorrow

Funeral rites for Michael Meyer, umpire of semi-professional baseball games for 30 years, will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow in the chapel at 4138 West North avenue, with burial in Elmwood cemetery. Meyer, who was 68 years old and lived at 1745 North Lawndale avenue, collapsed and died Friday night. Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Ida Meyer, and three sons.

Michigan State Is Beaten by Boston, 18-6

Newton, Mass., Oct. 19.—[U. P.]—Boston college knocked the highly touted Michigan State eleven out of the list of the nation's undefeated football teams here today, driving to an 18 to 6 victory before a crowd of 18,000.

Michigan State capitalized on a break for a touchdown in the first few minutes when Boston college fumbled and lost the kickoff on the 28 yard line. The Spartans rushed to the four yard stripe and on fourth down Agett passed to Zarza over the goal line for state's touchdown.

Boston Ties Score.

Later in the first period Michigan State's interference on a long forward pass gave Boston college a first down on the Spartan 13 yard line. A short pass and a thrust off left tackle by Ed Driscoll, gave Boston a touchdown which tied the score.

Paul Flaherty, rangy half back, featured Boston's second scoring attack, plugging through from the 10 yard line. Keough, a center, intercepted a Michigan State forward on the Michigan State 16 yard line to pave the way for the final Boston score. On three rushes Guinea carried to State's one foot line, from where Dinatale plunged to a touchdown.

Though Michigan State rolled up 22 first downs against Boston College's 6, the home team repeatedly stopped the visitors offense in threatening territory.

TEMPLE BEATS CARNEGIE.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Dave Smukler led Temple university to a 13 to 0 victory over Carnegie Tech at Pitt stadium today. A demonstration of typical Warner wizardry scored the first touchdown in the second quarter. With the ball on Carnegie's 12 yard line, fourth down and ten yards to go, Danidson led what looked like a wide sweep around his left end. Vince Renzo came around from the left to take the ball over the goal line.

In the third quarter, Steve Terebus, Carnegie back, made a mess of a punt and Temple started on Carnegie's 38 yard line for its second score. A pass, Smukler to Renzo, placed the ball on the goal line, where Smukler drove over for the score. Smukler failed to convert.

COLGATE WINS, 52-0.

Easton, Pa., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Colgate defeated Lafayette, 52 to 0, today. Within one minute after the opening whistle Colgate had scored. Its varsity played intact for less than 20 minutes and there was not a starting man in the Colgate lineup any time after the intermission.

SYRACUSE WINS, 18-10.

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 19.—[U. P.]—Syracuse defeated Ohio Wesleyan, 18 to 10, before 12,000 today. Red Mammosser, star Syracuse half back, was taken from the field with a broken leg.

The first Syracuse touchdown came on a seven yard plunge by Gorecki after a pass. Wesleyan countered with a 32 yard pass and a minute later plunged over for the tying points. Whalen kicked the placement giving his team a 7 to 6 edge.

Whalen's 26 yard field goal was the impetus for Syracuse's 73 yard march for a second touchdown.

Reckmack intercepted Mohler's pass in the fourth and then tossed a 40 yard pass to Rextis for a first down on the five yard line. Albanese plunged the remaining distance.

Four Games on Card Today in Midwest Football League

Four football games are scheduled today in the Midwest Football league. Wednesday a game is carded between La Grange and Cullerton. Today's schedule:

La Grange vs. Gary Boosters at Elks' field, 47th and 9th avenue, La Grange.
Maywood A. C. vs. Evanston V. F. W. at "First" avenue and "Madison," Maywood.

Hawk Wingman Is Back After Layoff Due to Injuries

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—With Cliff Maundrell back on the ice after five days' absence because of an injured ankle, a much improved trio of right wingers—Johnson, Emery Hansen, and Maundrell—took instructions for the better part of an hour from Manager Clem Loughlin of the Blackhawks at the University of Illinois rink here this morning.

The Hawks' boss is satisfied with the progress made with the rookie right wing talent, but asserted he will not try any of them in Billy Kendall's and Lolo Couture's old spots without at least three or four more days of drilling under his personal observation.

The morning practice saw the big squad steaming along in midseason form, the new players mixing in willingly with the old and the whole team displaying considerable speed.

Because of a swollen left knee Lorne Chabot was an absentee from the morning session. He will be available for drill tomorrow afternoon, when the student populace is invited to be guests of the Hawks.

Amherst Scores 12 to 0 Victory Over Rochester

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 19.—[U. P.]—Amherst college today defeated an injury-ridden University of Rochester eleven, 12 to 0. Rochester held Amherst scoreless in three periods, but crumbled in the third quarter when Roberts crossed the goal line twice.

RACE FOR WINDY CITY PIN TITLE 3 WAY BATTLE

Blazeks on Top; Mineralites, O'Keefes Close Up.

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

They're not at the quarter pole yet in the 30 week sprint to the payoff station in the Windy City Major league, but many followers of this Cicero Bowling league, whose personnel includes many of Chicago's best sharpshooters, believe they have the first three finishers tabbed.

From present indications win, place, and show teams will be the Blazek Tailors, Mineralites, and O'Keefe Coals, which are bunched at the top of the field of 16 clubs. These teams have dominated the race from the outset, and unless one or two of the stragglers stage a belated rally they will continue to do so. The Blazeks hold a slight edge, having won 14 and lost 4. The O'Keefe's and Mineralites have won 13 and lost 5.

Tomorow's schedule:

O'Keefe Coals vs. Betinis Boosters, Mineralites vs. Pilsen Olympias, Vogel Brothers vs. Strachan Coals, Almanaris Water vs. Burlington Zephyrs, G. & W. Distillery vs. Curran Blatz, Lauterbach Coals vs. Soper Brothers, J. M. Kralovecs vs. Serrano Cigarros, Blazek Tailors vs. McKesson's Old Crow.

On North Side Alleys.

A one pin defeat kept the Hymes team from sweeping a Gold Coast major league series from the Budweisers, the Hymes totaling 3,004 in taking two of the three games. Three tied for high individual series, Thomson, Schaefer, and Daglow each getting 657. P. Marian's 256 was the best game. . . . The Mee and Ramme team, leaders in the Samuelson Arcade Major league all season, now are tied with the Wallace Coals, followed closely by Crawford Brake Service, Michelobs, and Fries-Malwitz Fords.

With the aid of a 3,011 series, high for the week, the Monte Cristos won three games from Portage Park in the Northwest Traveling league. G. Frey of Fox De Luxe with a 659 series and Chuck Wright with a 245 game were high invidiuals. Garden Recreation is leading the team standing. . . . A finish of 240 gave E. Kurth high series of 616 in the Chicago Junior Traveling league.

On South Side Alleys.

With 25 points scored at the inaugural session Wally Freitag leads the White City All-Star men's individual league. Pairings for the second round today will be Eddie Zajac vs. Sykes Thoma, Adam Plunge vs. Tom Chyzy, Wally Freitag vs. Harry Halgren, Jim Waterson vs. Eli Marichich, Joe Wilman vs. Jake Lenzen, Jerry Skovic vs. Al Rankin. . . . The Patka Undertakers with 15 won and 3 lost and Steve Bonkowski's 194 average are high in the Archer-Kedzie Junior league.

Ed Costello registered 675 on games of 204, 258, and 223 to top the Bruck Major league. Others with high series were: W. Cooksey, 652; D. Devito, 648; M. Wiesner, 648; A. Plunge, 646. . . . The Blackie Colts won two games and by so doing knocked the Bo's Wonder Bar team out of the lead in the Stevenson and Schalk National league. Leo's Foamery now is first, followed by Wagner Beer and Selz-Southman.

North End League.

Scores were low in the North End Traveling league, but the leading Schamberger Schlitz five continued its sensational spurt with a 3,109 series for a clean sweep over the P. J. Westers. They now have won ten straight. A 1,096 count failed to win for the Westers, the Schambergers retaliating with 1,111.

About the Women.

Edith Kirg with four games won and a 188 average tops the All-Star individual league at the Woodlawn Recreation. At the second session of the league tonight will be the following matches: Mary Gordon vs. Tess Morris, Edith Kirg vs. Mabel Cummings, Carrie Enders vs. Agnes Pitelka, Dorothy Burmeister vs. Mae Stone, May Davison vs. Agnes Crocombe, Bess Fender vs. Ceil Leary, Alberta Burton vs. Rose Tess, Fritzi Trettin vs. Effie Seymour.

The first 1,000 game for any women's league this season went to the Alberti Jewelers when they clicked for 1,002 in the Congress league. They also set high series of 2,825.

Charlotte Ehrns scattered the pins for 589, the best score at the last session of the Monte Cristo-Lorel Rug league. Next were Martha Bandick, 581; Freda Roedel, 549; Lillian Walder, 530; Ruth Forward, 520; Gertrude Ritche, 519; Alpha Hogman, 511; Mae Hardenstein, 507; Signe Walz, 502. . . . Marie Wermich's 514 led the West Ridge league. Other top notchers were: Harriet Lindaman, 534; Esther Hess, 525; Lee Liepe, 524; Josephine Consier, 506; Josephine Modert, 514;

Here and There.

Employés of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company have gone in for bowling in a big way. They have 16 team leagues at the Pioneer, Garden and Queen Recreations, and 12 team organizations at the Harding and White City alleys. Seventy-two teams and all on a handicap basis. . . . Mrs. B. Stevenson and Tom Handwerker totaled 1,050 for first place in the mixed doubles at Stevenson and Schalk's. Mrs. Stadle and Dr. Logue had 1,039, and Mrs. Wightman and Dr. Kulvin 1,012. . . . Jerry Rezny, anchor man of the leading Red Devils of the Butler Brothers league, piled up a 108 game and none of his friends is letting him forget about it. Ducky Palewicz added a 645 series to the 650 he shot the week before.

Andy Varipapa, trick shot specialist, who won three of five games during matches with A. and P. bowlers at White City Thursday, is booked out of the city the next few days. Today he will be at Bob O'Farrell's Recreation in Waukegan and tomorrow at Palatine. Trafic No. 1 set a team game record of 996 for the Cuneo Press league with George Kamjac getting 199, Fred Graham 162, Charles Erbon 210, John Malecky 182, and Mike Rezek 243. Rezek turned in another 646 series, boosting his first place average to 203. . . . With a 3,008 total the Pabst Blue Ribbons won the Kaadland grand opening sweepstakes. The Monarch Beers were second with 2,962, while the Mineralites finished in the money by winding up with an 1,140 game.

Harris to Quit Bench and Coach from Baseline

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Manager Stanley [Bucky] Harris, Washington manager, plans to go on active base line coaching duty for the Senators during the next American league season.

When he took over the management of the Senators a year ago, Harris announced he would do his masterminding from the bench and leave the actual coaching to the veteran Nick Altrock and Johnny Kerr. Now he's decided he can do a better job out on the field and will take over the first base coaching line.

The Senators have released Kerr and are seeking a third base coach. The Harris move to first base also means the virtual retirement of the 59 year old Altrock from active duty. However, Nick will tutor young pitchers.

ANNICE BRINK GETS AUTO STYLE NEWS

Annice Brink (Noted Boston Fashion Authority): "I'm trying to get a line on the latest style trends in motor car design, Mr. Sullivan. There is really a definite tie-up between style in motor cars and certain types of feminine fashions. Have you seen any of the new cars yet?"

James T. Sullivan (Automobile Editor, Boston Globe): "So you want a tip on motor car style trends? Well, take a look at the 1936 Dodge. They tell me it has all the features that built Dodge's reputation for ruggedness and dependability and gave the 1935 model its own special reputation for economy, but if you're talking about style, this new 1936 job is the handsomest and swankiest looking car I have ever seen Dodge turn out. Take a look at it for yourself."

BAD BOY HABER RETURNS TO JOB; RIDES A WINNER

Boots Home Silverette at 21-20 Odds.

BY BRUCE DENNIS.

Jocky Rube Haber, of the New Orleans Habers, looked at his calendar yesterday and discovered that his five day suspension for rough riding at Sportsman's Park was over. So Rube called around at the Cicero half mile track and found a job waiting for him. Owner E. E. Watts wanted him to ride Silverette in the Autumn handicap, feature race of the program.

Haber, a young fellow, but old in the ways of steering a horse around short turns at pocket-sized parks, did his work well. He drove Silverette to victory by a head over the long shot, Busy Spain, and most of the fans in the crowd of 12,000 cheered, for Silverette was the 21-20 favorite.

The gathering was one of the largest in Sportsman's Park history. The fans sent their money through the mutuel machines at such a rate that the handle was estimated at $250,000, near a record for half mile tracks.

Rube Goes Right to Work.

Haber, known as the hard luck kid around Chicago tracks because he has been suspended three times this year for a total of almost 100 days, didn't waste any time getting Silverette to the front. He sent the big bay mare away in good position, and at the quarter had a lead of a length and a half over Fairtime.

Going down the back stretch Fairtime tried to get up on even terms with the flying daughter of Vandergrift-Louvain, but the challenge failed. As Fairtime dropped back, another menace appeared. It was Busy Spain, which had soared from 8 to 1 to 25 to 1 on the odds board in the infield.

Ridden by Augie Yerrat, Busy Spain came tearing along on the outside so fast it seemed Silverette was due for a certain trouncing. They wheeled into the home stretch, and it still was anybody's race. About 100 yards from the finish line Busy Spain appeared a cinch to win. But Jocky Haber, on the rail with Silverette, gave his mount a final swat with his bat and kept his head in front. They charged across the line with Silverette holding the edge. Bibbies Choice, on which there had been a plunge, was third.

Nears Track Record.

Silverette ran the 6½ furlongs in 1:21 3-5, just a second off the track record, and packed 119 pounds while doing it. In the mutuels she paid $4.20 to win, 3.80 to place, and $2.80 to show. Busy Spain was good for $13.20 to place and $5.80 to show, while Bibbies Choice returned $3 to show.

Time, :24, :49 2-5, 1:03 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Jerry H, $8.60 straight, $4.40 place, $3.00 show; China Boy, $13.00 place, $5.00 show; Ann's Baby, $3.80 show. Winner trained by C. Scott. Went to post at 1:31. At post 3 minutes. Start good from Bahr gate. Won easily; place driving.

JERRY H, a strong factor from the start, took command in the stretch, then drew out to win cantering. CHINA BOY, away well, lacked speed, was subjected to severe punishment after the opening quarter, gained steadily and closed gamely. ANN'S BABY, rushed to the lead after the start, set the pace under mild reserve, but failed to keep up when strongly urged.

SECOND RACE—Seven furlongs, out of chute. Purse $600. Net value to winner, $475; second, $75; third, $30; fourth, $20.

Time, :23 2-5, :48 2-5, 1:15 3-5, 1:29 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Die Hard, $17.80 straight, $7.40 place, $4.60 show; Cabotin, $7.00 place, $4.60 show; Papyrograph, $4.00 show. Winner trained by V. Dennis. Went to post at 2:04. At post ½ minute. Start good from Bahr gate. Won easily; place driving.

DIE HARD, placed forwardly early, continued under clever rating and was never seriously threatened thereafter. CABOTIN, a strong factor most of the way, finished gamely, but was no match for the winner. PAPYROGRAPH, well up throughout, held on with good courage in the drive.

THIRD RACE—Five furlongs, out of chute. Purse $600. Net value to winner, $475; second, $75; third, $30; fourth, $20. [Daily double, 2d and 3d races, paid $81.20.]

Time, :23 4-5, :48 3-5, 1:02 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Defier, $11.40 straight, $4.80 place, $3.20 show; Porter Call, $4.80 place, $3.20 show; Chancabit, $3.40 show. Winner trained by W. A. Williams. Went to post at 2:37. At post 5 minutes. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same.

DEFIER, on the inside throughout, moved up stoutly approaching the stretch and, lucky to have ample room to get through, was up to win in the final strides. PORTER CALL, probably best, was away slowly, forced to lose much ground attaining a forward position and again lost much ground entering the stretch, closed gamely under weak handling. CHANCABIT, a strong factor from the start, finished resolutely, but could not menace the first two.

Time, :24, :49 2-5, 1:03 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Bright Penny, $8.20 straight, $4.00 place, $3.00 show; Valley, $5.60 place, $4.00 show; Very Well, $4.40 show. Winner trained by H. W. Smith. Went to post at 3:08. At post 3 minutes. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same.

BRIGHT PENNY, a strong factor from the start, responded gamely to punishment and outfinished VALLEY. Latter, suddenly improved, raced in the contention throughout, but was not good enough. VERY WELL, also showing startling improvement, was placed forwardly early and held on well throughout.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse $1,200. Net value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, :24 3-5, :49 1-5, 1:15 2-5, 1:21 3-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Silverette, $4.20 straight, $3.80 place, $2.80 show; Busy Spain, $13.20 place, $5.80 show; Bibbie's Choice, $3.00 show. Winner trained by J. J. Sirl. Went to post at 3:39. At post ½ minute. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same.

SILVERETTE, away in stride, was cleverly handled while setting the pace, had to be roused briskly to withstand the bold bid of BUSY SPAIN and outfinished the latter in a strenuous drive. BUSY SPAIN, displaying sudden improvement, moved up fast after three-eighths, offered strong contention, but was not good enough. BIBBIE'S CHOICE gained steadily and, closing well, failed to menace the first two.

WELL HEELED, well up throughout, responded gamely to strong pressure, overhauled the leaders, and won drawing away. POMPOUS PETER, prominent from the break, offered strong contention, but was not good enough. JACOB'S LADDER, improved under different handling, held on gamely in the drive.

BAKU improved her position gradually, responded gamely to pressure, overhauled the leaders, and was ready to draw clear. POPPET, allowed to drop far out of contention, moved up fast on the outside, took command entering the stretch, but could not withstand the winner. COVELLA, rushed o the lead early, set the pace under mild reserve, rallied to strong pressure, and held on gamely in the drive.

KING PIN, away in stride and kept in the lead under occasional pressure, stood a long drive gamely and held sway to the end. MY GENTLEMAN moved up fast after seven-eighths, offered stubborn contention, but was not good enough. MISS GLACE, probably best, was going strong when forced back in the stretch, then closed strongest.

KENTUCKY JOCKY CLUB STAKE WON BY GRAND SLAM

Victory Throws Juvenile Title Into Scramble.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Showing a return to his sensational form of the Arlinton futurity, the Bowmar stable's Grand Slam gave a smashing performance today to win the fifteen renewal of the Kentucky Jocky club stakes before a crowd of 12,000 at Churchill Downs.

The victory of the son of Chance Play-Jeane Bowdre threw the race for the 2 year old championship into something of a scramble and gained for him a notch among the favorites for next year's Kentucky Derby.

His triumph also atoned for his poor showing in the Belmont futurity, as he led Hal Price Headley's Hollyrood, C. V. Whitney's Red Rain and Coldstream stud's Coldstream, which defeated him in that event. He traversed the mile today in sloppy going in 1:39 3-5 with his rider looking back.

Ten crack juveniles contested the issue for the $11,585 gross prize, Noble Star alone being scratched. Hollyrood was second and Boston Pal third.

By virtue of his victory, Grand Slam earned his owner $9,835. He was third choice in the mutuels, paying $8.60 to win.

SPLIT SECOND TAKES $10,000 SELIMA STAKES

Laurel, Md., Oct. 19.—(AP)—King Ranch's 2-year-old black filly, Split Second, took over things entering the back stretch of the $10,000 Selima stakes today to walk off with a four-length victory in the mile feature.

E. R. Bradley's Beannie M. came in second by two lengths with Reminding, Wheatley stable and Belair stud entry, running third a length and a half ahead of Valse.

Split Second, carrying 111 pounds with Jocky E. Arcaro up, got off fourth at the start and remained in third place up to the half-way mark. The three-quarter position found her half a length back of Beannie M. but entering the home stretch, Split Second went to the front with a rush and drew out steadily.

Beannie M. could not resist that last-second rush and Split Second was going away at the finish line with yards of daylight showing between her and Beannie M.

Split Second paid $6.30 for $2.

VICARESS RACES TO VICTORY AT AGAWAM PARK

Agawam, Mass., Oct. 19.—(AP)—A speedy filly went to the front in the running of the Teneyck handicap at Agawam Park this afternoon and never was headed. The dainty miss, Vicaress, a stablemate of Omaha, negotiated the mile and an eighth of the course in 1:50 2-5 for a new track record.

Fidelis from the B. N. Kane stable was second with J. Y. Martin's Dark Hope in third place. The Vanderbilt entry, Good Harvest, could do no better than fourth.

Both the crowd and the wagering were the best thus far in the meeting. In contrast to yesterday's heavy daily double payoff, the total today was $29.60, when Pana Franka won the first and Cruising the third race.

MARYLAND BEATS V. M. I. ON LONG RUNS AND PASSES

Lexington, Va., Oct. 19.—[U. P.]—Long runs and fancy passwork gave Maryland a 6 to 0 victory over Virginia Military institute here today.

Stonebroker accounted for the game's only touchdown in the third period after he, Headley, and Guckeyson had escorted the ball to the four yard line. Gormley failed to convert the point.

V. M. I. completed several triple passes and got past Maryland's 20 yard line five times.

Clark and Roberson performed well for the cadets, who made 11 first downs, compared to Maryland's 12.

MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

OLD ARMY TRAIL OFFERS SCENIC AUTUMN DRIVE

Little Known Road Only an Hour from Chicago.

BY HAL FOUST.

You'll want to leave the highways for the byways for a maximum enjoyment of the autumn colors on the landscape of Chicagoland. A yellowed poplar, reddened sumac, and pink tinted maple are worthy of more than the fleeting glance that is the most that can be obtained while cruising at speeds popular on the arterial routes.

THE TRIBUNE roadster last week-end selected a Du Page county route bearing the romantic name, Army Trail road. A little library research disclosed that its history is as glamorous as its scenery at this time of the year.

The broad pavement of the Lake street highway, U. S. 20, was abandoned at the village of Addison, twenty miles from the loop. Due west from the town is a dustless macadam road through a gently rolling countryside. Meadows are brown and yellow with that multiplicity of shades that is nature's. In groves on hillsides and along meandering creeks, among the branches of trees and shrubs in many hues of brown, green, yellow, and red, song birds in muffled twitters confer on their migration south.

Old Wagon Trail.

A small red star on THE TRIBUNE'S Chicagoland road map at the junction of the Army Trail road with the Bloomingdale road offers a clue to the romantic past of this trail. At the corner itself, there is no marker, but the map describes the site, "Gen. Scott made peace after Black Hawk war."

This Army Trail is the route followed by Lieut. Gen. Winfield Scott's wagon train in moving west through raw prairie, swamp, and forest from the fort at the mouth of the Chicago river to join the volunteer army of early settlers pursuing Black Hawk north on the Rock river.

The Des Plaines river was crossed at what is now Maywood. After traveling northwest, on the present location of the Lake street highway, Salt creek was forded at the site of Addison. Thence the wagons moved west to ford the Fox river a few miles south of what is now Elgin.

Settlers Followed Army.

In the rush of imigration that followed this last trouble with the Indians in this part of the country, the settlers followed the wagon wheel prints left by the army, thus establishing the first road northwest of Chicago.

Let's return to this star on the map. After Black Hawk was captured, Gen. Scott and Gov. Reynolds held pow-wows with the various tribes. One of these took place at this inconspicuous and unmarked intersection of two Du Page county secondary roads. We'll quote from the general's memoirs, in which he refers to himself in the third person, to describe what took place at this location.

"The spirit of forbearance and liberality on the part of the United States were prominent features in those settlements. Scott opened each council with stern reproach—reminding the confederate tribes that by their failure to restrain one of their chiefs, Black Hawk, from making an unjust war upon the unoffending white settlers near them, the whole confederacy had forfeited as much of their territory as the conquerors might choose to claim as an indemnity, and the Winnebagoes were informed that their secret encouragement and preparations to join in highly criminal hostilities made them liable to like punishment.

Interpreters Used.

"These emphatic denunciations being made perfectly clear, through excellent interpreters, and their justice shown to be indisputable, Scott on each occasion proceeded:

"Such justice, between nation and nation, against which none can rightfully complain; but as God in his dealings with human creatures tempers justice with mercy—or else the whole race of man would soon have perished—so shall we commissioners in humble imitation of divine example now treat you, my red brethren, who have offended both against God and your great human father at Washington.

"He then demanded in each case a portion of their superfluous territory—paying liberally for the cessions and stipulating for the support at the cost of the United States of schools and workshops to teach reading, writing, arithmetic, and the more necessary mechanical arts."

EMPIRE CITY RESULTS.

FIRST RACE—Purse $900, maidens, all ages, about 6 furlongs:

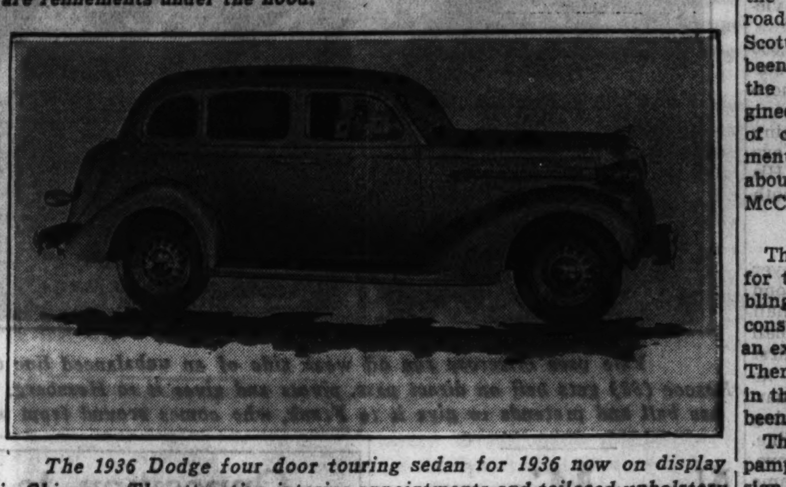
1936 MODELS

This is an eight in the new Pontiac series. Brakes are hydraulic; gears are synchro-mesh in all speeds forward and in reverse, and there are refinements under the hood.



The 1936 Dodge four door touring sedan for 1936 now on display in Chicago. The attractive interior appointments and tailored upholstery live up to the striking exterior lines.

The longer and more graceful lines of the Ford V-8 for 1936 are well illustrated in this view of the popular de luxe tudor sedan. The new longer hood extends gracefully over the attractive new radiator grille.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

GEORGE OF NAUVOO.

Nauvoo, Ill., Oct. 7.—I conducted some people from Evanston on a trip through our historic city today and they said for me to write to you and tell you to come down and have me take you through Nauvoo. They said they had been reading your articles, but none of them were as interesting as this trip they had had with me.

Since I have read the above paragraph it sounds as though I was blowing my own horn quite hard.

The last five years I have acted as the guide here and have done considerable research on Nauvoo history. I am not a Mormon, but have acquired the approval of many of the officials of the Mormon church. GEORGE.

SCHOOL CHILDREN DEATHS.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—May I suggest something that appears in my opinion to be of help in the cause of safety? The board of education or the superintendent of schools could arrange with the coroner's office to get a report daily of every fatality in which a child was involved and pass this report along to the principal of each school, who in turn would pass it on to the teachers in order that every school child would hear of it. I am sure that many lives of school children would be saved.

According to statistics the fatalities of children average from 150 to 200 a year, which would mean about one a day, and the teachers would have a new case to report to the children almost daily. This procedure would not require any financial help and the results would be effective. FRANK TOMCZAK.

TREES OBSCURE VIEW.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—What can be done toward elimination of a severe trafic hazard at 89th place and South Park avenue which has been the cause of two wrecking accidents? On the northeast corner of 89th place and South Park avenue are Lombardy poplar trees so placed that the trafic is obscured and if these trees were dug up, etc., it would permit a clear view. EDMOND F. WEBER.

HELP APPRECIATED.

Cicero, Ill., Oct. 15.—How much more pleasant motoring would be if motorists assisted one another rather than "razzed" one another. A certain young lady told me that while out driving alone one day, and being about forty miles from nowhere, she was confronted with the task of changing a flat tire.

It almost made her cry when several motorists slowed down to offer such assistance as, "What's the matter, engine trouble?" "It's O. K. on the top side," etc. How much more pleasant it would have been if some one stopped and helped the little lady install a good tire.

I myself met an elderly man recently who ran out of gasoline and was trying to push his car to the curb. I offered to push him to the nearest gas station, which assistance he gladly accepted. It probably delayed me about two or three minutes.

When we got to the gas station he pulled out a piece of paper from his pocket and wrote something thereon. Presumably he took my license number in the hope that some day he may be able to render me similar assistance. GEORGE SMOLIK.

FOR JUDGE GUTKNECHT.

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 15.—What good is all the publicity, the clock indicating 1935 automobile fatalities, etc., when nothing is done about it?

The thing that stands out is the utter absence of doing anything about it. The judge who sits in the Trafic court is doing fine. I think he is a little erratic—too human—too sympathetic sometimes. If he will try hanging a large mirror just on the back wall and watch the exit of some of his offenders he will call some of them back when he sees the smiles of satisfaction at having fooled him on their faces. HELEN STUDLEY.

COMMON PARKING VIOLATION.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—With all this enforcement of trafic laws going on it is beyond me why the police allow one major violation of the law to go unprosecuted, namely, no parking within one hundred feet of a stop and go light. PAUL FEINSTEIN.

BEG YOUR PARDON

"Trafic Violations Observed" reported that an automobile with license 2240 went through a red light in Ogden avenue on Oct. 4. W. R. Foster, superintendent of the La Salle county public schools, to whom this number was issued, wrote that his car was not in Chicago on Oct. 4.

SOUTH TESTING COTTON AS BASE FOR AUTO ROADS

Experts Claim It Cuts Maintenance Costs.

A fabric lining for black top roads has been developed by the Cotton-Textile institute, organized to advance the interests of the south's leading farm product. Promotion of this new highway design has become active since the federal government has earmarked 50 million dollars for the construction of secondary routes.

Mississippi this month completed the most recent of these "cotton roads" on a stretch of highway near Scott, Miss. Experimentation has been going on in various parts of the country since 1926. Army engineers have just authorized the use of cotton fabric for the reinforcement of bituminous surface runways about to be built at Riley Field, Fort McClellan, Ala.

Miles of Dirt Roads.

The Illinois highway department for the last two years has been dabbling with various types of low cost construction preliminary to launching an expansion secondary road program. There are 70,000 miles of dirt roads in this state. The cotton idea has not been touched here.

The Cotton-Textile institute, in a pamphlet describing the new road design, makes no claim that it reduces original costs; inferences are to the contrary. It is claimed that the cotton fabric between the base and the surface of a tar or asphalt bound macadam road will reduce maintenance more than enough to compensate for the difference in original costs.

Laid on Cotton Fabric.

In the construction, the cotton fabric in strips 75 or 90 inches wide is rolled onto the roadway after the base or foundation has been shaped. The surface of crushed rock or gravel, mixed with tar or asphalt, is laid on the cloth.

Experiments indicate that this fabric acts as a reinforcing agency, retarding progressive construction from cracks, somewhat as a steel mesh is sometimes used to reinforce Portland cement concrete. This summer a section was cut from an experimental stretch in South Carolina laid in 1926 and it was found that the cotton membrane was still intact and unimpaired after being down nine years.

TRAFIC VIOLATIONS OBSERVED

On Saturday, Oct. 12, a car with license 708-566 going north on Dearborn street drove through the red light at Division street. The license was issued to Max Kuttner, 2756 Pine Grove avenue.

A car traveling northeast on Archer avenue Sunday evening went through a red light at Halsted street. The car bore license 739-670, issued to Jacob Schneider, 6110 South Sacramento avenue.

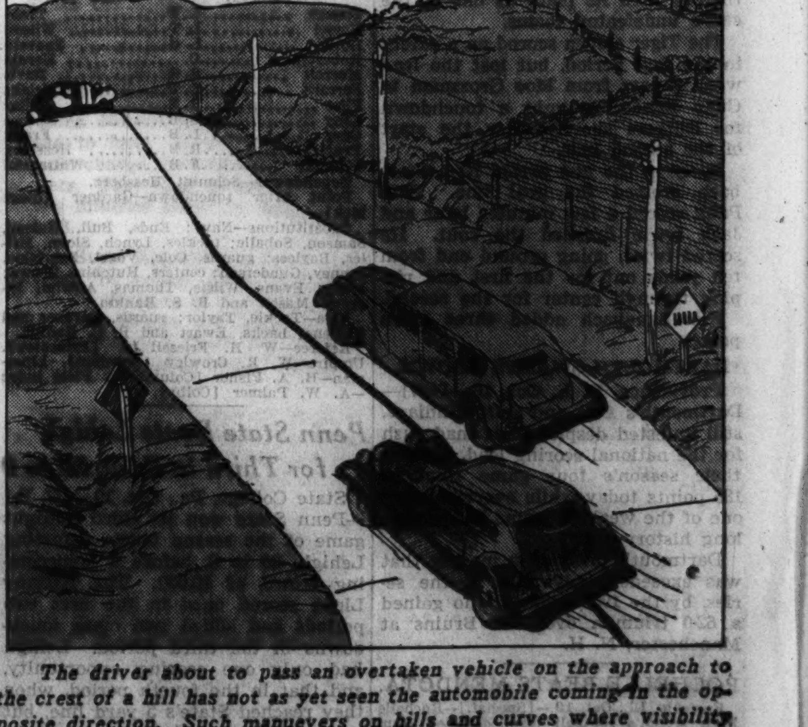
Wednesday afternoon an automobile going north on St. Clair street failed to stop at Ohio street, a through street. The car had license 367-712, issued to Albert C. Schmidt, 4105 North Kedvale avenue.

A car with license 515-271, issued to Sidney Pearson, 707 Independence boulevard, was seen Wednesday afternoon improperly parked in front of 733 South Halsted street. The car was facing south on the east side of the street and was about two feet from the curb.

Traveling east on Division street, a car failed to stop for the red light at La Salle street and then turned south on La Salle street Wednesday afternoon. The license was 360-720, issued to Ralph E. Petersen, 528 Davis street, Evanston.

Also observed Wednesday afternoon was a car with license 994-338 going north on Lakeview avenue and failing to halt at the stop sign at St. James place, one of the entrances to Lincoln park. The license was issued to Ed Richmond, 2121 Powell avenue.

DON'T DO THIS FOOLISH THING



The driver about to pass an overtaken vehicle on the approach to the crest of a hill has not as yet seen the automobile coming in the opposite direction. Such manuevers on hills and curves where visibility is limited resulted in accidents that killed 470 persons and injured 10,330 others in the last year.

War

The Campaign.

The great Italian war machine got stuck last week. On the southern front the army bogged down because it started to rain again. In the east Ethiopian forces were reported to have driven back an Italian column that tried to move out of Eritrea along the French Somaliland border.

Last Sunday Gen. Emilio de Bono, commander of the Italians in the north, rode into Adowa and unveiled a monument. The inscription said, "To the dead of Adowa, avenged at last." Then he formally annexed Tigre province to Italy. The next day the holy city of Aksum was taken by the Italians, but it was a hollow victory. Not a shot was fired.

So far the Italians have been chasing will-o-the-wisp Ethiopian armies through heartbreaking country.

The advance of the Italians in the north was not blocked by Ethiopian troops but by Ethiopian mountains. Rocky gorges prevented the Italians from moving southward to the edge of the interior plateau, where it was reported that more than 100,000 Ethiopians waited for the invader. The tanks and heavy guns which have given the Italians the advantage were useless without roads, of which there are none.

The southern Italian army struggled in the "yellow hell" of Ogaden. Fighting their way from stinking water hole to stinking water hole in a burning desert, the tanks suddenly stuck as the sudden return of the rains made the ground a sea of muck. One report said it was necessary to shoot twelve Italian soldiers to stop a mutiny in a country where men are trying to travel through temperatures of 150 degrees in iron boxes of tanks.

Reports from the southern front said Italian planes had bombed many native villages.

Thousands of Ethiopian troops poured through Harrar on their way to oppose the Italians in the south. It was reported that 200,000 Ethiopians had gathered to oppose the Italians under Gen. Rodolfo Graziani. Emperor Selassie said that as long as there was an Italian soldier on Ethiopian soil he would not even talk about peace. The emperor yesterday was reported to have foiled an attempt by wild tribesmen to massacre all foreigners in Addis Ababa. [See main news section.]

As 50,000 savage warriors put on a wild demonstration in Addis Ababa the Ethiopian government announced that trouble was brewing between Gen. de Bono and Mussolini. The Ethiopian announcement said Mussolini thought the troops should move ahead more rapidly.

Dr. Robert William Hockman, missionary physician from Wheaton, Ill., who is giving medical aid to the Ethiopians, claimed that the Italians were using dumdum bullets. These soft nosed bullets, banned by all nations, expand when they strike human flesh and cause horrible wounds.

France.

Poor Pierre! The swarthy little lawyer millionaire who is the premier of France had a tough week. France was caught between two great powers. Each of them was bent on having its own way. France couldn't please them both. Pierre Laval, premier of France, spent sleepless nights and nerve wracking days as he tried to solve the puzzle.

He could choose one of two courses. He could agree to help Great Britain's navy in case of trouble and back up British demands before the league. That would give France aid of the British navy in case of a European war. Or he could refuse to support the British and leave them to deal with the Italians alone. That would give France the Italian army in case of war with Germany.

In case of a German attack on France the French claim they would be almost helpless without quick aid from Italy. Without the British navy, they claim, France would be almost helpless at sea. With the Italians busy in Ethiopia, it was feared Germany could have almost a clear road into Austria. Poor Pierre wondered if that would be enough of an excuse for the British to come to his aid against Germany.

Trying hard not to choose either course, Pierre did his best to find some ground on which Italy and Great Britain could get together. As the week closed there were rumors he had gotten the Italians to talk about peace in Africa on their own terms. Peace there would remove the powder keg that smolders between Italy and Britain.

For several weeks the British have been trying to find out whether France would give them naval support in case of trouble. During the last week they demanded an answer. Laval tried to keep from giving one, but finally handed the British ambassador to France what was described as a favorable reply. [See main news section.] It was reported he told the British France would go to their aid in case of war in the Mediterranean.

The British and the French also wrangled all week over the kind of penalties to be applied against Italy. The British wanted an agreement that none of the members would buy anything from Italy. France tried to avoid a harsh measure.

Laval tried to get the British to withdraw a few warships so the Italians would feel better. This the British refused to do unless the Italians stopped shipping troops to their colony of Libya, next door to Egypt. The Italians went ahead sending troops. The British ships stayed in the Mediterranean.

Poor Pierre Laval had cause for nervous prostration when reports came out Wednesday saying that Italian troops had killed several members of the native British camel corps in British Somaliland. The incident passed off without trouble when both Rome and London refused to confirm the early report.

Last Tuesday Admiral Sir William Fisher ordered the British fleet out of the harbor of Alexandria, Egypt, for war games. The fleet sailed back in again the next day. On Thursday came the report that more than 1,200 British fighting planes were concentrated just east of the city. The same day it was learned that the Italians have installed big guns at Massaua, Eritrea, and have made extensive preparations to defend the town against attack from the sea.

To add to poor Pierre's worries a new cabinet was set up in Austria Thursday. In the upheaval Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, vice chancellor, was placed in supreme command of all the armies, state and private, of Austria. That gave the prince, who favors Italy, a force of 175,000 men.

Poor Pierre also had his worries at home. In the early part of the week the people were strong for the Italians. Pictures of Mussolini were greeted with cheers. Then Laval ordered the newspapers to stop attacking the British. When the papers began printing stories of Italians bombing women and children in Ethiopia sentiment shifted toward the British, who want to stop the war.

[See main news section for latest developments.]

The League. . .

Last Monday the league of nations agreed to apply financial penalties against Italy. The league agreement said no member of the league may make loans or give bank credits to the Italian state, corporations within the state, or persons in Italy. A stumbling block in the operation of the penalties occurred when the penalties committee announced that Argentina would have to bring harmony between the penalties and its constitution. With a million Italians in Argentina it was believed that Argentina would not take part in any action against Italy. Even more drastic was the league action yesterday. An ironclad commercial embargo on Italy was voted, with only a few league members making reservations. [See main news section.]

In London Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign secretary, found time to listen as Baron Pompeo Aloisi, Italian delegate to the league of nations, broadcast an appeal to the United States to see that Italy gets fair play. Aloisi said that the league of nations must realize that one method of procedure cannot be applied to Italy in one case and another in other cases. He referred to the league's failure to invoke penalties against Japan in the Manchurian trouble.

Japan.

The Russian government sent a strong protest last Sunday against a reported invasion of the soviet frontier in Outer Mongolia by a Japanese-Manchukuan detachment. The protest said that troops on both sides were killed. Two days later Foreign Minister Koki Hirota of Japan proposed that a joint commission be appointed to mark out the boundaries between Manchurian and Russian territory. The Russian ambassador to Japan, Constantin Yurenev, sent the proposal on to Moscow.

The same day it was reported that Japanese officials announced Japan is preparing to strengthen her hold on China and the far east. The Japanese officials said that unrest in Europe would give Japan an even freer hand in the east.

Thursday Maj. Gen. Yatsu Tsugu Okamura of the Japanese army told a group of high staf officers meeting in Dairen, Japanese leased territory, that Japan must take steps to block a combination of the Chinese communist armies in north China with the Russian forces. It was believed that Japanese plans for moving into Inner Mongolia were based on a desire to establish posts from which contact with the soviet troops can be made.

Washington

Crisis.

With the world's greatest crisis since 1914 brewing in Europe, the nation's two highest ranking officials were outside the territorial limits of the United States proper last week. In addition, the fourth and fifth highest officials were thousands of miles from home.

President Roosevelt was cruising in the Pacific and Atlantic near Panama. Vice President Garner was on the Pacific, bound for the Philippines and Japan. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau was homeward bound on the Atlantic. Secretary of War Dern was in Japan.

It was the first time in the history of the nation that both the President and the Vice President were outside of the country at the same time. Under the law of succession, Secretary of State Hull became the ranking official in Washington.

Vice President Garner sailed from Seattle on Wednesday with a happy party of 21 senators and 27 representatives. They are to attend the inauguration on Nov. 15 of Manuel Quezon as president of the New Philippine commonwealth. They will also visit Tokio, Kobe, Shanghai and Hongkong. The trip already is being called a junket. A junket is a pleasure excursion at public cost. In this case, however, the cost—$200,000—is being borne by the Philippines.

Secretary of War Dern, the fifth ranking government official, will also attend the inauguration. He will be the President's representative. He crossed the Pacific some time ago. He arrived in Tokio on Monday for a four day visit. On Tuesday he told the American-Japan society that America wanted to be a good neighbor to Japan. Later he was received by Emperor Hirohito. On Wednesday he was the luncheon guest of Gen. Yoshiyuki Kawashima, Japanese war minister. Among the other guests were most of Japan's big war figures. Dern left for Shanghai on Friday.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's trip is different from the Roosevelt, Garner, and Dern journeys. Morgenthau is the fourth ranking government official. He sailed for Europe a month ago at his own expense. His trip was a vacation. However, he paid personal visits to several important European officials, among them Premier Laval of France. Morgenthau sailed for home Wednesday.

Neutrality.

Having committed the country to neutrality, the administration last week furthered its aims with peace talk. Secretary of State Hull and the President both pleaded for peace.

Mr. Hull in a speech Monday said that the nations of the new world [North and South America] must show the way to peace. He said he hoped that all nations would forsake the barbaric business of war.

In a brief talk the next day he remarked that the Italo-Ethiopian war was not so far away since radio could bring to every home the sounds of actual shots. The business of keeping peace was no longer a distant, but an immediate concern everywhere, he added. Mr. Hull said a sure way for world peace would be to restore international trade on a golden rule basis.

American manufacturers who sell arms to Italy or Ethiopia in defiance of the President's recent proclamation risk prosecution. This was seen in the government's action last week in authorizing prosecution of several companies which sold planes and arms to Bolivia and Paraguay last year after congress had forbidden them to do so.

Navy.

Two new destroyers were launched Tuesday. The U. S. S. Clark, longer and heavier than the old type, hit the water at Quincy, Mass. It was christened by Mrs. Samuel W. Robison of Frederick, Mo., and named after her father, Admiral Charles E. Clark, a Spanish-American war hero. The U. S. S. Mahan was launched at Staten Island, N. Y. It was christened by Helen Mahan, 5 years old, and named after her great-grandfather, Rear Admiral Alfred T. Mahan, former president of the naval war college.

Rear Admiral Ernest J. King, chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics, announced at San Pedro, Cal., Thursday that the navy would add 60 air cruisers to its air fleet. The announcement followed the record flight of a new navy plane from Panama of Alameda, Cal. [See Flying.] The addition of the planes probably means that the country's coastal defense will be moved from the sea to the air.

Works.

More federal easy money for Works Progress administration [WPA] jobs flowed into Chicago and Illinois last week. A few days ago State Representative Elmer Schnackenberg predicted that the national administration would try to buy the state in this way for the 1936 election. [See Politics.]

The government released $2,053,984 on Monday for 87 projects, 33 of them in Chicago and Cook county. On Thursday $398,894 was released for work on 95 other jobs. There were hints that more millions would soon be released. [See main news section.]

Meanwhile the New Deal drive to take 3,500,000 relief clients off the dole and put them to work under the four billion dollars works relief fund failed to make much headway. The deadline when all should be working is Nov. 1. Up to Friday only 1,310,733 had been given employment. During the last two weeks only 184,478 new jobs were filled.

The WPA situation in New York brought a smile. On Wednesday Victor Ridder succeeded Gen. Hugh Johnson as head of the WPA there. But according to Gen. Johnson, Victor Ridder succeeded him by error. The new WPA boss, Johnson understands, should have been Victor's brother, Bernard Ridder. Bernard is a Democrat; Victor a Republican.

Some WPA jobs: a survey will be made in Chicago and four other Illinois cities to learn how certain sicknesses are related to unemployment; the theater projects division will try to organize a little theater group in Chicago to give jobs to jobless actors; forty-six men and women did some scientific work on exhibits at the Field museum.

AAA.

A big concern of the New Dealers right now is an increase of 1 cent a loaf in the price of bread. The Agricultural Adjustment administration [AAA] is blamed in part for this. Last Wednesday Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace called on bakers for an explanation of a 1 cent increase. He hinted it wasn't nice.

In Chicago on Thursday Henry Stude, president of the American Bakers' association, said Wallace was all wrong in saying there had been a general increase in the price of bread. He charged that Wallace was trying to pass the blame on to the bakers for his AAA policies, which have raised the prices of materials going into bread.

On the potato front the AAA drew up plans to buy surplus potatoes from farmers and to pay them as much as 25 cents for each 100 pounds withheld from regular markets. This scheme, with other arrangements, is expected to raise potato prices 15 to 20 cents a bushel.

The New Deal would like to escape enforcing the potato control law, which says that farmers who grow and sell more than their quotas—and customers who buy them—may be sent to jail and fined. A stiff fight will be made on the law. Already 58 prominent lawyers have volunteered to defend small potato growers against the law. Among them are John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President in 1924; Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state under President Wilson, and James M. Beck, former solicitor general.

The City

Time.

Progressive Benjamin Franklin had a notion that daylight could be saved if people got up earlier. He suggested shifting the business day to make them do so. Nothing ever came of his daylight saving idea until William Willett, a builder, began to urge the English parliament for a law to set the clock up an hour between April and October. In 1916, after his death, his reform became law. The world war helped bring it about because heating and light fuel apparently was saved. Most of Europe tried daylight saving, but only England kept it in force.

Congress passed a law to make daylight saving legal in the United States in 1918 and repealed it a year later. City folks liked an extra hour of daylight after their business day, but farmers opposed it. The chickens went to roost and cows came home by sun time, and that's the way the farmers wanted to work. Daylight saving spread rapidly, however, through the industrial centers. Chicago adopted it in 1920. In 1926 the United States Supreme court ruled local daylight saving time did not violate federal rights. Several states passed laws to bar daylight saving time. In Connecticut it is an offense to show daylight time on a clock in public. Illinois legislators tried to abolish Chicago's fast time and failed. But practically every spring and fall change of the clock in the city brought demands for abolition or extension. The last change [Sept. 29] provoked Ald. Berthold A. Cronson to introduce an ordinance to give Chicago daylight saving, or Eastern Standard Time, the year around. Public hearings began last week. The popular interest in what time it is [See main news section] forced continuance of hearings to this week.

Chicago is an island of eastern standard time in the central standard zone during the summer. The new ordinance simply makes the island permanent. The central standard time belt is 15 degrees wide and is divided equally by the 90th meridian [imaginary north-south line], which is a base for one of the 24 world time zones. These were devised by Sir Sanford Fleming, who surveyed the Canadian Pacific railroad and became its chief engineer. He chose the Greenwich observatory at London as zero and divided the 360 degrees of the earth's circumference by 15 so 24 zone meridians would mark the passing of the sun at hourly intervals. Thus, the United States was divided into Eastern, Central, Mountain, and Pacific zones 5, 6, 7, and 8 hours slower than Greenwich time. Chicago is 10 minutes east of the base line which runs through western Illinois. Since sun time is four minutes different for every degree of longitude, every town not on the time meridian is from 0 to 30 minutes off sun time.

American railroads, harassed by time conflicts, embraced Fleming's standard in 1833 although it wasn't adopted by scientists until a year later and congress waited until 1918 to make it legal. The railways laid out the zones for the sake of time table convenience and not geographical accuracy. Thus, the central standard boundaries are not straight but meandering lines that make some points over an hour off sun time. The eastern boundary runs through Detroit to Florida's western state line, but Ohio is in the eastern while points in Virginia and North Carolina much farther east are in the central belt. The zone also extends much farther west than the 97½ meridian, even across the 105th meridian, the theoretical center of mountain time.

Milk.

Overthrow of the Pure Milk association [representing 18,000 farmers] and obtaining "cost of production" [5.3 cents a quart] were the goals of the milk strike called three weeks ago by the United Farmers of Illinois. The strike died last week after eighteen days of violence. The strikers' new marketing agency, Union Producers, took a vote and then agreed to sell temporarily to thirty independent dealers for 3.7 cents a quart flat. The PMA gets 3.7 cents for 55 per cent or a 3.1 average. PMA Manager Don Geyer, target of the strikers, announced that 111 of 139 PMA locals were delivering milk to their 115 dealers, and deserters were trying to return. While the Chicago supply approached normal again, the Union Producers asserted that PMA farmers shipping 65 per cent of it had voted to leave the PMA.

Sweitzer.

Robert M. Sweitzer said that because he was short $414,000 when he left the office of county clerk was no reason that he should be ousted from the office of county treasurer to which he was afterward elected. Last Tuesday, however, Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher said it was a very good reason. Sweitzer, said the judge, had admitted the shortage and refused to turn it over. That constituted misconduct. It did not matter in which office it occurred. It made him ineligible for either and the county board had power to remove him. Sweitzer will appeal to the Supreme court. Meanwhile he will be called to trial tomorrow on the criminal charge of withholding public funds. [See main news section.]

Strange

United States Marshal Henry L. Dillingham of Kansas City, Mo., was driving with a friend. On highway 40, the friend drove 40 miles an hour. On highway 71, he drove 71 miles an hour. When they reached highway 169, Marshal Dillingham got out.

A daring thief stole two hives of bees from a farm near Tulsa, Okla.

A large tombstone fell on Robert Campbell, 6 years old, while he was playing in the cemetery of the Mount Parran Presbyterian church, Harrisonville, Md. He was unhurt.

To guard his restaurant against burglars, John Cetrone, Chicago, slept with a revolver at his side. He dreamed during the night and fatally wounded himself while asleep.

The Rev. C. A. Nelson was arrested for speeding 65 miles an hour in Summit street, St. Paul. He explained he thought he was in Michigan avenue, Chicago, where fast speeds are allowed. He was fined $25.

Herman Niemeiser, 79 years old, a New York portrait artist, feared ghosts. He told neighbors one night that he heard them. He barricaded his room door with furniture. Then he backed to the fire escape window. He fell out and to his death four floors below.

From the $168,849 estate of John W. Tharling, of Evansville, Ind., his brother and sister each received $1. That according to his will. The state received $3,278 in taxes.

James Nelson of New York was bound to lose. In court to answer a trafic charge, he bumped into pickpockets. They took all his money, $3. A few minutes later the judge fined him $3.

The State Appellate court at Los Angeles, in ruling on a lawsuit in favor of Warren Hymer, an actor, held that actors are white collar workers and not laborers. "White collar workers labor little," the court stated.

Three women fainted at Oelwein, Ia., while baking pancakes for a Pancake day celebration. Five thousand people ate 15,000 pancakes baked by thirty women.

Banana trees were planted some time ago in Union street, Memphis, Tenn. The trees bore fruit this year for the first time.

Last week M. E. Ross, a Nebraska farmer, painted his barn red. Some of the paint spattered his white hens. That night the hens were stolen. Police recovered them in an Omaha barnyard. Ross identified them by the paint spots. •

Science

Fossils.

At Peiping, China, Dr. Franz Peldenreich, former visiting professor at the University of Chicago, announced the excavating of twenty-four fossil skulls of prehistoric men in the Choukoutien cave. The skulls, possibly relics of head hunting, appeared related to the modern Mongolian, the Eskimo, and possibly the American Indian. This type of man, or sinam thropus, is the earliest true man yet discovered.

At Princeton, N. J., Dr. Glenn L. Jepsen of the university geology department announced the excavation of the complete skull of a flesh eating animal about the size of a cat which lived about 90 million years ago. It was found in the Big Horn basin of Wyoming, near Cody, along with 200 skulls of ancestors of modern cattle, buffalo, and antelope.

Alphabet.

The origin of the English alphabet has long puzzled scientists. They knew the earliest form of writing was pictures, but it was difficult to show the evolution from natural signs to artificial letters. Last week Dr. George Lamsa, authority on race study associated with Smithsonian institution, Washington, D. C., announced that every letter of the alphabet was a modified word picture. Lamsa found the key in Aramaic, a language of the Euphrates valley about 900 B. C., and discovered that the ancients of the near east used characters like ours to represent objects. Examples: A—ox worshiped as god for its power; B—house, shape resembling floor plan; C—Camel, from the hump; H—trap for foxes of the same shape; I—the human eye; K—clenched fist; L—jawbone; M—water, shaped like waves; O—a container for liquids; R—human head, including neck; T—door, as of a tent; Y—the human hand with fingers spread. Dr. Lamsa recently completed the first translation of the Old Testament from Aramaic in 2,000 years.

Crime

Aviation is being taught to specialized convicts at the Idaho state penitentiary, Boise. "But it's only ground aviation," explained Warden Ira Taylor. •• Ozark, Mo., opened a new jail. Prisoners will get only bread and water for food. They cannot smoke, play cards, or read newspapers or magazines. The jail had no prisoners at last reports. •• All Illinois prisons are to have new double steel gates. This is because Basil Banghart, gangster, smashed a gate with a truck at the Menard prison eight days ago. He was shot during his attempted escape.

Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted slayer of the Lindbergh baby, on Tuesday won a 30 day stay in his fight to escape the electric chair. He was so happy that he slept calmly that night while one of his death row cellmates, John Favorito, was being electrocuted. Hauptmann's lawyers will appeal to the United States Supreme court during the stay. On Wednesday Edward J. Reilly, who was Hauptmann's chief defense lawyer at the trial, dropped his lawsuit to collect $22,398 in fees from Hauptmann. Reilly and his wife, Mrs. Fleurette Reilly, are fighting in court over a marital separation.

"Thank God!" exclaimed Thomas H. Robinson Sr. last Sunday when a jury in Louisville, Ky., freed him and his young daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frances A. Robinson. The two were tried on charges of helping in the kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, in which a $50,000 ransom was paid. Thomas H. Robinson Jr., son of one defendant and husband of the other, still is being sought as the actual kidnaper. The Robinsons' elation over their acquittal was not shared by Mrs. Stoll or her wealthy husband, Berry Stoll.

Federal Judge John P. Barnes, Chicago, on Friday refused to aid Mrs. Anna Sage in her fight to escape deportation to Rumania. She is the "woman in red" who betrayed John Dillinger to his death July 22, 1934. She pleaded that for this service she was given promises that she would not be deported. Judge Barnes held that the service could not be considered. The government is deporting Mrs. Sage because she formerly operated disorderly houses in Indiana.

Gerald Thompson, 26 years old, of Peoria, was executed in the electric chair in the Illinois prison at Joliet. He was convicted of raping and murdering Mildred Hallmark, 19 years old, also of Peoria.

Federal agents in Washington revealed Wednesday that the charred body of a man found in a burned barn near Ontarioville in Du Page county on Jan. 6 was that of William J. Harrison, a Karpis-Barker gangster. Harrison was indicted some time ago as one of the kidnapers of Edward G. Bremer of St. Paul. Officials think fellow gangsters killed Harrison to silence him.

W. H. Reaguer, 50 years old, an undertaker of Culpeper, Va., was held to the grand jury by a coroner's jury in Washington, D. C., on Monday. He was charged with murdering Mrs. Willie Mae Wood, 21 years old, a bride of three weeks. She was found with her throat slashed in a hotel room in the capital on Oct. 12. Reaguer was found beside her, his wrists and arms hacked. Miss Anna O'Bannion, 17 years old, Mrs. Wood's cousin, occupied an adjoining room. At the inquest she testified that Reaguer and Mrs. Wood had known each other for five years and that he had proposed that they both get divorces.

Life imprisonment is the outlook for Mandeville Zenge, young farmer-carpenter from Missouri. A jury, before Judge Cornelius J. Harrington in Chicago, fixed that punishment for him Friday night for the mutilation murder of Dr. Walter J. Bauer. Dr. Bauer was killed July 31. He was the love rival of Zenge, marrying Miss Louise Schaffer, Zenge's childhood sweetheart. [See Main News Section for developments.]

Flying

Barbara Fay Ely, 6 months old, took a glider ride with her father at Angola, Ind. The father, Lawrence D. Ely, is instructor of the Glider club at Tri-State college. Barbara is believed to be the youngest glider passenger. •• At Muskogee, Okla., Aunt Sue Rogers celebrated her 91st birthday by taking her first airplane ride. She is a relative of the late Will Rogers.

Air currents over the loop were tested with a new Schampp soaring plane, made in Germany. The soaring plane was towed over the loop by a regular airplane. Joseph Steinhauser, owner and pilot, soared over the loop for an hour.

An airport that may be a link in the trans-Atlantic chain will be built in Bermuda. Construction will begin this year, Gov. Gen. Sir Thomas Astley Cubitt stated. The airport will cost $140,000.

The new navy plane, XP3Y-1, flew 3,387 miles nonstop from Panama to Alameda, Cal. Aboard were Lieutenant Commander Knefler McGinnis and a crew of five. The trip is believed to have set a new record for this type of ship. The government has ordered 60 of them. In 1934, Lieutenant Commander McGinnis led a navy squadron in a 2,399 mile nonstop flight from San Francisco to Hawaii. He broke the previous record, set by Marshal Italo Balbo in 1933. McGinnis' record later was broken by the Pan-American Airways' Clipper. The Clipper made a round trip from Florida to the Virgin Islands—2,504 miles. At present the Clipper is on another testing cruise in the orient.

The surface lines, the electric company, and the telephone company promised the city council aviation committee that they would order immediate lowering of high tension wires in the neighborhood of the Chicago airport. The power lines have been protested as a menace to planes. • • The Illinois aeronautics commission will make a good will tour to nine northern Illinois airports today.

Albert Piesman, director of the Royal Dutch Air lines, visiting at Santa Monica, Cal., said he believed that the air lines in the United States are the world's best. He predicted regular flying over the Pacific and Atlantic oceans in four years.

The Pan-American system's newest and biggest ship, the China Clipper, arrived at Miami, Fla. It will be put through severe tests there and over the Caribbean. If it passes the tests the clipper will fly to the west coast to head the California-China air fleet.

Education

President Pat. M. Neff of Baylor university dismissed three co-eds from the university at chapel last Monday. He said that his loyalty to the school forced him to dismiss the young ladies for the good of the university.

Two more radical students were barred from the University of Michigan campus last Thursday. They were suspended for distributing literature on the campus after they had been told not to. Both of the students were told that they might return to school when they signed a pledge to obey university rules. The previous week Alexander G. Ruthven, president of the university, had refused to allow three former students to return to school because of their radical activities last spring.

St. Mary's college at South Bend, Ind., announced Sunday that it had withdrawn from associate membership in the American Association of University Women. Sister M. Madelva, C. S. C., president of the university, said the action was taken because the A. A. U. W. was in favor of making it legal for doctors to give out birth control information.

Art

Mellon.

Rich Andrew Mellon's 40 million dollar collection of paintings is rated the most valuable art collection in the world. But his Raphaels, Valasquez, Botticellis, Rubens, Rembrandts, Van Dycks, and Stuarts have never been viewed by the public. Last week Mellon, former secretary of the treasury, in Pittsburgh deeded 10 million dollars to a trust for the construction of "the National Gallery of Art of the United States" in Washington, D. C., by June 30, 1941. The trust was created in 1930 and now possesses pictures worth 25 million dollars. The building, which is not in any way to bear the Mellon name, will be given to the government. The deed apparently removes the threat that Mellon would change his mind about building a gallery because the bureau of internal revenue reversed itself last March during his income tax appeal hearing and ruled that the trust was taxable. Whether the 10 million dollars is tax exempt will probably be decided by the federal tax courts. The question is whether the trust is truly educational and charitable. Mellon predicted in the deed that "Washington may become the leading art center of the world."

Van Gogh.

Vincent Van Gogh [1853-'90] was the son of a Dutch pastor. His life was one of complete frustration except for his art. After a boyhood of squalor and poverty he turned to painting at 28, tried evangelism among Belgium miners, and went to Paris, where he met red-headed, psychopathic Paul Gaugain, a great artist. Van Gogh was ugly, and when a woman twitted him about his large head and floppy ears he cut off one and sent it to her. He later was committed to an insane asylum. Knowing that he was going completely mad, he shot himself at 37. In nine years he had done 700 paintings. All they ever brought him was $109. Last week a shipment of ninety-one of his works arrived in New York for a tour of American art galleries. The collection, many lent by his nephew namesake, is conservatively valued at one million dollars.

LIQUOR.

During the year ended Oct. 1 133,956,626 gallons of beer and hard liquor were sold in Illinois, according to State Finance Director K. L. Ames. This amounted to seventeen gallons for each person in the state. Illinoisians didn't drink that much, of course. Lots of the alcoholic stuff was resold in Indiana and in Iowa, Mr. Ames said. Beer was the most popular drink, 92,329,258 gallons having been taxed since Feb. 1.

SHELL GAME.

Immigration authorities at Miami, Fla., decided last week to open a large wooden box marked "Sea Shells" which had just arrived by steamer from Nassau, Bahama Islands. They found remnants of sandwiches, a bottle of water, and William Disel, 27 years old. His attempt to smuggle himself in to a Miami address ended in a return trip to Nassau.

Deaths

Bailey, Percy M., 61, secretary of the Pathfinder Publishing company, Washington, D. C., Wednesday.

Foreman, Milton J., 72, Chicago, Wednesday. He was a lawyer and a former major general in command of the 33d division, Illinois National Guard. He commanded the 122d field artillery overseas during the world war.

Gorman, Arthur M., 47, attorney, who served as secretary to the late Congressman Charles A. Lindbergh, father of the flyer, at St. Cloud, Minn., Thursday.

Haines, Caspar Wistar, 83, builder of railroads in Mexico and Guatemala, Philadelphia, Sunday.

Hardy, Sam, 52, Hollywood, Cal., Wednesday. He was a veteran comedian of the stage and screen.

Hecht, Mrs. Jay, 59, mother of Ben Hecht, screen writer, Los Angeles, Monday. She was struck by an automobile.

Johnson, Frank J., 79, co-founder of the American Hoist and Derrick company, St. Paul, Minn., Tuesday.

Johnson, Lieut. Frank, 52, Chicago, Tuesday. He served on the police force for 25 years. He worked on the Loeb-Leopold case.

Lederer, Emil, 67, referee of Trans-Atlantic lines, New York, Thursday.

Lindberg, Capt. Knut, 70, San Francisco, Thursday. In 1917 his sailing vessel burned in the Pacific. He and fourteen men were forced into an open life boat. He guided them 1,000 miles to safety.

Lopez, Don Pedro A., 78, Bogota, Colombia, Sunday. He was the father of the Colombian president and the Colombian minister to Washington.

O'Connor, T. V., 65, Buffalo, N. Y., Thursday. He was chairman of the United States Shipping board from 1923 to 1933. He was formerly international president of the longshoremen's union.

O'Connor, the Rev. Dominic, 52, Bend, Ore., Thursday. He was chaplain to Lord Mayor Terence MacSwiney in Brixton prison, England, during the latter's historic fast.

Porter, Albert D., 75, retired magazine publisher, New York, Monday.

Sheriff, Arthur G., 71, Oak Lawn, Ill., Sunday. He was the father of Arthur Neutral Sheriff, head master of the Roxbury school, Cheshire, Conn.

Sibert, Maj. Gen. William L., 75, Bowling Green, Ky., Wednesday. An officer in the army for more than forty years, he was best known for his engineering services in the building of the Panama canal.

Stansell, the Rev. Dr. Gilbert, 53, pastor of the Cuyler Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Oak Park, Ill. Killed by a car Monday.

Van Gelder, Miss Marie, 55, former Dutch opera star, well known years ago in Europe, in New York, Sunday.

Vedder, Henry Clay, 82, Chester Pa., Sunday. He was a retired professor of theology, a writer on religious subjects, and a former editor of the Baptist Quarterly Review.

Wales, William J., who had received compliments from kings and presidents for his skill in driving six horse teams, Chicago, Sunday.

MYRTLE.

Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, former collector of internal revenue in Chicago, says she's sure she'll have to finish out a six months sentence in jail. Wives have organized against her. In January, 1934, a jury ruled she must pay $7,500 damages to Mrs. Susanne Nottingham, who charged Mrs. Blacklidge with stealing the love of her husband, Policeman Norman Nottingham. Unable to pay the judgment Mrs. Blacklidge was sent to jail. To keep her there Mrs. Nottingham must pay her board at the rate of $3.50 a week. Mrs. Nottingham found it hard to spare the money. But months ago a group of Chicago wives came to her rescue and contributed small sums, the total of which is enough to keep Mrs. Blacklidge in jail for several months. "These women," said Mrs. Nottingham, "want to keep her there as a lesson to other women who show too much interest in married men."

Politics

An exchange of letters between Senator William E. Borah of Idaho and Col. Theodore Roosevelt, son of the former President, gave the political wheel an extra turn last week.

Borah, at present one of the strong candidates for the Republican presidential nomination, sent a letter to young Roosevelt, also a possible candidate, asking his support to overthrow the present Republican national leadership. Borah also asserted his belief that monopolies and not the constitution would be the major issue in 1936.

Political observers said that the monopoly issue probably was presented to young Roosevelt in the hope that it would appeal to him since his father, when President, was famous as a trust buster. However, it did not click. In his reply to Borah, Col. Roosevelt agreed that the monopoly question deserved consideration, but declared that other issues overshadowed it. He cited the "scandalous waste of the people's money" by the New Deal as a more important question.

Only guesses can be made as to the effect of the letters on Borah's chances in the east. It is certain that he is the most talked about candidate in New England, although Frank Knox of Illinois is more generally favored. New England, a recent survey shows, is revolting against the Roosevelt New Deal. In Massachusetts last Tuesday voters overwhelmingly elected a Republican to the state senate.

As to other candidates, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan denied that he would seek the nomination, while Congressman Hamilton Fish of New York announced he would fight for it.

Everywhere last week critics of the New Deal drew larger audiences. Philadelphia particularly was responsive. Prominent men spoke there under auspices of the Sentinels of the Republic. Col. R. R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, warned of a movement, financed by the federal treasury, to establish a dictatorship. Henry Breckinridge, assistant secretary of war under Wilson, called the New Dealers Russocrats. Former Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut declared that Americans "little by little" were losing their rights.

In Washington Wednesday James M. Beck, former solicitor general, asserted that the New Deal is hostile to free speech. In Chicago on the same day Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa said that the big political issue would be Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The clergy also slapped the New Deal. The Rev. Henry Stiles Bradley of Atlanta, Ga., wrote to President Roosevelt. He told the President that people were revolting against him for "playing fast and loose with fundamentals." Dr. Robert E. Speer, of the Presbyterian church, Chicago, warned that the country could not spend itself back to prosperity. The Rev. Stanley I. Stuber of the Baptist church, Clifton Springs, N. Y., wrote to the President about the latter's recent letter to pastors. The Rev. Mr. Stuber told him the letter was clever political strategy and intrigue.

Meanwhile, Republicans strengthened their organization. Harrison E. Spangler of Iowa opened "for business" the G. O. P. western headquarters in the Palmer house, Chicago. Republicans realize they will face a strong fight in Illinois because, according to State Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, the national administration is trying to buy the state for the 1936 election. "And they're using our own money to do it," said Schnackenberg.

In Iowa Republicans organized the "Republican Volunteers of Iowa" to whip the New Deal. Horace M. Towner is president of the organization.

The Democratic front was quiet. It was learned, however, that Democrats were asking contributions from federal employés to the campaign chest. Down in Texas, the Democratic legislature moved to bar colored persons from the national party convention.

Former Gov. William [Alfalfa Bill] Murray of Oklahoma vowed his intentions to get back into the political ring. He said he planned to head a movement to elect a congress that wouldn't spend so much money.

Foreign Notes

Canada.

Last Monday voters of the dominion of Canada elected a new lower house of parliament. Such an election, which must be held at least once every five years, is the equivalent of a presidential election in the United States. The winners in the Canadian election were the Liberals, who won more than two-thirds of the seats in the house of commons. Their leader, W. Mackenzie King, will therefore become prime minister in about four weeks. The Conservatives, who have been trying to establish a Canadian New Deal, were given the worst beating in the history of the party. Followers of Social Credit, with its promise of a $25 a month dividend to every one, came in third with 17 seats from Alberta province. Other radical parties garnered only scattered seats. As a result of the defeat of his party W. D. Herridge, Conservative minister to the United States, announced his resignation two days after the election.

South Wales

The miners' federation in the South Wales coal fields has 176,000 members who have no use for the "black legs" of the rival but less important union.

A week ago 71 miners decided to stay down in their coal pit at Monmouthshire until the mine owners fired 88 nonfederation men working in an adjoining pit. The owners refused to discuss the matter until they came up. Sixty-eight of the "stay-downs" held to their post.

By Tuesday 2,400 miners joined the "stay down" strike in adjoining pits. The next day more than 11,000 went on strike on the surface and the federation threatened a complete halt of mining in South Wales. Fierce fights went on underground between the strikers and "black legs."

After voicing a demand for 50 cents more a day the federation's executive council called off the strike. All but the original strikers and 235 at Glamorgan came up. They held their ground and as the week closed 15,500 men in Tredegar and Rhondda valleys joined in to force the "black legs" out.

Rumania.

Peasants in Rumania were jubilant last Sunday when they learned that Magda Lupescu, red haired daughter of a Jewish junk dealer, was in Paris. The Peasant party has been trying to get Mme. Lupescu out of the country and away from King Carol, whose mistress she has been since 1926. The Peasants also claim that she has an important and extravagant hand in running the government. They planned to make Wednesday, which was the king's forty-second birthday, a national anti-Lupescu day. The Peasants, who have christened Magda as Rumania's "public enemy No. 1," distributed letters calling for an uprising to show how unpopular she is in the country. The uprising fizzled, however, and Mme. Lupescu slipped back into the country in time to help the king celebrate.

Poland

Marjan Zyndram-Koscialkowski was accepted as the new Polish premier by President Ignace Moscicki last Sunday. In the new cabinet were six old and six new ministers. Among the leftovers was Col. Josef Beck, long Poland's foreign minister. He was reappointed over the protests of the army men headed by Gen. Edward Rydz-Smigly. The army men do not approve of Beck's friendliness toward Germany. The new premier is expected to ask the parliament for emergency powers like those given Premier Laval in France.

Medicine

Cures of insanity by drugs and high blood pressure by surgery were predicted last week at the Interstate Post-Graduate Medical association meeting in Detroit. Dr. Charles H. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., said he has used a drug experimentally that changes the blood circulation of the brain and restores sanity for short periods. Within five years, he believes, the cure can be made permanent, especially in youth. The drug will remain a secret during tests. •• Dr. George Crile, noted Cleveland surgeon, said he has performed operations which relieved the blood pressure of 82 persons. The substance that causes malignant hypertension, he believes, is manufactured in the sympathetic nervous system leading to the adrenal and thyroid glands rather than in the glands. He clips some of these nerves. Dr. Crile doesn't yet know whether the cure is permanent.

In Round Grove, Ill., short, heavy set, but highly nervous Mrs. Harold McKee started yawning again and doctors started scratching their heads again. Last December Mrs. McKee yawned at the rate of eight to twenty times a minute for nine days. Specialists couldn't find anything the matter. All last week her aching jaws gaped from eight to eleven times a minute. Her doctor said the yawning was more severe and she was rapidly weakening. The doctor kept Mrs. McKee under sedatives, but she continued to yawn while half conscious. He blamed "work and worry" from caring for a tubercular husband and a diabetic son, 12. •• In Saratoga Springs, N. Y., the Rev. J. McCormick Beeten, 69, hiccoughed for 107 hours and then died of a blood clot in the lungs. The disease was either aggravated or brought on by the hiccoughs.

In Washington, D. C., surgeons removed the appendix of Charles G. Senseney, internal revenue department employé, and found he had hoarded a gold crown in it. Senseney swallowed it three years ago. ••

In Los Angeles doctors X-rayed Robert T. Fletcher and found a wrist watch in his stomach. It was proof that Fletcher snatched her purse and then swallowed her tiny watch when she summoned a policeman, said Mrs. Mildred Ferguson. Doctors are trying to remove the evidence. •• In Michigan City, Ind., Edwin Smith, 10, was a quarter richer after doctors removed the coin from his esophagus. It slipped from between his teeth when his bicycle hit a rut. •• In Narrowsburg, N. Y., Betty Kinney, 7, was on the operating table when she coughed up the toy whistle which brought her there. •• In Milwaukee James Winklewski, 4, had two teeth pulled and died the next day when the dentist couldn't stop the bleeding.

In Cleveland physicians gathered at Western Reserve university and listened to the phonograph recorded whoops of Edna, a chimpanzee. This, said Dr. G. S. Shibley, was proof that Edna really caught the whooping cough from a bacillus and not a virus. Bacillus cultures were sprayed over the chimpanzee with an atomizer to ape the manner in which humans catch whooping cough. Twelve days later she began coughing.

AMELIA'S MEDAL.

Last May 23 Dr. Giuseppe Castruccio, then the royal Italian consul general in Chicago, pinned a so-called Balbo medal on Amelia Earhart. Last week in Chicago Miss Earhart revealed that she had returned the medal to him. Its present whereabouts is not known; Dr. Castruccio, who might know, is on his way to a new consulate in Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Miss Earhart and her husband, George Palmer Putnam, explained why she had returned the medal. They had believed, they said, that the medal was an official decoration from the Italian government.

On Aug. 2, however, Dr. Castruccio wrote to Miss Earhart saying that the medal was not an official decoration of his government. It was, he said, his own gift of personal devotion. She couldn't accept it on that basis. The Italian embassy in Washington stated there is no "Balbo medal."

Chicagoland

Wisconsin.

Racine, which has suffered much from strikes under the New Deal, was again in a turmoil last week. At the Walker Manufacturing company, makers of automobile parts and accessories, pickets and sympathizers defeated a force of sherif deputies and prevented them from leaving the plant with patterns belonging to the Twin Disc Clutch company, which they were trying to recover. Mayor W. J. Swoboda refused to permit the city police to help the sherif's men. •• A 358 pound black bear, wandering in from the woods around Superior, became so enamored of city life that it could not be driven back to its native wilds and was shot as a public nuisance. •• Wayne Taliaferro, 19 year old colored high school boy in Madison, is being held on a charge of attempting to attack a University of Wisconsin co-ed on the university grounds. It was the third of a series of attacks at the university. A policeman waiting in ambush shot the fugitive when he fled. •• The University of Wisconsin received $352,105 in gifts from private philanthropists during the year, C. W. Vaughn, university accountant, reported Thursday. •• Bank robbers in overalls held up and robbed the Bank of Sun Prairie Friday and escaped with $2,500 after menacing four employés and a customer. •• State Senator William H. Shenners, chairman of the senate committee to investigate federal works in the state, said Friday the committee would begin an investigation of WPA next week. He said he had many complaints that only La Follette radicals are getting jobs.

Michigan.

Eleven persons were killed by automobiles in Michigan over the weekend. One of them was Charles Burchard of Kalamazoo, who was killed driving in a race in Detroit. •• Frederick Meyers, 86 years old, a leader in the carriage industry half a century ago, died in Kalamazoo. •• John W. Wiley, 70 years old, a farmer living near Flint, beat his wife, set fire to his home, and killed himself because she had sued for divorce. •• A jury in Lansing awarded $10,000 to Mrs. Dena Shepherd of Grand Rapids for the death of her husband in the Hotel Kerns fire of last Dec. 11. •• Henry E. Langelland, 77 years old, a former mayor of Muskegon, died in Muskegon. •• The Lansing city council took under advisement an amendment to allow skating in public rinks on Sundays. The council skipped action on an ordinance to permit the sale of beer on Sundays. •• A meeting will be held in Grand Rapids on Oct. 29 to push the movement for a waterway between Grand Rapids and Lake Michigan. •• Saginaw voted for a commission form of government, with a city manager instead of a mayor. •• K. K. Viking, county agricultural agent at Alto, announced that he had distributed $5,000 to more than 100 farmers in connection with the federal wheat program. •• The 1935 Calhoun county [Battle Creek] fair made a profit of nearly $1,400. •• The city of Detroit complained to the state public utilities commission that it is paying more than its share of the operation costs of the Michigan Bell Telephone company. The city asks a $2,500,000 reduction in the company's annual income in the Detroit area. •• The strike of 1,400 miners in the Saginaw valley ended Thursday.

Indiana.

Mrs. Margaret Josephine Usery died in Linton at the age of 99 years. •• A grass fire swept 100 acres near Evansville. •• Wayne Powers, 17, was injured when a bomb exploded outside the Powers home in Terre Haute. Wayne's older brother, Charles Jr., works in a strike affected plant. •• Gov. Paul V. McNutt revealed a $61,000,000 increase in the total resources of Indiana banks during the last two years. •• State police began enforcement of the new state law governing the shipment and sale of fresh fruits and vegetables. •• The state milk control law was temporarily suspended in South Bend, Terre Haute, and Muncie pending court tests of the law. •• William Krueger, 55 years old, former city controler of La Porte, was sentenced to prison for one to five years and fined $100 for embezzling $13,616. •• Approximately $10,000 will be paid to depositors of the Bank of Seward at Burket. •• Diphtheria increased slightly in Fort Wayne. •• Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins spoke at the Ball State Teachers' college, Muncie. She praised capitalistic methods of production. •• Five hundred delegates attended the 1935 convention of the state grange at Ligonier. •• Two gunmen held up the Strasburg Brothers jewelry store in Fort Wayne and escaped with $4,000 in cash and diamonds. •• Herbert Carver, 31 years old, was fined $60, given a 60 day suspended sentence, and deprived of his driver's license for a year by a court in Wabash. Carver's offense was driving his car into the automobile of Police Chief W. A. Hobbs of Peru.

Iowa.

Speakers at the annual convention of the Associated Credit Bureaus of Iowa, meeting in Des Moines, said Iowans are buying more goods and paying their bills more promptly than a year ago. •• Shortage of funds forced a layoff for thirty street department employés in Des Moines. •• Edward Murphy, state drivers' license examiner, said 40 Iowans had lost their licenses for careless driving during the last few weeks. •• Iowa corn cribs on Oct. 1 were the nearest to empty they have ever been, a survey showed last week. •• More than 3,000 members of the grand lodge, grand encampment, and Rebekah assembly met at the 88th annual session in Marshalltown. •• Michael Mercurio, under indictment in Des Moines for perjury in the Manley liquor seals case, was freed from jail on a $3,000 bond. •• State relief officials said that applications for relief had increased. •• A test of the Iowa state income and state sales tax laws was begun in Marshalltown court. •• Addressing the Times club in Iowa City, Edward J. O'Brien, British writer, said that Britain considers midwestern literature to be the most important in America. •• Rally day was held at the Methodist church at Strawberry Point. •• After 22 hours of deliberation a jury in Cedar Rapids still could not decide whether E. J. Vacek was drunk. The jury was discharged.

Trafic Toll

All safety leaders needed to do was point to the Washington census bureau's report last week of 35,769 deaths in trafic during 1934 and prediction of an increase in 1935 to give new impetus to safety campaigns. Motor cars killed 33,980 persons last year, while 1,789 were killed in automobile collisions with trains and street cars. The rate was 26.9 per 100,000 of population, against 23.3 for 1933, and was an increase of 23 per cent over 1932. Highest in rate but not in total was Nevada with 73.40, with most western states closely following. Illinois was nineteenth with 29.05, a 17.04 per cent rise over 1933. New York was 22.22, an increase of 3.49 per cent. Lowest was Rhode Island, 14.60. •• The National Safety congress met in Louisville, Ky. That 65 per cent of all city fatalities involve pedestrians and that 2,300 persons a year were killed walking along the highways were facts pointed out. •• The Chicago Safety council began a campaign for new members and funds in an effort to cut down the trafic toll. "The price of carelessness" in the city was 548 dead, 12,778 injured, and 13,326 accidents up to Oct. 1. The American Red Cross will launch a national "safety on highways" movement on Oct. 28. Beginning with twenty-six in Illinois and eleven in Iowa, first aid stations will be placed along the roads. Retired Admiral Cary T. Grayson, national chairman, spoke in Chicago and called trafic accidents America's biggest emergency.

WONDERFUL WOMAN.

Count Ludwig Salm admits that his ex-wife, the former Millicent Rogers, is a wonderful woman. But he does not believe that she is experienced in financial and business affairs. In a petition filed in the New York Supreme court Monday he asks the appointment of a guardian to protect the property rights of their son Peter, 11 years old. Peter is now living in Vienna with the count. He is heir to one-third of the $20,000,000 estate left by his grandfather, Col. H. H. Rogers, Standard Oil executive.

Labor

William Green was reëlected president of the American Federation of Labor Friday at Atlantic City, N. J., where the federation has been holding its 55th annual convention. Green has already served ten terms. Matthew Woll, veteran spokesman for the federation, was reëlected to the third vice presidency. A few delegates, in a surprise move, voted against him. [See main news section.]

Outside of the election, the principal business of the convention last week concerned the industrial and craft unions' fight. The industrial union bloc, headed by John L. Lewis, chief of the United Mine Workers, wanted all workers in any one industry in one union. The craft unions wanted to stay separate. They won.

The federation on Thursday declared Italy an outlaw nation and urged all countries to deny Italy war assistance.

A riot broke out on the convention floor yesterday. A fist fight between Lewis and President William Hitcheson of the carpenters' union started it. [See Main News section for latest details.]

Striking girl cosmetic workers in New York tore the clothes of several girls seeking jobs. The strike is against Plough, Inc. On Monday the company advertised for help. About 75 girls responded. The fights started.

Maude Adams

Thirty years ago New York was thrilled by a new play, "Peter Pan," the work of Sir James Barrie. The story was that of a little boy who never grew up, and represented the immortal spirit, charm and freshness of youth. The title rôle was played by Maude Adams. Overnight Miss Adams became famous.

Last week New York was thrilled again. "Peter Pan" had come to life again. But New Yorkers went to court and not to the theater to see. Miss Adams, now 63, was a defendant in a suit for $200,000 brought by John D. Williams, a theatrical agent. Williams claimed the money for services in trying to bring about Miss Adams' return to the theater in 1931. In that year she made a brief appearance in "The Merchant of Venice."

Williams testified on Wednesday that he had no written contract with Miss Adams. She testified for herself the next day, disagreed with much of Williams' story, and mentioned that she received 50 per cent of the net receipts from her appearance in "The Merchant." "But I made less than Mr. Skinner," she added. She referred to Otis Skinner, who played the rôle Shylock. Testimony ended Friday, with Michael Strange, prominent actress, as the last witness. Arguments will be made tomorrow.

STOCKS BOUND TO 4 YEAR HIGHS ON PEACE NEWS

Gains of 1 to 3 Points Are Frequent.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 19.—Industrial stocks today bounded to new high levels since 1931 as Wall street indicated its relief over the relaxation of the war tension. Net gains of 1 to 3 points were common in many parts of the list.

The bears took to the woods just as soon as the news reached the exchange that Mussolini was making overtures for peace and that the threatened clash between Italy and Great Britain probably would be averted. Trade speeded up, boosting the turnover for the two hour session to almost a million shares.

Large blocks changed hands at frequent intervals throughout the session, particularly at the opening. Brokers said a large part of the buying represented short covering by traders who had gone out on the proverbial limb on the theory that a general war was in the making.

Industrial Figures Aid.

The week-end power production and carloadings figures provided some ammunition for the bull contingent, and reports of increased cigaret production gave a fillip to the tobacco shares. Talk of possible inflationary legislation at the forthcoming session of congress was still another factor in the improved situation.

Numerous trading favorites of varied description were bid up to new price peaks for the year. Among the more conspicuous gains were Chrysler, which rose 3⅜ points to a new 1935 high; Westinghouse, 3⅞; Western Union, 3⅝; Motor Products, 4½; Eastman Kodak, 2¾; Sun Oil, 2½; Greyhound corporation, 2⅞; Spiegel, May, Stern, 3⅞; Minneapolis Honeywell, 3; Mengel company preferred, 8¼, and J. I. Case, 6¾ points.

Motor issues were conspicuously active, General Motors and Chrysler rising to new highs. Packard, a star performer in yesterday's session, rose fractionally on heavy volume.

Steel Shares Higher.

Considerable interest was shown in the steel stocks, particularly in United States Steel and Bethlehem, large blocks of each moving at higher figures.

Rails and oils moved ahead with the procession, and the utilities did better than they have for some time. In the later trading, packing stocks came to the front once more under the leadership of Armour.

There were some exceptions to the general rise, such as the coppers. They had been bought as "war stocks," because it was known that foreign demand for the red metal had been greatly stimulated by the European crisis. Now it is said that some of the buying was done by foreign speculators who are letting go because of the more peaceful aspect of the situation.

Western Stocks Rise.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Heavy buying boosted western industrial shares today in the most active Saturday trading in more than two years on the San Francisco Stock exchange.

A dozen issues, including nine industrials, swept to new tops for the year with the newly listed Chrysler far out in front on a net rise of four points. Chrysler reached 84⅛ and finished at 83⅝, compared with the Wall street close of 83⅝.

On the curb exchange General Motors reached a new top at 50 and netted 1⅜ at 49⅞.

HUPP'S PRESENT DIRECTORS WILL RETAIN CONTROL

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 19.—(AP)—The present board of directors of the Hupp Motor Car corporation remained in control of the company today, backed by a ruling of Federal Judge Arthur J. Tuttle.

In a decision in the suit brought against Archie M. Andrews, former chairman of the board, Judge Tuttle held that Andrews' contracts with the corporation for bonus payments and stock options were void. Judge Tuttle referred to Andrews' absence from the trial with the comment that "if he had a defense, he should have appeared."

The suit was brought by Walter H. Drake, who also has served as chairman of the Hupp board.

A. M. Lowenthal, counsel for Andrews, said he would seek permission to appeal the court's ruling. The attorney contended the trial should be in Virginia where the corporation was created.

14 STATES FAVOR PACT ON 40 HOUR WEEK FOR LABOR

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Legislatures of 14 states will be asked to ratify an interstate agreement for a 40 hour week for labor, under a report adopted here today by representatives of those states.

The report, approved by delegates to the interstate conference on industrial compacts, provides that the proposed agreement will not be binding on the states participating until it has been ratified by legislatures of the 14 states.

The conference also adopted a report recommending an agreement for interstate minimum fair wage standards.

The states represented include Colorado, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and seven eastern states.

Government Expenditures in First Quarter of New Fiscal Year in Huge Gain Over Year Ago

BANK DEPOSIT DEBITS INDICATE LARGE GAIN IN WEEK'S BUSINESS

Business activity throughout the nation gained sharply last week over both the preceding week and the corresponding 1934 period, weekly banking statistics disclosed yesterday. Money withdrawn from individual deposit accounts in the week ended Oct. 16 totaled $7,697,329,000, compared with $7,165,901,000 a week earlier and $6,566,984,000 a year ago.

Similar gains were recorded in the Chicago area—the seventh reserve district. Debits by 162 banks in 41 clearing house cities amounted to $942,760,000, an upturn of 8.4 per cent over the previous week. Excluding Elgin, Ill., for which comparable 1934 figures were not reported, volume of the 40 banks was $941,071,000, against $836,114,000 last year, an increase of 12.6 per cent.

Chicago's total was $538,315,000 last week, compared with $508,919,000 in the 1934 period.

Bank clearings reported by members of the Chicago clearing house for the week ended yesterday totaled $315,200,000, compared with $198,900,000 a week earlier, which had only five business days. In the same period of 1934 the total stood at $256,800,000.

AUTO WORKERS' AVERAGE PAY RISES 28 PCT.

New York, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Automobile factory workers have scored "important gains" in earnings and employment this year, according to the Automobile Manufacturers' association survey issued today.

A gain of 28 per cent in the average earnings of individual automobile workers for the first ten months of the 1935 model production season was recorded over last lear, the study said. During this period there was an increase of 26 per cent in wholesale sales of cars and trucks.

"In view of the unusually well sustained demand for cars during the close of the 1935 season an even greater percentage improvement in individual earnings is expected for the entire production year," it was said.

A primary cause of this improvement for the individual worker has been "a big increase in the proportion of jobs lasting the best part of the year," according to the study.

CHICAGO STOCKS SET NINETEEN NEW 1935 HIGHS

Nineteen Chicago stocks rose to new highs for the year yesterday bringing the total for the week to sixty-three issues. Total trade was 59,000 shares, the heaviest turnover for a Saturday since Feb. 10, 1934. Transactions for the week numbered 369,000 shares.

Most gains yesterday were fractional although a few issues stood out by scoring larger advances. Chicago corporation, Merchants & Manufacturers, Zenith, Swift, and Great Lakes Dredge again ranked high in speculative favor. Improvement of a point or more was turned in by Allied Products, Borg-Warner, Bendix, Continental Steel, Kalamazoo Stove, Keystone Steel, Muskegon Motor Specialties, Public Service, and Sangamo Electric.

Owens-Illinois to Vote on Stock Increase Nov. 15

Toledo, O., Oct. 19.—A special meeting of stockholders of the Owens-Illinois Glass company today was set for Nov. 15 to authorize an increase in common stock in connection with the purchase of the Libbey Glass Manufacturing company, Owens-Illinois will issue 47,200 shares of its common stock for the Libbey assets. Stockholders of Owens-Illinois will be asked to authorize an increase from 1,200,000 shares of common stock to 1,500,000 shares.

U. S. Exports Much Munition Goods to Italy

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Commerce department trade experts disclosed today from official figures that the United States has been supplying a major part of a big increase in Italian imports of four classes of products easily made into munitions.

Italy's foreign trade figures, not yet available beyond midyear, show her purchases of American cotton waste, iron and steel scrap, copper, benzol, toluol, and xylol in the first half of the year were double to quadruple the volume for the first six months of 1934. In every instance the increase in Italian purchases was larger for the United States alone than for all countries combined.

Not on Embargo List.

None of the commodities is on the list of war materials subject to the embargo ordered by President Roosevelt, although cotton waste, for example, can be turned into guncotton by a simple chemical process. Secretary Roper has asserted that the munitions board is considering whether the list of materials should be enlarged. He emphasized that the Italo-Ethiopian conflict was not entering into the deliberations, however.

Ethiopia's purchases from the United States are relatively negligible, aggregating $19,000 in 1934.

In the first eight months of this year, the commerce department's figures show, exports to Italy were worth $44,044,203, compared with $40,344,564 in the corresponding months last year. The statistics reveal that in August Italy took 33,078 of the 156,685 tons of iron and steel scrap exported from this country. She got 11,975,554 of 56,805,404 pounds of copper ingots; she imported 89 and her colonies 99 of 9,997 trucks and buses exported.

Italian Import Figures.

The Italian figures for six months show Italy imported 3,239 metric tons of cotton waste, or 1,307 more than in the first half of 1934. Imports from the United States rose 1,720 tons to a total of 2,281.

Italy increased its total iron and steel scrap imports 52,000 tons to 412,000, with the United States boosting its total exports 69,000 to an aggregate of 146,957. The rest of the world sent Italy 47,000 tons of copper in the first half of this year, a gain of 8,000 tons. The United States supplied 16,579 tons, a jump of more than 9,200.

Italy's receipts of benzol, toluol, and xylol—coal tar products useful for munitions—rose 2,300 tons to a total of 7,700 tons. The United States accounted for 2,976, which was 2,356 over 1934.

Auto Export Stopped.

Three big motor companies reported to government officials today that they had no unfilled orders for shipment of automobiles or trucks to Italian Africa.

The Ford Motor company recently was revealed to have stopped shipments to the Italo-Ethiopian war area. Further information showed that company's last shipment was Aug. 7, although prior to that date it had sent 2,026 vehicles valued at $1,352,911.

The Chrysler corporation, which sent 36 units to Italian Africa in 1935, valued at $36,297, likewise reported no unfilled orders. The Mack International Motor Truck corporation had no orders pending and said it had supplied no trucks to the area.

21 Favorable Dividend Actions Voted in Week

New York, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Favorable dividend changes in the last week totaled 21 against 23 in the previous week, according to Standard Statistics company. Unfavorable changes numbered five, the same as the week before. Important dividend meetings scheduled next week include those of Burroughs Adding Machine, Diamond Match, Norfolk and Western railway, United Gas Improvement, Liggett & Myers Tobacco, United Biscuit, Ingersoll Rand, and Freeport Texas company.

COMMODITY PRICES HIGHLY IRREGULAR DURING LAST WEEK

The trend of commodity prices was highly irregular in the principal markets last week. Most of the commodities whose prices have been inflated by speculative buying based on war prospects were lower at the close of the week. Late news suggesting that an immediate general conflict had been averted caused liquidation by speculators.

Wheat lost about 3½ cents a bushel as compared with the price prevailing a week earlier. July wheat in Chicago touched a new low. Cotton closed without change, but losses were shown in the hog, lard, and coffee markets. In New York the December hide futures sold at new high prices for the season.

The following table shows yesterday's closing prices on a representative list of commodities, as compared with quotations of the preceding week and the high and low figures for the season:

WHEAT SLUMPS AS HOPE OF WAR PROFITS FADE

Prices Under $1, but Recover Partially.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Speculators who had been accumulating wheat on the prospect that a European war was an immediate probability yesterday lost some of their confidence as a result of the peaceful gestures made by the prospective belligerent nations. Heavy selling developed in wheat on the Chicago Board of Trade and prices of all future contracts dropped below $1 a bushel for a short time.

Losses of 3½ cents a bushel were shown on the blackboard at the peak of the selling. However, a partial recovery developed before the close of the market and final quotations were about 1⅛ cents a bushel below Friday's final quotations. December wheat closed at $1.00⅞ a bushel.

Traders Clamor to Sell.

When the market opened yesterday morning the wheat pit was crowded with traders who were clamoring to sell. Little demand appeared until prices had fallen sharply. News dispatches before the market opening told of the simultaneous action on the part of England, Italy, and France which gave promise that an immediate conflict had been averted. Later news reinforced these hopes and traders were anxious to take what profits they had in the market.

Trading in the English market in Liverpool before the opening of business here gave a clear indication of the reaction of speculators to the late political news. The setback in prices in the foreign market prepared traders here for lower prices. The low quotations of the day were marked up shortly after the start of business, after which an irregular recovery in prices began.

Rye Also Shows Weakness.

Aside from wheat, rye was the only grain that developed any marked weakness. The principal rye futures lost more than a cent but corn and oats closed only slightly below the preceding day's quotations.

Closing prices on December futures, with comparative quotations were:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Week ago. [*Oct. 11]
Wheat	$1.00⅞	$1.02⅝	$1.04⅜
Corn	.59	.59⅛	.60⅝
Oats	.27¼	.27⅝	.28¼
Rye	.49⅞	.51⅛	.53⅜

*Saturday, Oct. 12, was a market holiday.

Yesterday's decisive setback in wheat prices was the second during the week. Last Wednesday wheat tumbled 3½ cents a bushel on selling which was generally attributed to the uneasiness over the Canadian situation.

Canada Denies Dumping.

The rumors of dumping which followed the defeat of the Bennett government were quickly denied. The market, however, throughout the week displayed a nervousness which had not been seen during the preceding week. Prices had been going up irregularly for about six weeks.

As measured by the December future price, wheat is now worth about 20 cents more than at the season's low level. A recession of about 9 cents a bushel has taken place since the high price of $1.09½ a bushel was reached a few weeks ago.

AUTO OUTPUT MUCH LARGER IN LAST WEEK

Automobile production in the United States and Canada mounted sharply last week as operations on new models were stepped up, Cram's Reports, Inc., said yesterday. Output was 44,416 units, compared with 31,643 a week earlier and 29,069 in the same week of 1934.

Cram's pointed to the year to year comparison as an indication of the effect that the automobile industry will have on business general during the next three months, a period that usually marked a decided slump in the past.

Illinois Smelter to Move to Argentina Due to Unions

Collinsville, Ill., Oct. 19.—(AP)—The St. Louis Smelting and Refining company is moving its Collinsville plant to the Argentine. J. A. Caselton, vice president and secretary of the company, said the shift to South America was being made because the Progressive Miners' union "virtually tried to run our plant." The plant has been closed for more than a year due to labor difficulties.

Mounting Bank Deposits Worry Many Interests—Gold Stocks Climb to New Peaks—Inflation Threatens—False "Boom" Fostered—New Deal Blamed—Federal Income Falls.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Gold, which is the basis of currency, and bank deposits, which are the basis of check book money, continue to mount in the United States, thus increasing the worries of business leaders, bankers, insurance men, and others who fear that credit expansion may get out of control and develop into an unbridled inflation boom.

For the first time in history the gold reserves of the United States last week passed the 9½ billion dollar mark. Never before had any nation even approached that level. After the bank moratorium in March, 1933, the gold reserves of the United States were 3 billion 916 million dollars. The arbitrary revaluation of gold at $35 per ounce automatically raised the dollar value of America's gold reserves 69 per cent. Confiscation of private hoards added more. Lately a series of European money and war scares has been sending hundreds of millions of additional gold to the United States. The threat of a general European war following the Ethiopian trouble intensified this flow.

Inflation.

The 9 billion 584 million dollars of gold in treasury vaults, however, is not the principal concern of those who fear inflation. Their chief worry is the vast and growing reservoir of unused bank deposits, which is being steadily augmented by rising government debt. The excess reserves of banks lying sterile in the vaults of the twelve federal reserve institutions on Wednesday rose to a new all time high of 2 billion, 910 million dollars, sufficient to finance a bank credit expansion of nearly 30 billion dollars.

William Brown Bell of New York, president of the American Cyanamid company, which two years ago sent monetary experts to central Europe to study what happened there during the post-war inflation period, speaking on Tuesday before the Illinois Manufacturers Costs association, viewed the prospect of inflation with much concern.

"No nation in Europe would now let itself fall into inflation," he said, "but our administration at Washington does not seem to be disturbed by the possibilities. It seems apparent that some members of the administration would like to see the nation go down because they believe that out of the wreck would emerge some sort of a communistic state."

Criticism.

Another inflation fearer, Charles R. Gay, president of the New York Stock exchange, here to address the Chicago Association of Stock Exchange Firms, commented in an interview that the United States, sole important nation of the world to tax capital gains, was fostering inflation of stock prices by discouraging investors from selling when they had paper profits. If they take their profits they must pay stiff federal taxes. Consequently, they hold on, creating a scarcity of stocks in the market and sustaining an artificial rise in quotations.

Other business leaders speaking in Chicago contributed to the chorus of criticism of New Deal policies.

Said Percy S. Young at the annual convention of the American Gas association, of which he is president:

"There seems to be more or less failure to grasp the simple economic fact that business must make a profit in order to grow and progress. Perhaps this is not strange when we are faced with so many unsound experimental and economically bewildering measures affecting our national economy. It is fallacious to assume that high taxes can be passed on to the consumer, for a point is reached where the cost is greater than the consumer will pay."

Tax.

Said Roy C. Osgood, vice president of the First National bank of Chicago, at a Chicago Association of Commerce luncheon:

"The new [tax] law is a direct incentive to tax avoidance. It is a patent fact to those who know that the attitude of individuals toward such a law becomes one of resentment, with the result not only of lack of incentive to augment a fortune, but the creation of extravagance, foreign spending, gifts to tax exempt recipients, or other decisions which are in effect anti-social."

Said Mary E. Dillon, president of the Brooklyn Borough Gas company, one of the few women to hold top positions in industry:

"It behooves all business men to be on the alert, for we have a great deal to be apprehensive of if we do not halt the stifling of individual incentive which is going on now."

President Roosevelt's estimate last January that the federal deficit for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1935, would be 4 billion, 500 million dollars, recently revised downward, will have to be revised upward again, if tax figures given out by the treasury last week are an indication. Much depends upon the decision of the Supreme court on the constitutionality of the AAA processing taxes on farm products. In July, 1934, processing tax collections totaled 43 millions. In July, 1935, they were 15 millions. The result was that, despite heavier collections in other divisions, total tax collections for this fiscal year on Oct. 15 began to drop behind total collections for the corresponding period of 1934.

AAA.

Meanwhile, the AAA was busy patching up parts of its program of creating artificial scarcity.

On Friday Secretary of Agriculture Wallace launched a program to curtail production of rye by paying rye raisers who agree to reduce their production bonuses of 35 cents per bushel and levying a 30 cents per bushel processing tax. On Monday the department of agriculture announced that the nation's reserve supplies of meat in cold storage had reached a new record low in September, a drop of 60 per cent since January. Scarcity of meat is due to last year's drouth, plus the pig destruction campaign of the AAA. [See AAA, general review section.]

Speed.

DEATH VALLEY SCOTTY.
[Acme photo.]

Back in 1905 "Death Valley Scotty" chartered a special train and traveled from Los Angeles to Chicago in 44 hours and 54 minutes. That record stood until recently when the Union Pacific's new Diesel train — Streamliner — City of Portland, made the trip in 39 hours and 45 minutes. Thursday night at 10:34 the Santa Fe's Chief, made up of standard Pullmans and drawn by a 3,600 horse power Diesel locomotive, rolled into the Dearborn station in Chicago 39 hours and 34 minutes out of Los Angeles, a new record by 11 minutes. Santa Fe press agents concealed the news for a day, taking the edge off their announcement.

Precedent.

Morgan Stanley & Co., the "Junior House of Morgan," broke precedent by printing a financial summary of Illinois Bell Telephone company in its advertisments offering 45 million dollars of that company's refunding bonds. Recent amended rulings by the Securities and Exchange commission have made it possible for bond underwriters to tell some but not all information about the finances of companies offering bonds. Other underwriters were expected to follow suit.

Indicators.

Most business barometers last week continued to show improvement. The steel industry lagged, awaiting increased demands from motor manufacturers. For the second consecutive week consumption of electric power set a new all time high, up 12.7 per cent above year ago levels. Dun & Bradstreet reported continued gains in production and distribution of merchandise. Retailers were reported preparing for the best holiday buying since 1931. Bank clearings were 20.6 per cent higher than a year ago. Railroad freight car loading continued at the best volume in four years. The Illinois department of labor reported a 44.2 per cent rise from a year ago figures in September building permits. American Telephone and Telegraph company reported a slight increased in earnings for the first nine months, compared with the corresponding period of 1934.

Solving the "Job Request" Problem for Executives

● The average executive is approached almost daily by relatives, acquaintances, sons of personal friends and many others for advice and help in getting a job.

● It's a difficult and often an awkward problem, to which most of us are seeking an outlet. Fortunately I have one and I'm going to pass it along. I have been placing men in my own organization for various friends and the plan has worked out so well that now, in my present expansion program, I have decided to tell other executives about it.

● We are selling what I believe to be the greatest thing of its kind ever made—a vacuum cleaner that is winning the praise of housewives all over the U. S. Our company is rated over $1,000,000 high, and our men are making money on a commission basis; and what is even more important, learning that most valuable of assets—salesmanship. What has been done for these men can be done for those you send here. We require that they be personable, and between the ages of 23 and 40. Give me that kind of a man and I'll show you how to get him out of the depression blues.

● Your recommendations will be appreciated. The applicants you send will be shown every courtesy—and they may win a real future.

LITTLE KNOWN Stocks present new OPPORTUNITIES

MOST prominent stocks of the "Blue Chip" class are selling at levels, high both from the standpoint of earnings and yield. Government action is making the expansion of big corporations more difficult. No longer can an investor pick a profitable investment simply by a famous name.

Today attention market-wise is being focused upon sound, well managed, and less well-known companies with promising futures . . . companies whose stocks have not been exploited in the recent market rise, and that still appear underpriced on a price-earnings basis.

Latest UNITED OPINION Bulletin names and analyzes ten such promising issues, giving definite recommendation for purchase.

BROKERS' LOANS SHRINK DESPITE RISE IN STOCKS

Figures Show Public Buying for Cash.

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—The failure of brokers' loans to show any expansion in recent months, in the face of rising prices for stocks and increasing stock market activity, has been one of the most unusual features of the current bull market.

Although stock prices, measured by the averages, have risen over 38 per cent from their low point, reached last March, brokers' loans, as reported by member banks of the federal reserve in New York City, are at present substantially below what they were earlier in the year.

Brokers' loans in 1929 were the most conspicuous index of the stock market inflation of that period. Rising steadily, in the face of repeated warnings by bankers and by the federal reserve board, they reached the record total of $6,804,000,000 on Oct. 2, 1929, just as the market came to the brink of its fall.

Brokers' Loans Deflated.

Having been the outstanding example of the 1929 inflation, they became the most striking illustration of the subsequent deflation. By Christmas, 1929, the total of brokers' loans had dropped more than 50 per cent to $3,328,000,000. Thereafter, the liquidation of brokers' loans continued almost uninterruptedly to the pit of the depression, in July, 1932, when they fell to the record low of $331,000,000, or less than 5 per cent of what they had been three years before.

With the rise of stock prices from their depression low in July, 1932, brokers' loans expanded slightly, but in January, 1933, they still totaled only $367,000,000. In the boom which followed the bank holiday and the suspension of the gold standard here in March and April, 1933, brokers' loans expanded rapidly, rising to $967,000,000 by July 19.

Loans Decline, Then Rise.

Loans declined again subsequently in conformity with the reaction of the market, but rose by July 4, 1934, to the highest point reached on the recovery, $1,069,000,000. This gain, however, was in large part due, not to stock market activities, but to increased borrowings by government security dealers in connection with

Has Inflation Market Begun?

For over two years THE FINANCIAL WORLD has been emphasizing in its own columns and in its newspaper advertising that the basis was being laid for a great inflationary movement. The latest leading authority to point out the potentialities of a huge credit inflation is Mr. Charles R. Gay, President of the New York Stock Exchange. His much publicized address of October 9th should be read by every investor. In the meantime, wise investors are taking THE FINANCIAL WORLD'S advice to hedge against inflation by discriminating purchases of common stocks with a good outlook. Read our latest article on inflation in our October 23rd issue.

AN IMPORTANT MARKET SIGNAL

the treasury's extensive financing in the first half of last year.

During the latter part of 1934, brokers' loans underwent substantial liquidation, falling to $707,000,000 by Nov. 14, last. They rose again to $967,000,000 on July 3, this year, but on this occasion also factors apart from stock market speculation played a part in the expansion. Since then, although the stock market has advanced, brokers' loans have declined irregularly. The present figure is about $833,000,000, which is only $502,000,000 above the lowest figure reached in the depression, and is $5,971,000,000 below the peak total attained in October, 1929.

Decline Despite Low Rate.

The failure of brokers' loans to expand is rendered further remarkable by the record low rates of interest at which stock exchange call money has been offered for months by banks. It is available in quantities far exceeding the demand at one quarter of 1 per cent, which contrasts with rates running as high as 20 per cent in 1929, when brokers' loans were expanding by hundreds of millions weekly.

The obvious conclusion drawn by bankers and brokers is that recent buying of stocks on the part of the public, both domestic and foreign, has been almost entirely for cash. This is taken as a sign that the public is still shy of speculating in stocks on margin after the painful experiences of the deflation years. Brokers report that many of their clients insist on conducting their transactions on a cash basis, or, at least, with a wide margin.

SEEK STRONGER CONTROL

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—The federal reserve board is working on regulations to develop a better control of the use of bank credit in the financing of security transactions on the national security exchanges under authority given to the board in the securities exchange act of 1934. These will supplement the board's regulation T, which sets up the margin requirements imposed on brokers.

When the margin requirement regulations were issued the securities exchanges were in the doldrums, with no evidence of any trend toward activities which might make necessary further restrictive rules covering loans by banks on securities. Recent developments, with a steady upward trend in the value of securities, and the SEC adding to its forces of trading agents to watch for evidences of unlawful manipulation, have presented a changed picture.

BUTTER AND EGGS DECLINE; CHEESE GAINS ⅛ TO ½ CENT

Liquidation was under way in butter and egg futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. November and December eggs sold at a new low for the year, with the finish at net losses of ⅛ to ½ cent. October and November contracts closed at 24¼ cents per dozen.

Butter futures were ¼ cent lower with November at 27⅛ cents per pound. Cheese advanced ⅜ to ½ cent per pound in sympathy with a stronger spot market and the AAA contracts for evaporated milk, which are expected to curtail cheese production.

According to reports from Toronto, the Canadian Butter Export board has indefinitly suspended operations. Total sales abroad are estimated at 6,400,000 pounds. Sales of butter futures were 127 cars, eggs 256 cars, and cheese 4 cars. Prices:

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 19.—Listed bonds rallied buoyantly today under the impetus of a more favorable turn in war news from Europe. Corporate issues moved sharply higher, United States governments gains about an eighth of a point on the average and Italian issues rallied vigorously.

Trading was fairly active for the short two hour Saturday session, with volume totaling $4,758,000, par value, against $10,454,000 for the full Friday session. Federal bonds accounted for only $400,000 of the total but their recovery more than offset declines of Friday, advances ranging from 4-32ds to 10-32ds, with most loans in the higher bracket.

Italian government 7s soared nearly 7 points, Milan 6s gained as much, Rome 6s advanced nearly 6 points, and Public Utility 7s improved 5. Other foreign obligations, particularly German 7s, moved higher in sympathy.

Irregularity dominated the domestic list, although the tone generally was higher. Rails and industrials tended upward, while utilities and low priced industrials were draggy. Rails and industrials were more sensitive to small buying orders than either utilities or low yield issues, and the best gains were scored in these two divisions.

Burry Body 6½s provided the fireworks with a runup of 7½ points to a new high for a year or longer at 190. The advance followed a rise of around a point in the company's stock, into which the bonds are convertible.

Federal Savings and Loan Associations.

Federal savings and loan associations were established by an act of congress to increase construction of small homes and to save building and loan associations which were in financial difficulties.

The old building and loan associations chartered by state governments are permitted to take out federal charters and become federal savings and loan associations on fulfillment of certain conditions.

The secretary of the treasury has the power to facilitate this change by subscribing to stock in the association.

Behind the federal savings and loan associations are federal home loan banks, which function much on the principle of the federal reserve banks. The associations may discount mortgages with the federal home loan banks, receiving in cash from 50 to 65 per cent of the unpaid portion of the principle of the mortgages discounted.

The member associations must subscribe to the federal home loan bank's stock in an amount equal to 1 per cent of the unpaid principal of the mortgages held. The secretary of the treasury has the power to purchase of the stock of the various federal home loan banks.

Another government agency, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance corporation, guarantees the accounts of all federal savings and loan associations. All its stock was purchased by Home Owners' Loan corporation, still another federal agency.

The insurance premium paid by the associations is one-eighth of 1 per cent of the amount of insured members' accounts. When the insurance corporation's reserves equal 5 per cent of insured accounts no additional premiums will be charged until the reserve again falls under the 5 per cent requirement.

The account of no one member of any federal savings and loan association can be insured for more than $5,000.

In the event of default by any insured association the shareholders of that association may order Federal Savings and Loan Insurance corporation to reinstate their accounts at full value in some other insured institution or pay immediately not more than 10 per cent in cash, 50 per cent in one year negotiable noninterest bearing debentures, and the balance in three year debentures guaranteed by the insuring institution.

The shares of federal savings and loan associations and the income from the shares are exempt from all taxation except surtaxes, estate, inheritance, and gift taxes.

PENNSYLVANIA TELEPHONE TO REFUND BONDS

New $5,200,000 Issue to Bear Lower Interest.

Public offering is expected Wednesday of an issue of $5,200,000 first mortgage bonds bearing 4 per cent interest of the Pennsylvania Telephone corporation, by a syndicate headed by Bonbright & Co.

The issue, according to reports in La Salle street yesterday, will refund an equal amount of 5 per cent gold bonds of the company maturing in 1945 and 1960.

The company has outstanding $3,500,000 of first 5s, series C, due in 1960, which are callable at 105 and interest after Dec. 1, 1935. The issue is currently selling around 106.

In addition there are outstanding $1,200,000 of series A 5 per cent gold bonds, due in 1945, and $500,000 of series B gold 5s of 1945 of the Mutual Telephone company. The latter two issues are callable at 105 to Oct. 1, 1935, and ½ per cent less each year thereafter.

The company is controled by the Associated Telephone Utilities company.

N. Y. ISSUE EXPECTED.

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Definite, although unofficial, information was received in banking circles today that State Controler Morris S. Tremaine will on Monday or Tuesday sell $60,000,000 of eight month budgetary notes, carrying interest at a rate of 0.30 per cent.

The notes, which will be $100,000 each, will be dated Oct. 22, and due June 22. About 75 banks and banking houses are expected to subscribe.

Despite the low rate of interest, which compares with a rate of 0.35 per cent placed on an issue of $75,000,000 of ten month notes sold by the state last July, demand for the new issue is expected to be exceptionally keen. Because of this demand the controler is understood to be considering the desirability of calling for competitive bids on future issues of state notes.

Report Big Utility Issue.

Investment circles today received reports that the Los Angeles Gas and Electric corporation was planning to file with the securities and exchange commission a registration statement covering an issue of $40,000,000 long term 4 per cent bonds, the proceeds to be used for redemption of all present funded debt. The new financing will be underwritten by Blyth & Co., it was reported.

Executives of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York said that the proposed sale of $25,000,000 in bonds of the New York and Queens Electric Light and Power company, a subsidiary, was being discussed with Morgan Stanley & Co. This is the first definite information to reach the financial district as to what bankers would succeed to the important financing of the Consolidated Gas group, carried on by the National City company since 1921.

Monongahela West Penn Public Service company plans to issue $22,000,000 of 4½ per cent first and general mortgage bonds, due Oct. 1, 1960, and $7,500,000 in 6 per cent debentures, due Oct. 1, 1965, it was disclosed yesterday in a registration application to the Securities and Exchange commission.

FEDERAL FINANCIAL REFORM IS SOUGHT BY TRADE LEADERS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—(AP)—A program of federal financial reform including government loans to states to finance relief was studied today by the finance committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Headed by Fred H. Clausen of Horicon, Wis., the group planned to present a complete report to the chamber next month, based on research and business men's views and criticisms from the entire country.

Calling generally for a balanced budget, and reduced taxes, the committee laid down six "general principles:"

"That the present excessive proportion of the nation's total income exacted by federal, state, and local governments should be substantially reduced.

"That immediate steps should be taken to assure the establishment of a well coördinated fiscal plan looking to a balancing of the federal budget in the near future.

"That the fiscal plan should provide for a balanced budget through a reduction of expenditures and not through adoption of new or increased taxes which would retard business expansion and thus tend to continue unemployment.

"That the fiscal plan should contemplate a reduction in federal taxation when federal expenditures can be brought down to more reasonable levels.

"That expenditures during the next fiscal year, beginning July 1, 1936, beyond those necessary to defray the ordinary expenditures of the government on an economical scale, should be limited to advances of a reimbursable nature.

Italy's Gold Ratio to Bank Notes Falls to 29 Per Cent

ROME, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The Bank of Italy announced today it had lost 226,000,000 lire [the lire is currently quoted at 8⅛ cents] in gold reserves from Sept. 30 to Oct. 10. It said the gold and foreign exchange ratio to bank notes had dropped to 29 per cent. The gold reserve Oct. 10 was reduced to 4,025,000,000 lire, but foreign bond exchange holdings increased 20,000,000 to 413,000,000 lire. Note circulation increased 154,000,000 to 15,425,000,000 lire.

McAllister Says Business Prospects Are Favorable

New York, Oct. 19.—(AP)—J. C. McAllister, president of the International Harvester company, today before sailing for Europe said that he was "quite encouraged" on business prospects. He also expressed gratification over the better economic position of farmers, which had been reflected in International Harvester company's business.

Youngstown Steel Mills Boost Operations 4 Pct.

Youngstown, O., Oct. 19.—[U. P.]—District steel mills will operate at 63 per cent of capacity next week, an increase of 4 per cent over this week. Operations are only 1½ per cent under the year's high.

Increased demand for automotive steel is reflected in the higher schedules, officials said.

SEC Exempts FHA Insured Mortgages Under $16,000

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Single mortgages not exceeding $16,000 and insured by the Federal Housing administration and trust instruments covering such single mortgages, were exempted from registration under the securities act of 1933 by the Securities and Exchange commission today.

PRICES OF COTTON FUTURES ARE 4 TO 13 POINTS LOWER

Less warlike news from abroad and scattered speculative and hedging sales carried cotton futures off around 10 points in American markets yesterday. Liverpool prices were better than expected, but were generally ignored. Closing trades in Chicago were at net losses of 4 to 9 points, while other markets lost 4 to 13 points.

Spot cotton closed 5 points lower, with New Orleans at 11.05 cents and New York, 11.20 cents per pound. Prices for futures in cents per pound:

MEAT PACKERS TO DISCUSS TAX, TRADE OUTLOOK

Problems of national interest will be discussed by delegates to the thirtieth annual convention of the Institute of American Meat Packers, meeting at the Drake hotel, when the sessions are formally opened tomorrow. Committee meetings have been under way for the last two days.

Subjects of primary interest scheduled for the next two days will include processing tax litigation, outlook for supplies of live stock, the business outlook, and conditions in the cattle industry.

Among the speakers will be Frank A. Hunter of St. Louis, chairman of the institute; William Whitfield Woods, president of the institute; Thomas E. Wilson, Chicago, chairman of Wilson & Co.; A. O. Luer, Los Angeles, president of Luer Packing company; Joseph Kurdle, Baltimore, vice president of Schluderburg-Kurdle company; A. C. Sinclair, Indianapolis, vice president of Kingan & Co.; G. F. Swift, president of Swift & Co.; and C. A. Burmeister, senior agriculturalist of the United States department of agriculture.

At the annual dinner Tuesday Donald D. Davis, president of General Mills, Inc., and William Homer Spencer, dean of the school of business, University of Chicago, will be the principal speakers.

LACK OF PROFITS STEEL'S ANSWER TO WAGE PLEAS

Sharon, Pa., Oct. 19.—(AP)—The big American Sheet and Tinplate company pointed today to five years of profitless operation in telling 23,000 workers business must get better before there can be any general wage boost.

The request for a 15 per cent wage increase was made by a group representing all the employé representative units in the twelve company plants. Although they received a negative reply the workers said negotiations will be continued. They indicated they may appeal to the U. S. Steel corporation, the Tinplate parent company.

With "more money" requests bobbing up in other sections of the industry steel men watched closely the Tinplate negotiations because they mark one of the few times that several employé representatives or so-called "company union" groups have united to make a general plea.

BRITISH POUND RALLIES AS WAR THREAT FADES

Franc Also Higher; Less Gold Engaged.

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Sterling rallied today as developments abroad pointed to settlement of the Italo-British dispute. Gold engagements abroad also declined in comparison with the levels of recent days, but this was due, in part, to the reluctance of banks to engage gold at the week-end.

Today's reported engagements of gold for shipment here amounted to $3,521,000, of which $3,000,000 was taken in France and $521,000 in Holland. The engagement in Holland was unusual in that Netherlands exchange has been for several days above the price at which gold shipments are profitable.

Total Movement $415,200,000.

These engagements brought the total for the movement, which started on Sept. 9, to $415,200,000, of which $197,100,000 has come from France, $125,100,000 from England, and $56,200,000 from Holland. To date about $355,700,000 of the gold has arrived.

Gold imports here today included $1,893,400 from France and $347,800 from England. A shipment of $174,000 from India was reported as having arrived late on Friday. Shipments of silver from London this week were reported at 11 million ounces.

Today's recovery in the pound lifted it 1⅝ cents to $4.92, which was a net gain of 1¾ cents in the last week. The franc rose ⅛ point to 6.59⅛ cents, reducing the value of the dollar against francs to $1.0064, against $1.0066 yesterday. The gain for the week was the same as that for the day.

Sterling Group Advances.

Currencies of the sterling group advanced strongly with the pound, the Scandinavian exchanges rising 6 to 8 points on the day and 8 to 9 points on the week. The Japanese yen rose 5 points today to 28.75 cents, which was a gain of 8 points on the week. The Canadian dollar, at 98.56¼ cents, was up 6¼ points on the day and 2⅝ points higher on the week.

The Italian lira fell back 1 point to 8.12½ cents, but was ½ point above its closing level of a week ago. The guilder dropped 3 points to 67.83 cents, which was 5 points higher in the week. The belga was unchanged at 16.83 cents. The Swiss franc lost 1 point to 32.56 cents.

LARD IS STEADY TO LOWER AS COMMISSION MEN SELL

Lard futures dipped yesterday to a new low level since late last July as the result of scattered commission house selling, induced by the weakness in grains and the moves for peace abroad. Some stop loss orders were uncovered on the decline.

Pressure was heaviest on the December delivery, which at the lowest showed a loss of over 2 cents per pound as compared with the high point in August. Closing trades were unchanged to 7½ cents lower on the active futures. The October delivery was up 10 cents.

Cash lard closed at $14.45; loose, $14.40; leaf, $14.75, and bellies at $18.50 per 100 pounds. Prices of futures in dollars per 100 pounds;

VAN SWERINGENS BRING NEW FACES TO RAIL PICTURE

Ball, Tomlinson Cash Wins Back Carrier System.

The repurchase by the Van Sweringen brothers of control in their vast railroad "empire" has brought into prominence in the rail transportation field two new figures, George A. Ball, the Muncie, Ind., manufacturer, and George A. Tomlinson, Cleveland, O., vessel owner.

Ball and Tomlinson provided the much needed financial backing for a new holding company, the Mid-America corporation, which enabled the Van Sweringens to regain control of the holding firms through which they controled their railroad lines. The securities pledged with New York bankers as collateral for a loan of $48,000,000 were bought at public auction by Mid-America for $3,121,000.

Founded Company in 1888.

George A. Ball is one of the four brothers who founded the fruit jar manufacturing company in 1888. The only other brother now living is Frank. The company is one of the most prosperous family owned corporations in the country. The brothers are reported to be two of the richest men in the middle west.

George Ball is an active director of a number of corporations and banks and is looked upon as a power in Indiana politics. He is a member of the Republican national committee. Among his directorships are the Intertype corporation, General Household Utilities corporation, Kuhner Packing company, Great Lakes Portland Cement company, Dictaphone corporation, and the Marine Trust Company of Buffalo.

Noted for Philanthropies.

With other members of his family he is noted for his philanthropies. He is a director of the Ball State Teachers' college in Muncie, which the family founded. For several years Ball has been a director of the Nickel Plate railroad, and is an old friend of the Van Sweringen brothers.

The other Van Sweringen backer, George A. Tomlinson, is owner of the Tomlinson fleet of 22 lake vessels and sits as a director on the boards of 16 of the Van Sweringen lines. He is a director of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company and is a vice president of the Cleveland Baseball club. During the war he served as director of inland waterways.

SCARCITY MAY CUSHION FALL HOG PRICE BREAK

Market Dips 15 to 40 Cts. in Last Week.

The fall and winter break in pork and hog prices this year is expected to be far less than average because of the light supplies. Farmers are going into the winter with one of the smallest crops of "market hogs" on record, and because of the abundance of feed they will probably hold stock back longer than usual which will further reduce the winter volume of slaughter. The increase in fall farrowing will not affect receipts until next summer.

To date the fall break in hog prices at Chicago has been the mildest in many years, with the movement of new crop stock the smallest for this season in more than 60 years. Current top prices show a reduction of 10 per cent since the high point of the summer, as compared with a break of 20 per cent during the corresponding period in 1934 and a decline of 18 per cent two years ago.

Declines Are Seasonal.

As a rule November prices are lower than in October and further declines are seasonal for December. The lowest winter levels for top grades in recent years have been running 40 to 50 per cent under the summer peaks. Current receipts, however, are largest since early in spring, the week's total at Chicago being largest since the week ended April 6, with one exception. However, it was 47 per cent smaller than the same week in October last year.

Prices the last week slipped down 15 to 40 cents the week's average price at $12.30, processing tax included, showing a reduction of 35 cents. It was the lowest weekly average since July, but above any corresponding week since 1926. Top grades at the close of the week were quoted at $12.95.

Cattle Prices Vary.

Cattle prices underwent some drastic changes. Sharply curtailed buying by eastern interests due to severe losses in wholesale prices of beef on stagnant markets knocked the props from under the market for all classes except a few highly finished steers. The latter maintained a mostly steady basis, top steer quotations at the close at $13.25 running only 10 cents under the highest mark since June.

The bulk of steers selling from $8 to $12 finished 25 to 50 cents under a week ago, and in places steers exceeding 1,100 pounds and selling below $11.25 showed losses of 75 cents.

Despite weakness in the wholesale trade in lamb meat, live lambs closed strong to 25 cents higher than a week ago. The low level of prices prevailing earlier in the week held the average down to $9.15, however, as compared with $9.50 in the preceding week.

"I need a dependable car for long business trips,"

"I travel between the Carolinas, Minnesota, Kansas and Maine and do it all by automobile."

says

N. L. ROGERS, 201 Kedzie St., Evanston

"As general advertising counsel for the Lee-Rogers Company, I travel between the Carolinas, Minnesota, Kansas and Maine and do it all by automobile. I spend several days to several weeks at each location and then go on to another. I have to have a comfortable, reliable, economical car.

LOOKED IN TRIBUNE WANT ADS

"The car I had been driving consumed too much fuel, so I decided that I had better apply a little efficiency to my own business. I sold the car while I was away and took the train home.

"While I was home for a few days between trips I decided to look for an efficient, late model car. Checking through the Tribune want ads, I saw a 1934 Dodge de luxe coupe advertised by the Dampman-Schmitt Company of 1019 Davis Street, Evanston.

GOT THE RIGHT CAR

"I stopped in that same day to see the car. It was clean and the price they asked for it made it a bargain. I was leaving to go on another trip in a few days, so I did not hesitate. I have had the car on several long trips and it performs perfectly. I am glad I bought it."

"THE TRIBUNE FURNISHES US WITH THE GREATEST NUMBER OF POTENTIAL BUYERS OF USED CARS"

"During the past five years we have used many mediums of classified advertising. After checking the results of our extensive advertising we find that the daily and Sunday Chicago Tribune furnish us with the greatest number of potential buyers of used cars.

"Our records show that we have not only sold many cars in our local territory, but we also have many satisfied owners throughout the entire Chicagoland area, which proves that the Chicago Tribune covers this area very thoroughly."

ROSELAND TO HONOR 'FIRST CITIZEN'

LORING SCHOOL TO EXHIBIT NEW HOME ON SUNDAY

Institution Dates to Post-War Days.

BY BERNICE CRANSTON.

The Loring school, which began its 60th year on Sept. 16, is holding open house from 3 to 6 o'clock next Sunday afternoon at its new home, 10650 Longwood drive. No formal program has been planned, but friends of the school, old and new, are invited to visit and inspect the stately mansion, the old Barker home, that now houses it.

Founded in 1876 on 22d street near the lake by Stella Dyer Loring the school grew up with the south side and has twice moved its location as the districts changed. For more than 25 years it was at 4600 Ellis avenue, and last summer it seemed expedient again to move the school farther from the center of town to a more typical residential neighborhood.

So steeped in Chicago history and tradition is the school, however, that mention of its name recalls memories to hundreds of the city's older residents. The tall, frock-coated figure of Dr. Dyer, Chicago's first physician and more ardent abolitionist and father of the school's founder, is one that looms large in its background.

Far Ahead of Times.

Dr. Dyer, whose positive ideas on many subjects colored so much early Chicago history, brought up his daughter in a fashion extraordinary for young ladies of the '50s and '60s, and enabled her in turn to pioneer in the field of women's education.

When most girls of the period were learning to speak a little French, play, paint, sing, and stitch, Stella Dyer was studying Virgil and higher mathematics with an exiled Hungarian nobleman, a friend of the patriot, Louis Kossuth. Dancing the lancers and the royal horse guards quadrille on horseback provided an athletic note at a period when girls were more given to fainting and "vapors" than to sports.

Dr. Dyer was for years head of the underground railway system in Chicago. The Historical society has in its possession the cane which he broke over the shoulders of a United States marshal one day when that dignitary attempted to take into custody a fugitive slave whom the doctor was conducting through the streets.

Goes Abroad with Father.

In 1863 Lincoln appointed Dr. Dyer as judge of the international court formed to stop the African slave trade, and his duties took him to Liberia. Stella, then a young woman, went to school in Switzerland and afterward had a gay whirl in the European capitals where her father's official position gave her entrée.

Thus it was that years later, when an abrupt reversal of the family fortunes found her with five small daughters to take care of, she was equipped to teach in the primary department of the school run by Miss Howells, a cousin of the novelist, William Dean Howells. That was in 1878.

A few years later Stella Dyer Loring took over the management of the school, first conducting it on Prairie avenue then, in 1908, consolidating it with the Kenwood institute, another old school established in 1885, on Ellis avenue. She had active charge until her death in 1921 at the age of 80.

Introduces Kindergarten.

A glimpse of a school catalog of 1886 discloses that Mrs. Loring's ideas on the training of young girls were as advanced for her time as her father's had been for his. She is said to have introduced the first kindergarten and the first domestic science course in the city.

Not satisfied with a gymnastics professor, her school also provided a calisthenics professor, stating that "no pupil will be excused from these exercises except by written request of parent or guardian. It is earnestly desired that all pupils be simply clad in a manner to allow free play of the muscles," thereby putting the official ban on bustles and corsets.

No less varied than the modern curriculum was the course of studies of 1886, with mathematics, Latin, English, geography, singing, drawing, Greek, German, French, Italian, elocution, music lessons of all kinds, and art history. Dr. Sarah Hackett Stevenson gave lectures on physiology.

Daughter Takes Charge.

During the period after her mother's death, when Miss Stella Gifford Loring conducted the school, portraits of Dr. Dyer and his wife were familiar objects to pupils. The table which Dr. Dyer had used at Fort Dearborn, when he was resident physician there, always was pointed out to visitors.

In 1932 Miss Loring gave over the management of the school to a corporation of teachers headed by Miss Cecilia Russell, the present principal. Miss Russell herself is a fourth generation Chicagoan. Her great-grandmother, who came here in 1834, was the mother of Col. James A. Mulligan of the Irish brigade of civil war fame.

Gano Girls to Dance.

The Gano Girls' club will give a Halloween dance on Friday evening at the Gano hall, 116th street and Eggleston avenue.

Ball Will Raise Funds for Infant Welfare

The government could take lessons in raising funds from the charming woman pictured above, members of the committee on arrangements of the South Shore center of the Infant Welfare. They yearly raise a very tidy sum to finance the work of their organization without undue strain on the individual pocketbook. Their first effort this year in the campaign for funds is the Infanta ball, to be held Saturday evening in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house. The picture, taken at the South Shore Country club, shows Mrs. Everett Granger, president, standing at left, and Mrs. Henry Hieronimus. Seated are Mrs. Wilbur M. McArthur (left), Mrs. J. L. Geary, Mrs. Henry Kennedy, vice president and social chairman, and Mrs. Albert J. Bates Jr., program chairman. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Raymond Blunt, New Kiwanis Head, Keeps Busy in 16 Clubs

Raymond S. Blunt, 8340 South Elizabeth street, was elected governor of the Illinois-Eastern Iowa Kiwanis district at its recent convention in Rockford, and will assume office at the beginning of the new year.

RAYMOND S. BLUNT

Joining the Englewood Kiwanis club on March 21, 1922, Mr. Blunt has attended every meeting during the more than 13 years he has been a member. A certified public accountant by profession, he has served the club as auditor and statistician throughout that period.

Interesting to note are the facts that the Englewood club won the J. Elliott efficiency trophy in the district for four consecutive years, 1924 to 1927, the Kiwanis international achievement trophy in 1931, and the district trophy in 1931 and 1933.

Y. M. C. A. Board Member.

Besides numerous other offices in the Englewood Kiwanis club, Mr. Blunt has been a member of the board of directors of the Englewood Business Men's association for six years and was elected to honorary membership of the organization on May 7, 1926, in recognition of his service to the community.

He also is a member of the governing board of the Englewood Y. M. C. A. and of the general Chicago board. He has been secretary of the Francis Juvenile Home association for six years and is a trustee of the Emerald Avenue Presbyterian church.

His many affiliations are too numerous to enumerate; indeed, in a TRIBUNE interview several years ago he confessed to holding the secretaryship of 16 organizations. Many of them he continues to fill, adding each new job to an already overwhelming aggregate.

World War Veteran.

Mr. Blunt was born in Davenport, Ia., and came to Chicago after serving as a machine gunner in the United States Marine corps during the world war. He was married in September, 1919, to Miss Edith Mae Criswell of De Kalb. They now have two children, Raymond S. Jr., and Bonnie Gayle.

The same convention that named Mr. Blunt governor made Alfred J. Teninga of the Roseland Kiwanis club lieutenant governor of district No. 4, which includes the Chicago Heights, Joliet, Kankakee, Harvey, South Central, Englewood, Hyde Park, Woodlawn and Roseland clubs.

Mr. Teninga is a charter member of his club and has held every office in the local group. At present he is secretary-treasurer and serves as publicity chairman. His election to the district office marks the first time a position has been held by a member of the Roseland Kiwanis.

THORNTON TOWNSHIP MINISTERS TO OPEN SCHOOL IN HARVEY

The newly formed Thornton Township Ministerial association will conduct a school of religion, beginning Wednesday evening and continuing weekly for five sessions, at the First Methodist church in Harvey.

THE REV. HENRY G. KROELER.

The courses offered will include "How to Teach in the Church," by Frank M. McKibben of the school of religious education of Northwestern university; "The Christian Home and the Modern World," by Albert W. Palmer, president of the Chicago Theological seminary, and "Understanding Jesus," by Paul L. Lehman of Elmhurst college.

A. W. Nagler of the Garrett Biblical institute will teach two classes, the first on "The Church and Social Action," and the other, "Pathfinders of Modern Christianity." Dr. Palmer also will lead a seminar for ministers.

Each session will be divided into two periods, from 7:45 to 8:35 o'clock, and from 8:55 to 9:45.

Essex Community Church Women to Give Dinner

The Women's Federation of the Essex Community church, 7400 Blackstone avenue, will entertain at a harvest dinner Wednesday evening at 6:30 o'clock. Proceeds will be used in making up a deficiency in the church budget.

BANQUET TO HONOR MISS M'KINLEY, 38 YEARS A TEACHER

The alumni of Calumet High school will give a banquet on Wednesday evening at the Hotel Shoreland, 55th street and the lake, for Miss Alice McKinley, veteran teacher who retired on Sept. 18, after 38 years' on the Calumet faculty.

MISS ALICE McKINLEY.

Richard D. Jones, president of the alumni association, will be toastmaster and will present Miss McKinley with a traveling bag. Speakers will include John A. Bartky, Calumet principal; Willis E. Tower, former principal at Calumet and now at Englewood; Mrs. C. B. Smith, president of the Calumet P.-T. A., and Carl Larsen, senior class president.

Assisting Mr. Jones in planning the banquet are Robert Hedstrom, Miss Virginia Kurowski, Harold Dannenhower, Russell Johnson, Miss Melody Moore, Miss Gladys Curtin, James King, Max Fenneman, Donald Bischenhauser, and Miss Jean Kennick.

JUNIOR COLLEGE ON SOUTH SIDE TO HEAR 3 LECTURES

Three guest lectures will speak at the South Side Junior college, 6800 Stewart avenue, this week. Prof. Louis Wirth, of the sociology department of the University of Chicago, will talk on "Psychological Bases of Society," at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon; Dr. Louis Mann of Sinai temple, on "The Prophets and the Old Testament" at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, and Dr. Glenn Dillard Gunn, artistic director of the Chicago Conservatory of Music, on "Piano Literature Contained in the Smaller Instrumental Forms" at 11 o'clock the same day.

Oakdale Property Owners to Have Party Saturday

The Oakdale Property Owners and Tenants' Protective Association, Inc., will give its second annual card party on Saturday evening at Gresham hall, 8671 Vincennes avenue. E. L. Clark, 8945 South Lowe avenue, is chairman.

Couple Wed Sixty Years, Reside in Same House for 50

Three score years ago, in a little German village in southern Schleswig-Holstein, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Munster exchanged their wedding vows. Last Tuesday they celebrated the 60th anniversary of that occasion in the cottage at 5313 Carpenter street that has been their home for more than 50 years.

For the many friends who called there to offer their congratulations, Mr. and Mrs. Munster recounted the story of the romance that has endured for six decades. A journeyman machinist, young Andrew Munster, according to custom, was traveling about the country to get experience in his trade after an apprenticeship in his home town, Flensburg, when he lost his heart to the merry blue-eyed fraulein and decided to quit his journeying.

Makes Trip to America.

They had been married eight years when the decision to come to America was made. Mr. Munster came in advance of his family—there were four children then, Lena, Nick, Augusta, and Bill. He arrived in Chicago on March 20, 1883, his thirtieth birthday, and soon found work which enabled him to send for his family the same summer.

In the meantime, Mrs. Munster had persuaded a girlhood friend and her family to join them in the trip. Tickets were purchased for the group and they hurried off to Hamburg to embark, but were disappointed to find that the boat had sailed without them. Just as they were making arrangements for the next, word came that the first ship had sunk just off the coast.

Instead of becoming frightened at the thoughts of the long ocean voyage and its dangers, Mrs. Munster assumed a somewhat fatalistic attitude and continued with her plans, and their boat put out to sea only to come to a dead stop just outside the harbor. Investigation revealed that one young officer had committed suicide and the boat was held until his relatives could come for his body.

Recall Kindly Captain.

The kindness and consideration of the ship's captain, though his name was long ago forgotten, is one of Mrs. Munster's most distinct memories. The tragedy soon faded into oblivion and the journey continued pleasantly. Sometimes, Mrs. Munster confessed, the children were put to bed and "we danced all night."

The Munsters' first home was on the west side, but after Mr. Munster went to work for Armour & Co. where he was employed for more than 30 years, they built the Carpenter street cottage and moved in one rainy day in the spring of 1885. The house stood alone in the middle of a cabbage patch, and the street was so muddy that Mr. Munster donned hip boots and carried his family to the stoop.

In those days the nearest street car line was at 39th and Halsted street, almost two miles away—a distance that Mr. and Mrs. Munster walked upon their occasional trips downtown. Therefore, an entire day was set aside for the necessary shopping tours and the children were left with a neighbor. When shoes for them were needed, Mr. Munster measured the length on a stick and purchases were made by that gauge.

Every day supplies were obtained at Lindeman's grocery, located at 53d and Carpenter streets. Memories of those early days include the many dances and picnics that were held

RIVERDALE CHURCH SOCIETY WILL HOLD RING BOUTS THURSDAY

The Holy Name society of St. Mary's church, Riverdale, will open its fall program Thursday evening with a boxing show in the school hall. Robert Schug will act as matchmaker and Charles Shedwell, popular south end athlete who recently returned from the Lithuanian Olympics, where he trained America's entries, will train the boxers for the show.

THE REV. D. A. DIEDERICH.

Organized two years ago by the Rev. Father D. A. Diederich, pastor of St. Mary's, the Holy Name society is headed by Gerald Byrne, president. Father Diederich is spiritual director. Other officers are: Vice president, Herman Horn Sr.; recording secretary, Frank Kleinz; financial secretary, G. F. Middendorf; marshal, Matt Dreger, and deputy marshal, Herman Horn Jr. Al R. Schumann, Frank L. Schroll and Herman Horn Sr., form the Big Brother committee.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

MAYOR AND MRS. FRED A. RICE of Blue Island last week were mourning the loss of their favorite rocking chair, stolen from the front porch of their home at 2648 New street. One of a few pieces remaining from the furniture with which they set up housekeeping fifty years ago, the chair has a sentimental value far greater than its actual monetary worth, they said.

C. E. [Zimmie] Zimmerman, bank equipment salesman, who favors this department with dispatches while on his frequent trips, recently returned from a three months' visit to Europe. He reports that the continent is "spoiling for a fight."

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Mose Miller, 4910 Drexel boulevard, who next Sunday will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage.

MISS MARGE BALANCE, 1817 West 58th street, one of the young girls in Croatian costume whose pictures appear elsewhere in the Metropolitan section today, is to be "preserved in oil." Her appearance in costume so pleased her employer, Charles Jensky, that he has commissioned Macena Barton, Hyde Park artist, to paint her picture for his collection of national types.

Ringing out every quarter hour from early morning to 10 o'clock in the evening, a set of imported chimes in the City Furniture company store at 6160 Halsted street is creating a truly old world atmosphere amidst the hustle and bustle of a typical American business street. The chimes are enclosed in a soundproof booth and broadcast their mellow notes through a microphone which leads to a loud speaker outside.

THE feminine contingent suffered defeat out at Fenger High school the other day when the election returns for school mayor were counted. Philip Metsker won over Miss Dorothy Cunningham, but got a run for his money, they say, winning out in the last few ballots.

At home in their apartment at 10742 Calumet avenue after a honeymoon which took them through the south are Mr. and Mrs. Philip Sherman O'Brien, who were married several weeks ago. Both attended school in Roseland.

FREDERICK W. SHACHT, principal of Fenger High school, has turned author. With the aid of Mrs. Schacht he is writing an account of their visit in Mexico this summer for the Fenger News, student newspaper.

Jack White, son of the Rev. Edward S. White, pastor of the Church of the Redeemer, is the vice president of the newly organized midwest association of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, Episcopal laymen's society. He is also the editor of the association's magazine, which is to make its first appearance shortly.

Four sons, one daughter, six grandchildren, and one great-grandson were present last week when Mr. and Mrs. Carl Rockstroh, 10326 Avenue G, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. They were married in Pomerania, Germany, and came to South Chicago forty-six years ago.

WITNESSES of the ribbon-cutting ceremony last Sunday which opened up the extension of Kedzie avenue south from Marquette road, commented on the expert technique of Ald. John E. Egan, who wielded the scissors. The concensus was that Ald. Egan either had had professional experience behind a counter or had been practicing in secret for the task!

GRESHAM CHURCH 'I'LL TRY' CLASS TO GIVE PROGRAM

The "I'll Try" class of the Gresham Methodist church will present the Brainerd Community church choir in a "Seth Parker" evening on Wednesday in the church auditorium, 87th street and Emerald avenue.

Elmer Johnson will play the title rôle and Mrs. Thomas Gifford will be Mrs. Seth Parker. Others in the cast are Miss Ada Blakeway, Miss Lois Willy, Miss Katherine Griggs, Miss Helen Johnston, Mrs. Elmer Buxton, Mrs. Peter Hansen, Mrs. Gale Adams, Mrs. Henry Sass, Oscar Hart, Willard Blakeway, T. I. Tidd, Gale Adams and George Miner.

Homemade refreshments will be sold after the program. Mrs. Harold Janney is president of the "I'll Try" class.

Morgan Park Gleemen to Give Concert Oct. 29

The Morgan Park gleemen, directed by George Rees, with Miss Kathryn Browne, contralto formerly with the Chicago Civic Opera company, as guest artist, will give a concert on Tuesday evening, Oct. 29, at the Normal Park Presbyterian church, 71st street and Yale avenue. Howard Bartle directs the choir of the Normal Park church, the sponsoring group.

Isabella Social.

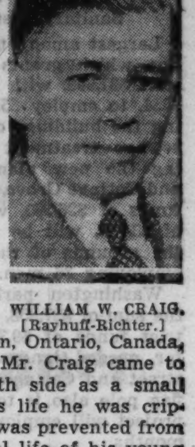
Perez council, No. 10, Ladies of Isabella, will hold its annual penny social this afternoon and evening at 6248 South Ashland avenue. Mrs. Michael O'Keefe is grand lady.

PLAN MEMORIAL TO W. W. CRAIG, FRIEND OF BOYS

Victim of Accident Widely Known.

BY WILLIAM KEITH.

Plans to perpetuate the memory of the late William Wallace Craig, "First Citizen of Roseland," known to thousands of south siders for his philanthropy, who died Oct. 7 following injuries suffered in an automobile accident, are to be discussed tomorrow evening at a meeting of business and civic leaders of the community in the Roseland Commercial club, 113th street and Indiana avenue.



WILLIAM W. CRAIG. [Rayhuff-Richter.]

Born in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, on Nov. 18, 1885, Mr. Craig came to Chicago's far south side as a small boy. Early in his life he was crippled in a fall and was prevented from leading the normal life of his young companions. The accident served to direct his attention to boys of poor families and throughout his life he endeavored to aid them in every way possible.

Good Samaritan to Boys.

Mr. Craig was identified with numerous community organizations dealing with youth, the 111th street Y. M. C. A., the Boy Builders, the Boy Scouts, of which he was a scoutmaster and district executive, and various church clubs. Early this year his service to scouting was recognized by scout leaders with the award of the Silver beaver, the highest tribute the movement can pay to its leaders. At the time of his death community leaders were planning a testimonial banquet for him.

Mr. Craig's interest in youth extended beyond their playtime. In the last several years, according to Edward Pearson, an executive of the Pullman Trust and Savings bank, of which Mr. Craig was assistant secretary, he had financed four boys through college, and other individual cases in which he extended financial support are too numerous to mention, Mr. Pearson said.

All of his business life had been spent with the bank. He was unmarried and resided at 119 West 112th street.

Leaders of Project.

James H. Gately, president of the People's store, is chairman of the memorial committee and George F. Knoll is the secretary. Others on the committee are: Circuit Court Judge John Prystalski, Sheldon Govier, clerk of the Appellate court, Ald. Arthur G. Lindell, James W. Crane, William Caley, H. O. Wertenberg, Frank Johnson, A. V. Price, Dr. Neil Gunn, L. H. Tuttle, Joseph Cannon Sr., Harry Hoekstra, and Leonard Means.

No definite decision has yet been made at the previous meetings of the committee, as to what form the memorial will take. Suggestion has been made that Mr. Craig's philanthropic work be continued in the form of establishing a scholarship at some Illinois college.

2,711 SOUTH SIDE SCHOOL YOUTHS ENROLL IN R. O. T. C.

Registration in the eleven R. O. T. C. units in south side high schools is larger than ever before, Maj. W. C. Gatchell, adjutant of the Chicago R. O. T. C. announced last week. A total of 2,711 students has registered this semester, he said.

Three of the schools, Englewood, Kelly and Harper, are offering military training for the first time in their history. Response has been enthusiastic, Maj. Gatchell said, 543 students having elected to take the training.

Following is a list of the schools, with the names of the army men detailed as instructors, and the registration figures:

Bowen, Private A. F. Johnson, 127; Calumet, Corporal John Berry, 296; Englewood, Private W. F. Barnes, 218; Fenger, Private W. P. Robinson, 232; Harper, Private W. L. Peshia, 131; Hyde Park, Sergt. W. J. Brewer, 275; Kelly, Private J. G. Hickman, 194; Lindblom, Staf Sergt. E. J. Depke, 321; Morgan Park, Sergt. J. J. Dignon, 215; New Phillips, Private S. J. Tutlis, 295; and Tilden, Sergt. M. J. Moore, 407.

MERCY MOTHERS TO VIEW STUDENT PLAY ON OCT. 30

Members of the Mercy Mothers' club will be entertained Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 30, by the Mercy High School Dramatic league with a presentation of a one act play, "The Murderer at Large." The play will be presented in the auditorium of the school and will begin at 2 o'clock. Miss Margaret McNulty, Miss Marjorie Jackson, Miss Lillian Johnson, Miss Patricia Kennedy, Miss Mary Agnes Coleman, Miss Mary Florence Griffin, Miss Mary Mallow, and Miss Dorothy Peterman will take part.

$639,815 IN WPA PROJECTS O. K.'D FOR SOUTH SIDE

Sanitary District Work Heads List.

Fifteen Works Progress administration projects for the south side and south suburbs, involving a total expenditure of $643,815, of which $597,100 is to be a federal grant and the remaining $42,715 will be supplied locally, were approved last week by Controler General J. R. McCarl in Washington. His approval, preceded by those of President Roosevelt and Harry L. Hopkins, PWA administrator, is the final action before the funds are released.

Left behind by the city, in the early awarding of funds, the suburbs' allotment this week exceeds that of the city. Ten municipalities, townships, and schools districts are to receive $499,992, which they will augment with $26,977 from their own offers. The city, the park district, and sanitary district will receive $97,108, to which they will add $15,738.

In all, some 951 men will receive work lasting from two months to a year, through the projects.

Sanitary District Project.

Largest among the city projects is one which grants the sanitary district $27,995, with sponsor's funds of $354, to employ 35 men in demolishing the buildings of the old Calumet sewage treatment plant and painting the new plant at 125th street and Cottage Grove avenue. Additional funds of $26,269, with district funds of $3,793, will be used to landscape the grounds of the plant, a project employing 36 men.

Washington park will benefit by the sum of $27,358, to which park district funds of $9,351 will be added, for needed landscaping around 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue. A flag pole also is to be erected. The project will employ 152 men for two months.

Repainting of interiors of the police and courts building at 1121 South State street and other needed improvements will require $12,987, plus city funds of $2,230 and will employ 20 men for seven months. Twenty-three men will be employed for two months on repair work at the Western avenue pumping station, 49th street and Western avenue, which is being financed by a grant of $2,500.

List of Improvements.

Following is a list of the suburban projects:

Improvement of Jirtle park in Chicago Heigths, a twelve month project employing 31 men with $23,869 federal and $5,641 local funds.

Construction of a stone crushing plant in Worth township, which will supply material for road building, at a cost of $185,447 to the government. The project will take a year to complete and will employ 212 men.

Landscaping of ground around the Bloom Township High school. Seventeen men will be employed for three months at an expense of $2,838 to the WPA and $600 to the township.

School District No. 170 of Chicago Heights is to receive $13,294 for landscaping work on the grounds of the Franklin, Garfield, Grant, Jefferson, Lincoln, Roosevelt, and Washington schools. Local funds of $5,014 will be used in the project, which will employ 16 men for a year.

Federal funds of $7,229, plus local funds of $878 will be used in landscaping the grounds of School District No. 124's building in Evergreen park. Sixteen workers will receive six month's employment.

Street Work Planned.

Streets, alleys, and sewers in South Chicago Heights are to be improved with a grant of $110,011, plus village funds of $5,345. The project will take a year to complete and will employ 163 workers.

School District No. 123 of Oaklawn benefits by a grant of $2,331, to which it will add $207, for a program involving the construction of tennis courts, painting of the interior and exterior of the school building, and landscaping the grounds. Ten men will be employed for three months.

The main drainage ditch in Dixmoor, along 161st street from Park to Robey streets, will be faced with new tile, and new vaults and head walls constructed at a cost of $127,877. The village will contribute an additional $3,210 to the project, which calls for the employment of 167 workers over a 12 month period.

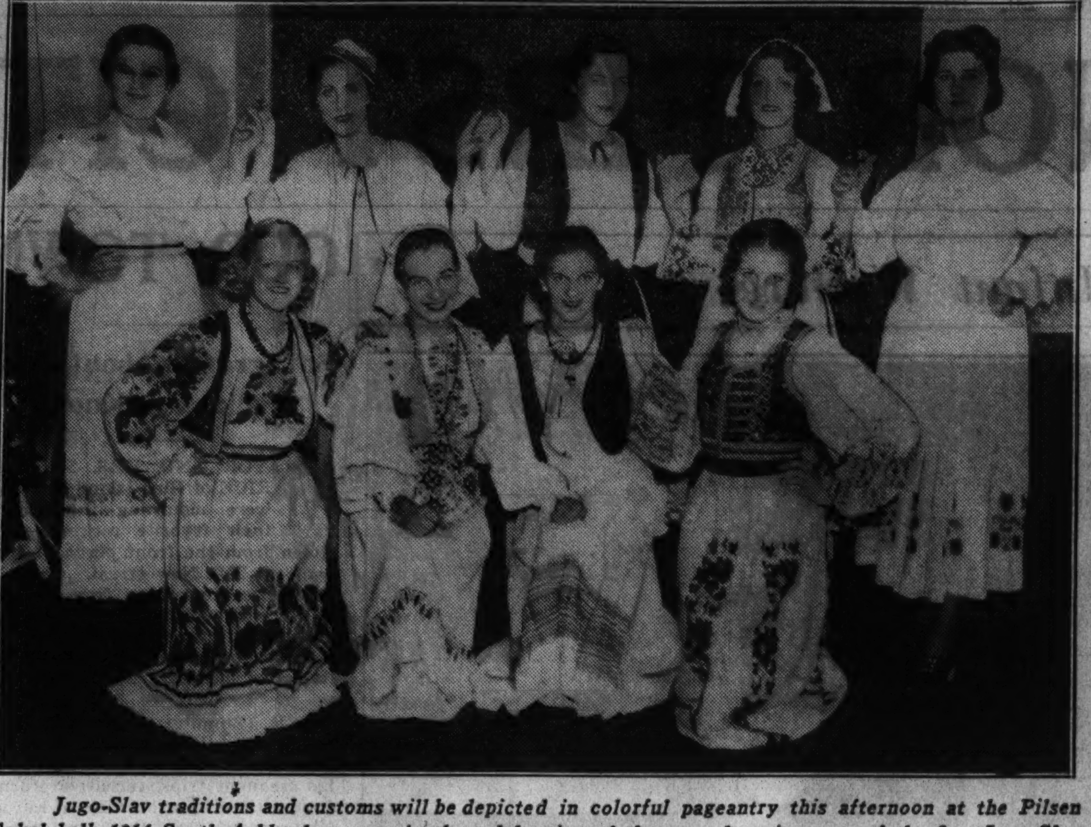
$3,565 for South Holland.

South Holland is to receive $3,565 for road grading in the village. The project, which is to employ 28 workers for two months, will be additionally financed by village funds of $1,419.

Thornton gets $23,531, to which it will add $4,663, to improve the sidewalks, streets, and drainage facilities of the village. A year will be needed to complete the program, in which 25 men will be employed.

According to Robert J. Dunham, state WPA administrator, who made the announcement of Mr. McCarl's approval, work is expected to get under way within a short time on all the projects. Plans have been drawn and are ready, he said.

JUGO-SLAVS CELEBRATE RADIO BIRTHDAY



Jugo-Slav traditions and customs will be depicted in colorful pageantry this afternoon at the Pilsen Sokol hall, 1814 South Ashland avenue, in the celebration of the second anniversary of the first Jugo-Slav radio broadcast in Chicago. Mayor Kelly will extend greetings of their adopted city, and among the features of the program will be the national Jugo-Slav dance, "Kolo," by girls in native costumes. The dancers pictured are, from left to right: Kneeling—Miss Duska Rychly, Miss Madeline Krvavica, Miss Mildred Randick, Miss Anne Antic. Standing—Miss Helen Kovacic, Mrs. George Marchan, Miss Marian Simich, Miss Marge Balance, and Miss Merry Plestina. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

ENGLEWOOD BUSINESS MEN WILL OPEN NEW QUARTERS TUESDAY

The Englewood Business Men's association will move into its new headquarters at 6300 South Halsted street on Tuesday. On the second floor of the Kresge building, the new offices will contain three rooms, a lounge and two offices.

ROY L. WOLFE.

The lounge will be furnished with upholstered pieces, the walls will be paneled in walnut, and an indirect lighting system will be installed. One of the offices will be for the president of the association, Roy L. Wolfe, and the other for Mandel Cohen, executive secretary.

Commenting on the new location, Mr. Wolfe said, "the need for larger and more commodious quarters has long been felt by the association and it is expected that the members will use the new lounge for informal meetings and as a club whenever a few minutes' relaxation is wanted."

The association will hold its regular luncheon meeting on Thursday at Wieboldt's. Lew Fonseca, former manager of the White Sox, will be guest speaker.

SOUTHWEST SIDE WOMEN ASSIST COMMUNITY FUND

Southwest side women who volunteered this week to help solicit Community Fund pledges through their organizations are Mrs. Paul Klinkhammer, Fourth district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. W. S. Wheeler, University of Chicago Settlement club; Mrs. D. J. Frey, Holy Family parish sodality; Mrs. O. A. Siostrom, Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen; Miss Bronislawa Daniel, Rosary Ladies of St. Casinnis parish, and Mrs. Ward Hanagin of the St. Barnabas Woman's club.

RIDGE ART GROUP WILL LAUNCH TWO EXHIBITS SUNDAY

Jury to Select Work for Display.

The Ridge Art association is preparing for two exhibits this week. Its most important event of the year, the annual juried show in the Vanderpoel galleries of the Ridge Park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive, will open with a reception and tea next Sunday afternoon. Simultaneously, the November exhibit will open in the library of the fieldhouse.

Each of the fifty artist members of the association has the privilege of submitting work for the Vanderpoel show, and a secret jury will select the paintings and sculpture to be exhibited. All work, however, must be delivered to the exhibition committee at the fieldhouse by Thursday.

Mrs. August S. Portz is president of the association. Mrs. William C. Bribaker is chairman of the exhibit committee. Assisting her are Mrs. Elbridge W. Rice, Mrs. Theo Harrison, Mrs. H. P. Burkholder, and Mrs. Thomas Mapp.

Among the artist members who probably will submit paintings are Cecil Anderson, Esther Austin, Alice Rose Brening, Mary H. Brubaker, Howard Church, Stewart Clayburn, Katherine Foster Clark, Duane M. Colburn, Mabel Hama, Theo S. Harrison, and Dolly R. Hellweg.

The sculptors who will submit work include Laura M. Debeukelaer, Helen Adele Lerch Miller, Walter R. Williams, and Gladys H. Chowen.

PARK MANOR ASKS MAYOR TO HELP SEWER PROJECT

Circulation of a petition urging Mayor Kelly to do everything in his power to obtain the proposed south side sewer system was begun last week by the Park Manor Improvement association. Cedric Shantz, president of the association, said that the mayor could use the list of names on the petition as support of the project in discussions with Works Progress and Public Works administration officials, who have not as yet passed on requests for funds necessary for construction of the sewer system.

MRS. CURT NERASE.
[H. Du Bois Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Curt E. Nerase are at home at 10828 Church street following a wedding trip to northern Michigan and Wisconsin. They were married recently at the Park Manor Methodist church, 70th street and South Park avenue. Mrs. Nerase is the former Miss Dorothy Pray, daughter of Earle D. Pray of the above address.

SIX SOUTHWEST SIDE BOYS MADE EAGLE SCOUTS

The rank of eagle scout was awarded to six boys of the southwest district last week, according to Harry K. Eby, district Scout executive. In addition seven boys became life Scouts and ten star Scouts, the second third highest ranks, respectively.

RED CROSS SEEKS 60,000 MEMBERS IN ENGLEWOOD

Canvass of Community Opens This Week.

A house to house canvass in an effort to enroll every one of the 60,000 adult residents of the Englewood district as a member of the American Red Cross will be launched this week by Judson L. Parker, recently appointed chairman of the community.

MRS. OSCAR O. OUDERKIRK.

Since the women of the neighborhood will be enlisted to do the major part of the canvassing, Mrs. Oscar O. Ouderkirk has been named co-chairman and is organizing a committee that will visit every home in the district bounded by 55th and 75th streets, La Salle street and Racine avenue.

Civic organizations of the community have signified their willingness to coöperate. Several members of the Englewood Business Men's association and Kiwanis club have accepted appointments on Mr. Parker's committee.

Women to Assist.

The Englewood and Hamilton Park Women's clubs, through their presidents, Mrs. D. Roy Kendall and Mrs. R. E. Stewart, have promised their help, and special club representatives will be named at their next meetings.

Red Cross headquarters for the district will be established at Mr. Parker's office, 6240 South Halsted street, and volunteer workers may register there for assignment on one of the neighborhood teams that will canvass the district.

Members of Committee.

Personnel of the men's committee includes Charles W. Brown, president of the Englewood Kiwanis; Leonard Fish, chairman of the southwest community FHA committee, and Harry S. Himmel, lieutenant-governor of Division 4 of the Illinois-Eastern Iowa Kiwanis district.

Besides Mr. Parker, the Englewood Business Men's association will be represented by Frank Kohn, Fred C. Oltman, Fred C. Rathje, and Roy L. Wolfe, president of the association.

GERMAN DRAMA DIRECTOR COMES TO SOUTH SHORE

Two events of interest to south siders, heralding the appearance of well known figures in dramatics and news commentation, were announced last week by the South Shore temple, 7215 Jeffery avenue.

First to appear will be Kurt Wohlgemuth of Germany, young dramatic director, who is to take charge of the younger groups of the temple. Mr. Wohlgemuth, who plans to establish a little theater in the south shore section, will be introduced to the congregation and the community this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Plans for the work which he is to supervise are to be made at the meeting, which will be followed by a social hour. Membership in the new groups which Mr. Wohlgemuth will direct is open to all young south siders, Dr. G. George Fox, rabbi of the temple, announced.

On Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock, the brotherhood of the temple will present Donald McGibney, radio commentator, in a talk on "Diplomatic Duplicity." Mr. McGibeny is to explain some of the "behind the scenes" events incident to the Italian invasion of Ethiopia.

THORNTON HIGH BOYS WIN MOST OF CLASS OFFICES

The majority of the offices in the three upper classes at Thornton Township High school were captured by the boys at the elections last week. William Propper, brother of last year's president, was named head of the senior class.

Serving with him will be David Phelan, vice president; Charles Beeman, second vice president; Miss Pauline Taylor, secretary, and Harold Turngren, treasurer.

SUBURB GREETS CHURCH ON 75TH ANNIVERSARY

Tomorrow evening Blue Island will extend its greetings to the First Congregational church, which is observing its 75th anniversary with a month long celebration. Dinner at 5:30 o'clock will open the festivities. Mayor Fred Rice will speak for the city; Mrs. Merrill Hewitt, president of the Woman's club, for the women's groups, and Henry Baumann, head of the Lions' club, for the business men. John Finley of Western Springs, business director of the Congregational Conference of Illinois, will bring greetings from that body.

Would you gamble with Your Baby's Health?

Of course you wouldn't. Not knowingly, at least. Yet how many mothers there are who daily risk their babies' well-being by inexpert diaper laundering. It is absolutely impossible to eliminate completely all soap and calcium precipitate by home or ordinary methods. Dy-Dee Wash, the original institute of diaper hygiene, uses a perfect diaper cleansing and sterilizing formula, including the calgonizing process, which removes completely all the irritants so ruinous to baby's health and comfort. The cost of this service is surprisingly low.

CIVIC PROBLEMS TO OCCUPY CLUB IN MORGAN PARK

Women Will Hear Three Lectures Tomorrow.

Tomorrow Morgan Park women will devote the entire day to club activities. After a chorus rehersal at 9:45 o'clock, the morning will be occupied with consideration of serious problems, but in the afternoon the club members will relax to listen to a program of play interpretations by Ann Birk Kuper.

The morning topics will include a discussion of "Safety" by Mrs. Guy H. Moses, of the "Civilian Conservation Corps" by Capt. George B. Campbell, and of "Better Personnel in Government" by Mrs. I. G. Spiesman.

Mrs. Arthur D. Henns, club librarian, has installed a library card system, thereby bringing books to members at a lower cost.

Englewood Woman's Club.

The Englewood Woman's club will hold its first business meeting tomorrow morning at 10:45 o'clock. Mrs. D. Roy Kendall, president, will report on the general federation triennial assembly held in Detroit last June, and Mrs. August F. Wussow and Mrs. Joseph J. Jaeger, delegates to the state convention in May, will read their reports.

The music department, of which Mrs. John P. Chandler is chairman, will give the afternoon program, a "Young Artists' Musical," presenting Marion Skebelsky, violinist, and Leonid Hambro, pianist, both of whom are 14 years old, and an 11 year old soprano, Rolland Hill.

The club French class will meet at 10 o'clock, the drama and poetry group at 9:30, the American citizenship class and the English class at 1 o'clock.

On account of illness in her family Mrs. Albert Beath has resigned as hospitality chairman. Mrs. David W. Johnson, appointed to fill the vacancy, will serve tea following tomorrow's meeting.

The club will make an "Art Pilgrimage" on Thursday. Dudley Crafts Watson will conduct the tour, which will leave the Art institute at 9 o'clock in the morning. Mrs. August Tidholm is art chairman and Mrs. Charles A. Bowman chairman of tours.

Hamilton Park Woman's Club.

The music department, with Mrs. James K. Dickey presiding, will present Cleveland Bohnet, who will give a lecture recital, "Tracing the Violin Family," at the Hamilton Park club meeting on Tuesday morning.

The art department will have charge of the afternoon session. Mrs. Lee Seneff, chairman, will introduce Karl Plath, who will exhibit and describe "Birds That I Paint."

Mrs. John T. Preston, education chairman, announces a change in time and program for the English classes sponsored by her department. They will be held hereafter at 10 o'clock on Tuesday mornings at the Hamilton park fieldhouse, 72d street and Normal boulevard. Miss Virginia McQueen will teach cultural and public speaking.

Brainerd Juniors.

The Brainerd Junior Woman's club will tour the Better Lighting institute, 20 North Wacker drive, on Tuesday evening, Oct. 29. Miss Jean H[illegible]iecon, American home chairman, will have charge.

WOMEN VOTERS CALL 3 MEETINGS FOR SOUTH SIDE

Civil service, in its several aspects, will be considered by the League of Women Voters at the three south side meetings scheduled for this week.

The Woodlawn league will meet tomorrow afternoon at the Wedgewood hotel, 6410 Woodlawn avenue, to hear Mrs. Philip Ringer, chairman of the department of government and education of the Cook County league, discuss "Tenure of Office."

Lesson in Citizenship.

During the morning session Mrs. William G. Barry will conduct a class in international relations, beginning at 10 o'clock. Mrs. G. R. Wakely's lesson in citizenship will be given immediately after luncheon, which will be at 12:15.

"Trained Personnel in Government" will be the phase studied by the Douglas league at its meeting tomorrow afternoon at the South Park Way Y. W. C. A., 4559 South Park way. Mrs. W. W. Ramsey of the board of the Illinois League of Women Voters will be guest speaker.

After the meeting the committee on government and its operation will serve tea. Mrs. Wendell E. Green is president of the Douglas league, Mrs. Albert B. George, vice president; Mrs. Walter F. Farmer, recording secretary; Mrs. Estelle K. Williams, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Ellis Smith, treasurer.

South Shore Program.

Mrs. M. W. Errant of the personnel in government committee will introduce Mrs. Murry Nelson, chairman of the joint committee on merit system in civil service, to the South Shore league at its afternoon session Wednesday at the Bryn Mawr Community church, 7000 Jeffery avenue.

The speaker of the morning program will be Mrs. George Swain, chairman of the department of government and economic welfare of the Hyde Park league, who will talk on "Reorganization of Public Welfare Services." Mrs. A. A. Asherman will preside and tea will be served.

PLAY DIRECTOR

Mrs. Geraldyn True Fawcett is directing the Chicago Heights Drama club in "Cappy Ricks," the comedy it will give on Thursday and Friday evenings in the Washington school auditorium.

MERCY BENEFIT FOOTBALL GAME WILL BE SUNDAY

The 1935 annual Mercy football game, to benefit the charitable work of the Sisters of Mercy in the institutions they conduct in and about Chicago, will be played on Soldier field next Sunday by the teams of St. Leo's High school and St. Philip's High school.

A city-wide committee of graduates and friends of the Sisters of Mercy, organized under the leadership of divisional chairmen for the three sides of the city and headed by James W. Ryan as general chairman, held its first big rally meeting in Mercy auditorium on the south side last Monday night.

Headquarters for the purchase of tickets to the game have been opened in Mercy High school, 8100 Prairie avenue. Tickets also are for sale in all of the schools of the Sisters of Mercy in the city. Student tickets will be available in the schools during the coming week.

A goal of $30,000 has been set for the game. This is the amount of the Sisters' deficit for charitable service during the last year.

Institutions operated by the Sisters of Mercy, which will benefit from the game, include St. Xavier college, the Mercy hospital, St. Mary's Training school, the John B. Murphy hospital, the Mercy High school, St. Patrick's academy, the Misericordia hospital, and the Siena High school.

LAWN CIVIC BODY WILL DISCUSS 1% REAL ESTATE TAX

A maximum tax levy of one per cent on real estate will be the principal item discussed when the Gage Park branch of the Lawn Civic association meets at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at the Gage Park fieldhouse, 55th street and Western avenue. Old age pensions and HOLC refinancing also will be considered, and there will be a report on the progress of the new Verdi High school. William F. Stelzer, Vincent Geraci and George Smith will be among the speakers.

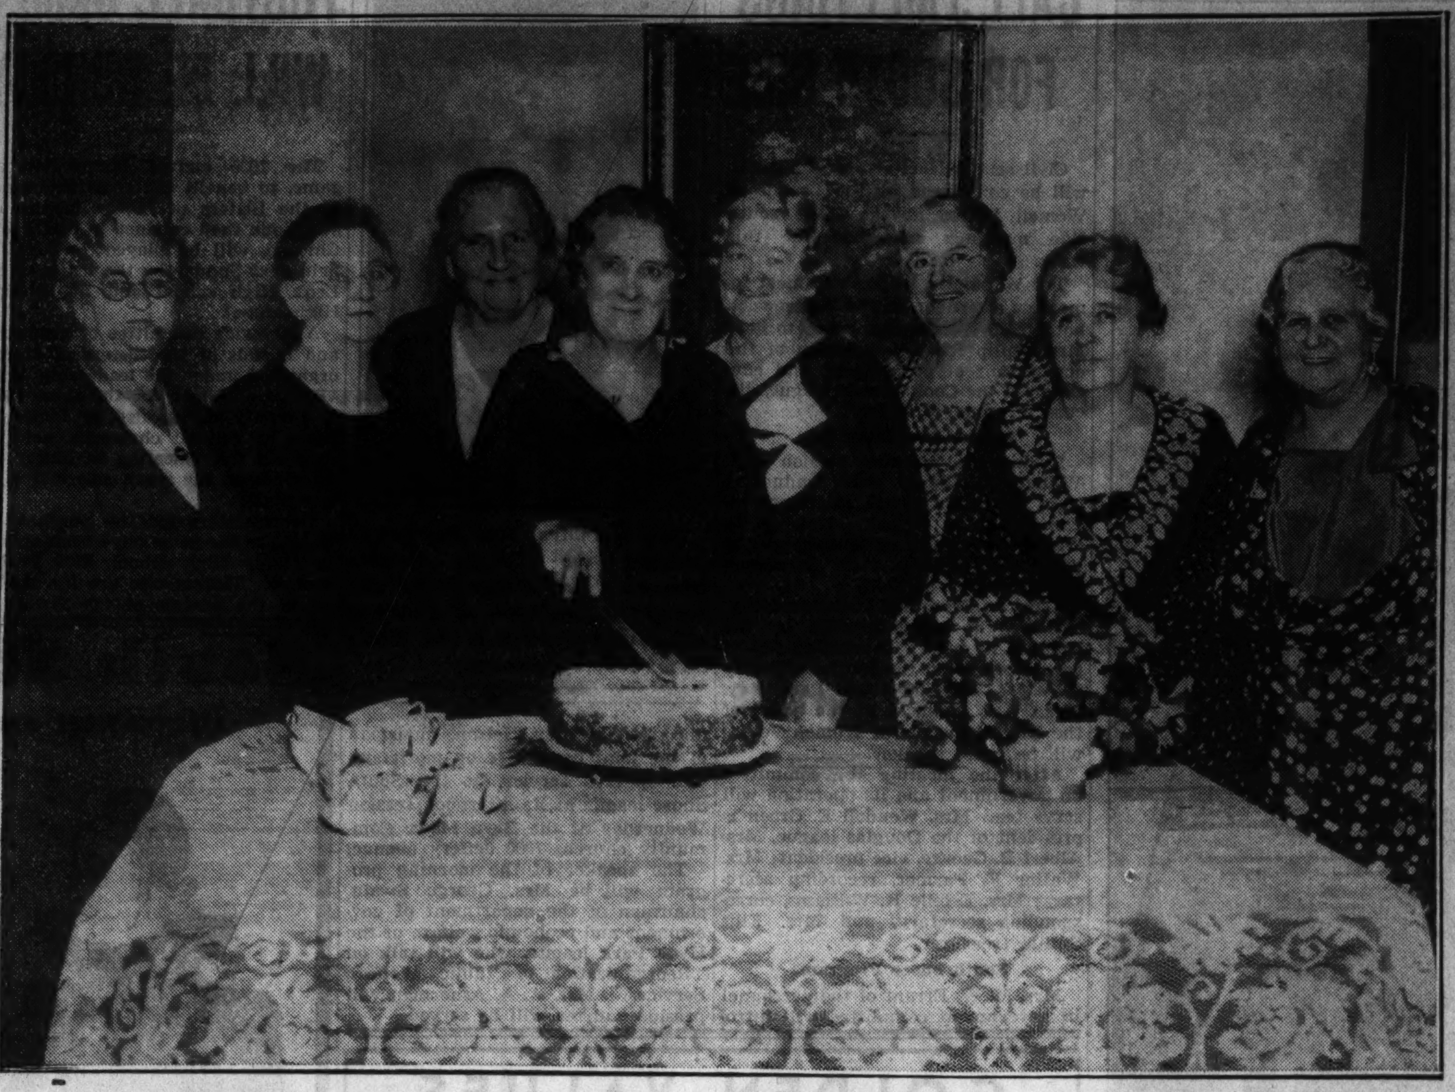
40 YEARS OF EUCHRE CALLS FOR A CAKE



When eight women have played euchre together every other Wednesday afternoon for almost forty years it warants a celebration, and that is why Mrs. Margaret Walsh had a big birthday cake ready when the group came to her home, 6101 South Mozart street, to play last Wednesday. The eight are, from left to right: Mrs. John Dunn, Mrs. Nora Doyle, Mrs. Kathryn A. Doyle, Mrs. Margaret Walsh, Mrs. T. J. King, Mrs. C. F. Collins, Mrs. George Oakey, and Mrs. J. Frank Connelly.

McKinley Park Euchre Players Cut Birthday Cake—Their 40th

In the spring of 1896, eight young married women of the McKinley park neighborhood—it was known as Mount Pleasant then—rebelled against the constant pressure of household duties and declared their right to one afternoon free each fortnight.

The rebels, in their best plumed hats and bustled skirts, assembled at the home of one of their number, Mrs. Margaret Walsh, who then resided at 33d street and Ashland avenue, to complete their plot. As they talked things over, some one suggested a game of euchre and, as that seemed as good an idea as any, they decided to form a club and meet every other Wednesday afternoon.

So the Mount Pleasant Euchre club was formed and its meetings have continued regularly ever since. Recently, the members realized that they have been playing together for almost forty years and, since no one can remember the exact date of the first meeting, they chose last Wednesday for the 40th anniversary celebration.

Cut Birthday Cake.

Again, the group met at Mrs. Walsh's home—it is now at 6101 South Mozart street—and, between reminiscences, they played their regular game of euchre and, at refreshment time, ate the birthday cake Mrs. Walsh had baked for them.

The club has no formal organization, no officers, and keeps no records besides those that are retained in memory. When it was formed, dues were 15 cents for each meeting and the money collected provided the prizes for the four highest players. As time advanced, the fee was increased to 25 cents, and then to 50.

None of the original eight has ever discontinued her membership. At times, one or another is unable to attend, but every one has always kept up her dues. Mrs. John Dunn is frequently teased about the time her family moved to Indianapolis and she came back for every meeting. And Mrs. Nora Doyle gets her share because she so emphatically declared that she would never pay more than 25 cents dues.

Play Once in Summer.

The last few years the club has discontinued playing during the summer. Once every vacation one member who has a summer home at Cedar Lake, Ind., invites the group down for a visit and they spend most of their holiday playing euchre, even far into the night.

The club members are unanimous in their declaration that they have never quarreled. Arguments, they will admit, are frequent but some diplomat always solves the problem before any temper is lost.

Every one of them boasting an Irish wit, the club never lacks for a good story. The best of the lot, so the vote goes, are Mrs. Kathryn Doyle, Mrs. Nora Doyle, and Mrs. C. F. Collins, which probably accounts for the fact that when Mrs. Collins went to Europe her place in the club was saved for her.

Other Club Members.

Beside the five women already named, the group includes Mrs. George Oakey, Mrs. Frank Connelly, and Mrs. T. J. King. The club has four other members at present. Mrs. David McCulloch, sister of Mrs. Kathryn Doyle, joined them almost 27 years ago; Mrs. Marvin Griffin also became a member about that time. Mrs. Edward O'Brien and Mrs. Patrick Copley are the others.

Gage Park City Club Branch Meets Wednesday

The Gage Park branch of the Woman's City club will meet at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Gage Park fieldhouse, 55th street and Western avenue. Mrs. Joseph Goldstein will preside.

St. Philip Neri Woman's Club Will Have Party

The Woman's club of St. Philip Neri church will give a card party Friday evening in the gymnasium of the Aquinas Dominican High school. Mrs. William J. Meehan is chairman and is assisted by Mrs. Paul C. Bourke, Mrs. Joseph O'Reilly, Mrs. Turman Harshman, Mrs. John E. Miner, Mrs. D. M. McGrath, Mrs. S. S. Kerwin, Mrs. W. H. Nelson, Mrs. William B. Sutherland, Mrs. John R. Lewis, Mrs. John W. Chesney and Mrs. O. C. Woerter.

P.-T. FIGHTS LOSS OF 9 HOLE GOLF COURSE IN PARK

Opposition to the Chicago Park district plan to convert the nine hole "junior" golf course in Jackson park into a picnic ground flared in Hyde Park and Woodlawn last week. The project is one of many for which the park district seeks Works Progress administration funds.

Chief among the objectors is the Hyde Park Parent-Teacher association, representing the parents of children living in the territory bounded by 39th street, 71st street, State street and the lake.

At its latest regular meeting the P. T. A. adopted a resolution condemning the measure and informed the park district and Ald. James Cusack [5th] of its action.

Signers of the resolution included Joseph F. Gonnelly, principal of Hyde Park High school, which fronts on the park, as well as the general P.-T. A. membership.

Explaining the project, Robert A. Black, principal civil engineer for the park district, said last week that the park commissioners feel that greater service would be afforded the public if the junior course were transformed into a picnic grounds.

"At the most only 36 people can be accommodated at one time on the course," he said, "whereas a great many more could be served if the space was used for picnic purposes. The project will involve but a small amount of money and labor, chiefly in leveling off the tees and greens and in the construction of a comfort station."

Last week the project, which is a companion measure with the bird sanctuary under consideration, was still awaiting approval in Washington. In the meantime the Hyde Park association was seeking support from other organizations to block the move.

There Is No Substitute for QUALITY WORK
Appearance means everything in laundry work . . . there can be no substitute for appearance; everyone knows when a laundered garment looks right . . . finished right . . . washed clean.
Approved Work Offers Quality—plus
The American Institute of Laundering demands hygienic security (100% sanitation) safeguarding all clothes — white goods must stay white— the life of the fabrics must be protected—these are the things that ordinary laundries can substitute, but Approved Laundries must maintain their high standard.

..LAIN'S Services Outnumber the Average 20 TO 1
● Chicago has given Lain the preference — and Lain has given Chicago lower prices than secured in seven other large cities. ● Lain has more services in one month than the average undertaker secures in twelve. ● Lain's volume is actually 20 to 1—twenty times the average. ● Thus an improved service, with many costly features, such as a complete musical program included with all Chapel services, and Conditioned Air throughout the entire building, is offered by Lain's. ● And yet prices are always lower at Lain's. ● Over 63% of Lain services cost less than $300—more than 35% under $200. ● Complete funerals as low as $110, including IMPERIAL MALE QUARTET, ORGANIST AND ORGAN.

WHAT DO HUSBANDS SAY ABOUT APPROVED LAUNDERING?
APPROVED BY APPROVED LAUNDRY AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF LAUNDERING
Husbands become interested in laundering only when they suffer from poor service or are blessed with unusually efficient service. The strongest statement we can make about Approved Laundering is that hundreds of men are talking about it; bragging about it; boosting it to their friends.
Housewives are enjoying this unusual support from their husbands. It gives them well earned relief from an unpleasant, burdensome task. In an Approved laundry, mild, safety-tested soaps and gentle, rainsoft water, plus laboratory-tested washing processes, do the family washing and ironing much better and at less expense than it can be done at home. P.-T. A. WILL SHOW BENEFIT MOVIE AT CALUMET HIGH

Proceeds to Aid Student and Library Funds.

Calumet P.-T. A. projects will benefit from two presentations of "Little Women," motion picture starring Katherine Hepburn, on Friday at the high school auditorium. There will be a student matinée at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon and an evening performance at 8. The Calumet orchestra, directed by James Thatcher, will give a short concert before both shows.

Mrs. Francis E. Ashton, motion picture chairman, is making arrangements for the shows and the proceeds will be used to finance the association's budget, including student aid, scholarship fund, and the school library.

Mrs. A. I. Olchovy, president of the South Central council, has called a special meeting of her board for 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Hamilton Park fieldhouse, to complete plans for the all day school of instruction the council will hold for officers and chairmen of its member associations on Nov. 6.

The first class in the leadership course for parent education chairmen of District 25, given by Mrs. Evelyn Duvall of the Chicago association of Child Study, will be held at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the Clossold school, 110th street and Western avenue.

The classes will continue to meet through the school year on the first and third Wednesday of each month.

The board of District 25 will meet at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Howard C. Johnson, 6218 South California avenue.

Dr. J. A. Melrose, head of the psychology department of James Milliken university, will discuss "The Home as a School for Character and Citizenship" before the Vanderpoel P.-T. A. at 8 o'clock Friday evening. The Milliken String trio will present an accompanying musical program.

The parent education class of the Kershaw P.-T. A. will meet at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Anna Snyder, 661 West 63d place.

The Oglesby P.-T. A. will give a benefit card party at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Petersen's Furniture store, 6531 South Halsted street. The association's homemaking class will meet on Wednesday afternoon in the domestic science room of the school. Favorite recipes and household hints will be discussed.

The newly organized class in music appreciation of the Cook P.-T. A. will give its first program on Tuesday afternoon. The homemaking class will meet on Wednesday afternoon for the second time in a series of demonstrations given by Mrs. Anna J. Peterson and, also on Wednesday afternoon, members of the association will tour the Harding galleries, 4853 Lake Park avenue. Mrs. William O. Roessler, 4247 Ada street, art chairman, has charge of reservations.

The membership drive being conducted for the Sawyer Avenue P.-T. A. by Mrs. Frank Loeffler, membership chairman, will continue until Monday, Oct. 28.

The ways and means committee of the Hendricks P.-T. A., of which Mrs. Elizabeth Nickel is chairman, will give a penny social at 8 o'clock Thursday evening at 4437 Shields avenue.

The Marquette P.-T. A. will give a "Mothers' and Daughters'" program at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening. Mrs. M. H. Bro will speak on "Companionship as a Phase of Child Welfare." The school girls' chorus will present "The International Doll Shop," and the Mothers' chorus will sing.

Mrs. C. H. Sternberger, president of the John Harvard P.-T. A., announces the appointment of the following committee chairmen: Membership and hospitality, Mrs. C. J. French; program, Mrs. W. B. Balmer; school program, Miss Agnes G. Cashin; health, Mrs. Lloyd Rabe; recreation and safety, Mrs. Einfred Emlet; social, Mrs. W. C. Peacock; publicity, Mrs. C. E. Bacus; auditor, Mrs. Mary F. in Oswald's grove, 52d and Halsted streets. Mrs. Munster was one of the organizers of the Morgan Street Methodist church and now is the oldest living member.

Devotes Time to Garden.

Mr. Munster retired from Armour's about 20 years ago on account of illness. Since he recovered his health, he devotes his time to his backyard flower garden and to carving ship models and castles. For the last twelve years, since he brought her home, a tiny puppy, in his pocket, Teddy, a brown and white spitz, has been his constant companion.

Of their eight children, a son and two daughters survive. Mrs. Lena Scheinkel now makes her home with her parents. Mrs. Norman Ford resides at 1432 East 69th street, and Nick Munster at 2227 North Racine avenue.

There are five grandchildren, Mrs. Lawrence Ford, Willis Scheinkel, Richard, Clarence, and Leroy Munster, and four great-grandchildren, Shirley May, LaVerne, and Dolores Scheinkel, and Leroy Munster Jr.

SECURITY WILL BE FORUM TOPIC AT SINAI TEMPLE

"The Quest of Liberty" is the subject of a symposium to be presented by the Sinai Lecture forum tomorrow evening. Three men, each prominent in his field, will discuss various angles of the subject. Prof. Edward Berman of the University of Illinois will discuss "Security in Employment"; Dr. Louis L. Mann, rabbi of Sinai, will speak in "Security in Old Age," and Prof. Harry D. Gideonse of the University of Chicago will discuss "Security in Political Liberty." Sinai temple, 4600 South Parkway, will be the scene of the symposium.

REHERSALS OPEN FOR ST. CAJETAN'S MINSTREL SHOW

Casting has been completed and rehersals are under way for the minstrel show St. Cajetan's parish will give Friday evening, Nov. 22, in the auditorium of the Academy of Our Lady, 95th street and Loomis boulevard.

The principal rôles will be played by Joseph Garrity, Mrs. Rosetta Payton, Thomas McVady, Edward Sweeney, Miss Regina Walsh, Miss Catherine Nolan, Leo Slattery, Louis and Paul Root, John Everett, Richard Singler, Mrs. Madge Dee, Miss Dorothy Nix, and Miss Dorothy Shoop.

The solo dancer will be Miss Mavis McDonough and the chorus will include Miss Antoinette Sullivan, Miss Elizabeth Hayden, Miss Jane Hayden, Miss Zita Power, Miss Virginia Allen, Miss Alice Hudson, Miss Elizabeth Forkin, Miss Rita Nolan, Miss Leone Walsh, Miss Louise Cummings, Miss Mary Cummings, Miss Eileen Boyle, Miss Margaret Claffery, Miss Elizabeth Costello, Miss Marguerite Jordan, Miss Rosemary Degman, Miss Margaret Nurname, Miss Helen Walsh, Miss Marguerite Power, Miss Anne O'Donnel, and Miss Helen Degman.

James Herbuveaux and David Heffernan have written the continuity for the show. Charles F. Wills is director and Mrs. Erna Turner is dancing instructor. The Rev. William Cooney, assistant pastor of the parish, and Mr. Garrity have charge of arrangements.

An added attraction will be an amateur show, in which the young people of Beverly Hills and Morgan Park are invited to participate. Registration may be made at the parish rectory, 113th street and Artesian avenue.

Magic Key Hour Called an Adventure.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The new radio season at a glance:

EDDIE CANTOR—Jimmy Wallington has replaced Ted Husing thus restoring this show to its original form. Apparently convinced that he has a successful formula for his studio audience Cantor continues unwilling to tamper any with it—even though that might please radio listeners.

JACK BENNY—Michael Bartlett and Johnny Green have replaced Frank Parker and Don Bestor as Benny's punching bags. No change otherwise. Growing somewhat monotonous. Particularly the Livingstone poems.

MAJ. BOWES—The quality of the amateurs seems to be falling off of late. And it is getting a bit tiresome to hear that babies and streets are being named after Maj. Bowes.

THE MAGIC KEY—Skipping about all over the face of the globe, bringing in New York, Berlin and Addis Ababa with equal facility and presenting the cream of radio entertainers this program provides a delightful adventure. It could be made even better if John Kennedy did not insist on showing his erudition quite so much each week.

Here Come the British.

JACK HYLTON'S CONTINENTAL REVUE—The British are coming and you will welcome them with open arms if their first program is a reliable indicator.

LEO REISMAN'S SHOW—Notable chiefly because of the introduction of Oliver Wakefield, an English comedian who may become popular.

AL PEARCE'S GANG—Working for Amos 'n' Andy's sponsors the Pearce crew is presenting a decidedly refreshing brand of humor—and it extends even into the commercial continuity. It's a matinée show, but one of the few daytime offerings of night time entertainment caliber.

SHEP FIELDS' ORCHESTRA—The only dance orchestra heard to date that has the club women of America cheering. What Veloz and Yolanda are as dancers, the Fields' crew is as a dance orchestra. And what an accordion player! Whe-e-e-e!

THE FORD SUNDAY EVENING HOUR—The music of the masters presented in a warm and homely manner.

Outstanding Dramatic Program.

CLARA, LU 'N' EM—From last year's gossip in the morning the girls have graduated to de luxe small talk in the afternoon. Next move: Piffle at 8! No misunderstanding, please. We like it and have the feeling that a lot of other males would appreciate an opportunity of hearing them evenings. But after all the sponsor sells soap suds—!

OZZIE NELSON, HARRIET HILLIARD AND BOB RIPLEY—If strange facts intrigue you Brother Ripley will interest you. Personally we are perfectly willing to take his word for it and forego the harrowing dramatizations. The Nelson music is mildly diverting.

Whoops for Himber.

RICHARD HIMBER'S CHAMPIONS—Sweet music the year around.

ORVILLE KNAPP—The newest note and nuances in dance music.

SALLY JO NELSON—A high hope among the young hopefuls.

THE NEW YORK PHILHARMONIC SYMPHONY—Nothing more needs to be said except that later in the season Arturo Toscanini will supplant the competent Klemperer.

LAWRENCE TIBBETT—The nation's No. 1 baritone, who has long been waging a campaign against musical snobs, occasionally goes a little high brow himself in his choice of radio songs.

RUDY VALLEE—Like taxes and the rent he seems to go on forever. But more pleasantly so.

NEW GIRL PLAYING MARY SOTHERN HAS SWIFT RISE TO TOP

"The Life of Mary Southern," dramatic show featuring the adventures of an ordinary housewife, has returned to W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. The drama is broadcast Monday through Friday at 3:15 p. m. A new radio personality is featured in the title rôle. She is Minabell Abbott, who has had a meteoric rise to stardom. Less than a year ago Miss Abbott was working as a stenographer in the executive offices of WLW.

MINABEL ABBOTT.

Then some months ago she asked for an audition and was rewarded with a chance to sing hill billy songs and do unimportant speaking bits. Fortnight ago auditions were held for Mary Sothern. The audition bosses didn't have the heart to turn her down when she asked for a chance.

She tried out and won over 25 other candidates—many of them veterans.

TIBBETT ON THE AIR

A candid camera picture of Lawrence Tibbett, noted baritone of opera, concert, movies, and radio, as he appeared while on the air here last Tuesday evening over CBS.

Pat and Her Boy Friends Guests on 'House Party'

The three singers, known as "Pat and Her Boy Friends," will appear as guest stars this week on the "Friendly Neighbor's House Party" program over W-G-N at 10 a. m. week days. Virginia Clark, the friendly neighbor, continues as mistress of ceremonies.

Book a Week Program.

"Diana at the Bath," a story of an American woman in France, by Elizabeth Hall Yafes, will be read this week by Margery Graham, on her "Book of the Week" program heard over W-G-N daily except Sunday at 9:15 a. m.

LAUNCH 'MOLLY OF MOVIES' ON W-G-N TOMORROW

Producers to Picture Real Hollywood.

"Molly of the Movies," a new radio serial, written by Thompson Buchanan, Broadway playwright, directed by a noted Broadway director, and presented by Broadway talent—will make its bow on W-G-N and the Mutual network, at 2 p. m. tomorrow. It will be heard Mondays through Fridays at this hour.

The author is a veteran of the American theater, having more than a dozen stage successes to his credit. Among these are: "Civilian Clothes," "Lulu's Husbands," "The Sinner," and "The Cub," a vehicle used by Douglas Fairbanks Sr.

Kirby Hawkes, the director, is also a well known theatrical figure. He has acted in and directed half a dozen New York hits, as well as having written "Mrs. Cook's Tour" in which Mary Boland achieved an outstanding success.

"Molly of the Movies" tells the story of a typical American girl, who through twist of fate, finds herself unexpectedly on the threshold of a Hollywood career. Her adventures, the romance, triumphs, and disappointments she experiences, will be told.

Listeners will be given an intimate glimpse into the workings of the real Hollywood—not the dressed up Hollywood of fiction.

'Your Lover' to Bring Advice, Romantic Music

A new program known as "Your Lover," filled with advice to the lovelorn and suitable music and featuring the anonymous voice of one of radio's best known soloists will be heard on W-G-N every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

RADIO LADIES

Grace Dunn, who once sang dialect songs with Harry Lauder, is now the feminine star of the Campus Revue on Friday evenings over NBC, featuring also Art Kassel, the Mills Brothers, and Hal Totten.

[Seymour Photo.]

Versatile Elinor Harriot, who is the headliner in W-G-N's "Couple Next Door" at 8:15 week nights, also plays in "We Are Four" and "Bachelor's Children" on the Tribune station and in several NBC shows.

W-G-N Pro Football Season to Start This Afternoon

W-G-N will present the first of the pro football games from Wrigley Field this afternoon with the Chicago Bears and the Brooklyn Dodgers furnishing the opposition. The broadcast, an exclusive W-G-N presentation, will begin at 2 o'clock, 15 minutes before game time.

RADIO PLAYHOUSE TO BE OPENED BY W-G-N TUESDAY

Variety Show to Be Given in Movie Style.

The W-G-N Radio Playhouse will make its bow to the radio audience and to an audience in Studio 1 of the new W-G-N building at 8:30 Tuesday evening. This new program is made up of currently popular music and original tunes written by Harold Stokes, director of the W-G-N dance orchestra, and Morrison Wood of the W-G-N staf, and will be presented in regular motion picture theater style—with a newsreel, a drama, comedy bits and other attractions which go to make up an evening's entertainment such as is presented in a movie house.

Several other programs will be presented during the evening for audiences in Studio 1 and broadcast over W-G-N this week. On Monday evening "The Northerners" will be heard in their weekly program with Miss Edna Thompson as the guest soloist at 9:30. Tonight two programs will be offered. At 6 o'clock the St. Mary Catholic Church of Evanston choir with Gregory Konold, organist and choir director, and the Rev. Father Francis Magner, will be heard on the Sunday "Evensong" program. At 9:30 p. m. Harold Stokes and the W-G-N dance orchestra and soloists will be heard in a carnival of popular music.

Wednesday evening at 9:30 Henry Weber and the W-G-N concert orchestra will be heard in a concert with Attilio Baggiore, tenor, and Janet Fairbank, soprano. Thursday evening at the same hour Henry Hadley, one of the best known of all of the modern American composers, will be presented in a special concert with the W-G-N orchestra. The program, which is under the direction of Henry Weber, will be made up entirely of Mr. Hadley's works and the composer will conduct a portion of the program. During the presentation of his Country Holiday Suite" Louise Ayres Garnett, poet and author of much of the lyrics to Mr. Hadley's music, will be heard in the accompanying poems.

Friday night at 9:30 o'clock the weekly Mardi Gras will be presented with Mr. Stokes, the dance orchestra and several guest soloists.

3 BROTHERS IN ORCHESTRA

Here are three reasons for the tuneful melodies presented by Jan Garber and his orchestra over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting System nightly. They are the three Large brothers, Teddy, Jerry, and Freddy, all saxophone players.

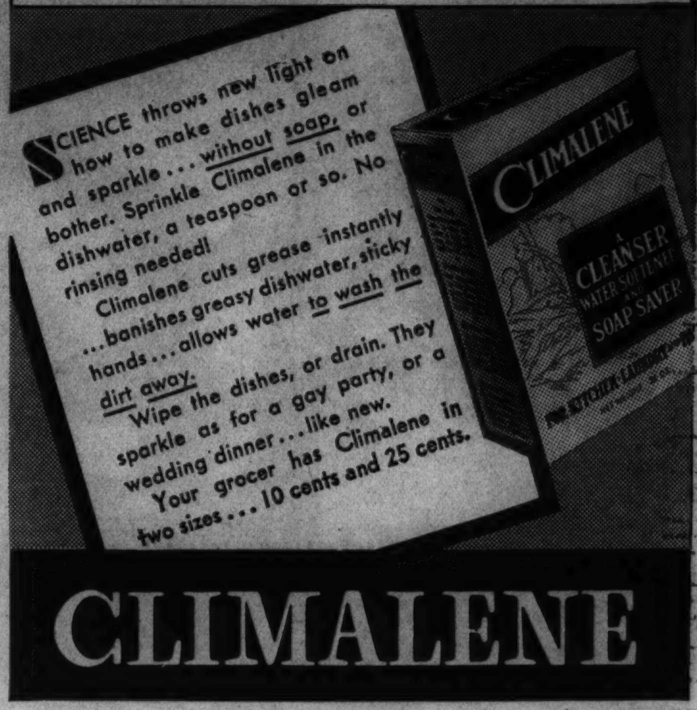
SOAP NO LONGER NEEDED



SCIENCE throws new light on how to make dishes gleam and sparkle . . . without soap, or bother. Sprinkle Climalene in the dishwater, a teaspoon or so. No rinsing needed!

Climalene cuts grease instantly . . . banishes greasy dishwater, sticky hands . . . allows water to wash the dirt away.

Wipe the dishes, or drain. They sparkle as for a gay party, or a wedding dinner . . . like new.

Your grocer has Climalene in two sizes . . . 10 cents and 25 cents.

CLIMALENE

Perhaps you would like to try Climalene before you buy it. If you would, paste this coupon on a penny post card and mail at once. We'll see that you get a 10c package of Climalene absolutely free.

The Climalene Co., Canton, Ohio

Please see that I get absolutely without charge a 10c package of Climalene.

"AS GOOD AS REM"-
HIGH PRAISE FOR REL

New head cold remedy praised by delighted users of REM

WHEN REL Head Cold Jelly was first announced, what was more natural than that the users of REM for Coughs should say to themselves "Wonder whether it's as good as REM?"

They're not wondering any more. They know!

By the way REL Head Cold Jelly is selling, it seems certain that it will duplicate the great success of REM for Coughs!

REL Head Cold Jelly born of 137 different experiments!

The makers of REM for Coughs had the idea for a long time of offering a product for head colds. But it was years before they were ready to say "Here it is!" They went at it very carefully. First a study of the good and bad points of existing remedies was made. Distinguished physicians, pharmacists, chemists and pharmacologists were consulted. One hundred and thirty-seven different experiments were made. Clinical tests were conducted on actual cases under careful medical supervision. Then, and not until then, were they ready to put their name on it. It's ready now—and it's name is REL Head Cold Jelly.

Now 1/2 minute relief for head colds!

Don't take our word for it—try it for yourself! Put a little REL up your nose—and you'll feel like a new person. You'll find REL really magic relief for head colds—or stuffed-up heads. REL is convenient for pocket or purse. No messy nose-droppers or atomizers to bother with!

REL is as good for head colds as REM is for Coughs!

Again we say—try it! We say it's good . . . you'll say it's wonderful!

USE POWDER

DR. LYONS TOOTH POWDER

100% Cleansing Properties
Twice that of tooth paste

No Grit—No Pumice
Cannot possibly scratch the softest enamel

Lasts Longer—Costs Less
Outlasts tooth paste 2 to 1

Do as your dentist does—
when he cleans your teeth

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER—just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used. Dr. Lyon's cleans off all stains and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums and the least possible tooth decay.

Once you use powder you will never go back to tooth paste. Powder leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

DR. LYON'S TOOTH POWDER

I'VE TRIED EVERY HAND LOTION THERE IS—AND BELIEVE ME, NOT ONE OF THEM CAN COMPARE WITH THIS NEW NON-STICKY KIND

SAYS MISS JOSCLYN REYNOLDS

JUST MAKE THIS "Elbow Test"

Rub a few drops of Velure Lotion into the skin of the elbow—the coarsest, roughest skin anywhere on your body. Watch it soften before your very eyes! Compare this elbow with the other, on which you have used no Velure Lotion. You'll be thrilled!

WOMEN ALL OVER CHICAGO SAY GOODBYE TO STICKY OLD-FASHIONED HAND LOTIONS

Read what Mrs. Julius V. Skold of 6946 Cornell Ave. says:

"MY HANDS are in dishwater three times a day—I do all my own housework and some of the family wash—but you'd never know it now! Velure Lotion has made my hands as soft and white as though I never washed a dish or touched a mop! It works so fast, too—in just a few seconds. And I can use it after I'm dressed and ready to go out, because it isn't one bit sticky."

Bauer & Black's remarkable Velure Lotion is quick-drying, fast-working, non-sticky. It softens rough hands in 15 seconds! Highly concentrated, a few drops have more actual softening value than a whole teaspoon of ordinary lotion. Try it—nothing ever like it!

Try Velure free

We will be glad to send you a bottle of Velure Lotion free. A dainty little bottle—just right to carry in your purse, ready for instant use. Here's your chance to try this new fast-working, quick-drying hand lotion without cost! Just send your name and address to Bauer & Black, Dept. 41, 2500 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

Evelyn Venable in "THE HUSBAND SAVER"
featuring Ry-Krisp and The Hollywood Habit
YOU CAN'T LEAVE LIKE THIS, HELEN. LET ME EXPLAIN
NO! YOU'VE HUMILIATED ME FOR THE LAST TIME, HERB. MAKING FUN OF MY FIGURE— HAVING EYES ONLY FOR SLIM, PRETTY GIRLS
OH DEAR-- I DO LOVE HERB. WHAT CAN I DO TO KEEP HIM INTERESTED IN ME ALONE? I KNOW, I'LL ASK EVELYN VENABLE. PERHAPS SHE CAN HELP ME!
HERB USED TO BE SO ADORING, EVELYN. NOW EVERY SLENDER FIGURE TURNS HIS HEAD. I'VE TRIED REDUCING 'TIL I'M SO STARVED AND CROSS WE FIGHT ALL THE TIME
BUT, HELEN, STARVING TO REDUCE IS SO OLD-FASHIONED. WHY NOT DO AS THE MOVIE STARS DO?
YOU MEAN I CAN GET A FIGURE AS LOVELY AS YOURS WITHOUT A STARVATION DIET?
JUST WAIT 'TIL DINNER - I'LL SHOW YOU HOW TO IMPROVE YOUR FIGURE SO MUCH THAT HERB WON'T WANT TO LOOK AT ANYONE BUT YOU!
AND YOU SAY I CAN EAT MEALS LIKE THIS AND STILL REDUCE? WHY, I'D MUCH RATHER HAVE RY-KRISP THAN HEAVY, STARCHY FOODS ANYWAY-- IT'S DELICIOUS!
THAT'S WHY SO MANY FAMOUS MOVIE STARS FOLLOW THE HOLLYWOOD HABIT TO KEEP THEIR SLENDER YOUTHFUL FIGURES
LATER:
YOU LOOK MARVELOUS! THE HOLLYWOOD HABIT CERTAINLY DID WONDERS FOR YOU. I CAN'T WAIT 'TIL HERB SEES YOU AT THE HOLLYWOOD MASKED BALL
MAH GOODNESS, MISS HELEN, YOU CERTAINLY HAS SHRUNK! YOU GOT A FIGURE JEST LIKE MISS EVELYN, NOW!
[illegible] THE MASKED BALL
YES, HERB, HELEN WILL BE HERE. BUT WHILE WE'RE WAITING, WHOM WOULD YOU PICK FOR QUEEN OF THE BALL?
THAT'S EASY, I'D PICK THE GORGEOUS GIRL IN GOLD. GOSH, EVELYN, SHE HAS A FIGURE LIKE HELEN HAD WHEN WE WERE MARRIED, REMEMBER?
HELEN! YOU'RE WONDERFUL- SO SLIM AND LOVELY. DARLING-- PLEASE COME BACK TO ME.
OF COURSE I'LL COME BACK, HERB. WHAT'S MORE, I'LL KEEP THE KIND OF FIGURE YOU ADMIRE SO YOU WON'T EVER HAVE CAUSE TO LOOK AT OTHER WOMEN. IT'S EASY SINCE EVELYN VENABLE TOLD ME ABOUT RY-KRISP AND THE HOLLYWOOD HABIT.

WHY torture yourself with starvation diets when it's so easy to reduce with Ry-Krisp and the Hollywood Habit*—the pleasant, easy, natural way. You'll love Ry-Krisp, because it tastes so good, because of its unique whole-rye flavor. It's grand as toast. It's the perfect cracker with soups or salads, a delightful change from bread. And, oh yes, the children love it and so will father! It's wonderfully good for them, too. Genuine Ry-Krisp comes only in red and white checkerboard packages. Look for the name RY-KRISP on each wafer. Ralston Purina Company, Checkerboard Square, St. Louis, Mo.

YOU'RE LUCKY, SANDY- YOU DON'T HAVE TO MAKE UP FOR OUR PART-
DON'T SEE WHY I HAVE TO WEAR THIS WIG- THEY SAY IT'S CAUSE IT REGISTERS BETTER'N MY OWN HAIR- WISH IT DIDN'T MAKE ME LOOK SO MUCH LIKE TOOTSIE SNOOTS- FOLKS ARE LI'BLE TO THINK I'M A COPY-CAT-
COURSE, I NEVER CAN HOPE TO BE SUCH A WONDERFUL ACTRESS AS TOOTSIE SNOOTS--- SHE'S SO SWEET AND WONDERFUL- O-O-O-- LOOKIE, SANDY- THERE'S TOOTSIE SNOOTS, NOW-
HELLO, TOOTSIE- 'SCUSE ME, BUT I JUST COULDN'T HELP TELLIN' YOU HOW SWELL I THINK YOU ARE, AN' PRETTY AND CLEVER AND EVER'THING--- B-BUT YOUR DRESS-- IT'S THE SAME----
YEAH- IT'S THE SAME AS YOURS- SO WHAT? ARE YOU TRYIN' TO KID ME, OR ARE YOU JUST AS STUPID AS YOU LOOK?
WHY, ER-- THAT IS---- I-- I--- DON'T UNDERSTAND-
ALL RIGHT, FEW BRAINS- SO YOU WANT TO KNOW WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT- WELL, YOU'RE MY DOUBLE- SEE?
DOUBLE? I'M YOUR DOUBLE?
YEAH- YOUR JOB IS TO FALL OFF HORSES AND JUMP OFF CLIFFS AND GET HIT WITH STREETCARS- YOU GET ALL TH' ROUGH JOBS, WHERE YOUR UGLY FACE DOESN'T SHOW-
YOU DO ALL TH' WORK, BUT I TAKE ALL TH' BOWS- AND FOR PAY, YOU GET THE CRUMBS, I GET THE SUGAR- YOU'RE JUST THE GIRL NOBODY KNOWS- I'M THE STAR- WHADDYUH THINK O' THAT?
IT'S NOT SO- WHY IT CAN'T BE TRUE- WHY, I'LL---
WHY, YOU OUTRAGEOUS LITTLE HOYDEN--- HOW DARE YOU EVEN SPEAK TO MY DARLING TOOTSIE? I'LL HAVE YOU THROWN OFF, THE LOT-
GREAT IDEA- WITHOUT ANNIE TO ACT FOR HER, TOOTSIE'S PICTURE WOULD BE A BUST- AND WITHOUT TOOTSIE TO SUPPORT YOU, YOU'D HAVE TO GO BACK TO SLINGING HASH- YOU WOULDN'T LIKE THAT-
WHY, YOU-- --YOU--- IMPERTINENT HUSSY-
YOU CAN'T SPEAK TO MY WIFE LIKE THAT- YOU, A BROKEN-DOWN ACTRESS-
WELL, AT LEAST I WAS AN ACTRESS; EVEN AS A KID, NO DOUBLE EVER HAD TO DO ANY WORK FOR ME WHILE I SNEAKED IN AND TOOK THE BOWS-
BAH! WHY SHOULD TOOTSIE RISK HER LIFE? LET FOOLS TAKE THE RISKS- WE'LL TAKE THE CASH- THAT'S BRAINS-
YOU MAY CALL IT BRAINS- I CALL IT A YELLOW STREAK- COME ON, ANNIE-
I SUPPOSE I SHOULD HAVE TOLD YOU, ANNIE- YOU WERE BOUND TO FIND OUT- BUT DON'T LET IT THROW YOU, KID-TOOTSIE WAS RIGHT- I WAS STUPID NOT TO GET WISE SOONER- BUT DON'T YOU WORRY, JANEY- I'M NOT LICKED- I'M NOT EVEN GROGGY, ANY MORE- I'M JUST AWFUL MAD!

A "SURPRISE PARTY" FOR MADGE
I CAN'T GUESS WHO YOU ARE — BUT I BET A COOKY THAT MAN IS MADGE'S HUSBAND. HIS SHIRT IS A DEAD GIVEAWAY.
WHY, MADGE — YOU LOOK POSITIVELY SUNK. AREN'T YOU HAVING ANY FUN?
JANE, I HEARD SOMETHING BY ACCIDENT. TELL ME — WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH RAY'S SHIRTS?
I HATE TO HURT YOUR FEELINGS — BUT PEOPLE WILL TALK, MADGE. RAY'S SHIRTS — WELL — YOUR CLOTHES DO HAVE THAT TATTLE-TALE GRAY LOOK
WHAT DO YOU MEAN? GOODNESS KNOWS I SLAVE OVER MY WASHES.
I KNOW — YOU'RE NOT CARELESS. BUT THAT "TRICK" SOAP YOU USE DOESN'T WASH OUT ALL THE DIRT. COME DOWN TO MY PANTRY AND I'LL SHOW YOU SOMETHING.......
HERE - SMELL THIS BAR OF FELS-NAPTHA. THIS GRAND GOLDEN SOAP IS FULL OF NAPTHA, MADGE. SO EVEN IF DIRT STICKS LIKE GLUE, FELS-NAPTHA GETS OUT EVERY LAST BIT OF IT.
JANE, YOU'RE A PEACH. I'LL GET FELS-NAPTHA SOAP THE FIRST THING IN THE MORNING.
LATER
GEE, DARLING, MY SHIRTS LOOK SO WHITE THESE DAYS — I COULD HUG YOU TO PIECES
SEE HOW NICE MY HANDS LOOK SINCE I CHANGED TO FELS-NAPTHA — AND YOU'LL TOSS IN A COUPLE OF KISSES, TOO.
EVEN MY FRILLIEST SILK UNDIES WASH LIKE A MILLION DOLLARS IN FELS-NAPTHA SOAP.
FELS-NAPTHA
LOOK! I GOT THIS GRAND PRESENT, TOO!
FREE
for only five wrappers from bars of Fels-Naptha Soap

You'll want to dance around with joy, just as Madge is doing, once you try Fels-Naptha Soap.

No more "tattle-tale gray"

For Fels-Naptha brings you the grandest washes you ever saw. Unlike "trick" soaps or cheap soaps, it never leaves dirt behind. Fels-Naptha gets clothes so clean and white that everybody will admire them—instead of whisper about them.

And the beauty of it is—Fels-Naptha is safer! It washes everything so gently you can use it for your daintiest lingerie and silk stockings as well as the big family wash. Fels-Naptha is a real friend to hands, too—for there's soothing glycerine in every golden bar.

Change to Fels-Naptha Soap—and see! It hustles out dirt in tub, basin or machine; whether you soak or boil clothes. Get a supply at your grocer's today!

If you like lovely presents—clip the coupon right away—and send for this gay sport handkerchief. It's a beauty—colorfully printed on soft, dainty lawn—in a smart new design to harmonize with your Fall costumes. It's a gift you'll enjoy! So get yours before they're all gone. Mail the coupon NOW!

THREE DAYS LATER
OH, I'D LOVE TO GO! CALL ME AT THE OFFICE TOMORROW AT 5:00. YES, I'M WORKING NOW—A SWELL NEW JOB!

DON'T LET ADOLESCENT PIMPLES KEEP YOU OUT OF A JOB

BETWEEN the ages of 13 and 25, a clear skin can make all the difference in the world to you. In these years, important glands develop. This causes disturbances throughout the body. The skin becomes oversensitive. Harmful waste poisons in the blood stream irritate the skin—and pimples result.

For the treatment of these adolescent pimples, doctors prescribe Fleischmann's Yeast. This fresh yeast clears the blood of the skin irritants that cause pimples.

Eat Fleischmann's Yeast 3 times a day, before meals, until your skin is entirely clear. Many cases of pimples clear up within a week or two. Bad cases sometimes take a month or more. Start today!

"AHOY MATES! CAPTAIN BOB BARTLETT SPEAKIN'!

500 WONDERFUL PRIZES!"

CAPTAIN BOB BARTLETT— Famous "Old Salt" and Explorer of Arctic Seas! Author of true stories of the Seas

Every summer—while you are dodging the hot sun—Captain Bartlett sails the "Effie M. Morrissey" to the ice-blocked Arctic Seas. He walks the bridge in temperatures 70 degrees below zero. He dynamites his way through dangerous ice-floes. He risks his life and his ship to chart unknown channels—and to make the Arctic Seas safer for other ships! A "pal" of the Eskimos, and famous the world over since he skippered Admiral Robert E. Peary's ship in his historic dash to the North Pole

"BOYS AND GIRLS! I want you all to try for these fine prizes. Look at this real gasoline motor junior racer—this Shetland pony! And see that bicycle—that Mickey Mouse wrist watch! Wouldn't you like to win one of these—for your very own? Get in this easy P AND G Pirate Contest today. You'll have fun—and a wonderful chance to win!"

HOW TO WIN: Ask Mother to buy P AND G White Naphtha Soap and get a P AND G Pirate Book from her neighborhood dealer. Then color the ship pictures in the book to look as real as possible. Save the P AND G wrappers to use as the book tells you. (Or make facsimiles.) That's all. Why don't you start right now? This contest closes November 30, 1935. The Pirate Book itself contains all necessary information about the contest.

MOTHERS! Try the new improved P AND G White Naphtha Soap. See how this sudsier soap speeds up wash day. Suds so rich they soak out greasy spots . . . get grimed-in dirt . . . save hard rubbing. Easy rinsing, too! White clothes come out WHITE! SPOTLESS! P AND G is quick for dishes, too—a fast-worker for all your cleaning. Nice on your hands. P AND G costs so little to use. Be sure to get it now. Help your children get a good start in this contest.

Cover of Captain Bartlett's P AND G Pirate Book—and one of the ship pictures. The real book is big—8 inches by 7 inches—with six ship pictures to be colored. In judging the books, equal weight will be given to: Selection of colors, neatness in coloring, neatness of the book. Contest limited to children 14 years of age and under.

5 GRAND PRIZES

$250 NATIONAL JUNIOR RACER With Real Gasoline Motor

Be the first boy or girl in your neighborhood to own your own automobile—a $250 National Junior Racer. Yes, sir! This is a real racing car and not a toy. It runs with 4-cycle gasoline motor. Top speed is 8 miles an hour unless special adjustments are made, and the car can slow down and back up when you shift the gear lever. Built of steel by the National Sales & Mfg. Company of Des Moines, Iowa, and painted in bright colors, it is strong enough to carry your dad. Safe and easy for any boy or girl to operate. Balloon tires and a regular "spare." 60 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

OR A SHETLAND PONY With Saddle and Bridle

A real Shetland pony, delivered to your door, with saddle and bridle, ready to ride. Pretend you are "out West." Have your own rodeo. Let your friends ride, too.

OR $200 IN CASH

Boys or girls who win first prizes may have $200 cash to buy whatever they want in place of the racing cars or Shetland ponies.

25 SECOND PRIZES

BOY'S OR GIRL'S BICYCLE

Full-size with motorcycle type front forks and handle-bars, double bar frame painted in two colors with silver colored wheels. Both girls' and boys' bicycles have coaster-brakes, parking-stands, and regular pneumatic tires. Tell whether you want a boy's or a girl's bicycle, and what size you'll need (20, 22, 24, 26 or 28 inches)

PHILCO JUNIOR RADIO

Choose a real Philco Junior Radio for your room. Fits right on the table. Regular 5-tube superheterodyne in polished wood cabinet. Gets all the radio programs you like—Police Calls and everything. Works on alternating or direct current. Self-contained aerial. No ground wire necessary.

50 THIRD PRIZES

PIRATE TREASURE CHEST with Ten Silver Dollars

It's a real Treasure Chest with ten silver dollars inside. Strongly made—completely covered with metal which looks like brass. Fine for your own special keepsakes.

ALUMINUM ZEPHYR TRAIN

Newest famous American Flyer train. An authentic model of the famous Burlington Zephyr. Finished in polished aluminum—illuminated with six lamps. Cars can be quickly coupled or uncoupled. Complete with eight curves, four straight tracks.

420 FOURTH PRIZES

MICKEY MOUSE WRIST WATCH

An accurate, good-looking watch made by the famous Ingersoll Watch Company. It's fun to have Mickey keep time for you. Mickey's hands actually point to the time on this watch. Has special metal Mickey Mouse strap, too.

7 KEYS TO BEAUTY CULTURE SUCCESS

To aid you in selecting a beauty school that will give you the finest instruction for your money. DeLEE'S educational director has prepared the following "yard stick." You will find it helpful in measuring the value and comparing the merits of all beauty schools.

1. Does the school give individual personal instruction to each student?

DeLEE'S ANSWER: Each DeLEE student is guaranteed individual personal instruction. DeLEE'S instruction staff consists of veteran, capable, practical beauty and hairdressing experts. They KNOW how to teach.

2. Is equipment 100% new and up-to-the-minute?

DeLEE'S ANS.: At DeLEE only the very latest type of equipment is used.

3. Will an internationally famous beauty culture and hairdressing expert instruct you in person?

DeLEE'S ANS.: Madame Louise, known throughout the world as a creator of coiffures for royalty and stage celebrities, heads DeLEE'S instruction staff and gives her personal attention to each student.

4. Are class rooms clean, spacious, light, colorful, and beautiful?

DeLEE'S ANS.: At DeLEE you will be delighted with the beautiful class rooms.

5. Is the school well established and fully accredited by the State of Illinois?

DeLEE'S ANS.: DeLEE is fully accredited by the State of Illinois and is recognized by the profession as a high class institution of learning. DeLEE is backed by more than $2,000,000 in assets. DeLEE is the only beauty school which has been permitted to incorporate in the State of Illinois as a "university."

6. Are tuition fees reasonable and do they cover complete, unlimited instruction?

DeLEE'S ANS.: Tuition at DeLEE is surprisingly reasonable and covers complete, unlimited instruction. DeLEE trains you to be a beauty expert. Payments can be arranged to suit your convenience.

7. Will I be trained for a good paying position in a high class shop?

DeLEE'S ANS.: At DeLEE you will. In fact, the FREE DeLEE employment service will help you to secure a pleasant, good paying position when you are graduated. Quality shops like to employ operators who have been trained under Madame Louise.

Do come in tomorrow and see this marvelous school. Talk with the DeLEE Dean. You'll enjoy your visit to DeLEE. If you can't come in person, write for interesting FREE book.

A NATURAL

Beauty Culture AND Men's Barbering Are Trades That Any Woman or Man Even of Limited Means and Education Can Learn

MOLER'S Plan of teaching and placing is original.

The many kinds of positions in the big cities naturally require different kinds of schooling to best qualify, therefore a choice of MOLER'S Regular, Private Lessons, or Universal Course is Advantageous.

MOLER'S Pay-as-you-please plan makes it possible for you to enroll now, saving present rates and conditions, making your actual start later if desired.

A splendid call from Country and City enables us to fit you into the position you like, with an assured income without worry or risk.

Hundreds who have followed Moler's Instructions are now driving their own cars, own their own homes, and enjoying life more than ever before.

You can register for either day or evening classes.

Make application by phone—letter or personal interview.

'Put Everything You Have Into Your First Letter,' Employers Advise Work Hunters

[This is the fourth of a series of articles to appear on Sundays carrying advice to job seekers. The articles are based on interviews with employers and others who are vitally interested in helping the unemployed sell their services in the best way possible.]

Letters and forms of application are keys to interviews with prospective employers, and interviews are the keys to most jobs. Shaping and polishing the first of these keys to fit the doors of new opportunities for employment is an important task of job hunters, according to the experts who contributed suggestions as to how it should be done.

Every job seeker should be able to present his qualifications in written form in such a way that he does not spoil his chances of getting a job, it was said. Obviously a man who is trying to get a job writing advertising copy, for example, is expected to write a better letter of application than an applicant for a position as a shipping clerk, but there are some hints that may be helpful to both.

Few Applicants Know How.

"A surprisingly large percentage of job hunters do not know how to write a letter that will advance their chances of getting work," said F. W. Cosner, director of placement of Northwestern university, McKinlock cambus. "Many of them have had good educations, but do not remember—or at least do not use—what they were taught about letter writing.

"First of all, I would suggest that every unemployed person look at one of the scores of books giving instruction in this subject. Probably they have such a book at home. If not, it's a simple matter to get one at the library.

"Next, as a general rule, I would suggest that letters of application be shown to one or more friends or acquaintances who are likely to catch mistakes. Flagrant errors in spelling and grammar, as well as 'tactical errors' in what the letter tells, may be corrected in this way before they reach an employer.

Make List of Qualifications.

"Let the job hunter start by making a detailed list of his education and working experience. Often a clearer picture results from grouping the various items according to occupation, under 'sales experience,' 'accounting experience,' 'executive experience,' and so forth, instead of keeping them in chronological order.

"A copy of this data sheet may be attached to the letter of application. If this is done the letter need not be too long and it can stress the items of education and experience which may be of most help in qualifying one for the particular job that is at stake.

"Don't make the mistake of omitting specific information. General information has less chance of tying in with the prospective employer's own experience. For example, merely to say one has had 'extensive experience in salesmanship and merchandising' carries no weight unless the statement is supported by specific facts.

How Golfing Helped One Man.

"The leisure time interests and activities of an applicant are often important to an employer, especially if the job to be filled involves contacts with the public. I have in mind a graduate who had been an assistant golf pro during his years at school. He neglected to mention this to an employer who wanted a salesman, and would not have obtained the job had not the employer learned of it."

Mr. Cosner urged, as did others who deal with job seekers by the hundreds, that unemployed persons make an effort to determine which occupations they are best qualified to enter. Most helpful to this end, he said, are talks with men who have attained some success in their field.

Several employment directors agreed that a letter of application should not begin with the statement "I am writing you about a job . . ." partly because of its triteness, and partly because it is unnecessary, especially in answering a classified advertisment.

More Things to Avoid.

Protests were also heard against the too frequent starting off with "I am a college graduate" or "I am a high school graduate" because it creates the impression that the applicant is resting his chances on the mere fact that he has had some education.

One man suggested that applicants use the first paragraph of their letters to show the prospective employer they are "looking at the job problem from his side of the fence as well as their own."

"After studying your company and its products [or services] I am convinced that my qualifications would be valuable to you," was the example this personnel director used to illustrate his statement.

Statements Must Be True.

However, unless such a statement is true it can lead nowhere, he added. If it is possible to convince an employer that one's services would mean a profit for him in some way, in a letter, an interview is certain to be granted, he said. All letters should seek an interview by means of a specific request, he declared, "because letters are only one step, and surely not the last, in getting a job."

Another employment manager advised that applicants state their nationality and religion in letters. Many employers want to know these things because they wish to maintain a "balanced personnel" by avoiding too great a percentage of employés having one faith or one nationality.

If the "first impression" of an applicant is created through a regular form provided by the company rather than a letter, it is equally important that great care be used not to do oneself an injustice, it was agreed.

The "First Impression."

L. R. Sherrill of Montgomery Ward & Co. said:

"Applications should be filled out fully and neatly. It is strange to find that so many applicants fail to do this, when the important 'first impression' in many organizations is created through the application. If an application is 'messy,' it raises the belief that the applicant's services would have the same defect.

"It is very important to be sure that facts are not misstated. Applicants sometimes seem to overlook the fact that their statements will be carefully checked. It is more than wise to be truthful."

Make Information Complete.

A representative of a large oil company said:

"Present as full an employment record as the facts and the space on the application blank will allow. This is not only for general usefulness to the company. It is possible that some deficiency in the formal education of an applicant may be overlooked if he has had compensating practical experience—and if he does not neglect to put it in the record.

"Don't tell 'little white lies' in filling out an application form. They are usually discovered by the interviewer during an interview and cost the applicant his or her chance for a job, even though the facts misstated are not important in themselves."

[Next Sunday's article, the fifth of this series, will offer the suggestions on "What to say and how to say it" during an interview.]

MEN

TRUTH, NOT FICTION
FACT, NOT THEORY.

The writer was raised on a farm, was out of work, answered an ad and seriously was trying to find work where an honest living could be made.

Gratefully I tell you that it was the best move I ever made. I made a living, saved a little money, and really learned the profession which has made living conditions better for my loved ones each and every year.

I have helped others get started and if you are sincerely looking for a real job where you can make an honest living with opportunity for advancement, see me. Our product is an electrical system of units. The compensation is on a very liberal dealer's percentage plan where you receive extra pay for extra hours.

SEE ME MONDAY, 10 A. M. OR 1 P. M.

Rm. 516, 333 N. Michigan

STRONG SALESMAN.

Prentice-Hall is expanding its sales organization to handle the largest volume of business in its history. New taxes, new unemployment insurance and pension laws, new corporation legislation, new securities regulations are creating a more vital demand for the Prentice-Hall information service units covering these matters. These information services sell for from $35 to $300 a year and several units are frequently sold one customer. Our customers include banks, attorneys, accountants, every type of business house, etc. The government itself is our largest customer.

That these services are indispensable is indicated by the fact that 85 per cent renew each year and our business is now running way ahead of any previous year. This plus the fact that we pay a liberal commission on both new and renewal business enables our representatives to develop a permanent and increasing income year after year. We train our men and give them ample leads and assistance.

Can use one or two men with car in Chicago. Apply by letter only, giving complete information, age, education, experience. Address T S 259, Tribune.

Miscellaneous.

Y-O-U-R O-W-N

B-U-S-I-N-E-S-S

Would you be interested in starting in business for yourself without one cent of investment on your part?

Well, that is exactly what we have done for many men in this territory.

These men are previous storekeepers, doctors, lawyers, shop workers, mechanics, etc., and are now earning and receiving in percentage as much as $50 a single day.

We are an old line, nationally known manufacturer of electrical units that defy competition and for which there is a constant increasing demand.

Now here are our requirements—you must be under 50, preferably married, honest, reliable, possess a neat appearance, and possess at least a grammar school education.

At this time we will only interview men living on the South Side of Chicago, northern Indiana, and northeastern Illinois.

Every man answering this advertisement will be given a confidential interview and, if selected, will be trained at our expense in our methods, which are successful.

There are no strings attached to this offer as we even pay rent, light, heat, telephone, girl hire, consign your merchandise, and finance your accounts.

Apply Monday only between 1 and 3 p. m. Ask for Mr. Lovell, Suite 404, Maryland Bldg., 63d-st. and Maryland-av.

MEN.

In 18 months in this territory I have placed over 100 men in business for themselves without one penny's investment on their part.

These men are now earning as their share of the profit from $50 to $250 in a single week—percentage basis.

I am now ready to open the south side of Chicago, Blue Island, Harvey, Hammond, Whiting, Indiana Harbor, Chicago Heights, and other nearby towns and cities.

We have thousands of customers in this territory already using the line of electrical units I control and many are being added weekly.

Experience in our line not necessary as we thoroughly train each man selected in our successful methods.

You must be over 21 years of age, honest, trustworthy and preferably married.

Every man answering this advertisement will be given a personal interview which will determine our interest and if selected will start at once.

Apply Monday, 1 to 3 p. m. only—2d floor south, 12952 S. Western-av., Blue Island. Ask for Employment manager.

WANTED.

Three ambitious young men, 25 to 35 years of age, living on South Side, to sell electrical appliances from our district store. Those who qualify will be paid while training. Every opportunity and incentive for advancement and increasing income. Commission and bonus paid in full. Apply in person only, 9:00 a. m. to 12:00 noon. See Mr. Hinman.

NEAR NORTH SIDE
It's very nice when you close your desk at the end of the day to know that after a short, brisk walk just 5 blocks north of the river, you will come to a quaint little lamplighted court that makes you feel far away from Chicago, where up a winding stairway there's a charming little studio that—well you're glad you live there, that's all. There's lots of satisfaction in having a little home with a fireplace, delightful to live in and interesting to your friends and that's what we try to give you. We are glad to make changes that you personally may suggest. The rent of one of our best studios is very reasonable if a lady portrait artist is allowed the use of the studio during the day on week-days only. Also daytime studios and shop space.

Buy a "Rent Investment Home" and Save

The "RENT INVESTMENT PLAN" is a long term, fixed monthly payment plan of home purchasing worked out by the actuaries of a large national institution which for many years has specialized in the lending of money on moderately priced homes.

According to this plan, after a modest down payment has been made, the remaining unpaid balance is reduced over a period of 139 months by a series of equal monthly payments of $8.00 per thousand, including interest. At the end of the 139 month period, the unpaid balance has been reduced by 60%.

No Financing Charges

There are no loan commissions or financing charges of any kind involved in the "RENT INVESTMENT PLAN."

The Time to Buy

Thousands of homes are being sold under this plan. Real estate prices are advancing steadily and the shortage of homes in the United States is rapidly becoming a national problem. The "RENT INVESTMENT PLAN" has removed the last obstacle from the path of "HOME OWNERSHIP" and you are urged to

ON THE LAKE SHORE

IN EVANSTON.

It's rather nice to live in a house built high on a walled-in terrace where every room is flooded with sunlight and where the views to the north and south are over lawns and into woods, and to the east out over the colorful waters of Lake Michigan. A beautiful, secluded spot where you never feel lonesome or isolated, for it is right in the midst of Evanston and only 25 minutes by motor or train from Chicago's business district. A real retreat for a busy business man who cannot afford to spend much time commuting. 12 rooms, large living rooms, huge porches, garage with living quarters and everything that goes to make up a marvelous home. You may not believe it, but a pair of cardinal birds nest in the shrubbery and stay the year round. They like it.

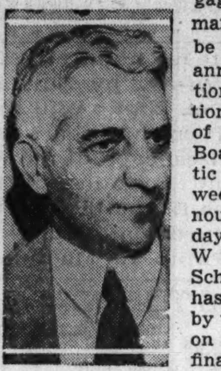
Realtors Urge the Establishment of Central Mortgage Discount Bank

PROPOSAL WILL BE DISCUSSED AT CONVENTION

Greater Marketability for Liens Sought.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]



W. S. SCHMIDT.

Concerted action by realtors from all parts of the country to give mortgages greater marketability will be taken at the annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, at Atlantic City this week, it was announced yesterday by President Walter S. Schmidt. A call has been issued by the committee on real estate finance of the association for a meeting next Friday to discuss the creation of a central mortgage discount bank, financed by private funds but under federal supervision.

Thirteen state real estate associations at conventions within recent weeks have registered their approval of the plan, originally announced several years ago at a convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. Other state groups took similar action some months ago.

Open at All Times.

"The state and national realty bodies ask congress to create such a discount agency to provide a market for mortgages that would be open at all times," said President Schmidt, "and to aid in coördination and control of the whole mortgage lending function, including coördination of the numerous existing federal agencies concerned with housing and the mortgage.

"We are urging passage of the Fletcher bill, introduced by Duncan U. Fletcher, of Florida, chairman of the banking and currency committee of the senate. This bill is now under study by every important group concerned with the future of long term credit flow.

"It would provide for the establishment of a federal mortgage discount bank financed by private funds but under governmental supervision and control.

Provisions for Capital.

"The initial capital would be subscribed by the government contingent on the raising of the private capital. The bank would be empowered to buy sound urban mortgages of all types without recourse, from any person or institution."

President Schmidt quoted the Massachusetts Association of Real Estate Boards as having recently stated that "if there had been a central institution for long term mortgage securities similar to the federal reserve banks for short term loans, the depression losses incurred by mortgagors and mortgagees would have been very considerably mitigated."

"The wider latitude given banks of the federal reserve system for mortgage loans under the new banking act," Schmidt continued, "and the whole enormous push toward new home building makes it imperative in the public interest that we set up at as early a date as possible a single unified federal system that shall be open at all times for the discounting of all sound urban mortgages.

Banks Need Discount System.

"Certainly, banks need discount facilities for their mortgages. The tentative regulations for banks of the reserve system now under study take full advantage permitted by the new banking act in setting up what might be called an indirect mortgage discount service for this one group of loaning institutions.

"But, just as banks need mortgage discount facilities, so do all lending institutions which make mortgages on the savings of the people, and they should have them."

Report $67,900 in FHA Mortgages for New Homes

The total business handled for the week ended Oct. 15 by the northern Illinois district office of the Federal Housing administration was $342,100, it was reported yesterday. Mortgages accepted for insurance under title two of the national housing act numbered 28, with a value of $155,900. Of these 19, for $88,000, are for refinancing liens on existing buildings and nine, for $67,900, are for new home construction.

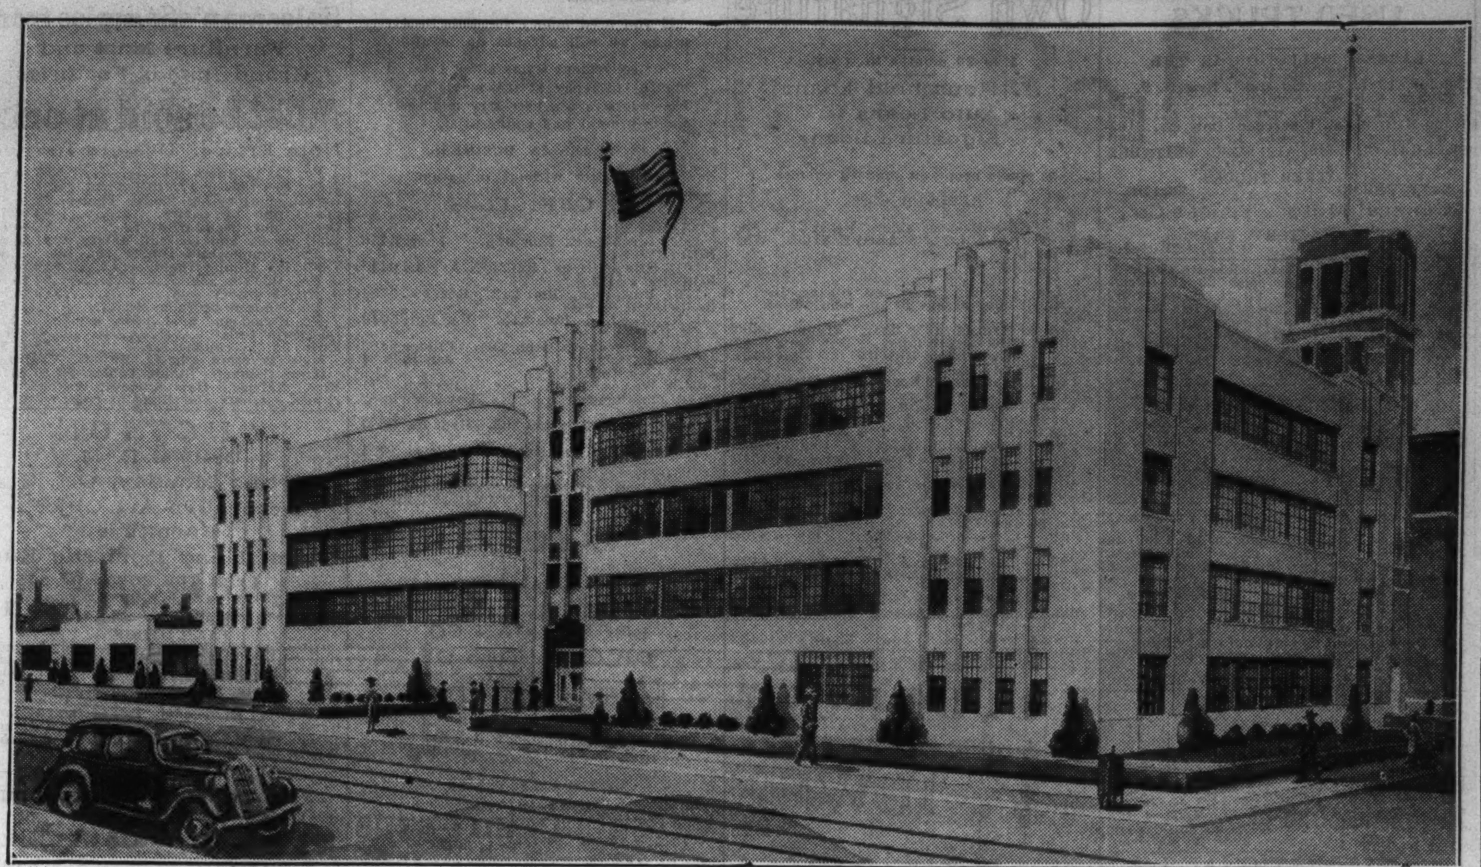
Administration Building for Liquid Carbonic Corporation



The above administration building for the Liquid Carbonic corporation is now being erected at the southwest corner of South Kedzie avenue and West 31st street. Constructed of reinforced concrete, this four story building, 60x260, will be air conditioned on all but the top floor. The first floor will be used for display purposes and for local sales offices; the second for general offices, and the third for executive offices. A modern garage containing 10,000 square feet of floor space will be located at the south end of the building. The total cost is reported to be $250,000. S. D. Gratiaa is architect. The Kaiser-Ducett company has the general contract.

CHICAGOANS ACTIVE IN ANNUAL NATIONAL REALTY CONVENTION

[Grinsted Photo.]

As usual Chicago and the midwest will play a prominent part in the coming twenty-eighth annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards at Atlantic City, N. J., on Oct. 23, 24, and 25. Among the local realtors scheduled to speak at various sessions of the national body is Howard E. Haynie, president of the Institute of Real Estate Management, and on the ticket for election on Nov. 6 as first vice president of the Chicago Real Estate board. Haynie will speak on "Standards of Practice" at the evening general session on Wednesday, Oct. 23, of the Institute of Real Estate Management.

Louis B. Beardslee, Chicago industrial realtor, will discuss "Marketing Industrial Real Estate Today," and Dayton Keith of the Dayton Keith Management service will talk on "What Does a Complete Management Service Include?"

Miles L. Colean, Chicago architect, now in Washington as director of low cost housing and the technical division of the Federal Housing administration, will speak on "FHA Standards for Residential Development."

William Homer Spencer, dean of the school of business at the University of Chicago, is scheduled to give an address on "Technical Education in the Real Estate Business."

Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, will speak on "The Right to Own Property." Herbert U. Nelson, executive secretary of the National Realty association, will speak on building material prices.

The Chicago delegation will leave this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in a special car on the Pennsylvania railroad for Atlantic City. Headquarters will be maintained at the Chalfonte-Haddon Hall.

JOHN M. SMYTH TO OPEN FIRST BRANCH STORE

What may be the first unit of several branch furniture stores will be opened by the John M. Smyth company at 816-18 Church street, Evanston, tomorrow morning. The two story building was leased last month for a five year term and since then an extensive remodeling and modernization program has been carried out from plans by Mundie & Jensen.

For the first time in sixty-eight years the old established furniture firm, which has been at 703 West Madison street since it was established in 1867, will have a branch store. The company is said to be the largest furniture concern in Chicago. The store was leased through R. H. Peterson of Quinlan & Tyson.

Liquid Carbonic Corporation Building Program Under Way

Work is under way on two large new units on the 23 acre site of the Liquid Carbonic corporation, at the southwest corner of Kedzie and 31st, which, when completed, will represent a total reported investment of close to half a million dollars in buildings and equipment.

A four story administration building to cost $250,000 and a $125,000 plant for the manufacture of bottle washing machinery are expected to be completed early in December.

Description of Building.

The administration building, designed by architect S. D. Gratiaa, and being erected by the Kaiser-Ducett company, will front 260 feet on Kedzie and sixty feet on 31st. In addition there will be a one story garage on the south.

The first floor of the administration building will be used for display and the local sales offices. On the second will be the general offices, with the executive offices on the third. These three floors will be air conditioned.

Bottle Washing Plant.

The bottle washing and pasteurizing machinery plant will be 500 feet long and 120 feet wide. It was designed by Joseph J. Novy to accommodate four large traveling cranes. The machines to be made will be used by the brewery and soft drink trade. The Kaiser-Ducett company has the general contract.

The Liquid Carbonic corporation was established in 1889 by Jacob Baur, who was the originator of compressing and packaging carbonic gas in steel cylinders. Since that time the company has added the manufacture of soda fountains, beverage bottling machinery, bar equipment, and dry ice to its list of products. The company has 23 branch factories.

NINE REALTORS NAMED TO HELP ASSESSOR CLARK

Real estate men will play an important part in making Cook county's 1935 real estate assessment. County Assessor John S. Clark yesterday named nine realty brokers as a committee to correlate unit land values.

The committee was named as follows to correlate land values for the loop, Graham Aldis and Harry Goldstine; for southtown, Charles E. Fox and Peter Foote; for westtown, Joseph B. Ford, Emil Gnaedinger, and Albert Schorsch; northtown, Warner G. Baird and Henry George Slavik.

The committee's job will be to pass on tentative unit land values which have been prepared and mapped by a volunteer group of approximately 250 other real estate men throughout the city and county. This force prepared 137 new maps listing the tentative unit land values for the entire county.

Regular employés of the assessor's office and special deputies will aid the correlation committee by submitting results of a recent independent survey which they made to determine present uniform unit values.

More Activity Reported in Outlying Upper Floors

A demand for second floor space in outlying business sections is developing rapidly according to H. W. Croxton & Co. They have just closed a lease for second floor space, 50x70 feet, at 4623 Broadway, for a term of years to a Chinese restaurant syndicate. They also report leasing second floor space at 4621 Broadway to a physician, at 4639 Broadway for a beauty parlor, the top floor at 4625 Broadway for hotel purposes and the third floor at 4623 Broadway for a sign shop.

Paul Corbett to Erect Home Near Barrington

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Corbett have had plans drawn by Architect Paul M. Polito for a nine room French provincial type residence which they will erect on the south side of County Line road, four miles west of Barrington, on their 25 acre estate. The new house will be of white brick, whitewashed, and will be air conditioned. Work will start this meek.

Real Estate Bonds

There was no material change in general real estate bond prices during the last week. An "active selective" demand has developed, brokers said. The principal buying was by retail customers who believe that bonds on certain properties are underpriced, according to one broker.

Diamond Coal Co. to Build on Elston Ave. Property

The Diamond Coal company has leased from the Hettler Lumber company the property at 2580-98 Elston avenue, 200x750, for twenty years. David Saul Klafter has drawn plans and work has started on a two story office, garage, and storage building to cost $25,000, it was announced.

Elmo Theater Leased for Fifteen Years at $72,000

The Westown Amusement Company, Inc., of which Ben Bartelstine is president, has leased the Elmo theater, 2404 West Van Buren street, from Earnest H. Alfrede and Lucille V. Chrisy for 15 years at a term rental of $72,000, or at the rate of $400 monthly.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago the week of Oct. 11 to 17, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 26, with a combined cost of $456,435. For the corresponding week of last year there were 32 contracts totaling $364,490.

DE MET'S, INC., LEASES FOUR NEW STORES IN EXPANSION PROGRAM

Carrying out the expansion program of De Met's, Inc., announced last August, leases have been closed for four new confectionery stores by Gilbert E. Keebler of E. F. Keebler & Co., exclusive broker in the acquirement of twenty new units in Illinois cities. One of the four at 102 North Chicago street, Joliet, already is open.

The other three are at 735 West 63d street, near Halsted, leased from the Frank Building corporation; the store at 613 Diversey parkway, near Clark, from the Great Lakes Realty company, and a store at 313 Main street, Peoria. The last is in the Apollo Theater building and was leased from Howard Kinsey.

"Negotiations are pending on several other locations," said Keebler. "The intention of De Met's is to secure representation in every important outlying business section."

In August announcement it was stated branches would be opened in Peoria, Joliet, Evanston, Oak Park, and Springfield. The remaining fifteen will be in outlying Chicago neighborhood centers.

SPRING COMPANY TO EXPAND ITS CLEARING PLANT

The L. A. Young Spring and Wire company of Detroit, has purchased for $113,000 the plant it has been occupying for several years under lease in the Clearing Industrial district. The property, 325x134, is at 6601 South Oak Park avenue.

The Star Service Hangar company, a subsidiary of the Young concern, leased a small plant in Clearing in 1928. Recently a new 10 year lease was drawn up but this has now been canceled and the property purchased, for all cash. In addition the buyer has taken an option of adjoining property.

It is expected the local subsidiary of the Detroit concern will be enlarged considerably. In addition to making hangars it is planned to make springs for automobile seat cushions, and also bed springs. The main company has ten plants throughout the country.

Whitaker Again Elected Lambda Alpha President

Robert B. Whitaker was reëlected international president of Lambda Alpha, honorary professional and economics fraternity, at a joint meeting of the international organization and the Ely [Chicago] chapter last Thursday at the Chicago Real Estate board. Other officers and directors elected were Louis B. Beardslee Sr., vice president; Edward L. Johnson, secretary and treasurer; Frank D. Chase, Glenn C. McBride, and Frederick M. Bowes, directors. At the meeting the recently elected officers of Ely chapter made their first official appearance before the group. They are Franklin B. Bowes, president; Mr. Chase, vice president; Sydney R. GAIN REPORTED IN CONSTRUCTION LOANS ON HOMES

Prudential Sees a Better Mortgage Market.

Definite evidence of a gradual return to a normal mortgage and building situation in Chicagoland is shown in a comparison of mortgages made in the first nine months of this year with the same period of 1934 by Donald C. Hulmes, manager of the Chicago branch of the Prudential Insurance Company of America's mortgage loan department. According to Hulmes, there were eighty-four loans, aggregating $814,500, made in 1934. So far this year 237 loans, aggregating $2,160,721, have been made, an increase in dollar volume of 165.28 per cent.

No construction loans were made throughout 1934 by Prudential, Hulmes stated. Of the 237 loans made thus far in 1935 thirty were for new residential construction, totaling $360,100. The average construction loan was $12,000.

Loans for 30 New Homes.

In 1934 there were 65 loans aggregating $278,800 placed on residential properties, with an average loan of $4,400, all for refunding purposes, it was stated. This year there were 226 loans aggregating $1,395,721 on residential properties.

In 1934 there were six loans placed on mercantile properties, aggregating $124,500, as compared with three loans, totaling $106,000 so far this year. Last year 13 loans, aggregating $402,200, were placed on modern apartment buildings; this year there have been eight loans totaling $659,000.

Although there was a slight falling off in loans on mercantile properties, and only a slight change in apartment loans, it was pointed out that the increase in home loans from $278,800 to $1,395,721 was significant.

Larger Volume Expected.

Everything points to a much larger volume in home construction loans in the future, it was stated.

"New plans and policies have been adopted which provide greatest flexibility in terms and which will fit the needs of all owners of desirable improved real estate," said Hulmes. "The company has ample funds for real estate mortgage loans with interest rates varying from 4½ to 6 per cent. Desirability of security and percentage of loan to appraised value of security are the prime considerations in determining their application.

"There is no doubt that terms are the most important feature of today's mortgages. We recognize their importance to us, and borrowers are quick to appreciate the advantages to them.

Borrowers Seek Suitable Terms.

"In fact, borrowers are demanding that the terms of the mortgage they sign be suited to their particular needs. No owner wants to lose his property and so he makes certain the terms give him the greatest opportunity of living up to its requirements.

Reduction of principal is an outstanding element. This is frequently included in a long term mortgage and results in the automatic elimination of costly renewals. It also overcomes the uncertainty as to whether a mortgage will be renewed."

Brokers' Notes

Miss Juanita Lewis, active in Lake View realty for ten years, is now in Baird & Warner's Lake View office. Mrs. Margaret Chapman, who has operated a travel bureau for years, is in the North Michigan avenue office of the same firm.

Miss Helen Lehrkind, for several years with Baird & Warner and Hogan & Farwell, is now associated with Wirtz, Haynie & Ehrat at 3160 Sheridan road.

Cyrus F. Campe recently consolidated his loop office, formerly at 1 North La Salle, with his office at 1205 Berwyn avenue.

BUYS KENWOOD RESIDENCE.

Gilbert A. Hausen bought the ten room residence at 1035 East 45th street from Marjory Warfield. M. M. Flanders of the 47th street office of Swan, Lorish & Caspers was broker.

Beauty and Fashion Order Women to Be Picturesque

Feminine Charm This Winter to Be Aided by Rich, Warm Colors of the New Cosmetics

By ELEANOR NANGLE.

FASHION and her charming sister, Beauty, have joined forces this year in an artistic conspiracy. This is the season, they'll tell you, when you don't have to bother your pretty head about looking flashily chic or merely pretty. They're making life harder. You must look picturesque!

The trick will lie, of course, in pulling off the picturesqueness with enough careful study so that it looks magnificently casual. It won't be accidental. Every detail of wardrobe, of face, hands, and hair will need concentrated attention.

It will be important, right now when the scarlet leaves and the brisker winds are heralding winter, to do some skin conditioning to forestall the usual winter ill of skin dryness. That calls for oiling and more of it. The rich cleansers and the softening creams that banish dryness should take their place as the two pillars of winter beauty wisdom.

Softening Cream a Winter Necessity.

The precious natural oils sapped by cold and high winds, by the steam heated rooms and, perhaps, even by one's bath water, must be replaced if you'd have your complexion echo the smooth creaminess of the magnolia blossom. Take the softening cream down from the high, dark shelf where all the winter trappings were tucked away and use it more faithfully than you've ever used it before.

The skin conditioning that insures suavity is the first principle of the winter beauty routine. Without the fundamental beauty of skin texture and health the most glamorous of makeup aids aren't worth the money you spend for them. But once the skin is correct, the road to glamor is wide open with every light green.

The new beauty offerings are numerous and vastly exciting. Makeup tints all verge toward the mellow, the rich and warm. Highly stylized makeup is out. Foundations, powders, and color accents, such as rouge, lipstick, and nail enamels, all are keyed to complement the warm winter colors. In many of the new eye shadows there is a faint, opulent undertone of gilt or silver.

New Perfumes Opulently Scented.

Perfumes echo the opulent note. The pale, sweet charm of light bouquets or floral scents bows to the allure of sophisticated, provocative blends. Among the straight floral odors gardenia makes a fitting winter comeback. A new one, white camellia, similar in its marriage of the lilting and the languorous, makes its debut.

The coiffure line is soft; the effect picturesque. Hair must have the satin sheen that brushing gives. Here and there, in coiffures, a jeweled ornament will twinkle.

Hands will be important, the beauty experts say, because the season's jewels are. Rich fashions call for the dramatic hand, eloquently used.

And in all, the picturesque, but not the theatrical, will be the perfect effect! Get busy, girls!

The skin conditioning that banishes dryness and insures the suavity of makeup is the first principle of fall and winter routine.

Culinary Creations of Genghis Khan Dress Up Rice, Chicken, and Eggs for American Menus

By MARY MEADE.

EIGHT and a half centuries ago Genghis Khan held Asia in the palm of one hand, while in the other he wielded a soup ladle of alarming proportions. Although it isn't commonly known, that great Mongolian ruler was a connoisseur of food, and he spent much of his spare time in the royal kitchens concocting rare dishes which today may easily become the stock in trade of every American housewife.

Until the twelfth century rice was just rice to the orient and the Chinese were getting pretty tired of it. Then Genghis came along wih his sparkling genius, saw the latent possibilities of rice, and put new interest in the art of cooking, which had slumped badly. "Mongolian curried chicken," his favorite brain child, is fit indeed for an emperor, and take heart!—it's just as easy to eat with knife and fork as with chop sticks.

This Chop Suey Will Delight Family.

Another Khan specialty is chicken chop suey with rice. Your family is sure to go after this one shouting "Mah yong, hyong atong," which, translated freely, means, "Boy, O boy, what food!"

"Chinese eggs," still another "Khan concoction," is a good dish for giving your special luncheons an oriental flavor.

These three of the emperor's dietary exploits, none of which asks ingredients too complicated for our well stocked American kitchens, or preparation pother too painstaking for our occidental hurry-scurry, deserve the place of honor in your menus soon. They're made this way:

MONGOLIAN CURRIED CHICKEN

1 stewed chicken
1 cup uncooked rice
1 onion, sliced
½ clove garlic
½ teaspoon powdered ginger
¼ cup olive oil
1½ tablespoons curry powder
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1 cup chicken stock
½ cup fresh grated coconut
Milk from 1 coconut

Remove the meat from the chicken. Steam the rice. While the rice is cooking fry the onion, garlic, and ginger in the hot olive oil for about 5 minutes, but do not brown past the yellow stage. Add the curry powder and flour and blend well. Then add gradually, during the stirring, the milk and chicken stock. Cook together for about 30 minutes in the top of a double boiler. Then, to the cooked sauce, add the grated coconut (moist canned or packaged coconut will do if you don't want to bother with a fresh one) and the coconut milk.

Keep Sauce Hot Until Rice Is Steamed.

Keep the sauce hot until the rice is well steamed. Then make a ring of the fluffy rice and put the cooked hot chicken in the center of the ring. Pass the hot sauce separately, followed by a bowl of grated coconut or other ground nuts. If you like, the coconut may be omitted, although it always is used in the countries where the curried dishes originated.

Occasionally pretty sad amateur versions of chop suey dishonor the name of that noble dish, but here's one that deserves whole-hearted approval. Its vegetables (green pepper, onions, shredded celery, and bean sprouts) are properly tender, yet crisp, and its generous content of toasted almonds adds distinction of both flavor and texture. Besides, it's beautifully uncomplicated, made like this:

CHICKEN CHOP SUEY WITH RICE

3 tablespoons butter
1 cup shredded green pepper
1 cup shredded onions
2 cups shredded cooked chicken
2 cups shredded celery and leaves
2 cups canned bean sprouts
1½ cups chicken broth
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 cup toasted almonds
4 tablespoons soy sauce

Melt the butter in a skillet and put in the green pepper and onion. Cook for a few minutes, but do not brown. Add the shredded chicken, heat thoroughly, and add the celery.

Suits Which Rule Now Have a Military Air

Uniforms of Many Centuries March Peaceably Down Paris Avenues.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The march of science and of events is making over Paris fashions, as it does the rest of the world. The radio brings remote places and peoples into your parlor, and fashion puts them into your clothes closet. War clouds over Europe have turned sports styles military in a big way and they are recruited from the armies of the world, made into uniforms which march peaceably side by side in the avenues of cities everywhere.

Great bear coats come to Paris salons from the natives of frozen polar regions and the Eskimo's hood protects the fine heads of elegant women living in a steam heated world. Peasants who never saw a fashionable dress would find their own colorful garments in the velvet hung dressmaking houses of Paris this winter, Russians, Swedes, Hungarians, and others. In short, the clothes we wear are cut on lines that never before were anywhere near fashions.

Vionnet makes officer uniform active sports suits with epaulets, brass buttons, and divided skirts. Schiaparelli designs sports suits with loud plaid jackets, such as English gentlemen wear for "shooting," for wear with plain skirts, and over these goes an elephantine coat of bear fur.

Flamboyant Capes Worn Over Warlike Suits.

Sports suits continue to be the outstanding fashion in this class of styles. Most of them have a warlike air, with standing collars, frogs, epaulets, or braiding. Flamboyant capes of cloth or fur, or the two combined, to wear over these suits make the martial illusion complete, and it is to be topped by a soldier cap. The cap may be copied from the headgear of the Union soldier of 1861, the Algerian doughboy, the Italian, the French cadet, or any other soldier's cap. Officer's cloth is the wool that is newest, and it is rivaled only by tweed, splashed with vivid colors. Soldier colors like horizon blue, gray-green, and olive come in for sports and town. They are relieved by incredible shades, in pairs, like bright red and blue, bright purple and green, and so forth.

No. 1, from Mainbocher, is one of the new tweed sports suits. It is gray-green and splashed with red, green, and blue. The jacket buttons up to a close, round neckline that is filled in with a red velvet scarf. The belt is fitted closely to give the cadet's waistline, and patch pockets are placed on the hips. A circular cape is tied around the jacket and under the right arm in the bandmaster tradition. The skirt is straight and rather short. A red slouch hat is worn with this suit.

Rouff Uses Arab Cap With Guardsman's Coat.

No. 2 is a guardsman's coat in black astrakhan fur, by Maggy Rouff. It fastens with braid frogs in front and departs from the military in the matter of sleeves, having full gathered bishop sleeves. The fur hat, or cap, is Arab, and goes by the name of Ali. It is trimmed with a cord and braided ends.

No. 3 is a sports coat from Heim and is pure Nordic, being taken from the jackets that Swedish peasants wear. It is made of dark blue shaved lamb, and the front closing is bordered on both sides with bright peasant embroidery. The cuffs are embroidered and the collar is red wool on the inside and embroidered fur on the outside. The big peasant sleeves are interesting and new.

Touzet Borrows Outdoor Ensemble from Eskimos.

No. 4 is a knitted ensemble from Lucien Lelong and it is entirely double as to cape and blouse or sweater. The outside is knitted of olive green wool, with lacy stripes, and the red knitted lining shows through. The belt and buttons are of red lether. The skirt is made of red tweed and the bonnet of green knitted bands.

No. 5 is the sports hood, collarette, and jacket that come from our friends the Eskimos. Touzet makes this jacket, hood, and collarette of deep green suede lether and borders the hood and collar with bright red fox fur. Such jackets are intended primarily for winter sports, and how comfortable they would be for a football game in November!

For your hands you will have Schiaparelli's fur gloves, made of any and all furs, and heavy, waterproof oxfords with low heels will insure warm feet and dry in the midst of cold weather sports.

Canned Product Unites Cornmeal Mush and Bacon

CANNED cornmeal mush, all ready to slide out of the can and fry in neat rounds, is no novelty in the food markets, but when that carefully cooked mush boasts the addition of rich butter and crisp bits of bacon, it becomes something rather special. Such a bacon-cornmeal mush now is being featured by a large meat packer for a fall breakfast, luncheon, or supper dish.

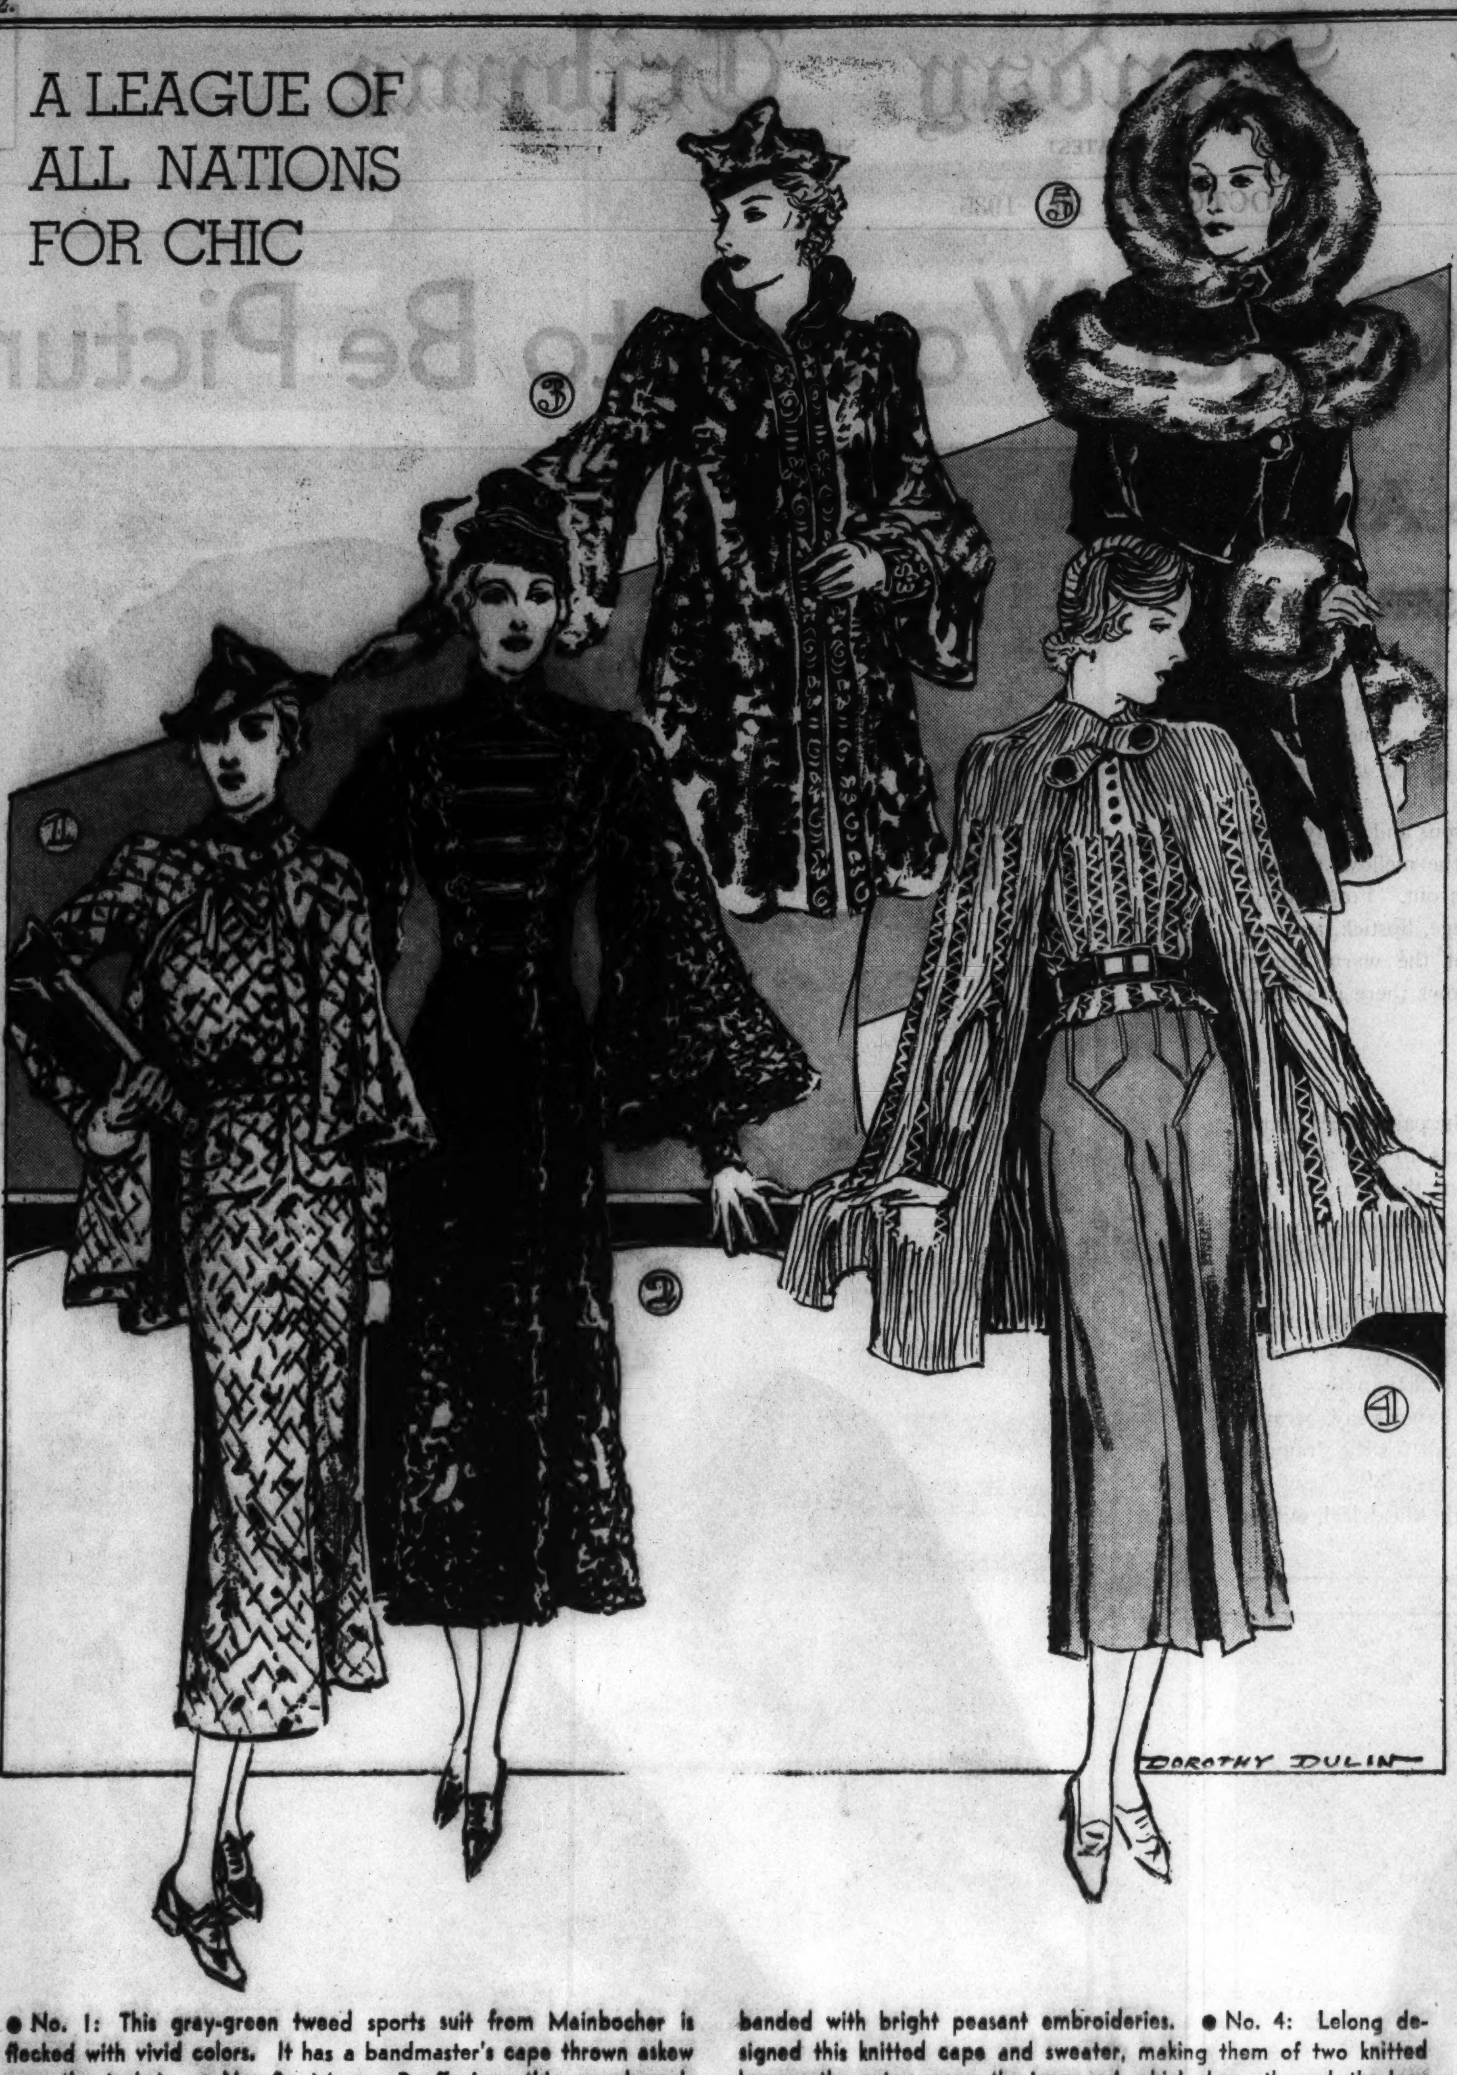
A LEAGUE OF ALL NATIONS FOR CHIC



● No. 1: This gray-green tweed sports suit from Mainbocher is flecked with vivid colors. It has a bandmaster's cape thrown askew over the jacket. ● No. 2: Maggy Rouff signs this guardsman's coat of black astrakhan fur, which is fastened on military frogs. ● No. 3: This navy blue shaved lamb swagger jacket from Heim is banded with bright peasant embroideries. ● No. 4: Lelong designed this knitted cape and sweater, making them of two knitted layers—the outer green, the inner red, which shows through the lacy stripes. The skirt is red tweed. ● No. 5: This Eskimo hood, bordered with fox fur, is made, like the collarette and jacket, of suede.

bean sprouts, and all of the chicken broth except two tablespoons. Blend the cornstarch with this small amount of reserved broth and mix gently into the hot mixture in the skillet, stirring well. Stir in the toasted almonds and soy sauce, heat well, and serve with hot, fluffy rice.

CHINESE EGGS

½ cup uncooked rice
Salt, pepper
4 hard cooked eggs
1 cup grated cheese
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
1 teaspoon chopped onion
2 tablespoons canned tomato pulp
¾ cup milk.

Cook the rice in boiling salted water until tender. Drain well, season with salt and pepper, and spread in a shallow baking dish. Cut the hard cooked eggs lengthwise and remove the yolks. Blend the yolks with one-fourth cup of the grated cheese, the chopped green pepper, onion, tomato pulp, and seasoning to taste. Stuff the egg whites with this mixture and arrange on top of the rice. Pour around the eggs a sauce made with the remaining cheese and milk, heated in a double boiler until the cheese is melted. Place the dish in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F., for 20 minutes, or until it is well heated and the sauce begins to brown.

Snapshots from Paris

- The newest evening capes, long enough to touch the floor, are made of guardsman's red broadcloth, with military collars and epaulets. Stunning over a black frock, these capes.
- Charming dinner dresses are plaited from neck to instep, sleeves too, and have wide, jeweled girdles. Piquet makes them. They look Greek.
- Creed puts wide, bright colored sashes around the waistlines of hip-length military jackets. Try this on yours.
- Knitted basques are rivaling the knitted pullover sweater for sports wear this winter.
- Necklaces made of false jewels are in fashion this season. They are built like round collars and decorate the simple high necks of the new daytime dresses.

New Gadgets for Kitchen Simplify Many Messy Tasks

IT isn't too soon to be taking inventory of the small items so necessary in a well regulated kitchen, and which pay for themselves many times over their small cost. Skewers are available in several sizes and are made of good quality steel or nickel. They should be on hand before the time arrives for roasting turkeys, geese, and chickens. Sewing up a fowl for roasting with a needle and string belongs to the horse and buggy era, and besides is a messy job. Another nifty gadget is a new vegetable friller and simple to use. It is especially adapted for carrots, radishes, and cucumbers. Even plain fare takes on a festive appearance when dolled up in this fashion. A new type of larder needle is another item for use when delicious fillet of beef, with strips of fat laced through it, is the pièce de résistance for company dinner. Butchers always charge extra for trimming beef tenderloin in this fashion, and clever cooks can do their own larding with this able larding needle that is so simple to manipulate.

Peanut Butter + Chocolate Syrup (Blend it) = Butter-fudge Sauce!

TWO FAMILIAR PANTRY STAPLES UNITE IN DESSERT SAUCE

With peanut butter and a tin of chocolate sirup on the pantry shelf, hurried "company" desserts hold no terrors. Blended together (using about a fourth as much peanut butter as sirup) the two form a rich and luscious butter-fudge sauce for any ice cream.

Parents Must Gain Friendship of Adolescents

Obedience Won by Domination Not Worth Price; It's Spiritually Maiming.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

IF ONLY you could get together on things—you parents and your teen age sons and daughters.

You'll never get anywhere—that is, anywhere worth going—if you don't. And it's so foolish to spend these few remaining years of childhood in friction and antagonisms. If, on the other hand, you would only both try to see the other's point of view as well as to root for your own, you'd be so much happier and really get somewhere worth going.

Bury the hatchet—for war of a kind is what it sometimes almost amounts to—and be friends. It's such pleasure and such fun to have your 16 year old as a friend as well as a son or daughter.

Influence Weakened by Antagonism or Coldness.

These are important years. Don't allow anything—their future career, work, studies, the question of going out with those of the opposite sex—come between you.

There is too much real estrangement between parents and their older children. It involves a deep hurt as well as a deep deprivation on both sides.

It is dangerous, too, to grow away from your child. It impairs your usefulness to your boy or girl at a time in their lives when they need you badly. You can't help or advise sucessfully if you're not your boy's or girl's friend. Your influence is greatly weakened by antagonisms or coldness.

Of course you may still retain your authority—that is not the same as real influence. You may be able to enforce rules of conduct, decide for your child on a choice of work or profession, or ban visits and parties and movies with other young people. You may be able to get your way because you hold the purse strings, or by using fear, or because your child isn't of age.

In one way or another you may gain your point, but you may never know the depth of discouragement, disappointment, or seething rebellion that lies beneath the surface—each reaction depending upon whether your son or daughter is the kind too easily squelched, or too peace loving to resist, or the kind who is strong without being ruthless and so has to bide his or her time until the oppressive yoke can be thrown off.

Letters Tell of Youth Forced Into Careers, Limited Socially.

Why do I write all this today?

Partly because I see the need of it in so many instances in my own contacts with young people, and partly because of the many appeals that I receive from the young people themselves.

"My people have made me practice for hours every day since I was a little girl. They are determined that I shall be a concert pianist but I don't think it possible. I love music, but I do not want to make it my profession. There is something else that I have always wanted to do. But now my parents are always telling me about how much money they have spent on my education [they are comfortably situated] and that they are not going to have it wasted. They are so ambitious for me and I know I am going to disappoint them—in fact, I have already," writes one girl.

"I am 17," writes another, "and I do truly try to do what my parents want me to. They are strict about everything. But one thing I think is too difficult is this: they do not want me to have anything at all to do with boys—not even to go to a party at some one's house where there are both boys and girls. Why, I wouldn't think of asking a boy to come to my house. And there are some nice boys in the block, too. Do you think this is right? And what can I do? I don't want to disobey my parents and I don't want to meet boys outside. My parents are good and mean to be kind, I suppose—but I couldn't talk anything over with them."

Now what can I say to these young people? The simple fact is that their parents need reëducating in their job. They are making a mistake in forcing their own decisions down their children's throats—in drawing such tight lines of conduct.

Discuss Even Trivial Issues Intelligently.

Neither the domineering, nor the severe, nor the aloof attitude is a workable one with young people. Don't try to be monarch of all you survey with your fast maturing boys and girls. In being so you rob them of confidence in themselves and of the power to make decisions—both of which attributes they will soon need when they go out into the world, whether it is the world of work, of college, of society, or of marriage.

Get down off your dictator's pedestal. Come out of your shell of aloofness. Be your child's friend, whatever his age may be.

Be willing to talk anything over with your teen age son or daughter—especially anything important. And when I say important, I mean not only what you think is important, like going to college or showing respect to elders, but what they think is important, like having a long dance dress or being allowed to stay an hour later at a party. If they think it's important to them, it is important—for the time being at least. Next year they may laugh at it themselves. But that isn't this year. Respect their values.

Don't Be Too Dignified to Make Compromises.

Try to make decisions about things together. If you believe, for instance, that 12 is late enough even for a big party to last, don't just lay down the law. Explain why you think so. Be willing to give your own reasons as well as to listen to your children's.

And don't be too dignified to concede something — to compromise. When you can't, however, and some principle is involved, stand firm. And believe this: if you have always been fair and understanding, your children will be able to take it from you and with a good grace. They will even, if the rare occasion arises when you must make a decision for them without giving the reason, be able to accept it on faith. They know you wouldn't "let them down." Earn their respect—not just outward respect but respect for your sincerity and wisdom, and they will meet you more than halfway.

I think it is important for parents of growing-up children to realize that it is not insolence nor insubordination for them to think for themselves, and to question many accepted things. It's normal and it is right.

Children Do Not Enjoy Fighting Parental Dictums.

In this connection there is a mistake that parents often make. They think that when their children seem to be pitting themselves against their father or mother that they are quite happy and satisfied about it all. They are not. They are hurt and bewildered by strained relations. They don't like your disapproval. They may seem not to mind. They may say, "I don't care." But they do. They write and tell me so.

You would be surprised at some of their letters. You would be surprised at some of the things I have heard them say. These adolescent children of ours are doing a lot of clear thinking about themselves, their futures, their talents, their abilities, and their relations with other boys and girls.

They can't meet you on your ground—they're not quite old enough and haven't seen enough of life. So it's up to you to meet them on theirs.

I can assure you that you will enjoy it. They'll surprise you with their excellent sense.

Your children need you in the difficult world of today and they know it. So be friends with your older boy and girl.

There's much that is illuminating for parents in our fully written booklet, "Understanding the Adolescent." In requesting it is necessary to enclose a stamped, self addressed envelope.

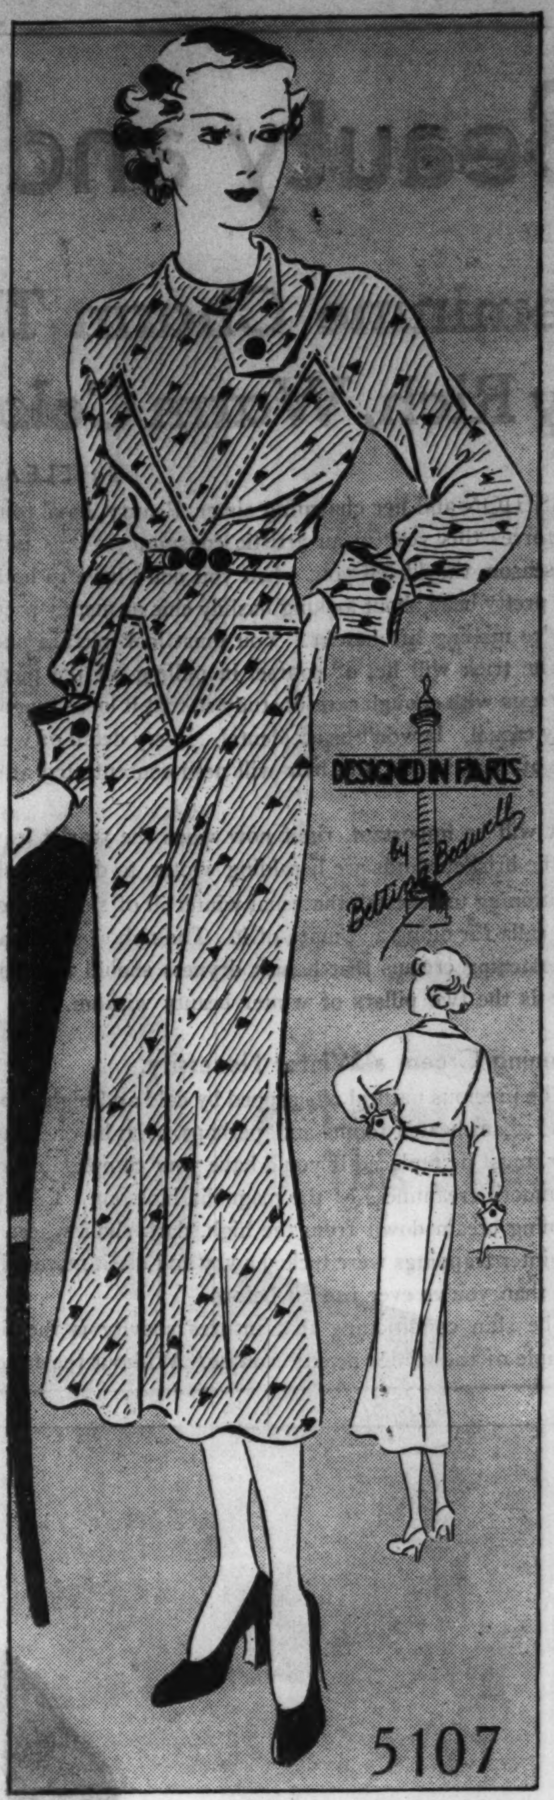
Paris Pattern Daytime Dress Is Attractive in Simplicity



No. 5107—The Paris pattern for this daytime dress is available in sizes 14 and 16, and in 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Here's a lovely daytime dress pattern, No. 5107, that makes a point of simplicity, its only ornamentation being novelty buttons.

The softly draped, high neckline is especially flattering. Its tricky collar buttons "on" at the front. The smartly cuffed sleeves also claim attention. Bias seamings create an effect of slimness. There's a hint of flare in the skirt.

This fascinatingly lovely dress is fashioned of a suede finished fabric in the season's smart shade, bottle green.

It's a dress you can wear for every daytime occasion.

It's a model, too, that adapts itself to all the novelty silk crêpe weaves, rabbit's hair woolen, wool jersey, velvet, metallic fabrics, etc.

The best news of all is that it is simple to sew. Even an amateur can make it without experiencing the least bit of difficulty. The instructions and pattern chart are easy to follow.

Clever Cat Tree Saves Furniture from Scratching

A TREE for the cat is good news for those who have such a pet roaming around the house. For be it an aristocratic dark faced Siamese, graceful Persian, fluffy Angora, or gorgeously marked tortoise cat, they all have the same disagreeable habit of extending their needlelike talons to scratch upholstery or polished legs of furniture. Some lover of the feline tribe had the ingenious idea that takes care of that problem by inventing a tree about three feet high and securely fastened to a heavily weighted base to prevent it being tipped, and which kitty can scratch to its heart's content. The tree is completely covered with thick, dark, tweedy material, thoroughly permeated with the aroma of catnip. And any one familiar with cats and their habits knows also that the odor of catnip is to tabby what heavenly perfume is to a debutante.

Beaux Resent the Mention of Other Escorts

Emphasizing Attentions of Competitors Creates a Feeling of Distaste.

By Doris Blake.

TODAY we would like to devote the column to discussion of a special type of woman who does not find favor in young men's eyes.

We happened to mingle with a group of young men recently and asked them of what, if anything, girls were guilty that invoked men's disapproval. Almost in chorus, we were answered: "Talking about the good times they have with other boys!"

The fellows interviewed tell me it is a common ailment among the sex that would be deemed much fairer did girls forego the temptation to tell Bill all about the grand time they had out with Jack the other evening.

The truth is that the young men are not fully convinced that the Jack of the previous evening is a flesh and blood being. They have a suspicion that sometimes he is some one imagination creates in the hope that the current escort will rise to dizzier heights in entertainment. But even though he may be a real person, and the entertainment he extended a real happening, it still is reckoned as bad taste by young men to have him paraded before them.

Times Trying Financially to Young Men Without This Thrust.

These are trying enough times on masculine youth without this thrust to its sensitive flesh. Getting together enough money to take a girl out in an average good time way is a problem with which a good many young men have to wrestle. How they manage it at all under general current financial restrictions always will remain a marvel to us. However, that's beside the point. It's making a young man feel conscious of his money shortage that's playing havoc with the girl's popularity.

Personally, we feel and, indeed, know in certain cases, that this is the last thing in the girl's mind. From what we see and hear we find you young women rare good sports on the money feature of life today, except for a few naturally born diggers who'd take a man's eyeteeth as little enough to pay for their company. But this group of women are part of every era, good times and not so good, and they carry obvious enough signboards to warn young men if they want to be warned away.

What we want to present to you young women who stand accused of "talking the other fellow" is that the current financial straits of your escorts make them fairly sensitive. So, they misinterpret your motive in dragging in names.

Talking About Other Beaux Creates Feeling of Distaste.

We know that it is just a habit, or shall we call it a form of sales talk by which you hope to impress your male escort with your popularity. You probably have been told it is not wise to let a young man think that he is the only candidate for your company. And, indeed, there's more than a little wisdom in getting that message across, too. But, from the latest reports, it had better not come directly from you. Or, if it must come from you, let it be administered in small portions and then delivered adroitly, so that it cannot be interpreted as a challenge.

It isn't always that the youth's finances are responsible for his sensitive reaction to the line of conversation about which we're talking. Exactly the same distaste i. created in the masculine soul as any of you young women would experience did the young man regale you with the swell time he and Jule, or Marge, had the other evening. You'd hate it. Indeed, you probably would challenge: "Why bring her into the conversation!" Anyway, you'd experience the sense of a detached interest on the part of your male escort if other girls' names punctuated his evening out with you. You expect, when you are out with him, that you are to be the girl on his mind. He would appreciate a compliment in kind from you.

It isn't any grievous offense, naturally. Thoughtless, rather! Overacting the popularity rôle!

Mere Suggestion of Competition Arouses Ire in One's Escort.

Even the comparison which the "line" suggests irks. But we all are like that. We hate names dragged up and comparable occasions enthused about when we are doing our best to fulfill the immediate rôle. We suspect a comparison is going on in the back of the mind of the one who does it. And that hurts our vanity.

One of the boys, in the interview referred to above, called attention to boy, "you'd never know she went out "Dell," he called her. "Gee," said the with other fellows at all. She never brags about her dates. And she's the most popular one in the whole crowd!"

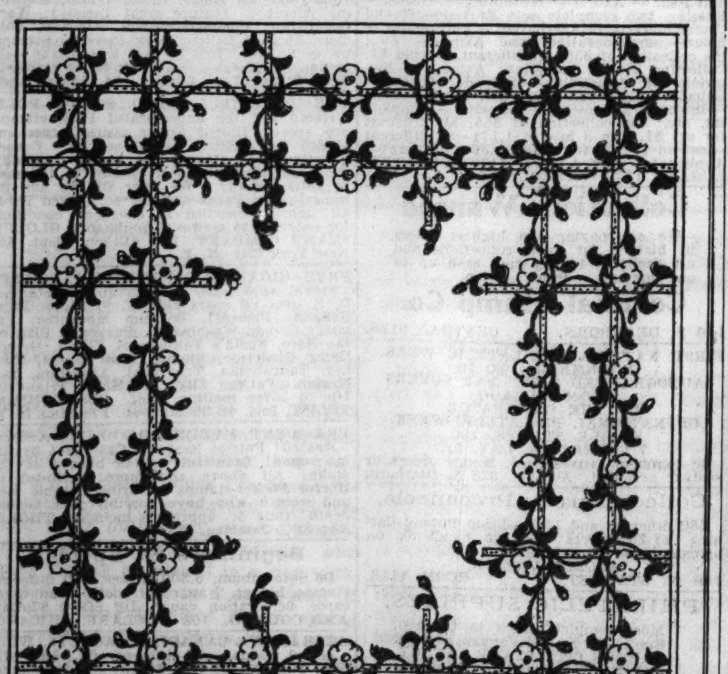
KNITTED CHIC FOR WINTERTIME

Made of a dull finished, crinkly crepe wool in a rich jade green, this simple, two piece, hand knit is designed to be worn under a winter coat. The high neck and round collar are style points in its favor, and, like so many of the smartest of the season's hand knitted garments, this frock is created in the simple and most attractive stockinette stitch, giving the frock a distinctive weave.

Quilt Attains Beauty Through Manipulation of the Patches



ROSE BOWER.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

By Nancy Cabot.

CLEVER manipulation of attractive applique patches creates this beautiful "Rose Bower" quilt. It is one of the most gorgeous bed coverlets available to present day quilt makers. The amazing feature of the quilt is the simplicity with which it is made. It is composed entirely of 12 inch square appliqued blocks, set together to form the bower of flowers illustrated. A pastel green background, white lattices, soft rose for petals, and leaf green makes a most ideal color combination. For those who still fancy a white background the choice of coloring for lattices might be a shade similar to natural wood, a pale yellow, or deep rose.

Don't Be Fat!

"DRINK 4 GLASSES OF WELCH'S DAILY — EAT SENSIBLY — THAT'S ALL!"

says IRENE RICH
Lovely Lady of the Screen

Irene Rich, past 40, still has her slim, lovely figure of 16.

Tests, under a leading doctor's direction, have proven that now you can safely lose fat the Welch way—pleasantly, too—without strict diet or exercise.

Simply mix ¾ Welch's with ¼ glass plain water. Drink a glassful before every meal and one before retiring. Then eat sensibly—that's all! Weight goes down; you actually build quick new energy at same time. So there's no strain, no discomfort. Soon you look—and feel—like a new person!

The reason is simple. For the grape sugar in delicious Welch's Grape Juice is exactly the same kind the blood uses for energy. It is quickly, easily burned. It not only helps the body burn up fat, but also satisfies your craving for rich, sweet foods. Hence, it helps you lose weight naturally. Get Welch's from your dealer today. Drink 4 glasses a day—eat sensibly. Keep fatigue and fat away.

Beware of Cheap Substitutes

Get only genuine Welch's. For the secret Welch process retains the essential healthful properties of ripe Concord Grapes. Welch's is one grape juice that is Certified-Pure, Pasteurized; contains no adulterants, no artificial coloring, no preservatives, no added water. Always full strength. Can be diluted and still be delicious. Hence Welch's goes farther, too. Ask for it by name. And get what you ask for!

DIRECTIONS FOR TAKING WELCH'S
by DR. FREDERIC DAMRAU, 247 Park Ave., New York

Welch's Grape Juice is a wonderful blood, body builder. Gives buoyant energy. Drink all you want between meals—follow directions below for specific uses.

FOR REDUCING WEIGHT Eat sensibly—drink a glass of Welch's (3 parts to 1 part water) before meals and before retiring. If faint between meals, drink another glass.

FOR GROWING CHILDREN Give them ½ glass of Welch's at end of lunch and dinner—between meals, too, instead of sweets. Give undiluted to help build red blood, strong bones and teeth.

FOR TIRED, DULL FEELING When fatigued, drink Welch's (3 parts to 1 part water). Quickly restores energy and relieves fatigue.

FOR EXPECTANT MOTHERS Drink glass of Welch's (3 parts to 1 part water) after lunch and dinner, or between-meals when energy is low. Helps build blood, bones and teeth for the child. Excellent for nursing mothers, too.

QUICK NEW ENERGY FOR MEN, WOMEN, CHILDREN!

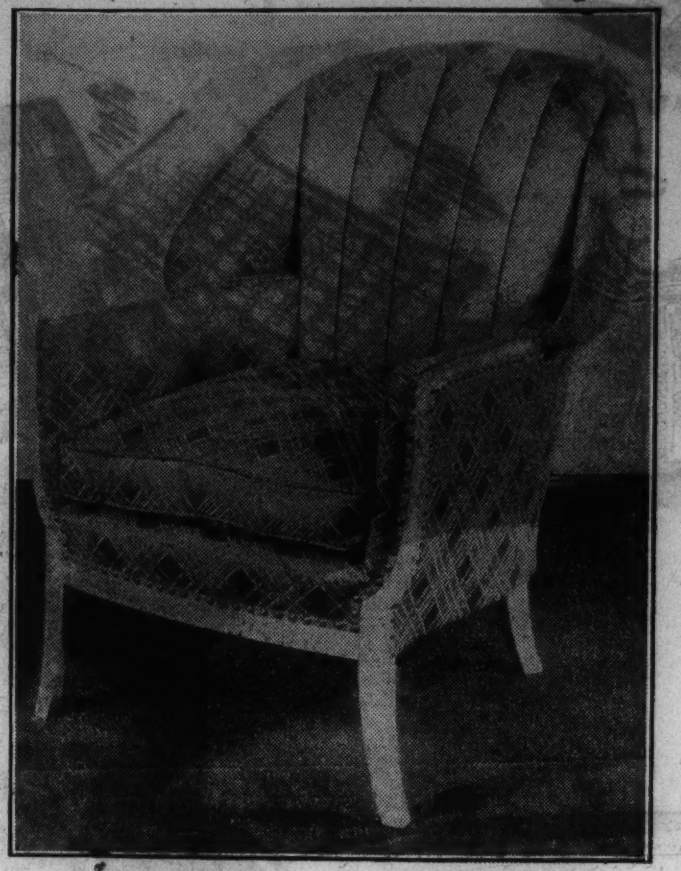
WELCH'S GRAPE JUICE

Aluminum Ware Trio a Versatile Aid in Kitchen

IN one set of cast aluminum ware, a three-piece set, mind you, are almost all the cooking utensils needed for everyday cooking. The large bottom pan makes an excellent stew kettle or, covered, a grand Dutch oven. With the inner pan in place it may be used as a double boiler. The inner pan boasts a removable handle, with which it may be used as a skillet [the same lid fits] or shallow sauce pan. Or, without the handle and with the lid, this inner pan makes a fine baking dish or casserole. If storage space is limited in your kitchen you'll want to look up this versatile trio.

Cooking Plate of Steel Saves Food and Fuel Costs

IF the oatmeal scorches while you're setting the breakfast table, or if the pot roast simmers dry, you'll want to try one of the new [and most inexpensive] steel cooking plates. This gadget sets directly on the heating element of your stove, and the carefully designed ridges on its surface make for an even distribution of heat, and discourage scorching of both food and utensils. And, as though the advantage of less frequent stirrings weren't enough, the plate, with its ability to retain heat, boasts the added attraction of saving on the fuel bills.



COMFORT AND STYLE

Party Dinners Get Inspiring Start with Smorgasbord

MANY a well dressed party dinner will start off with the Swedish smorgasbord this season. One large downtown food store has an excellent selection of imported Swedish appetizers for such occasions: Gaffelbittar [filet of herring] in wine sauce, Swedish anchovies in a spicy sauce, frymastaresill [herring] cured with lots of onions and spices, anchovy sprats, whole ones, in a pink spiced sauce, and cocktail shrimps [tiny and perfect] in a sauce of indescribable flavor and goodness. Then, if your dinner goes on in logical fashion, you'll be delighted to know that the same shop has imported Swedish bread and liquors.

Only Ten Minutes Required to Make Original Dessert

IN ten ticks of the timepiece [minute ticks] it's possible to prepare and bake a trig dessert which goes by the inspired name of "Marshabans." This quick-as-a-wink number goes together like this: Peel and split bananas lengthwise, one for each serving, and dip in lemon juice. Place flat side up in a baking pan and sprinkle lightly with salt. Top each half with halved marshmallows, four halves to a banana, and bake in a moderate oven until the marshmallows are brown and puffy.

● Group E: New fabric gloves and smart combination alligator skin and lether oxfords.

Togs at Most Exuberant for Football Fans

Shapeless Coat and Army Blanket Give Way to Slim Ensembles in Vivid Hues.

By Rhea Seeger.

IN a few short seasons, football fashions for the feminine rooters have certainly changed much and for the better. With not-so-distant memories of Big Saturdays when grandstands were filled with a flock of huddled-together spectators who looked like rows of swaddled sausages, it's a grand relief at last to see chic sitting on the sidelines.

In that era football fans appareled themselves in cast-off wools that had hung around the house for months. Now, instead of queer, unrelated hats, still quainter jackets, shapeless coats that were undeniably warm, but hideous to look upon, instead of raiding the blanket supplies or borrowing shapeless masculine attire, we're wearing real clothes. The sports clothes shops are now doing record business with the smartest clothes and accessories that ever swarmed into a grandstand.

With swagger coats that really live up to the name, swanky tailored tweeds that are soft and easy to wear, literally dozens of sweaters, stunning suede jackets, fur swagger coats, and all the warmest of wool accessories, you can bravely face the coldest wind that swoops down across the stadium with a nonchalant ease. You can be done forever with the unbundled discomfort that used to be as much a part of the game as the cheering.

Dashing Hats Now Stay Anchored.

With these new clothes you can stay individual. You can be slim as a pencil. You can wear glorious color combinations, as wild as you may wish. Dashing hats with flattering brims are made to stay anchored, no matter how suddenly you move or how suddenly the enthusiastic gentleman behind waves his hands. Incredibly warm suede jackets, cut as expertly as your best suit, come in eye-warming colors properly to contrast any dark wool skirt or dress you wear. Scarfs fairly shriek with color, and so do gloves. Hosiery no longer rubs your easily irritated skin, because the wool is as soft and silky as your filmiest evening hose. Shoes are made for any abuse you give them. Shoes of good, sturdy alligator skin combined with smooth or suede lethers are tremendously smart, and sturdy without being too effeminate and soft.

We shopped around for new loot and, after being virtually overwhelmed with brand new stuff, we sketched the models above, just a few of the many possibilities of keeping you warm, infinitely smart, and decorative at any game. In the A group: A jaunty suede hat, with a lether thong band and matching buckle as the appropriate trim. . . . it comes in all colors. With that hat, a new idea in a neck ascot, this time in snowy white knit with an unusually narrow neck band and two widened and short ends. In the center of Group A is a nubby, loose knit tweed scarf in three color combinations. Next to it is a double wool scarf, soft and flannel-ish, in checks with a white check or square for accent.

Wool and Fur Outfit Can Go to Town After Game.

Group B, at left . . . the best football spectator uniform we found, especially for the younger set. A straight black wool skirt, topped with a super-snug and extremely warm suede jacket in cherry red or any other color. The facings of this jacket are black, to match the ascot tie and skirt. Next, an outfit of wool and fur, the real buy of the collection, for it is an ensemble that goes to town after the game for the smartest teas or cocktail parties, as well as late dinners or a movie. The two-piece dress is of plain and striped wool combined, the basque top of the striped wool, the skirt of the plain. The fur swagger coat is a knockout, just long enough and cut in the smartest silhouette of the year. It, too, is lined with the striped wool of the dress top.

Second from the right, the most popular buy in coats, a fitted reefer wrap in herringbone tweed, in stunning, bright colors as well as dark shades. It fits smoothly and snugly over the ribs, has wide revers, and is long enough to cover your dress. Pockets, and the required number of buttons, and dash give it an A-minus passing mark.

At right, the grandest swagger coat any one ever startled the envious spectators with. Huge, colorful checks and a high wind proof collarline, deep warm pockets, and one of those full back sections everybody likes mark this coat for the fashion spotlight. You can wear it everywhere and anywhere, over suits, over skirts and sweaters, as a traveling companion it is unbeatable.

Group C . . . an English type suit of hounds tooth checked wool. The suede lether jacket has a vestee front in contrasting color. The skirt buttons down the front to the knees, where the double action in tailored plaits starts. Group D . . . three new sweaters showing three new necklines. Group E . . . new fabric gloves and good, wearable, as well as smart, footwear featuring alligator and combination lether oxfords with good walking heels.

London Lifts Marriage Ban on Women in Professions

THE county council of London England, has lifted its ban on the employment of married women as teachers and doctors. Since 1923 women teachers and doctors had had to resign immediately after marriage.

Dinette Presents Real Problem in Its Furnishings

FURNISHING the dinette is something of a problem due to the small space involved. Any one can furnish a large room, but it takes thought and skill to make a tiny interior seem uncrowded. Here are a few tips: First, remember that a plain, unpatterned wall surface increases the apparent size of any room and light colors also are a great help. Second, if a wallpaper is used, see that the design is a small one, or that a scenic paper, lending a feeling of depth, is employed.

Furniture of small proportions should always be used in the dinette. The stores show excellent lines, especially made for this room. If the budget is slender, choose maple or fruitwood or furniture with a painted finish. If money is no object, select mahogany or walnut.

Keep the window treatment simple. Fussy, ruffled curtains and draperies will make the dinette seem smaller than it is.

Bridal Shower Is Matter of Personal Taste

Hostesses Should Consider Preference of Girl for Whom They Entertain.

Miss Bartlett will be glad to answer questions pertaining to etiquet and correct social behavior. For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your letter.

By Helen Bartlett.

BRIDES comprise two companies —those who like showers, and those who heartily disapprove.

A forthcoming wedding always is an excellent opportunity for giving gay and festive parties in honor of the prospective bride. Showers are fine for those who like them and who like giving them. Luncheons, teas, Sunday night buffet suppers, dinners, and evening parties for the disapproving camp. Realizing that there is a diversity of opinions, girls who want to entertain for a friend who is contemplating a trip to the altar always should endeavor to determine what the bride's views are on the subject. If she, or the hostess herself, has any definite objection to the shower system, then that form of entertaining should be avoided.

There is one situation in which bridal showers must be avoided, and that is when relatives entertain for the prospective bride. It is evidence of poor taste for any member of either the bride's or bridegroom's family to give a shower. They will want to entertain in honor of the occasion, naturally enough, and may do so as often and as extravagantly as they like, by giving luncheons, dinners, teas, and the like. But showers, under the circumstances, are taboo.

If you must give a shower remember that the tradition is intended as girls' parties only. Restrict yours to that.

Don't invite the prospective bridegroom or the various escorts of the girl guests. Men don't like showers and consider them only a source of embarrassment. At an evening party it would be perfectly possible to have the shower in the early part of the evening, and invite the men to come later to join in the festivities, partake of refreshments, and see the girls home. But they should not be asked to contribute.

And remember, too, to restrict your guest list to only those girls who are good friends of the bride. Too often hostesses become overly ambitious and don't know where to stop with the invitations, and include people who are just casual friends of the guest of honor and incur their displeasure by inviting them to bring a present to some one for whom they don't give a bunch of beets.

New Ventilator Airs Room from Top of Window

WHAT next? Now it's a new top of the window ventilator, made of good quality steel, that fits securely to the window shade bracket right in with the roller. It never needs to be removed when windows are opened or closed. Many persons, of the opinion that fresh air is circulated more easily when windows are lowered from the top, will be glad to know that this new style of ventilator is most satisfactory. When windows are raised from the bottom curtains are rendered unsightly in no time. With this innovation there is no flopping of window shades, blowing of curtains, or any petty annoyances, but just a nice even breeze doing its stuff. These top-of-the-window ventilators are available in standard sizes and sold in Chicago department stores.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold as the "Postage Stamps and Coins" advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

ALTHOUGH Ethiopia occupies the stage in the present historical production, there are two small places at opposite ends of the Mediterranean sea which loom large in the news of the day on account of their control of the outlets of that sea.

Gibraltar, at the western end, was known to the ancients as the Pillars of Hercules, and few navigators had the courage to pass through the straits into the open sea beyond, although the Phoenicians did sail along the coasts of Africa and the Iberian peninsula some little distance from the gateway to the sea.

The Moors recognized the strategic importance of the position and from their name for the rock, Tarik's Hill or Gebel Tarik, is derived the present Gibraltar.

The great rock has been subjected to at least 15 sieges of which six were successful. During the war of the Spanish succession the combined English and Dutch fleets, in 1704, captured the position from Spain ostensibly for Archduke Charles of Austria, but Sir George Rooke, in command of the forces, raised the flag of England and took possession in the name of Queen Anne.

Great Britain was compelled to defend the rock during the next year, and again in 1726, and from 1779 until 1783 the place was invested by Spanish and French forces. Since that date Britain has remained in peaceful possession.

Rock of Gibraltar Is Small in Area.

Gibraltar is less than three miles long and varies from one to three-quarters of a mile in width. The rock occupies the southern two and a half miles of the peninsula, the remaining half mile being low sandy ground connecting to the Spanish mainland. The composition of the rock is limestone below and limestone and shale above. The British have fortified the position by a system of works at the water's edge, by galleries in which the natural caves were utilized to a great extent and more recently by mounting the heaviest guns at the crest.

While Gibraltar is always spoken of as being impregnable, it has never been bombarded by modern guns, and naturally there is speculation as to the outcome of continued salvos of high explosive shells from fleets on either side. The caves and galleries which honeycomb the rock might be of material assistance in its destruction. In case of a modern siege the British probably will remember to hide the monkeys. These Barbary apes quite likely are the only wild monkeys in Europe and there is a legend that foretells the return of the rock to Spain when the last one dies.

Stamp for Texas.

The Texas Centennial Central exposition, with offices at Dallas, announces that the new postage stamp which is to be issued to commemorate the Texas centennial in 1936 was designed at the request of President Roosevelt. The President's suggestion for a stamp provides for portraits of Stephen F. Austin and Gen. Sam Houston, with a background showing the Alamo, the Battle of San Jacinto, and the Lone Star flag of the state. A design has been prepared by Miss Anne Prescott Toomey, Dallas newspaper artist, and it is indicated that it will be adopted by Postmaster General Farley.

Woolen Dress in Eggplant Shade Is Youthful in Every Fashion Detail.

By Clotilde.

EVERY detail of this woolen dress is youthful. The plaits at the front are released in the skirt to lend the desired fulness. The buttons down the back, in slightly juvenile fashion, are delightfully smart in their effect.

The original of this frock, pattern No. 3445, is created in wool jersey in eggplant shade. The collar and cuffs of velveteen match the color of the dress. Other suggestions for this simple but tricky frock are dark green silk with a wool-like finish and checked rabbit's hair woolen in ginger and rust tones.

Style No. 3445 is designed for sizes 14, 16, and 18 years and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement.

Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material, with ½ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

THIS WEEK IN THE GARDEN

Monday, Oct. 21.

With the arrival of cold weather all tender plants should be moved indoors for storage or for propagation. Dahlias and cannas may be moved, or dug, as soon as they freeze to the ground. Cut off the leaves about six inches above the ground, dig the entire clump from the ground, shake the loose soil away, and store in a cool cellar under the conditions necessary to keep potatoes. Gladiolus and other bulbs may receive similar treatment, although gladiolus also may simply be placed in a box without soil and kept in a dry place. It is high time to plant hardy, spring flowering bulbous plants. Start a few in pans or low pots for indoor use. Plant single colors without mixing, for best effects. If a color scheme is desired, work it out carefully.

Tuesday, Oct. 22.

Cuttings of many kinds of plants may be made at this time. Violas and the common pansy root readily, as a rule, when side shoots are taken. Plant cuttings in rows in the frame and they will root, remaining until spring when they may be taken up and placed in their permanent locations. Plant them three inches apart in the row. Order trees and shrubs for fall planting. Try a few bulbs of especially prepared hyacinths, for they are delightful in the window. Bulbs planted now should flower in January. A strong bulb may be grown in a special hyacinth glass, exposing the roots, as they grow, in a pleasing manner. Good sorts are Grand Maitre, large blue; L'Innocence, white; Duke of Westminster, rich purple; Marconi, deep rose; Lady Derby, pink.

Wednesday, Oct. 23.

Plant tulips about five inches deep and five to six inches apart. Mulch the ground after it freezes with a shallow covering of strawy manure. All varieties of tulips are beautiful. The bulbs may be selected for mass planting and for color effects. The variety Keizerskroon is popular. It is bright scarlet with a yellow border; brilliant star, red, is followed a little later by vermillion brilliant, the same color. The Darwin varieties are the most popular as they have long stems, fine for cutting, and are useful in beds and borders. Do not attempt to do more than can be well done, for a small plot, well taken care of, is infinitely more pleasing than one that is unkempt, with poorly grown plants. Check the hardy chrysanthemums that flower in gardens you visit. Plant the early sorts for the middle west, but transplant in spring.

Thursday, Oct. 24.

Root pruning of fruit trees that have made a heavy growth but have failed to flower will force flower buds by checking growth. Root pruning of a part of the roots may suffice, the rest being pruned the following season if the first fails. Take care of the fruit trees if you want good fruit. Plant peonies and do not plant deeper than two inches below the surface. Deep planting frequently causes the plants to produce few, if any, flowers. These plants demand copious amounts of food. Burn the tops to kill lurking insects.

Friday, Oct. 25.

Continue to plant shrubs. Use the refined, twiggy, good flowering or foliage kinds in foundation planting. Among these are the bridal wreath, Regel's privet, dogwood, globe flower, mock orange, golden bell, hydrangea paniculata, Japanese barberry, arrowwood, and many others. Don't plant a hedge along the front of the yard if the space is restricted. Rather plant it at the corners of the house, in the angles, and have a lawn. Replace poor soil with new or work in goodly amounts of organic matter. Spade under ashes if the soil is heavy.

Saturday, Oct. 26.

The following trees are best transplanted in spring: Sugar maple, red maple, birch, magnolias, poplars, linden, and elm. Several kinds of shrubs respond more readily if transplanted in spring. These include the tamarix, sumac, Japanese snowball, shoestring plant or hibiscus, hawthorn, and spicebush. Fall planted shrubs and trees should be mulched to prevent heaving, drying out, and injury from storms by loosening. Stake trees to prevent disturbance. Water the soil, if dry. Clean and store all tools that are not in use. Clean spades by washing them in hot water.

Girl's Insight Turns Man to Success Road

Read Weakness, Strength in the Youth She Loved, Physiognomist Shows.

By Hugo Westerberg.

Some time ago an investigation was made of factors having a bearing on marital success or failure. The psychologist reported, among other things, that when the wife had a superior education to that of her husband there was less chance of failure than when the opposite was the case.

CONSTANCE COLLIER.

I don't know how true in general this would be, but I remember one instance which was in agreement. Looking at it psysiognomically, however, explains the case on more fundamental grounds than mere possession of a knowledge of conventional school subjects.

The man was a high school graduate and the girl had a master of arts degree. He got a job as a reporter on a small town paper and she had a position teaching school. They met and fell in love. Before long, however, the girl began to do some calculating.

Measuring the young man by conventional standards, he was not much of a "catch." He seemed to have little sense of money values, and no desire to get up in the world professionally. His idea was to enjoy life and let the future take care of itself. One thing about him she had noticed, though, he had a considerable knowledge of almost every subject they happened to discuss. She found, by diplomatic testing, that he actually had great learning ability, but needed outside stimulation to apply himself systematically.

Left to himself, he would have kept up his pleasant, irresponsible mode of living. His features were chubby and child-like, and his mental characteristics were the opposite to hers all the way through. She had a high-ridged nose, indicative of ambition; her long upper lip showed self-control. Her chin denoted perseverance in trying for a goal, and her light eyebrows, imagination.

He had one outstanding mental trait, his superior leaning ability, and that, she believed, would be sufficient material to work with for a woman with her personality.

She married him, struggled for years, and finally found herself the wife of a college professor with quite an enjoyable reputation in his field.

In seeking an analysis of the facial characteristics of Constance Collier, there comes to mind that there is an opinion, still held by many interested in the drama, that a real actor should be able to take any part in a play.

The subject of our analysis suggests the opposite idea, that of actors playing themselves only, expressing their own inherent human traits. That, of course, can also be extensive and diverse, as may be noticed here. Miss Collier could be the imperial, high bred woman dominating her cultured environment, or she could be the lonesome, hard boiled landlady of a waterfront rooming house.

She could be the kindly disposed but efficient Red Cross nurse or the aggressive collector of charity funds, who would not let the utility magnate get away too cheaply. She could be the motherly wife of a sensitive, imaginative poet or the pal of a cunning but careless racketeer. Whenever moral strength or physical courage, prudent planning, or superior self-reliance are to be expressed, she has the natural means, the facial features, to do it.

KNIT IN A SMART TAILLEUR

This smart hand knitted suit of material similar to angora presents all the details found in the most impeccable tailleur. The color is Dubonnet red, and the frock is double breasted, with bone button fastening. A notched lapel and the severe cut make it suitable for wear late into the fall and under a topcoat for winter. The blouse is knitted of cashmere in a harmonious pink.

Fall Foliage Colors Being Seen in the Newest Jewelry Modes

Ingenious Trinkets Created in Autumn Shades Are Approved by Fashion.

By Oril Brown.

JEWELRY has borrowed a leaf—several leaves, in fact—from the current editions of autumn foliage, and emerged in a brilliant array of greens, rusts, burgundies, reds, browns, and yellows. Fashion bestows its warmest approval on the costume mode, in which there is infinite scope for originality in both design and color schemes.

Prystal is the medium for some of the neatest tricks in fall and winter jewelry. In deep, clear green, in transparent amethyst, it fashions wide, three-tiered bracelets set with rhinestones; ingenious clips, consisting of three lozenges tied with a slim gold band; a heart shaped clip of graduated lozenges, also tied with gold; delectable earrings with gold details. Some simple jewelry of white prystal, thickly set with rhinestones, is designed expressly for wear with sophisticated winter costumes of black.

Gadgets of Nontarnishable Metal Are Given Wash of Gold, Silver.

Yielding nothing to prystal in charm are the new gadgets of nontarnishable metal with a gold or silver wash. The burnished pieces are the perfect jewelry complement for brown, tawny, or blue ensembles, the silvery ones for outfits of black or green or certain shades of blue. Some interesting leaf clusters of dull gold bear blossoms of imitation pearls. And for those who demand simplicity even in their jewelry, there are wide bracelets in silver or gold wash, without ornamentation or with only an openwork design to break the surface at the top.

The banner for daintiness in the new jewelry collection goes to the sterling silver filigree pieces from Italy. They rival lace in their perfection of detail and, like exquisite lace, they are hand made. Their sheer delicacy shows best in silver, but, because many ensembles demand a rich color for relief, some pieces have been given a gold wash. The dinner frock is the ideal background for this jewelry.

Sports Ensembles Forsake Colored Jewelry for Sedateness of Pearls.

Maintaining its reputation for perversity, fashion has frowned on colored jewelry in the one place where it formerly was considered most effective. This winter the sports ensembles will be set off by a demure string of white pearls in lieu of the large and vivid ornaments of yesterday.

Delightful jewelry in every form from clips to bracelets has been executed in rust and burgundy, two colors new to the jewelry field. Green, however, is the hue most extensively used.

Initialed clips retain their high fashion rating. A Chicago department store will make them with metal and design of your own choice upon order.

Brightly Colored Sailboats Float in Finger Bowls

SAILBOATS are among the latest gestures for adding decorative touches to beautifully set dinner tables. New and unique novelties in this group are sailboats less than two inches long. These add an amusing touch floating about in finger bowls in place of the traditional rose leaves. These little ships are attractive frivolities in gay yellows, brilliant reds, black and white, and ocean blue.

LABOR SAVING DEVICES INTEREST MEN

No reason why husbands should not take an interest in the washing, and they do! Men who fill their offices and plants with labor saving equipment are quick to sense the many advantages in banishing wash day drudgery by turning the task over to one of these devices.

Parlor Games Have Revival at Smart Parties

Guessing Contests, Stunts Compete with Cards for Popularity.

By Jane Hathaway.

"Have a good time!" This is what the family calls after you as you set out for a party.

"What shall I do so my guests will have a good time?" This is what you, as hostess, often query. You are half panicky, remembering how many dull parties you have attended. So you fall back on contract, or a formal luncheon or dinner, for your entertainment. And yet you know that, while a few . . . the most skilful players . . . will enjoy contract, there will be others, and some you like best, who don't enjoy it and who will dread the ordeal of playing.

"If only I could think of something every one likes!" you groan.

Be Sure Every One Participates in Fun.

First, let it be said, the smartest parties now being given in New York, Chicago, and other large cities are not formal dinners, contract, nor luncheons, but, odd as it seems, gatherings in which games are played by guests who, forgetting their dignity, take an active part in proceedings which once they would have called "silly." They laugh till the tears run down their cheeks at guessing games, mysteries, and surprises.

A cardinal principle in the effort to give guests a good time is that each person present must take part in what is going on.

The worst moments, you'll agree, at any party are the first moments. Imagine yourself precipitated into a room in which you don't know a soul. Isn't it an unpleasant feeling? The extrovert will get along. But the shy soul! His agony is awful. Well, then, as hostess, you mustn't let any one of your guests feel shy. The answer is that each person who enters the room must be given something to do immediately before the ice has time to thicken.

Label Guests and Let Them Guess Identity.

Here's an icebreaker, which I've often tried and found effective. Prepare as many cards or pieces of white paper as there are to be guests, printing plainly on each card the name of some famous individual, living or dead. As each guest enters the room, pin on his back one of these cards and bid him, without waiting for introductions, go around and ask questions of anybody, to find out who he is representing.

"You're a famous person of some kind," you tell the guest as you turn to the next comer. "Find out what name is on your back."

Off the guest goes to inquire if he's a living or a dead celebrity. No. He can't ask the question in that form, for his questions must be only such as can be answered by yes or no. He must say, "Am I living?" And the person he addresses must reply yes or no.

It is interesting to see how quickly some guests will find out their characters. Others, equally intelligent, will wander around for a much longer time trying to learn their identity. But the object has been achieved . . . you have got the guests to speak to each other without selfconsciousness.

Informality Secret of Successful Party.

Informality is the secret of a good time. Never have a formal dinner or luncheon if you can help it. A buffet supper or luncheon is heaps more fun. But don't expect guests to enjoy balancing their plates on their laps while they eat. They enjoy serving themselves, but they like a solid table to eat on. Have plenty of small tables for them to set their plates on if you'd earn the gratitude of the male guests, especially. Or they may bring their filled plates to the dining table and sit about it. That will be informal enough.

Next time we'll offer some more icebreakers for your party.

Write us your problems and we will try to help you "HAVE A GOOD TIME."

Different Woods for Same Room Need Not Puzzle

THE matter of using two different furniture woods in the same room often puzzles a housewife. She wonders if it is wrong to have a walnut radio cabinet when her couch and chairs are mahogany. Or she would like, perhaps, to place a comfortable maple chair among her pieces of darker woods.

The important point to remember is simply that the style and lines of the various objects in a room should be friendly. The woods do not necessarily have to match.

In the case of the radio cabinet, above mentioned, the answer is "Yes, use it." But in the instance of the maple chair, go slow. Maple is made almost always in simple, peasantlike early American vein. It will not blend with more sophisticated mahogany because the latter will have entirely different lines. Generally speaking, the two should never be used in the same room. It would be like wearing a velvet hat with a gingham frock.

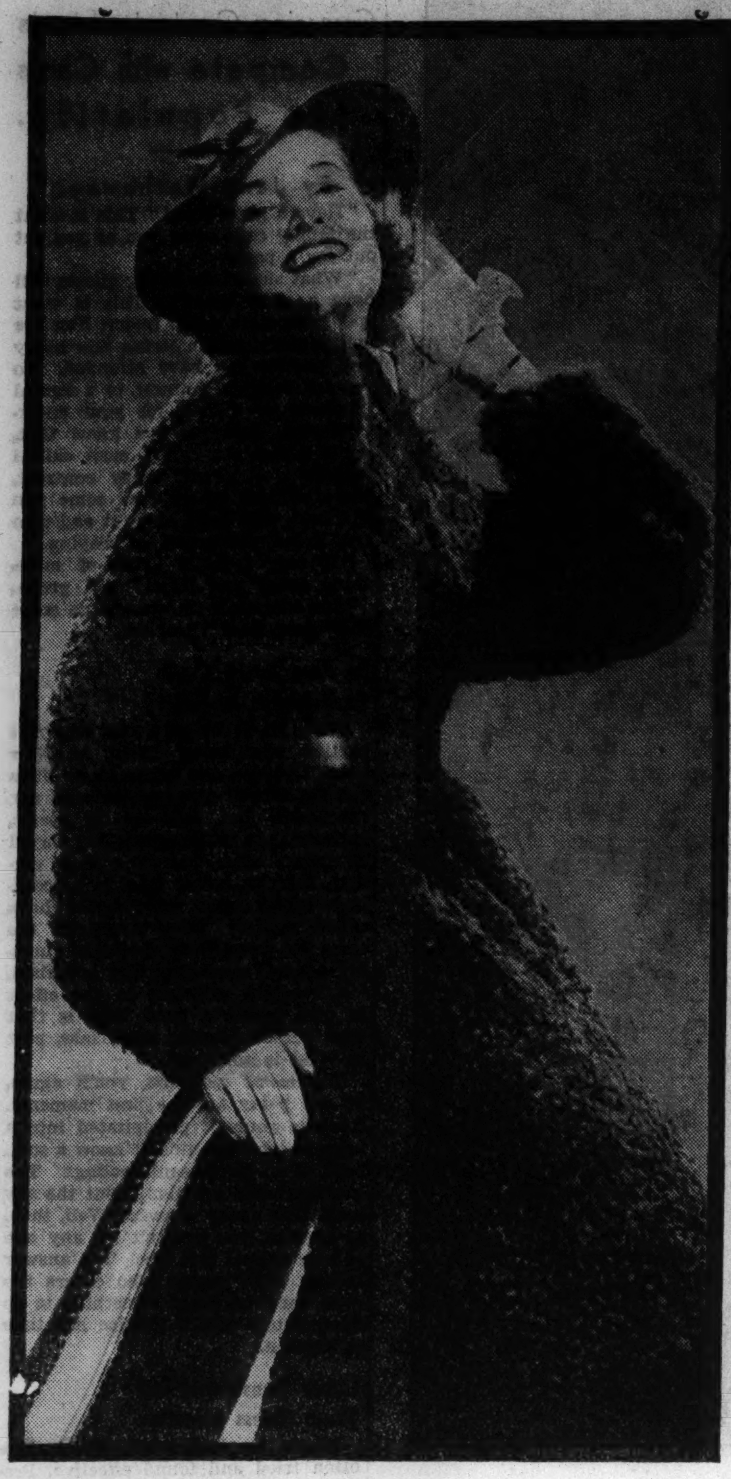
Clothes Chic Depends to Great Extent Upon Correct Bodily Posture

Below: Jane Davis is one of the country's outstanding professional models. She is in popular demand in fashion circles because she knows all the tricks of posture and graceful bodily movement. The most successful models are those who demonstrate poise.



Diaphragm Position, Foot Direction, and Carriage of Head Are Important.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

WHAT makes the well dressed woman that way?

Money? Nope!

Keen clothes sense? Well, that helps a great deal, of course, but there are a couple of other things, too. I learned about them from John Powers, whose professional model agency supplies the young women who parade the clothes for the smartest dress shops in the business.

When a young woman comes in to apply for a modeling job, Mr. Powers makes her walk back and forth across the floor a few times. Nine out of ten walk with the diaphragm shoved forward and the feet turned out. They don't get a job until they've learned to walk with diaphragm drawn in and feet placed straight ahead. Even slight toeing in may be encouraged, anyway, until one has learned to point the toes straight ahead. It's standing with that diaphragm bulging forward that spoils the figure for clothes. It's the cause of the slumped figure. So, now, if you want your new fall outfit to look like a million dollars, get that figure of yours drawn back, as dictated, and make the feet follow the straight line course.

Carriage of the Head Also Important in Beauty Sphere.

That's one suggestion on how to make people turn and look at you approvingly. Another is the head carriage. A woman who holds her head well, Mr. Powers says, still may achieve a well dressed air. Any good milliner, of course, will endorse this statement as regards a hat. The carriage of the head makes the hat, or ruins it. You don't hold the chin up, nor let it flop, nor do you project it forward. When you pull the diaphragm back and in, place your feet properly, your head automatically should assume the natural level at which it is intended to be carried.

And hands, Mr. Powers says, dominate the dress scene in such a way that what he calls "fluid" hand motion should be a study. The relaxed hand and wrist is needed. Mr. Powers speaks of hand "draping." No exaggerated gestures, understand. Just an easy, liquid movement of hands in action and a quiet drapery movement when they're not in action.

Posture of Infinitely More Importance Than Cosmetics.

Mr. Powers, who naturally is by way of being a beauty connoisseur with all of his experience in coaching women for fashion appearances, finds that the average woman in nonprofessional life gives all of her attention to the artificial aids, such as cosmetics and hair dressing and hair tints, perhaps, whereas she would be an infinitely smarter looking person did she concentrate more on her personal self, her posture, carriage, feet, hands, and head. It's these things, not the color of the lip and cheek bloom, nor the hair tinting that create the favorable picture of the woman. The artificial aids are all right, of course, in their place, but they should not always hold first place. That's the idea.

Conservatism and Naturalness Rate High in Current Beauty.

Indeed, the artificial hair effects are having the swan song chanted over them right now in the model field. It's the natural blonde, the ash blonde, who is in the big money right now. Mr. Powers presented to me four of his leading models, each and every one of them an ash blonde. Nor is it necessary to have the light ash hair. One of the young women has hair of the tone usually characterized as mouse colored.

All of which has a meaning, from which Miss or Mrs. Average Woman may take a hint. The current trend is to keep the model looking as little like a model as possible. To be a natural! Jean Harlow, as a best dressed person in real life, wouldn't have the conservatism required to show clothes off well. It's conservatism that's the cry now and, as Mr. Powers says, conservatism always is more effective than splash! As a dress house authority said: "Any woman makes a mistake in making her hair so startling that it is all one is conscious of about her or the thing one remembers her by!" This was an attack on the platinumed girls.

The demand for the conservative is extended to the gray haired woman, I'm told. As compared with a woman whose hair is chemically treated, the vote goes in the dress circles I speak of to the more "aristocratic" gray haired one. Besides, she is a natural, the last word in the argument.

You may be interested in the measurements of a couple of the girls who wear clothes beautifully, according to the authority. Jane Davis, a model in great demand, is 5 feet 8½ in heels, weighs 112 pounds, bust 33, waist 24, hips 34. And ash blonde. Clare Hazel, with that pure ash blonde hair with a silvery cast, is 5 feet 7½, weighs 119, bust 33, waist 26, and hips 35 inches. Dorothy McAdoo, another blonde of the favored variety, is 5 feet 10 inches with heels, weighs 130 pounds, has a 26 waist, but 34, and 36 hips.

Professionally, the tall, willowy figure is essential for fashion showings. Nonprofessionally, if the woman will learn to walk well, to carry her head beautifully, and handle her feet gracefully, she can be an excellent dress model version in her own set, Mr. Powers believes.

Above: Petite Carroll Brady, besides possessing all the posture attributes of the successful model, demonstrates another trait popular now in professional fashion circles. Her hair is natural, an ash blonde shade. Naturalness and conservatism win when job hunting.

Dining Rooms Must Stay, Say Home Lovers

IS the time near when we shall speak of the dining room as the "dear departed?" Not much, say home lovers and furniture dealers in a loud chorus. For one thing, there are too many grand pieces of dining room furniture to buy. For another, entertaining at home is on the increase and gathering 'round the groaning board is the favorite American way of entertaining.

Since the family uses the room so little, at best but about an hour and a half a day, it is all the more important to have it as attractive as possible. And then the doctors have something to say about eating in pleasing surroundings.

Bone white, up and coming several seasons ago, is now the leader in the field. One suite has bright blue lether on the chairs. Another has a fabric in the increasingly popular coral. Who would not hurry home to dinner in a room so delightfully furnished?

Comfort is the word in furniture for this room. Chairs are the right height for that upright but relaxed sitting posture the doctors are always talking about. Upholstered seats increase comfort.

For the big dining room imagination can go the limit in selecting furniture and decorations. Here we see the modern again, furniture made of striking combinations of exotic woods, streamline buffets and chairs of greatest possible comfort.

The heavy period styles, Tudor oak, William and Mary, and Queen Anne have always been popular for the large dining room. These require the traditional heavy hangings, lush carpets and dark walls.

For those who hanker after period reproductions, but don't care to take them so heavy, there are the exquisite Chippendale, Hepplewhite, and Sheraton reproductions. These artists seemed to take special joy in making pieces for the dining room. Careful reproductions and thoughtful adaptations are now available for every one.

The large dining room also permits of the tea table group—table and armchair beside the fireplace or near a window.

Find Last Letter Written by Marie Antoinette

WHAT is believed to be the last letter of Marie Antoinette has been discovered in the library of Count Heinrich Apponyi in Opponice, Czechoslovakia. It is the farewell letter of the wife of Louis XVI. of France, written to Princess Elizabeth just before the queen's execution.

Planes Used to Fly Exhibit of German Styles Over Europe

WHILE Herr Goring develops the airplane as Germany's major instrument of military attack German designers are using aerial transports in a more pacific but no less spectacular way. Leading continental cities soon will be treated to a "flying German style show." A de luxe plane will carry the latest Berlin fashions to department stores and salons.

This is Berlin's second challenge to Paris' supremacy as ruler of the fashion world. The first came last spring when German couturiers flew their latest creations to London. With them in the planes were the Nazis' prettiest mannikins, who displayed the new ensembles to the British public.

The German textile industry is admittedly in the doldrums. The summer exhibits, in which only Aryans were allowed to participate, were frankly labeled failures even by the dressmakers. Couturiers are hoping for an appropriation from the new $400,000,000 pool for encouraging exports to help them in their aerial project. They reassert their faith that their dresses are just as charming as any made in Paris, and furthermore confess to an ambition to compete with England in designing suits and coats.

The German Institute for Business Research confirms the dressmakers in their belief that it is not any lack of skill on their part that keeps them "in the red." The German textile industry, says the institute, has suffered from overproduction ever since the spring of 1934, when the output was 5 per cent above the 1928 average, while general industrial production was 19 per cent below the 1928 level. General German production, including that of textiles, now is set at about 25 per cent of the 1928 figure.

In addition, the Germany couturiers are hampered by raw material limitations and by the decline in retail sales, which have never recovered from the hoarding wave of 1934. This slump already has caused a number of mills to close. It is the hope of overcoming it that moves Nazi leaders to such assaults upon foreign businesses as the "flying German style show."

These Tips Aid in Removing Various Stains from Rugs

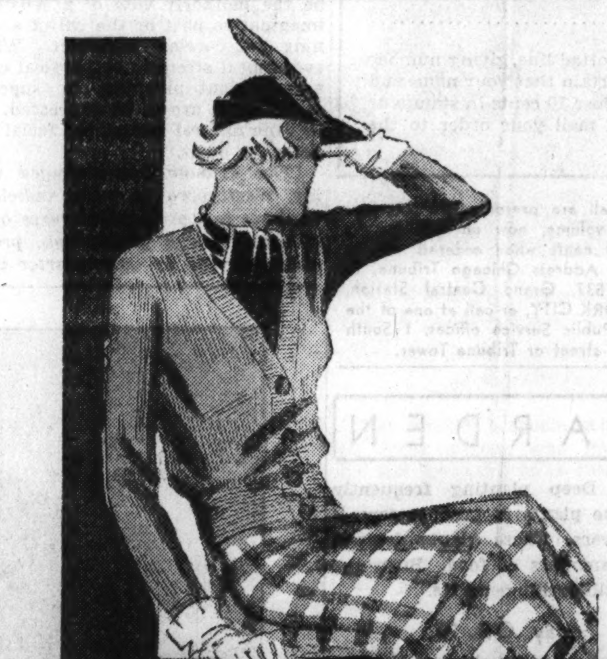
THE removal of stains from rugs or carpets requires great care when done at home. If the nature of the stain is unknown, it is safe to wash it with warm water, or to make a paste of carbonate of soda and apply to area stained. When dry, remove with vacuum cleaner or by brushing with hard brush.

If coffee, tea, or ink is spilled, mop up at once with blotting paper and rub with a half of a fresh lemon. If the stain is dry, rub in heated skim milk and vinegar with a rotating motion. Rinse with warm vinegar water.

Grease spots should be covered with blotting or brown paper and pressed with a hot iron. Care must be taken not to touch the carpet with the hot iron. While the pile of the rug is still hot, brush briskly with a stiff brush. If paint gets into a rug, rub with turpentine. More difficult spots require the use of Fuller's earth. When this paste is dry, remove by brushing. Varnish may be removed from rugs by applying methylated spirits until the stain is gone.

If these home remedies are of no avail, competent rug cleaners should then be consulted.

Casual, Careless Cardigan Ideal Sweater for Spectator Sports



By Jean Macdonald.

THE most comfortable of all garments for either active or spectator sports is a hand knitted one. Cardigans prove this statement since they rate among the prime favorites with sports minded people. Some like these short, reaching to the top of the hip. Others prefer the casual carelessness of a longer and more loosely fitted jacket.

The cardigan illustrated today is one of the casually careless models. A two inch knitted band at the bottom is done in either a garter or moss stitch—according to individual preference. The rest of the sweater is done in the stockinette stitch. The long sleeves allow a choice for the cuffs, either a ribbing of knit one purl one, or the same stitch which was used around the bottom of the jacket. Yarns are important with a sweater of this type. Cashmere is always good, and Angora makes a beautiful and rather expensive sweater, but there are other good quality yarns on the market which may be substituted for either of these two.

If you wish instruction for knitting a cardigan in the casual manner, chartreuse blouse with chevron stripes, illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Floor Covering Is Urgently Needed by Families in Basement Quarters, Who Find the Dampness and Cold Most Unhealthful in Dismal Winter Weather.

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

By Sally Joy Brown.

THE little word "basement," added to an address, denotes a clear picture to any one familiar with the poorer districts of the city. It usually means cold and dampness, dinginess and gloom. There are hundreds of families housed in such quarters, and we'd like to help make their homes a little more comfortable and snug against the winter winds.

Floor covering is in great demand. A rotten wood or cold cement flooring is doubly uncomfortable when the temperature goes down. Rugs or linoleum of any kind will be appreciated.

A 9 by 12 rug would be a great help to Mrs. X. Her 14 month old baby boy spends most of his time on the floor, which is of rough boards, and is damp and cold. The house is heated by a stove. Her husband has been ill for more than a year. Because of this he had to give up his small business and have one major operation. He soon will have to undergo another. In addition to the baby, there are small girls, 7 and 5 years old. Mrs. X. will be grateful for a rug.

Miss K., a caseworker on the northwest side, sends the following appeal: "Because of sickness in the family, Mr. B. has come to us for aid. He was hospitalized for three months recently, and his wife and aged father also are under the care of a physician. The four room apartment is without floor covering of any sort, and the floors are rough and splintery. Mrs. B. is unable to scrub, and Mr. B no longer can help her."

* * *

"Dear Miss Brown: I wonder if you could help me get a cook stove or a rug. I am the mother of two children, and my husband has deserted us. My little girl has had pneumonia twice. We have no gas, and if I could get a stove to heat the house and for cooking, I would be grateful." Mrs. J. M.

The address is on the south side.

Perhaps you'd like to help this aged couple.

"Dear Miss Brown: Seeing by the paper that you are helping poor people find furniture and other things, we are coming to you to ask you to do us a favor. We are an elderly couple, 60 years old. We have been living in a steamheated flat. but our money gave out and we have moved into a four room, unheated one. We have no money to buy a stove, and come to you for help. We both are without work, and have no one we can depend on for help." Mr. and Mrs. J. G.

* * *

"Dear Miss Brown: I have just been released from a tuberculosis sanitarium. I am not able to work, and have orders to rest for at least another year. I wonder if your readers have blankets to spare, since I am to sleep on an open porch this winter, and my family cannot purchase extra covering, as they are dependent on a relief agency for support." Miss A. L.

Can you help this young prospective mother?

"Dear Miss Brown. In a few months I am to have my first baby, and wonder if any of your readers have a discarded heater we could have for our home. My husband is working, but doesn't earn enough to buy a stove. I also am in need of things for the coming baby." Mrs. J. W.

"Will you help me to obtain clothing for my little daughters, 7 and 8 years old? I have been working in a factory from 4 until 12 in the evening and live with a sister. I can manage food, etc., but am unable to provide either of the children with winter coats. I will appreciate clothing for them." S. J.

* * *

"Dear Miss Brown: My two boys need clothing badly. The oldest is 6 years old and should start school, but it is impossible because he has no suitable clothing. I've patched, mended, and sewed what they have, but I needn't tell you that patches wear out. Both boys need winter coats badly, and I'm frantic with fear that they will have to be cold throughout the winter. We'll be glad to have any sort of clothing. If some reader has warm underwear she doesn't care to patch, I'll be thankful to have it to make over for the boys, who wear sizes 5 and 7. Mrs. A. E."

Fallen Leaves

By Eleanor Jewett.

Dry leaves are flying down the street—
Bent, withered twigs they have for feet.
  They hurry and scurry and run and rush
  In the path of the north wind's friendly brush.
They are fun to walk in, these brown leaves dry.
Swept by the autumn out of the sky.
  They rustle and crackle and chuckle and snap.
  Before settling down to a long winter's nap.

Salt Glaze Ware Is Being Revived For Modern Wife

SALT glaze ware, so popular in England in the early 18th century, is being revived again in our own day. It is now possible to buy beautiful copies of the old jugs, bowls, and dishes in cream white at most reasonable prices in Chicago stores.

The name salt glaze is derived from the process by which this stoneware was originally made. Stoneware was a pottery fired at high temperature to the point of intense hardness. It was glazed in an odd way. Salt was thrown into the kiln when the heat was at its greatest and it united with the dish or jug, creating a thin film of extremely hard glaze.

This finish today is not shiny like that of porcelain, but dull, a little like the mat finish of some pottery.

[ADVERTISMENT]

Many Common Ailments Are Caused by Piles

Medical authorities are constantly warning their patients that many of the most common ills, including headaches, nervousness, faulty nutrition loss of vigor, physical weakness, constipation and stomach and liver troubles, frequently are traced to a neglected case of piles or other rectal affliction. A new illustrated book which fully explains these treacherous diseases has just been published by the world's oldest institution specializing in the treatment of rectal disorders—where more than 46,000 men and women have been restored to health in the past 57 years. If you are suffering from piles or any rectal affliction, write today to Thornton & Minor Clinic, Suite 1160, 926 McGee St., Kansas City, Mo., for a free copy which will be sent you in plain wrapper, and without obligation.

100 Per Cent Efficient Roof Vital in Winter

Any Type of House Top May Be Strengthened Against Coming Snow.

A booklet by Louise Bargelt, "Keeping Warm—for Less Money," tells how to weatherproof your house, and save money on fuel! It is 3 cents by mail and 2 cents by Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

By Louise Bargelt.

THE weeks immediately ahead are timely weeks to check up on the state of our roofs. A roof should be 100 per cent efficient to weather the tons upon tons of water which will fall on it from rain and snow during the next ten months.

Sometimes a roof which is quite ailing can be successfully patched and mended and put in shape for quite a time to come.

Where a roof is ailing:

If a wood shingle roof leaks it can often be given a new lease on life by the use of a compound composed of asbestos and asphalt fibers. This material is brushed on and penetrates and closes any split points or holes.

If shingles are curling they can be flattened and mended. Copper or galvanized nails should be used for the repair job.

All loosened shingles should be nailed and splitting singles closed with tar paper and roofing cement.

Special Liquid Renews Dried Up Roof.

If a builtup roofing is drying out and losing its oils, it can be renewed by a new coating of liquid especially made for this purpose. Roll roofings often become brittle through this drying out of oils. A fresh oil treatment will invigorate them.

If a roll roofing is tearing or ripping, it can be repaired with a good plastic roofing cement.

If a tin roof shows signs of rusting —paint it immediately. Be sure that the roof is clean before the paint is applied or it will not adhere. Have it well brushed with steel wool or a wire brush and then give it a bath in benzine as an added precaution.

If a tin roof develops holes, use a plastic roofing cement to close the openings.

If the slates from a slate roof are slipping and falling, they will have to be replaced by new slates. Strips of sheet copper should be used to hold the new slate in place.

Roof Itself Often Not Source of Leak.

Where flashings, leaders, and gutters are ailing:

These are important parts of a house. Their physical condition should be checked every fall. Sometimes a roof is accused of leaking when defective gutters, leaders, downspouts, or flashings may be causing the trouble. A disfigured spot in the ceiling or wall does not necessarily indicate the location of the leak, as water can travel a long ways before it makes itself visible.

Keep any rustable metals around your house tight by painting. In making replacements of new flashings for old, consider copper ones.

If tin flashings give evidence of rusting through, stop the leak with a coat of plastic roofing cement.

Insulation Important If New Roof Is Laid.

Where a roof needs to be replaced with a new one:

Don't forget to include instalation of insulation. The heat loss through the roof is high. Fuel costs are definitly cut through roof insulation. Look into the existing forms of insulations, inquire into types and costs.

Some varieties come in sheet form which is easily handled. Others are of stone, in woolly state, and offered in bat form. Cork is an excellent insulator. Rock comes in granulated form, in blowable form.

It pays to insulate a roof!

In selecting a new roof, let's keep in mind that there is much more to reroofing than just laying some new roofing material atop the old. Color, texture, durability, and form should all be considered. Many an uninteresting looking house can be enlivened by choosing the proper roofing. Many a good looking house can be impaired by selection of the wrong roofing!

Charm of Roof Depends on Shadow Lines.

Nor is it necessarily the cost of a roof which determines how good looking it is. A roof of character and charm and interest can be created from inexpensive materials, if attention is given to the laying of it, so that pleasing shadow lines are effected and thought is put in its selection, that the texture may be appropriate to the house proper.

There are many various materials on the market today which can be successfully used in reroofing. And artistic results can be had from all of them, if their application is in capable hands.

Below is a brief list of some of the types of materials which can be used successfully in the reroofing of a building.

Wood shingles, in roll or shingle form.

Asbestos in singles or sheets.

Copper in sheet or shingle form.

Aluminum in shingle or sheet form.

Porcelain enameled iron in sheets or shingles.

Zinc in shingle or sheet form.

Slate.

Tile.

Builtup roofings.

Asphalt roofing in roll or shingle form.

Lead roofing.

Roll rubber roofing.

Crushed Slate Gives Delightful Color Effects.

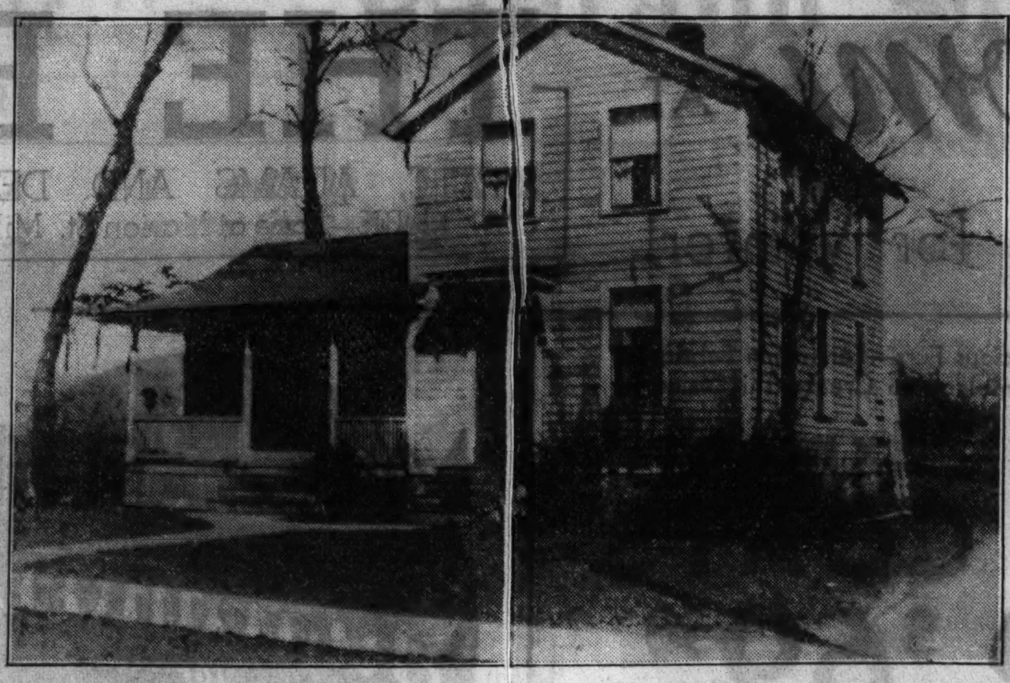
Chip slate asphalt roofing has become quite popular in the last few years and many pleasing effects can be obtained by the crushed slate topping which comes in varied colors, solid, or mixed. This roofing comes in roll form or in shingles of various shapes. Random colors are often used to excellent advantage and pleasing shadow lines may be achieved by raising the butts of several shingles. Roll roofing can be made into an attractive roof at low price by varying the width of exposure. This type of roofing can also be had in ornamental edges.

In brief, if your home is to be reroofed, see that the new roof adds to the good looks of your house. This does not mean that you will have to get the highest priced roofing on the market, nor the second highest priced. But it will mean that colors, texture, and form will all have to be in harmony with the house they cover—and also that the roofs of the neighboring homes may have to be considered, too. For no matter how handsome your roof is, if it clashes seriously in color with the houses on each side of it much of its charm will be effaced.

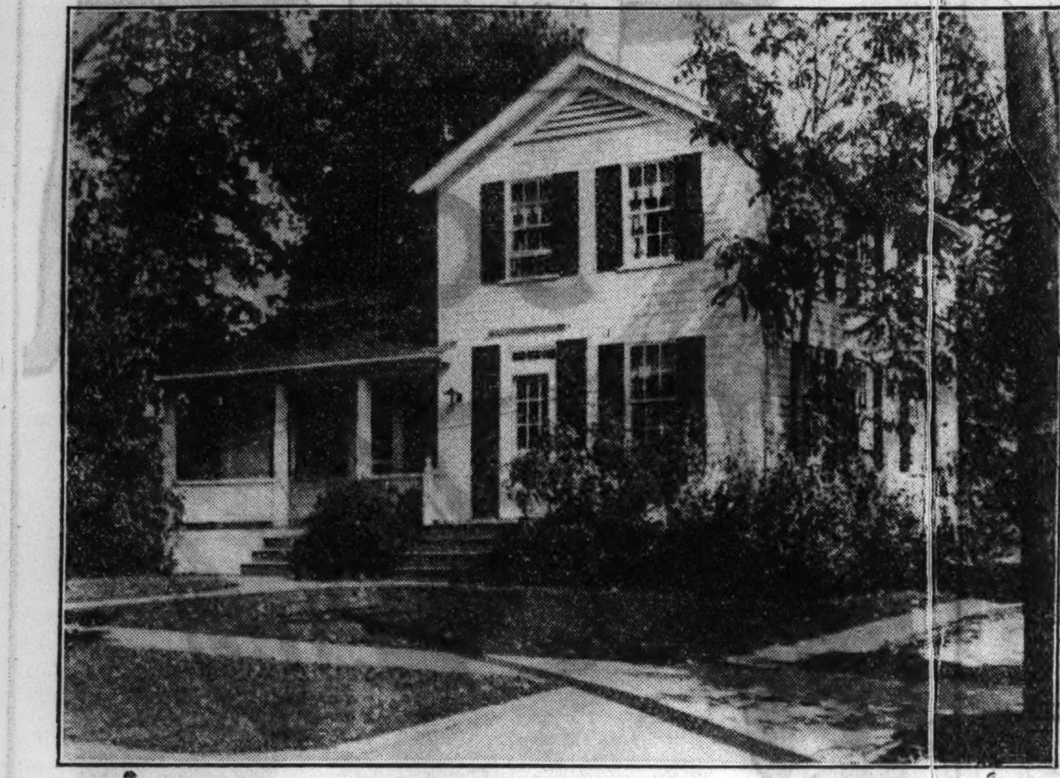
Many times a new roof can be laid directly over the old one. Of course if the old shingles are of wood and they have rotted, they should come off. Hard materials such as slate and tile usually must come off. But where the old roof is in good condition and of a material through which nails can be driven, the old shingles can often be left on and new ones nailed over them.

Mrs. Bargelt will speak over W-G-N next Wednesday at 2:15 p. m.

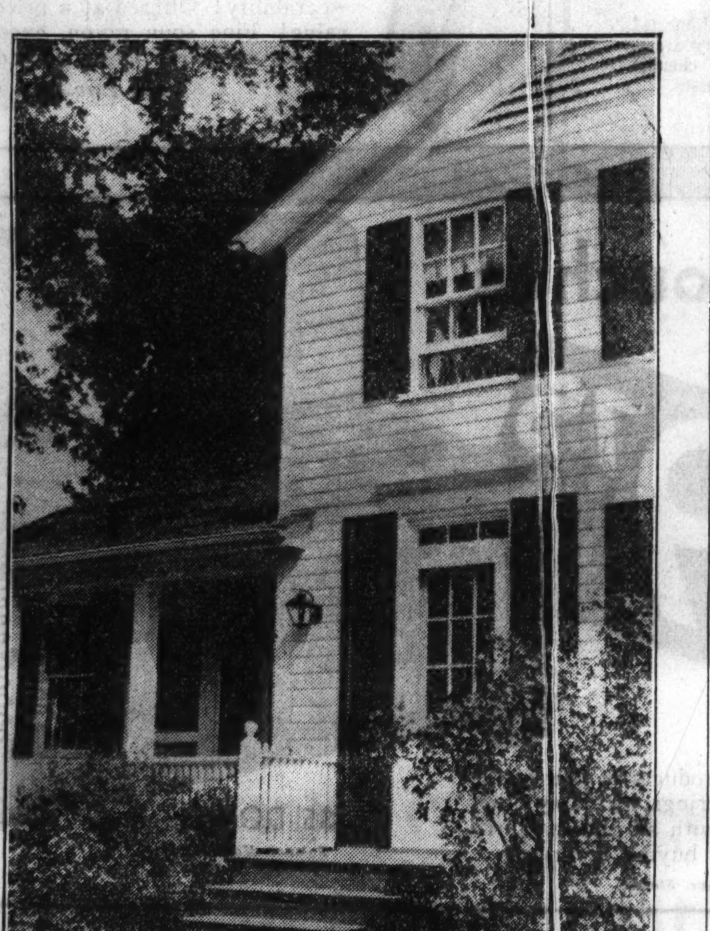
ARCHITECTURAL RETOUCHING



A bit drab, to put it mildly, this home. Yet it has so many basic virtues there is no reason it should continue forever to "enjoy bad health" and remain difficult to look at. So, by way of giving it sparkle and charm and an air of completely restored health, a few things were done. Just a few things—and yet, behold the difference! Architect for the modernization, Elmer Gylleck, 10 North Clark street, Chicago. If your house needs repair, fall is a good time to do it.



Louvres were added to the gable ends, the windows were given new divided sashes and blinds, there is a new front entrance and railing with colonial lantern, new posts for the porch — and the entire house has been painted. Practical changes, all of these, which have banished marks of approaching decrepitude from the home's exterior. Residence of Miss Edith E. Heuman, 151 South Channing street, Elgin, Ill. Amazing what a difference some good paint makes!



A closeup view of the entrance doorway of this remodeled home. Little resemblance to the old doorway! Notice how the use of heavier, but simple, posts have added to the substantial appearance of the whole house. The old railing has been used again and the steps repaired. Quite a striking example, don't you think, of what a few changes can do?

Small Tables Add to Cheer of All Rooms

Most Interiors Now Have Stands for Serving of Cocktails and Coffee.

"Making the Most of the Dinette," a helpful booklet by Edith Weigle, tells how to furnish this small room to increase its apparent size and beauty. It is 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Edith Weigle.

SMALL tables add immensely to the comfort and the appearance of any room. Besides a reading table, which, with a couch and a lounge chair, is the nucleus of any living room furnishings, most interiors nowadays have a low coffee or cocktail table placed before the sofa, often a pair of matching end tables flanking it, and each large chair is accompanied by its own little stand.

Sofa tables that have shelves for magazines and books are more practical than those with simply the top surface. Chairside tables, too, are built with lower racks to stow away newspapers and periodicals. The stores are showing them in all the standard cabinet woods and in painted finishes, too, with white continuing its popularity of some seasons.

One Indiana manufacturer has recently brought out a particularly attractive line of modern tables, so conservative that they adapt themselves to any type of living room, and so interesting in line and form that they are sure to attract the admiration of your friends.

There is an elliptical cocktail table, for example, 36 inches wide, 20 inches deep and 16¾ inches high, made entirely of walnut and glass. It is asymmetrical in shape, one end being semi-circular, solid wood, while the other is completely open, the glass top simply being supported here by a single chromium rod. A solid wood base, flush with the floor, also serves as a lower shelf on which to place magazines.

Another item in this line, an end table for a couch, has three shelves, graduated in size, step fashion, the first being of glass, the second and third of walnut. The back is of the solid wood; the front is open, only chromium rods supporting the shelves. This is a stunning piece of furniture and is most reasonably priced.

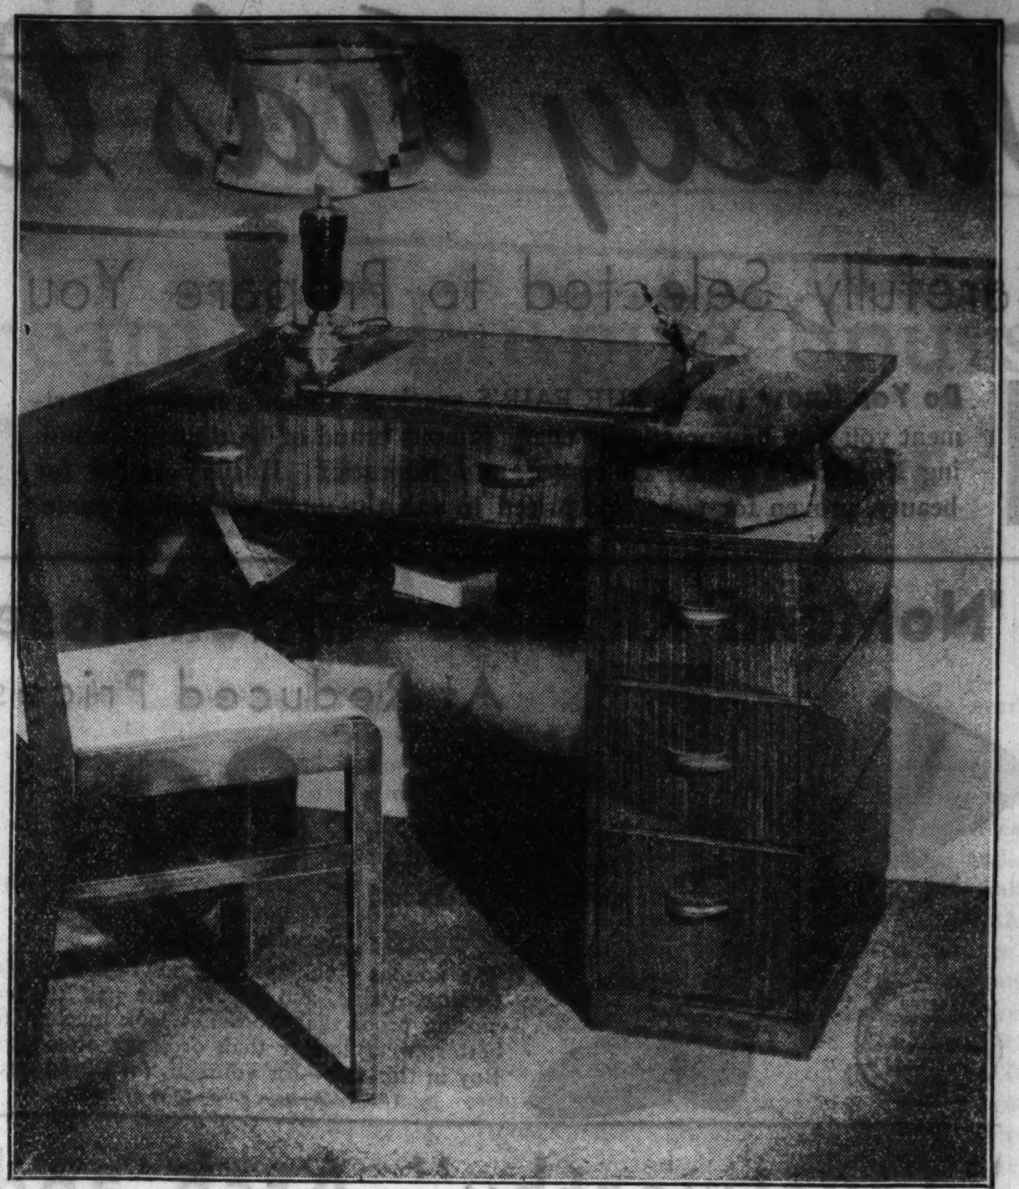
Many women, this winter, are going to use the new, flat topped desks both for writing and as tables. Placed at right angles to the wall, instead of with back against it as formerly, a desk can be in the center of a pretty little group. Place a table lamp on it, a few books, and a low bowl of flowers, then draw up a lounge chair on one side of it, and its own accompanying chair on the other and you'll be sure to find the effect pleasing.

One Chicago furniture store is showing the small modern tables above mentioned and two beautiful modern desks, either of which may be used as a table, as described. The larger desk has four drawers down one side and open shelves on the other, besides a spacious top.

The smaller one has drawers down one side only, a shallow drawer beneath the top and an open shelf below this, convenient for stowing away all the little odds and ends that too often clutter the surface of a desk.

This piece is 36 inches wide, 20 inches deep and 30 inches high. Walnut is the wood used and the drawer handles are curved hoops of metal and wood. It is sold in Chicago stores.



JUST NOTE THE CONVENIENT SHELF

This good looking, conservative-modern desk for the living room is made of walnut and has an especially convenient feature—a shelf beneath the shallow upper drawer for stowing away the litter of things that so often clutter the top of the desk. Sold in a Chicago store.

Model House Proves Dramatic Qualities of Wine Red, White, and Blue in Basic Color Schemes for Interiors

Graceful Lamps and Tole Accessories Lend Distinction to Living Room.

"New Curtains and Draperies," a booklet by Claire Winslow, tells of the new colors and fabrics and explains the correct way of hanging both glass curtains and draperies. It is 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Claire Winslow.

EVERY woman wants to know how to make her home more attractive. One way of keeping pace with the new trends in interior decoration is to visit the beautifully furnished model rooms displayed on the furniture floors of all our large stores.

The little house we want to tell you about today has been done over completely for winter and it is simply full of interesting, up-to-the-minute ideas for any person who likes home furnishings. The entrance hall, for example, is all in wine red and pure white. Wine is just as smart in fabrics for the home, this season, as it is for dress materials.

The rich, garnet red tone is repeated in the living room, where powder blue walls act as an excellent foil, providing the light touch this deep color needs. Here the walls are painted light blue, the carpeting is wine, the couch is upholstered in a silky fabric of this same hue, and you see it again in the blocked linen draperies, where it is contrasted with creamy beige. The furniture is mahogany, upholsteries being a lovely, clear, medium blue for one chair, white lether for another, and a gold nubby-textured fabric for a third.

Smart, Light Yellow a Coming Color for Details.

Accessories are in white and in the smart, light yellow, a coming color. A flat topped desk is placed at right angles to the wall opposite the fireplace and on it are charming tôle pieces in this daffodil tint. Again, on the mantel you see an unusually interesting pair of modern candelabra, also in yellow tôle. The shield shaped mirror just above has a white frame.

The lamps in this room deserve a special word of praise for they are all so artistic and so reasonably priced. One on the desk has a black bronze metal column base topped by a sculptured head of Pan, the light above casting a soft glow over it. The shade is white. On a Chippendale table near the fireplace is another lamp, also with a dull black base and white shade edged in black. A pair of matching white lamps flank the sofa.

Second Bedroom Designed for Lovers of Maple.

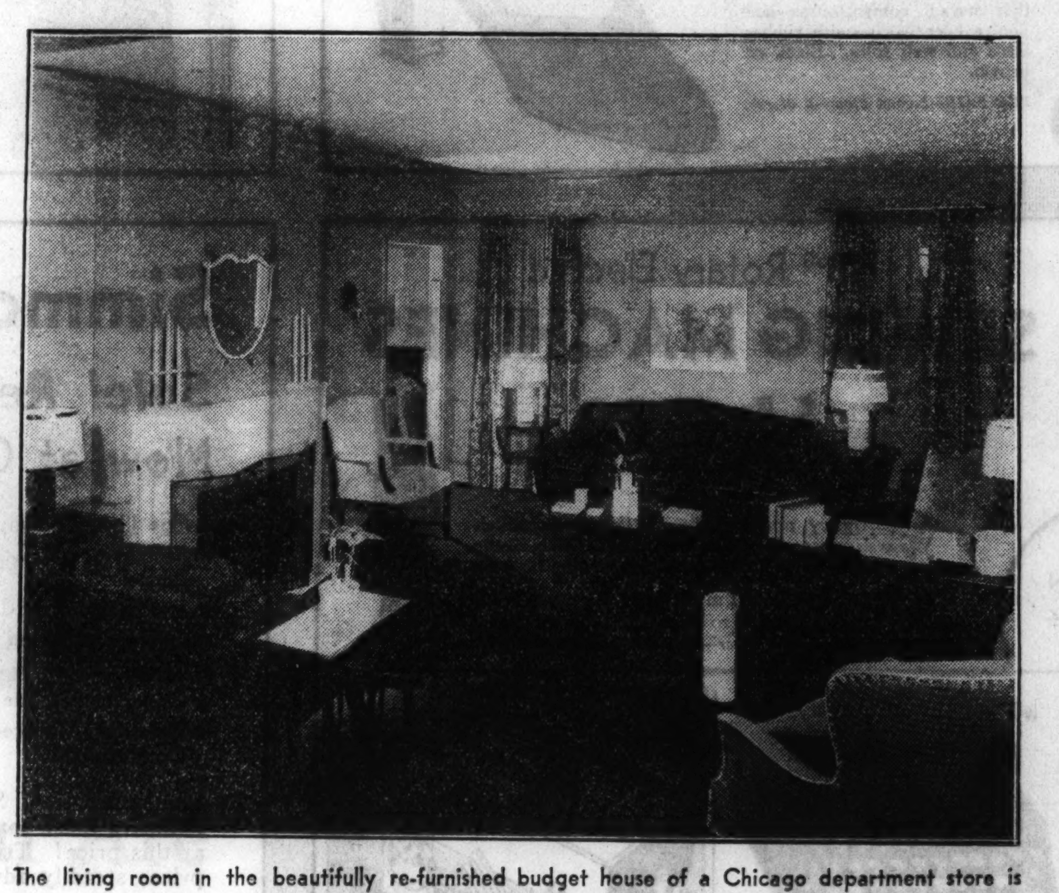
The bedroom off this living room carries on the powder blue theme, the silk bedspreads and long, full draperies being of that color. The walls are papered in an utterly lovely, soft, subtle wood-pink tone with a design in white, a solid painted dado matching the wall paper background, beneath.

Mahogany furniture of 18th century English influence is used, with charming pottery accessories of wood-pink on the bureau. A most efficiently equipped closet is off this bedroom. Also, a nice little black and beige bathroom with the new, square tub.

The second bedroom will delight all those women who love maple, for the furniture is of that mellow, red-brown wood. To set it off to best advantage a vivid, deep green and light yellow create the color scheme, appearing in an extremely smart wall paper, chintz draperies, bedspread, etc.

Besides the rooms described this clever little budget house boasts a marvelous kitchen, complete with all the latest labor saving devices, and a small breakfast-sitting room, as well as a black, gold, and ivory dining room. We'll tell you about the sitting room later, as it deserves an article all its own.

The picture today shows the living room of this house. You'll find it on the furniture floor of a large Chicago department store.



The living room in the beautifully re-furnished budget house of a Chicago department store is done in the smart new wine red tones combined with a delightful powder blue. The furniture is mahogany. Accessories are in white and in light yellow tole, a "coming color" in decoration.

Process Encases Infant Shoes in Metallic Finish

FOND mothers who lovingly cherish their baby's first tiny shoes may be glad to know that they can have the treasures encased forever by a process which transforms the lether into gold, silver, and bronze metal finish. It is marvelous how this metal treatment acts upon the lether, buttons, and lacings as though the materials had originally been molded from these metals. Should a doting mother so desire, baby's name or initials may be engraved upon the booties. The shoes thus preserved, when mounted upon marble or onyx bases, result in interesting and unusual bookends that will last a lifetime and then some! A single infant shoe, given this treatment, will be amusing to use for holding matches.

Air experts in Russia claim that women are even more apt at the parachute jumping sport than men.

Home Treatment For Keeping Skin Young

MERCOLIZED WAX is the one beauty aid you can afford because this single preparation embodies all the essentials of beauty that your skin needs. It cleanses, softens, bleaches, lubricates and protects. It is so simple to use, too. Just pat it on your skin each night as if it were an ordinary cold cream. That's all. Mercolized Wax seeps into your pores and dissolves grime and dust and all impurities. It absorbs the discolored surface skin in tiny, invisible particles, revealing the beautiful, soft, young skin that lies beneath. It clears away freckles, tan, oiliness, sunburn or any other blemishes. You use such a tiny bit of Mercolized Wax for each application that it proves an inexpensive beauty investment. Beauty cannot be taken for granted. It must be cared for regularly if you want to hold it through the years. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty of your skin.

POWDERED SAXOLITE dissolved in one-half pint witch hazel quickly reduces wrinkles and other age signs. It is a refreshing, stimulating astringent lotion. Use it daily. At all drug and department stores.

Even Louis XIV. Would Delight in This Bean Soup

LOUIS XIV. of France used to start his luncheon with four plates of soup—yes, start! What he consumed after that is a matter of conjecture, but a matter of moment is this excellent recipe for four plates of soup that can make a whole meal.

BAKED BEAN SOUP.

Put 3 cups of cold baked beans and 2 stalks of celery in 3 pints of water and simmer for 30 minutes. Rub through a sieve and add 1½ cups of stewed, strained tomatoes and 1 tablespoon chili sauce. Season with salt and pepper, add a tablespoon of minced onion, which has been browned in hot fat, and thicken with 1 tablespoon cornstarch. When slightly thickened serve hot with croutons.

Food Novelties Sure to Delight Questing Epicure

FOR those questing souls who always are running down new and exciting foods, the markets have a number of intriguing offerings. Here are a few of the more unusual, spotted at a single food store: Pickled celery knobs, in a tart sauce, to be served with the meat course; glossy little candy pillows filled with comb honey; hot sweet potato doughnuts with a fresh lemon icing, and cocktail melons, small watermelon balls in a mint, grenadine, or spice sauce.

Girls Who Succeed on Stage and Screen Are Beautiful (Sometimes) but Dumb (Never)

By CHARLES COLLINS

OLD wives and young wits have made the assertion, "Actresses are beautiful but dumb," so often that this idea has almost become a part of American folklore. The saying, masquerading as a wise-crack, has become so deeply imbedded in the popular mind that it is worth discussing. Whenever I hear it, which is often, I want to put up an argument in rebuttal, but I usually hold my peace, because the people who insist that actresses are beautiful but dumb usually take pleasure in the thought. They are subconsciously envious of the freedom, the luxury, the glitter, and the romance which a career in the films or on the stage is supposed to embrace.

In the first place, actresses are not inevitably beautiful. Many of them, including stars of the first magnitude, are far from being the physical dazzlers, off the stage or the screen, that they seem to be in their professional appearances. But we will pass that point and assume for the sake of the argument that they are 100 per cent enchantresses. Their theoretical "dumbness" is the matter up for discussion

The pictures on this page present a pair of examples, selected almost at haphazard. They are certainly easy to look at; they gratify the eye in a sumptuous way. These two girls are types of the thousands of lovely creatures who are always fluttering around the cinema studios, hoping that the magic of the camera will make them famous.

The bathing suit girl with the glad smile and the perfect thigh is Dorothy Lee of the Wheeler and Woolsey pictures (RKO). She is only nineteen years of age, but her record already includes seventeen titles. Dorothy is far from dumb, although she may have neglected her formal schooling. She got her start by outsmarting Hollywood. She was born there, but she was clever enough to recognize the fact that the cinema magnates are fascinated by Broadway glamor. She skipped away to New York, got a job in a Broadway show, and thus permitted herself to be "discovered," at a high salary, by the producers under whose very noses she had grown up. That's outguessing 'em. That's being as smart as a Notre Dame quarter back.

Ruth Hilliard, at the right, uplifting her ruby lips and drooping her heavy eyelashes in a challenging gaze, may be dumb for all I know, but she looks as if she knew the ways of the world. She is a former beauty of the Earl Carroll revues who did "bits" in the Hollywood studios for a year, and is now back in New York showgirling again. If you hear of her often, if she makes steady progress in the entertainment field, you may be sure that she isn't dumb. Life in the acting profession is an educational process in spite of its side lines of revelry. The dumb ones cannot fulfill its requirements and quickly drop into obscurity; only the clever ones become well known.

The adjective "dumb" in the American vernacular means stupid and noncommunicative. The word has been colored away from its strict dictionary meaning by the German dumm. But try to find a noncommunicative, tongue-tied actress! It can't be done. They are the chattiest and most socially adaptable women in the world. They are far better company than their mental superiors, such as female doctors of philosophy.

They are great shop-talkers, of course, but their special line of chatter about plays, films, and actors is standard for small talk in almost every circle. They are good in current affairs, being avid newspaper readers. They are often assiduous followers of the best contemporary

Dream of Empire Spurs New Italian War for African Domain

By JOSEPH U. DUGAN

THE seed of the present war in Africa between Italy and Ethiopia was sown with the beginning of European exploitation of the dark continent in the middle of the nineteenth century. Superficial facts of the present conflict might serve as a simple explanation, but an illustration of the newest chapter in the history of troubled Africa needs a bigger canvas. The picture must include all of Africa and most of Europe.

Italian Fascist legions have begun a warlike advance into Ethiopia, only remaining independent native state of importance on the continent. The league of nations, led by Great Britain and seconded somewhat half-heartedly by France, has declared the Italian advance an act of aggression in violation of the league covenant and has voted to punish Italy with economic penalties, known as sanctions, in effect a commercial and financial boycott. Those are the simple facts, arising from immediate causes. Behind them is a long story involving almost every important nation in the old world.

The continent of Africa stretches over an area of 11,460,000 square miles. Of that vast chunk of real estate two modern powers, Great Britain and France, control about seven and a half million square miles, or more than half. The richest portions of this half are in the hands of Great Britain. Much of France's holdings is barren desert. The other important but lesser European landowners in Africa are: Italy, with 946,734 square miles; Belgium, with 930,000 square miles; Portugal, with 788,000 square miles, and Spain, which rules 128,696 square miles. Another power, Germany, once had a big interest in African real estate, but her holdings of more than a million square miles were divided up between Great Britain and France as a result of the World war.

In the first scramble for territorial acquisi-

"Dodsworth" as Revival of American Spirit in Drama

Sinclair Lewis Speaks Up in Favor of U. S.

Walter Huston's Acting Fine Study of Modern American Character.

By Charles Collins.

"DODSWORTH," now in the first flush of an engagement at the Erlanger theater, brings a sense of relief. It represents the drama in its pre-depression phase of supreme technique and sane human values. It does not pretend to possess ze great beeg social significance that is found in much of the New Deal theatrical writing. It does not try to be strong by wallowing in obscenity; and although its central character is a motor-car manufacturer of the Ford or Chrysler type, it has nothing to say about the alleged terrors of the machine age.

Sinclair Lewis wrote the novel upon which it is based in 1928, just before American literature became obsessed with economics, social worker zeal, and fantastic Utopianism; and Sidney Howard dramatized the story like a first-class workman in dramatic structure. They found for the title rôle one of the finest representatives of native character on the American stage—Walter Huston, happily reclaimed from the films by this long term success. Max Gordon staged the piece with the superb finesse that has made him a contemporary Belasco. The results are extremely happy; "Dodsworth" is a rich adventure in play-going, modern in treatment but free from all ultramodern annoyances.

A Drama of True Americanism.

Here is a play which is completely on the side of the American homefolks and the American folk-ways, as contrasted with the pseudo-civilization of Europe. Old stuff, you may say, running back to provincialism and staple formulas, such as that of "The Man from Home."

But a revival of this point of view in the drama is a need of the era. The stage has been overdosed with the work of defeatist writers, finding in American character and themes material only for lamentation, derision and ominous prophecy. This has become a fashion—a cheap, fatuous vogue among the inbred intellectuals. I feel that the sweeping success of "Dodsworth" will do much to put a healthier point of view back into fashion, for our writers are much like sheep following a leader, or peddlers, seeking to merchandise what they think is the current mode.

No Flag-Waving in "Dodsworth."

Sinclair Lewis and Sidney Howard have set their play to the old tune of "The Man from Home" without sentimentalizing or flag-waving. True, Dodsworth has one brief speech expressing his respect for America which wins an old-school round of applause, but this breach of modern etiquet is due, I suspect, to current conditions—the accentuation of pacifist feeling by the war in Ethiopia and the general European situation. The line that brings the whoop-la is, "No soldiers on the Canadian border"—a well known state of affairs which in other times would have been received as a statement of fact without rhetorical implication.

The Lewis point of view in this play is merely this: Dodsworth, automobile manufacturer, family man, and loyal citizen of Zenith, O., is a good egg, and his wife, "Fran," yerning to spend his millions among European aristocrats and idlers, resentful of the home town because its people weren't "smart," is a fearsome snob and a ridiculous fraud. Even her lapse into immorality is tainted with the feeling that it was motived not by passion but by fashion.

A Mansion in the Old Home Town.

The setting for the scene that represents Dodsworth's home was planned, no doubt, to offer visual excuse for "Fran's" European mania. It is a flamboyant example of the stage designer trying to ridicule the home life of the American nouveau riche. It is smothering and ugly in its old-fashioned opulence. It does not take into consideration the fact that Sam Dodsworth had a fine eye for form and line in the design of a motor car. Maybe, it represents the soul of "Fran," herself, would-be "smart" and worldly matron; for after all, she was the chatelaine of that grotesque mansion.

But when Walter Huston enters the scene, you feel somehow that it is no longer a chamber of horrors in interior decoration. It is his home; it had grown up around him while he was busy meeting the pay rolls and keeping the automobile industry in the pink of condition. There he had lived with "Fran" for thirty years and reared his family; it was an environment for which he made no excuses. Dodsworth in his frightful library is a much more appealing picture than Mrs. Dodsworth in her suite in the Ritz, Paris, or her villa at Montreux, Switzerland.

Goodman Theater.

The second play by the Goodman theater players will be Rose Franken's "Another Language," which ran on Broadway for one whole season. It will be given on Nov. 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8.

literature; they go to concerts frequently, and probably visit art museums more regularly than the average woman of culture. They are lamentably weak, however, in the sciences—for which they easily can be forgiven.

A lively sense of wit and humor is a traditional trait of actresses. If they are not born with it, they acquire it by contacts with playwrights and by the constant use of humorous dialog in their rôles. There was Nell Gwynn, for example, born in the London slums of the seventeenth century, utterly illiterate—"pretty, witty Nelly," the brightest of Charles II.'s many mistresses.

There is Ina Claire of today—beautiful certainly, but so far from dumb that she has talked with Einstein and found the dreaming mathematician and mystic an excellent supper table companion.

There is Ethel Barrymore, brilliant in many ways, a gifted musician, a linguist, a woman of perfected culture.

There is Greta Garbo, the inscrutable Norsewoman whom Hollywood has regarded as an embodiment of the sphinx. It would be utter dumbness to call Greta dumb because she has kept aloof from the chattering circles of cinema folk. She wallows in Ibsen and other deep, symbolical literary stuff. She is silent because she has a rich inner life of Scandinavian moods and dreams. They say, moreover, that Greta is snapping out of it and becoming sociable for a change, but I hope that this is merely propaganda. The tradition of Miss Garbo as the strong, silent woman who is always saying "I think I go home now" is too picturesque to be destroyed.

There is Cornelia Otis Skinner, an ideal type of the high-bred American college woman, mistress of four or five European languages, and her own playwright.

Or, to glance at the humble little sisters of the chorus, there is merry, slangy, easy-going Jane Doe (pseudonym), who takes music lessons and dancing lessons and reads a best seller now and then, because she knows that she will never get ahead if she doesn't educate herself.

Play for Grace George

The recent death of William A. Brady Jr. was followed by reports that his mother, Grace George, would retire permanently from the stage. On the contrary, William A. Brady, her husband, is now anxious to find a play for her, and has begun by negotiating for "Short Story," by Robert Morley, an English actor. It will be staged in London with Sybil Thorndike, Marie Tempest, A. E. Matthews, and Ursula Jeans in the cast.

'Three Men on Horse' Scores 30 Weeks' Run

"THREE MEN ON A HORSE" will end its long run at the Harris theater Oct. 26 with a record of 30 consecutive weeks. Not since "Abie's Irish Rose," in the season of 1924-'25, has any nonmusical show approached this achievement. The only musical show to surpass it since the season of 1928-'29 was "Three Little Girls," which ran 32 weeks at the Great Northern theater.

"Excess Baggage," a comedy, holds second honors of the decade with a combined run of 27 weeks at the Princess and the Garrick theaters. That was in 1928. "The Barker," a drama with Richard Bennett, ended 22 weeks at the Blackstone in September, 1927. The long run comedy leader of 1926 was "Poor Nut," which thrived for 20 weeks at the Cort theater.

In the preceding decade, "Is Zat So?" ran for 28 weeks at the Adelphi theater in the 1924-'25 season. That same season the La Salle theater had "Apple Sauce" for 29 weeks, with Claiborne Foster and Allan Dinehart. On Feb. 1, 1925, "Abie's Irish Rose" terminated a 57 weeks' run at the Studebaker theater.

French Revue at the Palace; Variety Shows

THE first "Folies Bergeres" revue, originally presented at the French Casino in Chicago some fifteen months ago, has returned for a farewell engagement at the Palace theater. Practically the entire original cast is still seen in the "Folies Bergeres." In the troupe are Gloria Gilbert, ballet dancer; Emile Boreo, singing comedian; Desty, Delso and Juan, Freddie Roberts; Harold and Lola, Drena, the comic Lime Trio, and others including large groups of French models and ballet girls.

Gertrude Niesen, the cabaret singer, remains on the Chicago theater stage bill for a second week. The show otherwise is new, offering the Three Sailors, comedians; Ruth Pryor and Bentley Stone, dancers; the Neiss troupe, risley artists, and the Evans ballet. A production ballet feature is entitled "The Perfume Phial."

Ross and Edwards, comedians, headline the new vaudeville at the State-Lake theater. The program also includes: "The Four Franks," a quartet of dancers and musicians; Jay Seiler, acrobatic dancer; Victoria and Lorenz, in a comedy acrobatic offering; Mills and Martin, Verne Buck and the State-Lake ballet.

Broadway Exultant Over 'Jubilee' and 'Porgy and Bess'

First Hailed as the Flawless Musical Show

Second Folk Opera Adopted by Gershwin from Heyward's 'Porgy.'

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—An exciting time in this theater sector. Distinguished by two emotionally stirring nights. One when Sam Harris and Max Gordon, teamed with M-G-M in financial risks and profits, produced a new musical comedy called "Jubilee." One when the Theater Guild, blessed with 30,000 subscribers, presented the new folk opera, "Porgy and Bess," which is the Dubose and Dorothy Heyward "Porgy" set to a musical score by George Gershwin.

"Jubilee," I have a notion, is going to be pointed to by a good many experts as a model musical comedy. To me it is much the best native work of its class since Jerome Kern's "Show Boat" set a standard. The sanest, the smartest, the most georgeously decorated, the most expertly played. You perhaps do not realize how trite has become the musical comedy criticism announcing that while the music was pleasant, the book was terrible. Most musical comedy books are terrible. This one is not. "Jubilee" has a story framework that is not only gorgeously fantastic in idea, but as perfectly sustained in interest as the story of a good comedy.

Plot Concerns Royal Family Who Wanted to Be Common Folk.

There are musical and lyrical interruptions, but not one of them arbitrarily forced with an obvious music cue nor one of them that does not deftly tie in with the story. And that is, to me, a major triumph. . . .

According to the Moss Hart book there was once upon a recent time a king and queen, an heir apparent, and a princess royal who were utterly fed up with the business of being royal. They were even ready to abdicate just for the joy of being themselves. The queen hungered for a day of shopping in some department store basement and a meeting with Mowgli, the ape man of the movies, in the flesh. The king yerned to develop his natural gift for parlor tricks. The princess only asked that she might be introduced to a Noel Coward—author and playwright, one Eric Dare. And the prince hoped for just one spin as a night club entertainer.

When a couple of bad princelings throw a rock and a note through the palace window threatening revolution, and the royal family is ordered into a distant and gloomy castle for protection, the royal rebellion starts and the royal family goes to town. There each is given a taste of his or her particular pet adventure. They are so charmed with the result that the king does try actually to give up the throne. But they are called back for the jubilee in the end.

Perfection of Each Part Virtue of "Jubilee."

Now there is no great originality involved in this yarn. But the fact that it is both intelligently and consistently played for what it is, added to the fact that there is an entirely fresh set of chorus evolutions by Albertina Rasch and a grand new set of highly imaginative scenery by Jo Mielziner and a most engaging score by Cole Porter to fit his own superior lyrics, make "Jubilee" most satisfying.

Mary Boland is the queen, and joyously satirical. Melville Cooper, who was last eating bananas in "Laburnum Grove," is the king. Margaret Adams and Derek Williams sing the romantic numbers as the princess and the playwright.

"Porgy and Bess" Faithful to Plot of Drama.

I should not be surprised if "Porgy and Bess" also turned out to be America's most successful folk opera of native composition, though I venture with caution upon a prophecy of that sort. The Gershwin music, being a little strident and much too insistent to me, has often proved fairly hard to take. But it unquestionably is of sufficient distinction to appeal to the better musicians and is occasionally shot with such melody and descriptive appeal as to please even such musical lowbrows as you and I.

You will recall the dramatic "Porgy" [1928] as a play of numerous dramatic and emotional climaxes. Its production marked Rouben Mamoulian's debut as a director in the American theater. The play story has been followed closely in the opera. It begins with the lazy awakening of those Gullah Negro neighbors who lived in Catfish row in Charleston. It swings lightly into the crap game, during which the bully, Crown, fights over the dice with the peaceable Robbins and kills him. Crown flees to the swamps and his girl, the scarlet Bess, takes sanctuary with Porgy, the cripple.

It moves to the rooms of Serena Robbins during the wake held for the dead man and the collection of dimes to defray the burial and keep the body away from medical students. Piling climax on climax it sends the residents of Catfish row to a picnic where the fleeing Crown catches up again with Bess and takes her temporarily away from her newer lover. It proceeds through a hurricane that sets the scenery shaking and the community singing spirituals and praying lustily, and concludes with Porgy's stabbing of Crown, Bess' elopement with the worthless Sportin' Life, when she thinks Porgy is to be held for murder, and Porgy's later following pathetically after her in his goat cart.

Gershwin's Crashing Crescendos Well Suited to Mood of Play.

Few dramas have revealed so exciting a series of climateric incidents, and now that these have been set to that type of crashing crescendo in which Gershwin delights the tension of the evening is often a good deal of a strain. It quite wore the first audience out, but there was a rally at the end to acclaim the work with enthusiasm. . . .

The singers, all colored, include two who are new to Broadway. Todd Duncan, who has headed the music department at Howard university for some years, is the Porgy. Anne Wiggins Brown, who was the only colored student to win a scholarship at the Juilliard school, is the Bess. Both are natural actors and the possessors of fine voices. There is a numerous choir and an orphans' band. Mr. Mamoulian achieves effective groupings and the stage pictures are striking.

One line that is characteristic of the Heyward libretto follows Serena's prayer for the depressed Porgy. As she finishes she looks back from heaven to the saddened Porgy and says, with a smile: "It's all right now, Porgy, honey. Dr. Jesus done tuk the case!"

And the one Gershwin song that will come closer to popularity than any other is Porgy's burst of happiness endorsing the freedom of his existence. "I ain't got nuthin'," he carols, with joyful defiance, "and nuthin' is plenty for me." . . .

Life Insurance Provides Theme of "Sweet Mystery of Life."

You know the moment when the life insurance agent moves to the edge of his chair and, fixing you with a calculating eye, declares that if you will have the good sense to sign the papers and accept the annuity you will automatically lengthen your expectance at least a dozen years. Three young men of the modern theater, Richard Maibaum, Michael Wallach, and George Haight, have taken that inspiration as a theme, and written an amusing piece called "Sweet Mystery of Life."

Their prospect is a grouchy hypochondriac, Samuel Blauker, who, at 58, is filled with pills and ills and ready to turn his chain store business over to his employés. Three of his executives, wanting more than their cut out of 10 per cent each, induce him first to try for an insurance policy of 5 million dollars and assign that to the business. They hope within a few years to inherit both the business and the insurance.

Blauker gets by the insurance doctors and immediately becomes of first concern to the lad who, much to his surprise, wrote the policy. Blauker alive means $20,000 a year in commissions to Rosmer, the agent. Blauker dead is a loss. So Rosmer takes on the job of keeping Blauker alive while his partners work subtly to wish him into his grave.

Rosmer takes his client to Bermuda for a month and brings him back smiling at life and all the pretty girls in sight. The partners introduce Blauker to an adventuress. But Blauker, being cagey, sticks to the sane life, grows more robust by the minute, marries the adventuress, and is ready to settle down happily at the curtain. It is good fun, but Herman Shumlin has, I think, handicapped it by cutting it into too many scenes. These are deftly arranged on a series of platform stages, but their changing does retard the comedy's progress. By the time it reaches you by way of the screen [one of the motion picture companies already owns the rights] it will be a snappier success.

The Gene Lockhart who played the bibulous brother in "Ah Wilderness" and went from there to a screen career is back to play Blauker exceptionally well. Some one in your family may remember when Harry Conor played well and strong in "A Trip to Chinatown." Lockhart is the Conor type and of expanding talent. Hobart Cavanaugh, also returned from the cinemas, is good as the lucky agent.

"I LIVE MY LIFE"

Seems as if Joan Crawford has everything — a wedding outfit AND Brian Ahernel O, well—cheer up, girls! It may be true—but only in a movie. The name of the movie? "I Live My Life." At the Chicago theater.

Long Run Records

HERE is the record of famous long runs of musical shows on the Chicago stage during the "boom" period, 1925 to 1929:

"The Student Prince" ran 59 weeks; opened Feb. 27, 1925; closed April 10, 1926.

"Desert Song" ran 36 weeks; opened Sept. 4, 1927; closed May 12, 1928.

"Rose Marie" ran 33 weeks; opened May 8, 1925; closed Sept. 26, 1925.

"The Vagabond King" ran 31 weeks; opened Sept. 3, 1926; closed April 9, 1927.

"Follow Thru" ran 20 weeks; opened July 28, 1929; closed Dec. 14, 1929.

"A Connecticut Yankee" ran 17 weeks; opened March 31, 1929; closed July 27, 1929.

"My Maryland" ran 17 weeks; opened Sept. 2, 1928; closed Jan. 5, 1929.

Stage Letter Box

To the Dramatic Editor:

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—It is really inconceivable that a play like "Tobacco Road" should be allowed a Chicago showing. Any decent person would be both shocked and embarrassed at the abominable immorality of it. I certaintly can't understand a person with any intelligence recommending this "masterpiece" [of indecency, in my opinion] to others after witnessing the disgraceful actions of the characters. I have heard of broad-mindedness, but never to such an extent. The legitimate stage is a wonderful thing but trash like this greatly decreases its value.
A. WALSH.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—Your article about De Wolf Hopper in THE TRIBUNE of Sept. 29, was very interesting to me as he was always a favorite of mine. I was a little surprised that the article made no mention of Hopper as a member of the Criterion Comedy company, which was organized by F. F. Mackay in the early eighties. I saw them here at Hooley's in "Caste," with Hopper as Sam Gerridge, Louise Sylvester as Polly, and Mackay himself as Old Man Eccles.

I first saw Hopper at McVicker's in "One Hundred Wives" in the late seventies. My old programs go back to 1873 and have been all kept until about ten or twelve years ago.
HERMAN HEFTER.

Guest Stars

THE cast of Otto Indig's "The Bride of Torozko," which opens tonight at the Jewish People's institute, will be headed by Shaindel Kalish in the rôle originated in the New York production last season by Jean Arthur. Opposite Miss Kalish will be Charles K. Freeman, the director of the play. Miss Kalish and Freeman are the guest stars, celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Institute Players.

Clive Rickabaugh is the designer of the stage settings.

"The Bride of Torozko" will have a three night run at the institute, after which it may be brought to a downtown theater, as was "Girls in Uniform" by Freeman, two seasons ago.

Reading Lists for Colleges Held Too Old

Courses in Literature Should Be Modernized, Declare the Critics.

MORE than half the books on lists of reading recommended by professors of English in fifty-four colleges were published before 1886, a recent survey disclosed. The survey also showed that literature courses given by most of these professors cover still earlier periods, the average being about 1673.

In the opinion of many educators, such courses should be modernized. Students today, they assert, desire and should have in their English courses books that interpret the contemporary scene. This view holds that the modern student's interest is inspired by the timely rather than by the remote.

This was shown recently by a group of students who were asked to submit a favorite book list. On the lists submitted by 1,638 students half the titles were of books published since 1924. One educator summed up the argument as follows:

"I strongly question the value," he said, "of spending four weeks studying "Silas Marner" and "Julius Caesar," and nine weeks on 'As You Like It" when the present-day world is full of material much nearer the student's own interests.

"High school boys and girls find themselves set down in a bewildering and vastly interesting world. Their desire is to know what it is all about, to be able to feel at home in it. If they can't find a key to it in the schools, they will get their real education in other places—the streets, the movie theaters, the tabloids."

Howard in Hollywood.

Leslie Howard has gone to Hollywood for the six or eight weeks required for the filming of "The Petrified Forest." He then will be free to go to work on his long awaited production of "Hamlet." Thus far he has engaged only one player for it—Ernest Thesiger, who will be the Polonius.

LOOKS A BIT TROUBLED

Looks pretty sad, that Mr. Robert Donat, as he leans out of his window! Lean all you want to, Monsieur, but for the love of Pete don't fall—or jump! You'll learn the reason for this troubled brow when you see the English player in "39 Steps." Madeleine Carroll is his co-star. It's at the Palace.

Barrie's New Play

THE play which Sir James M. Barrie is writing for Elizabeth Bergner is said to give her the rôle of the young David against the background of the Biblical story. The play will be tested in Edinburgh early next year. It will then open in London under the management of Charles B. Cochran.

Colored Star

JOSEPHINE BAKER, the colored dancer who left the United States about ten years ago as an unknown chorus girl and who has become one of the most famous entertainers in all Europe, has returned to New York to appear in the 1936 edition of the "Ziegfeld Follies." She has been decorated by the French government, has had her own night clubs and cabarets in Paris, has starred in musical comedies, revues and films and in several editions of the Paris "Folies Bergéres."

Her rôle in the "Ziegfeld Follies" will be her first important one in this country.

The Shorter Road to the Better Job for Young Men and Women

What Chicago Stenotypists Say

"The Stenotype secured me an immediate job after 2½ years of idleness as an experienced pencil stenographer."—F. H.*

"In three years, the Stenotype has carried me from Junior Clerk, at a nominal salary, to secretary to the senior Chicago official of my great company."—M. A. C.*

"Seven months after starting Stenotypy, I passed the 150 word a minute test. Two weeks later, I was engaged by a publishing house. Within a month, I was able to keep up with a work schedule equal to that of stenographers who had been with the company four and five years. Later, when changes came, I was the only girl retained—and my salary was raised."—L. R.*

"Six weeks after I began as a Stenotype secretary, I reported an emergency court case, lasting from nine a. m. until nine p. m. My success led to several years of reporting, then with the U. S. Attorney's office and finally with the Attorney-General's office."—Q. S.*

"Stenotype is opening up new opportunities that formerly I had thought impossible. Sales meetings, executive reports, traveling are all part of my secretarial duties. Much more lies ahead."—H. A. V.*

"Without exception my employers have been enthusiastic about the Stenotype."—R. A. R.*

"My employers often commend me upon the speed and accuracy of my work."—A. N. S.*

*Names gladly given on request.

STENOTYPY will solve your job problem—start you off on the right road to the greatest success in the shortest time.

Modern Business demands Modern Methods. Stenotypy—the rapid machine-way in shorthand—answers that demand in full and assures your entrance into the business world prepared to succeed. Its machine speed, accuracy and ease of operation meet every need of the preferred secretarial and reporting positions—the positions that pay best in prestige and money and that lead to even larger permanent success.

Thousands of outstanding firms, 90% of all conventions, and special reporting situations (such as Hauptmann-Lindbergh trial, Democratic National Convention, American Legion Convention, Rotary International, etc.) use Stenotypists.

New Classes Open Week of October 28

La Crawford Here in Vivid Film Romance

New Mrs. Franchot Tone Plays Petulant Heiress in "I Live My Life."

"I LIVE MY LIFE."

Produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Directed by W. S. Van Dyke. Based on short story by A. Carter Goodloe. Presented at the Chicago theater.

THE CAST

Kay	Joan Crawford

Yaffitz	Lionel Stander
Uncle Carl	Hale Hamilton

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!

. . . And here's wishing a world of happiness to Mr. and Mrs. Franchot Tone! . . .

It's been a long time since the Chicago theater has had a Joan Crawford [Mrs. Tone] picture. Not since "Dancing Daughters"—unless my memory plays me false. So—the management was mighty pleased when "I Live My Life" came along. For it presents the popular star in a film that, while featuring Joan in a super-heated romance, is still pure enough for family trade.

The romance referred to is that of an heiress and a poor archæologist—both of whom are accustomed to having their own way. . . .

They meet on a Greek island where Kay has dropped off during a yachting trip with her papa and some of his friends. . . .

Kay Keeps Returning to Get Her Man.

She discovers Terry in the act of bringing up into the light of modern day a statue—work of a famous ancient. [This is later shipped to the New York Archæological society and lectured about by Terry.]

The earnest young gentleman is greatly annoyed by the pestering of the frivolous young lady. But Kay knows that here's her man . . . the boat leaves the island, but that night the lady orders it back again and, again, to his astonishment confronts the enthusiastic digger for antiquities. . . .

There are love scenes in the moonlight . . . again the lady departs . . . Terry, believing her to be her papa's secretary and, therefore, financially in his class, follows her to New York.

From here on it's a battle of the sexes—with everybody cutting temperamental figure eights. . . . The finale will elicit sighs of rapture from Joan-ites and Aherne addicts. . . .

Joan Stops Concentrating on Lips, Takes Up Lashes.

The story is a silly affair—but it has been stunningly staged and directed with abandon. . . .

Joan, who has gone temperate on lip makeup, now expands on her eyes. This trip she flourishes lashes that look like Sally Rand's fans.

But she appears charming nevertheless, wears gorgeous clothes, and acts with sincerity—most of the time. Her pre-nuptial hysterics seem too-too. However, considering the fact that she's the spoiled darling she's supposed to be, and's up against what she is up against—they're not overdone.

Brian Aherne as Terry is immense! Best thing he's done since "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" [on the stage]. Give this man a horse he can ride and he sure does ride!

Frank Morgan is adept and amusing as the heroine's daddy, Jessie Ralph plays a vinegary old auntie with the appropriate acid touch. Arthur Treacher and Eric Blore are simply swell as butlers. Other rôles are all nicely handled.

I thought "I Live My Life" too long, but Crawford fans will probably vote me all wet for so opining.

See you tomorrow!

Among the famous couples who have recently settled down in Hollywood are IRVING BERLIN AND HIS WIFE, the former Ellin MacKay. Mr. Berlin, who was brought to Hollywood to write the music for "Top Hat," has been given a contract by RKO. He has just completed the musical score for "Follow the Fleet," another Astaire-Rogers vehicle. Both the song writer and Mrs. Berlin profess themselves "crazy about Hollywood." With their two children they are established in a home near the movie center. . . . HELEN BRODERICK, funny Broadway comedienne who made a riotous screen debut in "Top Hat," is to be co-starred with JAMES GLEASON, one of Hollywood's ace "funny mans," in "The Puzzle of the Briar Pipe," Stewart Palmer's mystery comedy.

MARGUERITE CHURCHILL [in private life Mrs. George O'Brien] returns to the screen in the leading feminine rôle of "Invitation to a Murder," based on the stage play by Rufus King. Miss Churchill retired from her movie work when she married Mr. O'Brien. . . . JESSE L. LASKY, who went abroad to search for screen talent, cables that he has found a 19 year old French girl named Ariane Borg whom he considers one of filmdom's most notable "finds." Mr. Lasky has placed Miss Borg under contract to the newly formed Pickford-Lasky productions. She has been given a number of screen tests in London and is now on her way to Hollywood, where she will be trained for her first appearance before the cameras. . . . In a recent movie contest in England GRETA GARBO was voted as the most popular screen star, with NORMA SHEARER taking second place, and CLARK GABLE third on the list.

GILDA GRAY is another famous Ziegfeld star to join the M-G-M's cast of "The Great Ziegfeld." Miss Gray, who introduced the shimmy and south sea dances, will portray herself in this production. LUISE RAINER, who made her screen debut in "Escapade," will play the rôle of Anna Held in the film. . . . PAUL DRAPER, musical comedy dancer, is leaving for Hollywood soon, where he will appear opposite RUBY KEELER in the all-star production "Colleen." Mr. Draper has been given a contract by Warner Brothers. . . . GERTRUDE MICHAEL will play a major rôle in "Lullaby," a screen story written around "The Cradle," Evanston's noted home for babies. . . . DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS JR. will play the leading male rôle opposite ELISSA LANDI in Marcel Hellman's production, "The Amateur Gentleman."

BUCK, the 190 pound St. Bernard who leaped to stardom through his performance in "Call of the Wild," has a bedroom of his own in the residence of his master, Carl Spitz. [Believe it or not, there was once a St. Bernard who was a spitz dog!] The furnishings in the room consist of a large double bed, which Buck occupies unless the weather's too warm, when he sleeps on the floor. Buck will start work shortly in James Oliver Curwood's "The Country Beyond."

Austrian Operetta

"DAS DREIMAEDERLHAUS," the original of "Blossom Time," will be staged for a single gala performance by William L. Klein of the "Germania Broadcast" on Friday evening, Oct. 25, at the Civic opera. Marek Windheim, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera company, will sing the part of Franz Schubert. The leading woman's rôle will be taken by Helen Freund, formerly with the Chicago Civic Opera company. Other well known singers in the cast will be Angelo Lippich, Irma Ferency, Reinhold Schmidt, Miga March, Fred Mueller, Kurt Kupfer, and Otto Bauer. The stage direction will be handled by Curt Benisch, and the musical director will be Otto Vandsburger.

Abel's D'Artagnan Climaxes Long Fight for Film Success

Walter Works Five Years to Win Stardom

Role in 'Three Musketeers' First Break in a Long Series of Disasters.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.—Walter Abel, newly discovered film luminary who is the white haired boy at Radio since the showing of the "Three Musketeers," in which he plays the immortal D'Artagnan, has an interesting background. For years prior to his success he was just another example of the tough breaks that can come to an able actor attempting to "arrive" in the film world. This recent and successful rôle of Abel's is the third attempt he has made in five years to crash the film citadel. Each time he's gone back to Broadway to gather his forces and finances for the next try. Each time he has come to films with a contract but he has had little or no chance to show what he could do.

Abel is not exactly brand new to films. But his early attempts were as a "bumptious kid," as he calls himself, when he played a rôle with Marguerite Clark and Tom Meighan in "Out of a Clear Sky" at the Famous Players Fort Lee, N. J., studio in 1920. It was the last picture Marshall Neilan directed under his contract there. He was heading west for Hollywood and wanted to take Abel along. Dick Barthelmess had gone with another company, and Neilan wanted to replace him with Abel. But Abel, then more interested in painting than acting, refused Neilan's offer in order to go to Oguanquit, Me., for the summer and paint.

Too Many Directors Spoiled Abel's First Movie.

Later he drifted back to films and the following year signed a five year contract with Samuel Goldwyn's eastern studio. Abel made one ill fated film, "The Malice of the North Wind," with Jane Thomas as leading lady and Tom Santschi and Joe King putting on a big battle scene, à la Rex Beach. This film had the additional distinction of being a directorial effort of Paul Bern and Carl Harbaugh, but as both directors shot their footage independently and it sometimes didn't match, things didn't go so well and the film was a dismal failure. Another opus starring Lionel Atwell was in process of being filmed at the Goldwyn eastern studios, but it didn't please the makers and never was released. The studio blew up, contracts were no good, and Abel was back on Broadway to a flying start, not too far ahead of the sherif.

Some time passed, and Abel was anxious to come to Hollywood and settle down as so many stage folks were doing. The stage seemed to be slipping, films were on the upclimb. In 1930 Fox brought him out under contract. He drew six months' pay and did a job of two days' work in "Liliom." Then back to Broadway again.

Film Tests Often Unfair to Actors.

Two years ago Paramount brought him west under contract, paid him, made tests of him, and gave him nothing to do.

"Those film tests are awful," says Abel. "Somebody backs you up against a bare wall and says 'Now act'—that's about as much help or inspiration as one is given. I made a test with Edna Best. Neither of us got anything from it, and no wonder. Yet two years later Best emerges in English films as a glorious girl, which indeed she is.

"It was back to Broadway again. In 1934 I did the rôle in 'Merrily We Roll Along' that got me my radio contract. Previous to that I had had five plays in New York, all flops, and drew fourteen weeks' salary. Can you imagine why I wanted to do films if possible?

"Radio brought me out to do 'General Grant' and when after two months of exhaustive tests it was shelved I thought it was just another one of those round trips I had been taking from Broadway.

Shied Away from D'Artagnan Because of Fairbanks Precedent.

"Three times and out, this is the end—I thought. Then some one at the studio suggested that I do D'Artagnan in 'The Three Musketeers.' 'That's a quaint thought,' said I. I didn't like the idea of following the Fairbanks silent film which was such a hit. I never like doing other people's rôles. There are those inevitable and not always fair comparisons.

"There were three of us all from the American Academy of Dramatic Art in 'The Three Musketeers'—Ian Keith, the villain, myself, and the director, Rowland V. Lee. Incidentally Wade Boteler was our teacher there. Bill Howell was two classes ahead of us.

"When I was assigned the rôle of D'Artagnan I knew I couldn't play it the way Fairbanks did because it wouldn't be me, and I hate imitators. It was Mr. Lee's idea that I play the rôle as a 'young boy from the country,' a brash young fellow such as Dumas wrote of, not the sophisticated, worldly wise man at all. Though we had to adapt the story for screen use so as not to offend, I think we kept close to the feeling of the author and I sincerely hope Dumas fans will forgive us and enjoy our tale.

"I enjoyed doing the film immensely. At first when I made the tests I wondered about it. My wife asked me how I looked in the tests and I asked her 'Do you remember how I looked twelve years ago?' "'What do I do now?' she asked me."

Abel Once Acted in Chicago Under Insull's Direction.

Abel, in mentioning that he played Chicago in "When Ladies Meet," "Mourning Becomes Electra," and a personal appearance tour with Miriam Hopkins in "The Affairs of Anatol," says that he was once directed in a play there by Samuel Insull. In 1928 Mr. and Mrs. Insull organized the Chicago Repertoire company and Abel was engaged at a six weeks' guarantee, with four other actors, to come from New York, he to play Dick Dudgeon in George Bernard Shaw's "Devil's Disciple." Two previous plays by the repertoire company flopped, and when Mr. Insull had conducted the fourth rehersal for Abel's play the boys were called in and paid off. Abel again went back to Broadway.

While Abel was in Chicago doing research on the Ulysses S. Grant rôle he was to do for Radio he received able assistance from his uncle, Prof. Ferdinand Schevill of the history department of the University of Chicago. If Radio ever pulls that opus off the shelf it will be an exciting and informative film.

TO BE WIDE AWAKE

This is Frances Drake's latest picture. The pretty lady certainly appears alert, doesn't she? She'd better keep an eye out! . . . for she plays opposite that sinister fellow, Peter Lorre, in "Mad Love." It's making 'em shiver over at the Oriental.

Movie Couple Claim They're Not Married

At Least, Not for Publication, Jan Kiepura and Marta Eggerth Say.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—The marriage denials of Marta Eggerth and Jan Kiepura are, amazingly enough, gaining some credence in Hollywood. Yet Kiepura admits to being married to the beauty, but "not for publication." Europeans have strange ideas of how much a marriage will affect their popularity.

The disinclination of this couple to have their marriage known is one of many such incidents in Hollywood history. Carl Brisson, on his arrival in this country, seriously considered introducing his wife as his sister, and his son Fred actually passed as his brother.

Ronald Colman, though he never stated he was such, passed as a bachelor and was so written of by local gossip writers until his pretty wife arrived in town to sue for separate maintenance.

American stars have for the most part gotten over the notion that they must be immolated on the altars of celibacy to hold their public. Gary Cooper takes his wife everywhere; so do Bing Crosby, Clark Gable, and every other film star in the business lucky enough to have a wife.

Dolores Del Rio has a rather completely equipped gymnasium at her Santa Monica home and is hostess to daily gym classes there for her friends. Louis Hippe of Warners gives the young ladies wand waving, deep breathing, and stretching exercises daily. In the class are Virginia Bruce, Mrs. Gary Cooper [Dolores' niece], Lili Damita.

Extras got all mixed up over at Radio, and for awhile it looked as if an impending riot could not be averted. It happened down at the casting office outside of which huge placards had been posted for scenes in "It Happened in Hollywood" in which Phylis Brooks and Wallie Ford are playing. Extras thought it was real and that work was to be had and crashed in at the wrong places during "takes." It would have been cheaper to duplicate the casting office on a set.

Hollywood, while a movie town, is also a writers' town. Any late stroller along the boulevard is sure of one sight as the witching hour of midnight approaches. The mail boxes seem to act like magnets. For out of cars, slowly driven, emerge pajama clad figures which dash to the box and drop in manuscripts to catch the midnight mail. Much of it is air mail for the New York magazines or heaven knows what. Much of it is scenario mail being put through at the last minute by some guy with a head recently withdrawn from under an ice cold towel à la Sidney Carton.

The pet site for this informal parade is the Vine street postoffice box. Nobody knows the dreams dropped in, but the government tax collectors keep strict account of the cash that comes out by return mail and it is a mighty big sum in a year's time in this town.

YOUNG SWEDISH ACTOR

Have you ever met that young Swedish actor, Hikan Westergren? Here he is as he appears in "Swedenhielms," the Julian theater's new Swedish talking movie show.

Freeman Acts with Kalish in New Play

CHARLES K. FREEMAN, known to Chicago theatergoers as a director and producer during the last few seasons, will appear on the stage, playing opposite Shaindel Kalish, in Otto Indig's "The Bride of Toroszco," the first play of the season of the Institute Players of the Jewish People's Institute, opening this evening.

Freeman began his career in a stock company in the east, and then appeared with the Theater Guild and at the Greenwich Village theater in New York. Then he became associate director of the Richard Mansfield Repertory theater at New London, Conn.

Back in New York with the Theater Guild, Freeman was in company with such stars as Alfred Lunt, Lynne Fontanne, Edward Robinson, Blanche Yurka, and Jacob Ben-Ami, under the direction of Phillip Moehler and Lee Simonson.

After the New York engagement of David Vardi's production of "The Dybbuk," in which Freeman appeared, he came to Chicago. Then he went into "On the Stairs" in support of James Spotteswood and James Crane.

For the next two seasons Freeman directed and played leading rôles in a stock company in Chicago. He was then called to direct the players of the Jewish People's Institute, and remained there for five seasons, winning for the institute the Edith Rockefeller McCormick cup for three consecutive seasons and permanent possession of the trophy.

While at the Institute Freeman also did a professional production of "Merry Go Round" in Chicago, and took "Girls in Uniform" from the institute into the Blackstone theater.

After working with Isaac Van Grove on the "Festival of Candles" at the Chicago Stadium, Freeman was asked by Van Grove to be dramatic director of "The Romance of a People" pageant at Soldiers' field. He also wrote and directed the second "Festival of Candles" at the Civic Opera house.

Last season Freeman was producer and director of "Sixteen," in which Miss Kalish was the star.

Music Leaders Seek to Free Opera of Stilted Estheticism

Vital Art May Replace False Highbrowism

Kirsten Flagstad, Who Sings Here Today, Is Force in Movement.

By Hazel Moore.

THE success of Kirsten Flagstad, the Norwegian soprano, gives rise to an interesting line of thought. She is credited not only with having almost single handed saved the Metropolitan opera from financial ruin last season, but in having done much to popularize Wagnerian opera by the simplicity and naturalness of her characterizations as well as by the admitted beauty of her singing.

The Kirsten Flagstad and Lauritz Melchoir All Wagner program at Orchestra hall this afternoon brings two of the world's greatest Wagner exponents to our city for the first time in recital. Mr. Melchoir is not an operatic stranger, as he sang a "Tristan" at the Civic opera last year under the direction of Dr. Frederick Stock. He has long been rated as the Metropolitan's greatest Wagnerian tenor, and Miss Flagstad would seem to have won the same coveted position as soprano following her enormous vogue last season. This is her first appearance in Chicago.

Popularization of opera in America is always a vital topic. In spite of the throngs who attend the Gallo opera and follow all of the cheaper priced performances which are not overly heralded in the society columns, the word grand in connection with opera still strikes terror to the heart of many a cautious soul who knows what he likes and avoids any entertainment that savors of highbrowism. Yet this same caution rarely carries over into the realm of the theater. So it was perhaps an inspired move toward the removal of the "grand" bugbear in the production of American opera which George Gershwin made in having his new work, "Porgy and Bess," produced by the Theater Guild in a theater rather than by one of the major opera companies.

American Composers Subconsciously Afraid of 'Grand'?

American opera has too often broken on the rocks of grand opera, in spite of really favorable productions, and the suspicion arises that the American composer has perhaps himself been subconsciously afraid of the "grand," and therefore unable to produce his best and most natural work in that field.

The Metropolitan opera's production of Gruenberg's "Emperor Jones" came close to evolving a medium of operatic expression near to the understanding and sympathy of the public in general. Based on the play of the same name, "Emperor Jones" employed simple Negro themes and rhythms which provided a natural appeal to all who knew the Negro.

In "Porgy and Bess," according to the reviews, Gershwin has gone a bit further. As in "Emperor Jones," the Negro, the rhythm and fervor of Negro song, and the religious exaltation and pitiful fear have been the inspiration for the music. "Porgy," Dubose and Dorothy Heyward's unforgettable play of the gentle old Charleston Negro, with his packing-box limousine, goat drawn, his no-good Bess, and all the pity, terror, and exaltation which embellish the play, inevitably drew George Gershwin. One eastern reviewer remarked that it was doubtless foreordained that Gershwin should write a Negro opera—as it was foreordained that Wagner [for somewhat different reasons] should write "Parsifal."

"Porgy and Bess" May Found New U. S. Opera.

Discussion is rife among those who have heard the opera as to its classification. Is it grand opera, folk opera, combination play and music, or what have you? In any event Mr. Gershwin may in years to come find himself the father of American opera, or at least the inventor of an American operatic form with a national appeal.

The news that Veloz and Yolanda, the great dance team which nightly delights the patrons of the Empire room of the Palmer house, have been engaged by Mr. Longone to dance in a performance of "Carmen" and possibly in other operas during the season, is inspirational. Their dances will be planned in coöperation with Ruth Page, première danseuse and director of the opera ballet.

This will be the lovely dance team's first venture into grand opera. It climaxes a colorful career which has carried them from amateur nights in a New York dance hall to exclusive cabarets and supper clubs, motion picture superproductions, and now grand opera. The Bizet opera should prove an especially effective background for their talents, and they in turn should add much to the production.

The program study classes presented by Marx and Anne Oberndorfer in coöperation with the women's committee of the Chicago Symphony orchestra have resumed their activity. The Thursday class continues to meet as last year at the Fred Harvey restaurant, at 6 o'clock. The Friday series meet in the Wedgwood room, Marshall Field & Co., at 10:45 each Friday morning. The classes provide both pleasant and instructive matter on the coming symphony programs.

News of Interest to Lovers of Music.

Jascha Heifetz may be heard but once this season. His recital scheduled for Oct. 21 at Orchestra hall is under the sponsorship of the National Council of Jewish Women, Chicago section. Mr. Heifetz plans an extended European tour.

"Mefistofele" Will Open City Opera Season

Ezio Pinza to Sing at Nov. 2 Gala Title Role Made Famous by Chaliapin.

By Hazel Moore.

TREADING closely on the heels of the San Carlo opera at the Auditorium will come the opening of the Chicago City opera at the Civic Opera house on Nov. 2. Busier than the proverbial bees, the advance workers of the Wacker Drive theater are getting things well in shape for the grand opening. The management reports the continued good advance sale and increase in subscriptions in all parts of the house, and all departments are buzzing with activity. Singers will be arriving shortly from all parts and rehersals for the five week season will soon begin.

Impresario Paul Longone sends announcement of the operas and casts of the first week thus:

The gala opening performance on Saturday night, Nov. 2, will be "Mefistofele," with Ezio Pinza singing the title rôle, supported by Edith Mason, Eleanor La Mance, and Franco Forest [debut]. This will be Pinza's first performance in this country of the rôle made famous here by the great Chaliapin. It is considered one of his greatest rôles and is one which he has sung many times elsewhere.

Pinza Also to Sing in "Don Giovanni."

A revival of Mozart's "Don Giovanni" on the following Monday night will give the Metropolitan baritone one of his finest parts. With Pinza, the happily returned Virgilio Lazzari, Edith Mason, and Giuseppe Bentonelli the cast is virtually the same as that which appeared at the Salzburg festival last summer.

"Mignon" is scheduled for the night of Tuesday, Nov. 12, with Coe Glade, the only member remaining from the cast of the last "Mignon" performance. In the same opera Rosalinda Morini will make her debut with the company, as will Armand Tokotyan and Leon Rothier, Armenian tenor and French basso respectively. Both of them figured largely in the performances of the lamented Ravinia opera company.

The cast of "Martha" for Wednesday night, Nov. 6, holds out much promise for an enjoyable evening. Edith Mason, Mario Chamlee, Virgilio Lazzari, and Barova will sing the well loved tunes of Thomas' opera and form a quartet hard to better.

Rosa Raisa Appears at Matinee on Nov. 9.

The first matinée performance of Saturday, Nov. 9, will be Rosa Raisa's initial appearance of the season. The opera will be "Cavalleria." It is to be followed by a ballet program by the famous American Ballet, official ballet of the Metropolitan Opera company. An all ballet program will be given by the same ballet company on Saturday night. George Balanchine is the ballet master and choreographer of the organization.

Reservations will continue to be taken up until Oct. 23 at the Chicago City Opera company office, 20 Wacker drive, or by telephone at Randolph 9229.

San Carlo Group Adds Five Operas in Second Week.

Sailing into the second week of opera at the Auditorium with surprising momentum, the San Carlo Opera company will add five additional operas to those already presented, including "Tannhäuser," which has not been given by the Gallo company in Chicago for many years.

Sunday night's bill of the heavenly twins of opera, "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "I Pagliacci," will afford the public an opportunity to hear the new tenor Rolf Gerard in combination with Bianco Saroya in the former, aided by Florence Wylde, Philine Falco, and Stefan Kozakevich, and the new mezza-soprano, Josepha Chekova, Aroldo Lindi, and Kozakevich in the latter.

On Monday night Cyrena Van Gordon will appear in her second guest performance as Delilah, in "Samson and Delilah," a rôle in which she has won wide acclaim both with the Chicago company and the New York Metropolitan. Aroldo Lindi will resume the rôle of Samson.

Goeta Ljungberg Will Sing Elsa in "Tannhaeuser."

The Tuesday night performance of "Tannhäuser," in which Goeta Ljungberg, artist guest from the Metropolitan, will sing the Elsa, is a scheduled part of the Northwestern University Musical Appreciation course. Pasquale Ferrara, the second of Mr. Gallo's new tenors, will sing the Tannhäuser. Mostyn Thomas and the Chicago basso, Howard Preston, will also sing.

"Traviata," with Lucille Meusel, coloratura; Onofrei, Thomas, and Kravitt will be the Wednesday night bill. Thursday night will bring a repetition of Hizi Koyke's "Butterfly," with a new Susuki in Florence Wylde. The rest of the cast will remain the same. The principals in "La Bohême" Friday night are Saroya, Onofrei, Valle, and Kravitt. Lucille Meusel, steadily becoming one of Mr. Gallo's busier sopranos, will sing "Martha" with Bourskaya, Onofrei, and Kozakevich, on Saturday afternoon. Saturday night will bring a repeat of "Aida."

The ballet, headed by Lydia Arlova and Lucien Prideaux, will dance in "Samson and Delilah," "Aida," and "Martha." A special program of divertissements will follow the "Martha" performance.

PRIMA DONNA WITH KNAPP'S ORCHESTRA

Edith Caldwell is the pretty singer of popular songs who is featured with Orville Knapp's orchestra. This organization, new to Chicago, recently began an engagement at the Aragon.

Will Rogers' Daughter.

Mary Rogers, daughter of the late Will Rogers, will play the leading feminine rôle in "Crime Marches On," to be staged in New York on Oct. 23.

SINGING STAR AT CHEZ PAREE

Gertrude Niesen, exotic singer of popular songs, remains as star of the floor show at the Chez Paree, where Phil Harris' orchestra is also featured. This is her first Chicago engagement, after a career in New York cabarets.

'Rose Marie' Revival for Chicago Stage

ALTHOUGH "Rose Marie" was one of the most popular musical productions of the last decade, it will have its first return engagement in Chicago since its original showing in 1925 when it opens an engagement in the Grand Opera house tonight with Roy Cropper, Adele Ardsley, Doris Patston, Fred Hillebrand, Frank Gaby, and Cleo Mayfield in the cast. Ten years ago this operetta by Otto Harbach and Oscar Hammerstein II., with music by Rudolf Friml, opened in the Woods theater. It ran here for thirty-three weeks. Other companies totaled equally long runs in almost every country in the world.

In the company at the Woods theater was Myrtle Schaff in the title rôle. She was succeeded later in the run by Madeline Massey. The original Jim Kenyon was Louis Templeton, and Wanda was played by Sybilla Bowhan. "Skeets" Gallagher, who has since become a motion picture comedian, had the chief rôle of Hardboiled Herman. Arthur Cunningham was Sergeant Malone. Other principal rôles were played by Betty Byron, Alonzo Price, Henry White, George Henderson, and Mabel Knight.

Unlike "The Student Prince," "Desert Song," and other operettas that were long-run hits, "Rose Marie" was not sent out again for a second tour until the present time. It has been a difficult show to cast because of the vocal requirements of the prima donna, who has to sing, among other numbers, the difficult "Indian Love Call."

* * *

The book of "Rose Marie" is by Otto Harbach and Oscar Hammerstein II., who have been associated with many important musical successes, such as "Show Boat," "Sweet Adeline," "Rio Rita," and "The Cat and the Fiddle." Its composer, Rudolf Friml, has written the music for "Vagabond King," "Firefly," "Katinka," "Annina," and many other operettas.

B'way Openings

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Six new theatrical productions will be launched next week. The leading item seems to be "Jumbo," a musical spectacle at the Hippodrome. The announcements:

"Eden End"—Opens Monday at the Masque. A play by J. B. Priestley, involving Estelle Winwood, Edward Irwin, Edgar Norfolk, Alexander Guage, Ruth Vivian.

"Good Men and True"—Opens Tuesday at the Biltmore. A play about the lives of a jury, locked up for a month during a murder trial. Frank Merlin and Brian Marlow wrote it; Martha Sleeper, Donald Foster, Vera Marshe, Dodson Mitchell, and Percy Helton are in the cast.

"Substitute for Murder"—Opens Tuesday at the Ethel Barrymore. William Jourdan Rapp and Leonardo Bercovici wrote this comedy, and Francis Lister, Jessie Royce Landis, Myron McCormick, Tucker McGuire, Robert Sloane, and Ruth Gotes will be in the cast.

"Crime Marches On"—Opens Wednesday evening at the Morosco. A melodramatic farce by Bertrand Robinson and Maxwell Hawkins in which Elisha Cook Jr. plays the part of a poet, and Mary Rogers is the leading woman.

"Mulatto"—Opens Thursday at the Vanderbilt. Langston Hughes, the Negro author, wrote this discussion of the race question. Among the players are Stuart Beebe, Rose McClendon, Frank Jaquet, and Jeanne Green.

"Jumbo"—Opens Saturday at the Hippodrome. Book by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur; words and music by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart.

Priestley Play

J. B. PRIESTLEY'S latest play "Eden End," will soon be produced in New York by Milton Shubert. Heading the cast, practically an all-English one, is Estelle Winwood, who was last seen in "The Distaff Side."

"Eden End" was produced originally at the Duchess theater in London, which is managed by Priestley. The new Priestley play will be Milton Shubert's first production of the new season. Last year he was associated with Gilbert Miller in the presentation of Priestley's comedy, "Laburnum Grove."

Story of West Virginia Bluebeard—Part II

THE STORY SO FAR

Mrs. Asta Eicher, a widow, and her three children, Greta, Harry, and Annabel, have disappeared from their home in Park Ridge, Ill. A few days later a man is discovered puttering around the Eicher house. Questioned by police, he claims to be C. O. Pierson, a friend of Mrs. Eicher. After he, too, disappears the police discover that he is a mail order Romeo who spends his time sending love letters to a list of 155 women, that his real name is Harry F. Powers, and that he lives in Clarksburg, W. Va.

Arrested by the Clarksburg police, Powers is questioned closely. "Where are Mrs. Eicher and her three children?"

By GUY MURCHIE JR.

CHAPTER VI.

Hairpin the First Clew to Murders

"I CAN'T answer that question," replied the chubby-faced man coolly, "without the advice of an attorney."

"Well, then, when is Mrs. Eicher going to return?" persisted the police.

"In due time," said Powers enigmatically, his eyes blinking behind thick glasses. The investigators could get nothing more out of him on this point.

"Are you a suitor to Mrs. Eicher?" was the next question.

"No," was the reply.

"Then what were you doing in her Park Ridge home?"

"I went there just to pack her furniture. She sold her house to a man named Charles S. Rogers from Pittsburgh."

At about this point the police felt forced to embarrass the prisoner by bringing to his attention the batch of 54 juicy love letters recovered from the Eicher garbage can and signed with his alias, "Cornelius O. Pierson," or sometimes plain "Connie."

Although his composure was slightly ruffled in trying to explain this seeming contradiction to his former denial of being a suitor to Mrs. Eicher, Powers said emphatically that he and the widow were "only good friends" and that she looked to him for financial advice. Concerning his trip to Park Ridge he added that he had "seen Mrs. Eicher off on the train for Colorado" and that he returned in several days to start "the children on the trip to be with their mother."

Asked what Mrs. Eicher was going to Colorado for, Powers said he believed she intended to marry Rogers. Further questioning drew no further information or misinformation from Powers, who grew more surly under the relentless third-degree pressure. While the police worked on him, other investigators continued their activity in Park Ridge and in his Clarksburg home.

In Park Ridge were found more letters received by Mrs. Eicher, some of them from matrimonially inclined prospects in other parts of the country. Evidently Mrs. Eicher, in her ambition to find another husband, had communicated with other mail order marriage bureaus.

In Powers' Clarksburg home were found some silverware that had belonged to Mrs. Eicher and some marks that the police said resembled blood stains. By this time Police Chief Johnson of Park Ridge had sworn out warants charging Powers with kidnaping and murder.

The next day investigation continued more energetically than ever. There seemed to be no positive evidence of murder at Powers' home, but at length there came to light an important clew. Someone reported that on a farmsite held in his wife's name at the hamlet of Quiet Dell, W. Va., Powers had erected a small building for his own use. This so-called garage was five miles from Clarksburg, a little distance off a well traveled turnpike.

Wondering why a man should build a garage five miles from home for his own use, the investigators determined to take a trip out there. Without difficulty they located the small building, a one-story frame structure set upon a slope. Pulling up, the men walked to the entrance. As the doors were being opened one of the deputies, kicking idly with his foot in the dust, saw a sight that opened his eyes wide. There on the ground lay something shiny, half hidden in the dirt. It was a hairpin.

"Hey! Look at this!" Others of the men hurried to the spot, and almost immediately three additional hairpins were found.

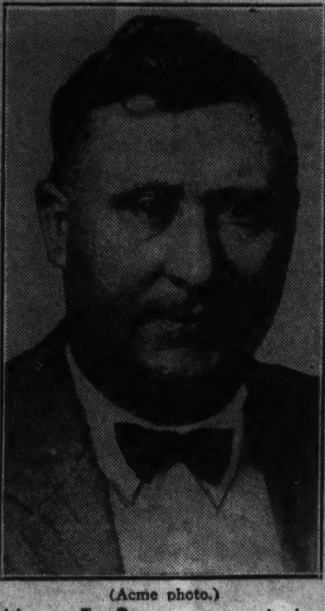
As the doors opened it was observed that here was a strange garage, to say the least. Not only were there no tire marks outside, but there was no sign of oil drippings within, and no tools.

A flashlight turned on the dark corners of the interior brought a gasp from one of the men. Something was dangling from a beam. "Good Lord! It's a noose!" Below the hanging cord seemed to be a division in the floor. On closer inspection it was found to be a trap door. Its position relative to the noose suggested that the two formed a crude gallows—strange equipment for a country garage.

Opening the trap door, the light was flashed downward. There below the garage floor a ladder went down to a cellar. The men clambered down. They saw a door—and another door. Four rooms in all there were, each one pitch dark except for a speck of light coming through a tiny air hole close to the ceiling and just at the level of the ground outside. The doors to the cells—for cells they were—were heavily made, with strong locks. The tiling in the walls was soundproofed and a gas fixture descended from the ceiling of each chamber. But this was not all. There were blood stains in several places, and one of the cells contained two trunks. Beside the trunks on the floor was a little heap of articles, bits of cheap jewelry, small dishes, ribbons. The first trunk contained women's clothes: a dark dress, a jacket, a blouse, a chemise—also papers, dishes, and trinkets. Out of the second trunk was pulled a torn dress which when illuminated by the flashlight revealed a broad blotch of rusty red across the waist. More blood!

The men, a little pale and perspiring from the horrors they had discovered, climbed back to the daylight. They felt scarcely any doubt now as to the tragic fate of Mrs. Eicher and her children. But the question foremost in their minds now was, "Where are the bodies?" Powers must be brought to justice, but without the bodies of his victims it might be impossible to obtain a conviction against him.

Careful search of the premises yielded no more clews. Hoping that sight of the death factory thus uncovered to the light of day might move Powers to confess, the prisoner was brought to the scene. Looking on with cool, unemotional eyes, he muttered something about "isn't it horrible?" but otherwise appeared not particularly concerned.



(Acme photo.)

Harry F. Powers, perpetrator of the honeymoon murders.

Asked for an explanation, he insisted, "I don't know anything about this."

"But where is Mrs. Eicher?" came the much-repeated question.

"Mrs. Eicher went to Colorado," replied Powers confidently. "You'll see. She'll write back one of these days."

While all this was going on a crowd of farmers and curious passersby gathered to watch the policemen in their grisly quest. One farmer told the police how he and a few other farmers were watching Powers one day as he was constructing the queer dungeon rooms in the basement of his "garage." "That's a crazy way to build a garage," observed the farmer.

"This is my building," replied Powers angrily. "I'll make it any way I damn please. Clear out, all of you."

They cleared, but they didn't forget the incident.

Just after this, while they were still looking over the building for clews to the whereabouts of the bodies, the police received the luckiest break yet. A boy among the crowd volunteered the information that weeks before Powers had engaged him to help dig a trench from the building to a little creek near by. "He said it was for drainage purposes," declared the boy.

Chief Duckworth jumped at this new lead. In a few minutes several men were redigging the trench indicated by the boy. The farmers looked on with morbid interest.

CHAPTER VII.

What the Shovels Revealed

PRESENTLY one of the men working down the slope from the "garage" seemed to be sniffing. "Something's down here!" he shouted. A few seconds later his shovel struck something made of burlap. "It's a burlap sack," he said. "Something's in it."

The other men crowded around. "A body," they murmured.

A few minutes later a body had been dragged out of the hole. Wrapped in burlap, it was in a state of partial decomposition. The hands were tied in front and the skull seemed to be broken. It was apparently a woman.

"Mrs. Eicher," whispered the detectives.

Further digging revealed three smaller bodies, evidently the three Eicher children. They were wrapped in white sheets, their hands tied firmly behind their backs. Swelling around their throats indicated that they probably had been strangled to death, and, sure enough, a long rope with a noose at the end was found in the hole near them. Two blood-stained hammers and a bloody wrench also were turned up in the ditch near the woman's body.

Powers witnessed the digging with the same cold, blinking expression. Asked whose bodies they were, he replied: "Find that guy Charles Rogers. He might be able to tell you."

Taken back to the police station, the prisoner was questioned without rest all night. The police were convinced of his guilt, but needed his confession to make it an air-tight case. Ruthlessly they hammered away: "Where is Mrs. Eicher? Whose blood is that in your garage? How did Mrs. Eicher's clothes get there?"—gradually wearing down the man's nervous resistance. At a little after 5 the next morning, according to police, he cracked. "I did it—I killed them all!" he cried. The police made him sign a confession and then he was allowed a few hours' sleep.

Meanwhile the digging went on at the "garage" ditch and the whole investigation went ahead unslackened. It was feared there might be many more bodies still in the ground. This fear appeared to be at least partially confirmed when the shovels struck another body, also of a woman, and apparently buried more recently than the first woman's body, for it was considerably less decomposed.

The mystery of the identity of this second body began to clear a little when the police received word from a Charles Fleming of Northboro, Mass., that his sister-in-law, Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, had left her home there in late July—"about the 28th"—in company with Harry F. Powers.

Questioned further, Fleming told how "courteous" Powers had been during his brief stay in Northboro previous to driving away with Mrs. Lemke. "You couldn't help liking him," he added. "He seemed quite attached to her, but she was a bit reserved with him. She wanted to see the Iowa farm he was talking about before she committed herself. The next day she packed her linen and silver and went away with him."

During the next few weeks the Flemings received two letters which they believed had been written by Mrs. Lemke. The first one, postmarked Unionville, Pa., read:

> Hello, everybody. I am feeling fine physically, but very disappointed with my marriage adventure. We have completely broken up. We had a disagreement, but I guess it was my fault, as I have been telling things that were not true, and they were found out. It made him very mad, so I put a note in the car while he was not there and I simply walked away. It is perhaps all for the best and I am terribly ashamed of it all. I am going to Chicago to try to find employment. I have the name and address of a lady seeking a woman companion. I will write from there. I hope you are all well. DOROTHY.

The second letter, postmarked Chicago and dated Aug. 18, was the last the Flemings heard from their sister. It read:

> Hello, everybody. Here I am again. I thought I would tell you that we will go on our trip the day after tomorrow. We will be gone ten months, and we are going to go through Europe, China, Japan, and other places. I am glad now that I did not get married, for I would have missed all this. I don't think I will ever marry now. Please don't tell anyone of the disastrous outcome of my marriage plans. I feel so ashamed that I do not believe I could ever face anyone around there again. Do not worry if you do not hear from me for a long time, as it's mighty difficult to write. But I will try to find time to at least send you a card once in a while. I will now close with my best wishes and love to all.

"What better letter could have been written," thought Chief Duckworth, "if the writer wanted to prevent the Flemings from worrying when they didn't hear from Mrs. Lemke for a long period? It is an attempt to completely exonerate Powers of any responsibility or knowledge of the whereabouts or fate of Mrs. Lemke. Powers, intending to do away with Mrs. Lemke, had every reason to send off such a letter."

Immediately the chief sent for Mrs. Charles Fleming, Mrs. Lemke's sister, to come to Clarksburg to see if she could identify the body. Meanwhile Powers remained under relentless questioning until he had confessed the murders of all five whose bodies were found, but he insisted there were no more than five and that the police might just as well stop digging. "It's just a waste of their time. They found five bodies. That's all they're going to find there." He smiled when he said that word "there," but he refused to say anything more about that.

CHAPTER VIII.

Always a Gentleman with Ladies

POWERS insisted he killed them all the same night. Affirming that he was "always a gentleman" in handling the ladies, he told how he went, about July 28,

(Associated Press photo.)

Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, one of Powers' victims.

"to the house of Mrs. Lemke's sister, a Mrs. Fleming, and took Mrs. Lemke to a hotel in some Pennsylvania town. I think it was Uniontown. I left her there that night. The next day I called for her and drove her to Fairmont. I met the Eichers in Fairmont, near the depot. It was in the middle of the afternoon. We drove to Clarksburg."

Reminded that his car had no rumble seat, he was disturbed for a moment. Then he said quickly: "My car has a big back well for tools and things. I packed the three kids in there; the women squeezed in front with me."

Continuing, he told how he arrived at the "garage" and invited them all down for a "snack" after their drive. When he got them into the cellar he separated them. Annabel and Harry, the two younger Eicher children, aged 12 and 9, were locked in one of the cells; Mrs. Eicher in a second, Greta in a third, and Mrs. Lemke in the fourth.

Confronted with the coroner's statement that the victims must have been starved, for food had not been in their stomachs for at least three days before their deaths, Powers declared: "That's all wrong about my starving them. I wouldn't do a thing like that. I brought food down to them. Of course, I don't know whether or not they ate."

Then he went into a grewsome description of how "late that night I did it. I killed Mrs. Eicher first, then the two younger kids. There was no fight." At one point Powers said he was letting "little Harry Eicher watch the killing of his mother and the others, but in the middle of it he let out an awful scream. I was worried the neighbors would hear him, so I picked up a hammer and let him have it." At the end he said: "Sure, I stayed with the bodies a while. Then went out and buried them."

This calm recital, together with the weird and twisted pattern of his doings with dozens of women, led the investigators to believe that his motive was something far more sinister than mere money. Yet this seemed impossible to prove because of the decomposition of the remains.

Digging for bodies of murder victims near the wall of Powers' death garage five miles out from the town of Clarksburg. It was near this spot that the bodies actually were found.

The coroner said he could not be sure whether the women had been mistreated either before or after death. The bodies of the three children and of Mrs. Lemke were fully clothed when dug up, but Mrs. Eicher's body was clad only in a thin underslip.

Some evidence of Powers' morbid, or at least distorted, turn of mind, however, was indicated by a letter from him found in Mrs. Lemke's trunk. The letter began:

> Dear Mrs. Lemke: As I have a little spare time, I will spend it by writing a few lines. I want to say that I was very much impressed with your appearance when we met yesterday. You are certainly a well preserved woman for your age. . . .

Soon referring to a "Dr. Robie's book" which he had sent her, he said: "I believe after reading that chapter on the 'art of love' you will find the methods therein described far different from what you experienced in your marriage." He then referred to other books containing "specific physiological directions," offering to help her understand words that were new to her.

After further discourse he made a plea for promiscuous sex experiences by all women before they are 25 years old, whether or not they are married, accompanied by high-sounding theories about this experience developing the maternal instinct in the women. Going on from there, he wrote: "When you have read some of these books and know a little more about sex I would like to suggest that we exchange our sex histories." Here Powers alluded to some of the most degenerate types of perversions, and concluded: "I am sure that after you have read the books I loaned you you will see in the sex relationship something beautiful and wholesome. I will say by-by for this time. A. C. M." (Powers was using the alias "A. C. Morris" at the time.)

CHAPTER IX.

Letters and More Letters from Women

AS THE investigation continued and the state of West Virginia rapidly built up its case, letters addressed to "Cornelius O. Pierson" kept on arriving at the Clarksburg postoffice, most of them, ironically enough, from women who still believed themselves fiancées of a handsome young civil engineer with $150,000 and a large income. One was from a Bessie Storrs of Olean, N. Y., who expected "Connie" Pierson to arrive the next day to marry her. She told him how delighted she was at the prospect of seeing him so soon and how all the "nervous tension" she had gone through during the course of their mail order wooing had disappeared now that she knew she would see him so soon. The next week, according to the passionate promises described in the letters, Powers had promised to go to Hagerstown, Md., to marry Virginia D. Bell; and ten days after that he was expected by Pearl D. Simpson in Detroit. The man had outlined for himself a new elopement every week, seemingly with the idea of bringing his doting fiancées one by one to the "garage" for a "snack" in the basement, burying them afterward in the soft earth near by.

On Dec. 7, 1931, the Powers murder trial began. The place chosen was Moore's Opera house in Clarksburg. Despite all precautions to prevent the proceedings from becoming a "spectacle," interest ran high for miles around. On street corners boys hawked pamphlets and bound books describing the "love secrets of West Virginia's Bluebeard."

The first witness for the state, Chief Duckworth, told of finding the bodies at the Quiet Dell "garage," and he produced an umbrella, blue straw hat, dress taken from Mrs. Lemke's body, and shoes, all of which he said were found at the grave. After the coroner had testified to the condition of the bodies, and Mrs. Fleming had identified her sister's clothes and told of her identification of the body itself, the state was about satisfied in its main contention that Powers was the murderer of Mrs. Lemke. No effort was made to prove the other murders, it being considered Mrs. Lemke's murder was easier to prove, due to the better condition of the body and that that murder alone would be sufficient to send Powers to the gallows. Among other points the state contended that Powers had built his dungeon "garage" for the sole purpose of executing his mail order fiancées, and one of a large collection of exhibits was a gas mask found under a corner of a house owned by Powers' wife and sister-in-tion, during the second half of the nineteenth century. Italy was just taking its place among the nations of the world as a unified country. For centuries the land now ruled by Mussolini had been a collection of kingdoms, papal states, protectorates, and duchies.

During the years from 1859 to 1870, when Italy itself was throwing off the yoke of foreign domination, the other powers of Europe were beginning the scramble for African territory. By the time Italy had attained the stature of a first class power, in the years just preceding the World war, all but a very small portion of Africa had been gobbled up.

With the exceptions of the acquisition by Great Britain and France of the former German colonies, and the modest acquisitions of Italy, the partitions of Africa are today about as they were at the beginning of the 20th century. Egypt has been given nominal independence by Great Britain, but that country still is considered within the British sphere of influence, and the vast Anglo-Egyptian Sudan is considered as a British dependency.

The Sudan, through which flows the Blue Nile, with headwaters in Ethiopia, may be considered as Britain's principal stake in the Italian-Ethiopian quarrel. Lake Tana in Ethiopia, from which the Blue Nile flows, is the focal point of British interest. Great Britain is uneasy about the prospect of Italian control of the Blue Nile's headwaters. That may be the chief reason why Britain today disputes Mussolini's claim of right to extend the Italian sphere of influence over Ethiopia. The claim dates back to 1889.

In that year the Emperor Menelik II., with Italian assistance, united Ethiopia into a nation and signed a treaty which the Italians interpreted as giving Italy a protectorate over Ethiopia. Later Menelik repudiated the treaty. Tension developed and in 1896 an Italian army was sent into Ethiopia to enforce what Italy considered her treaty rights.

The expedition proved disastrous for Italy. At Adowa on March 1, 1896, the Italian army was defeated by fierce Ethiopian tribesmen, who slaughtered thousands of Italians. This overwhelming defeat led to a treaty by which Italy recognized the complete independence of Ethiopia, a treaty which Italy, now, is inclined to repudiate. Since then, however, there have been further developments affecting more directly Italian-Ethiopian relations.

Following the world war Italy, which had been given certain promises in regard to Africa by Britain and France, was left out in the cold in the division of the spoils. Italy received from the allies a strip of not particularly valuable land on the northeast coast as an addition to Italian Somaliland, bordered by British Somaliland on the north and Ethiopia on the west.

In 1928 the Fascist government of Italy completed negotiations with the head of the Ethiopian government, the regent Ras Tafari, who later became Emperor Haile Selassie I. A treaty providing for friendship, nonaggression, and conceding to Italy certain rights of exploitation, was entered into. Previously Italy, against the objections of Great Britain, had sponsored Ethiopia's membership in the league of nations.

The 1928 treaty, however, did not fully cement relations between the two countries. The Italians have viewed with resentment increasing trade between Ethiopia, France, and Great Britain. The Ethiopians, on the other hand, have long been suspicious of the intentions of Italy. Tension developed until border clashes between Ethiopians and Italian Somalis were seized upon by Mussolini as adequate reasons for war.

Modern Fascist legions advancing in Africa have been compared with the legions of ancient Rome, who once ruled most of the continent then known to white men. The spread of Roman control over Africa followed the capture of Carthage in 146 B. C. Roman rule of Africa continued absolute until the Arab invasion of the seventh century. That the Romans did not extend their African influence farther inland was due to their inability to penetrate the great desert. The Arabs, who crossed the desert on camels, were stopped from penetration of the interior by jungles.

The final subjugation of Africa did not occur until comparatively modern times and Italy, which did not reach the stature of a first rate power until the twentieth century, played only a minor rôle in this modern conquest.

Italy's largest African holding, Libya, was acquired as the result of the war with Turkey in 1911. This war resulted from Turkish interference with expanding Italian trade in Turkish Tripoli.

Since then the only additions to Italian territory in Africa have been the minor land concessions offered by France and Britain following the World war. With the exception of Libya, the other Italian possessions, Eritrea and Italian Somaliland, are hardly more than narrow stretches of sun baked sand.

Mussolini has little basis for hope that acquisition of Ethiopia will put Italy in a position to reap more than a small fraction of the profits already taken out of Africa by Britain, France, and the other important European property holders.

Britain controls the vast, rich, and fertile Union of South Africa, from which comes a large portion of the world's gold and other mineral wealth. Her other dependencies, the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Kenya, Tanganyika, Nigeria, and the smaller sections also have vast resources. The African territory of France, while including vast stretches of desert, also is of great commercial importance.

Belgium, possessing the rich Congo of central Africa, continues to derive a huge income from rubber and other tropical production. Another section controled by Belgium, Katanga, is one of the world's largest producers of copper. The value of the yield already is 300 million dollars.

Even the comparatively modest holdings of Portugal are far richer than any of the territory which Italy now controls. The Portuguese colonies of Angola and Mozambique are rich in natural resources.

Spain, once the dominant power in Africa and the world, is but a minor holder of property in Africa.

In the beginning huge tracts of African territory were claimed for various European nations by explorers. A notable example was Cecil Rhodes, whose explorations in Africa gave to Great Britain its greatest claims to the continent.

Following the various and often conflicting claims of the explorers came clashes with the native inhabitants of the country and these clashes often assumed the proportions of serious wars. One of the fiercest conflicts fought on African soil was the British campaign against the Zulus in 1879.

The British claims to South Africa originated when Britain aided Dutch settlers to colonize. The claim was not proved, however, until another fierce war had been fought. This was the Boer war of 1899.

In northern Africa many conflicts have occurred between soldiers of European nations and natives. France is obliged to keep a large army at all times in Africa and outbreaks of warfare in Morocco have been intermittent.

Britain in the north has had many serious clashes, the most recent prior to the world war, perhaps, being Kichener's defeat of the dervishes at Khartoum.

Powers' Honeymoon Murders!

The Story of a Bluebeard's Crimes

law in Clarksburg. It was charged that he intended to use the mask in his "garage" work. Though there were no gas fixtures on the main floor of the building, the four cells below were fully equipped.

Other bits of evidence against the defendant was the testimony of a bank cashier that "Powers deposited $1,760, all in twenty-dollar bills, and later $2,000," shortly before his arrest. Two bank employés from Uniontown, Pa., identified Powers as the "Charles Weaver" who cashed two checks for similar amounts drawn on the account of Mrs. Lemke during her ride with him from Northboro, Mass., to Quiet Dell, W. Va., a few days earlier.

Then Charles Wine, a local farmer, testified that Powers had approached him during the latter part of August and asked him to sow rye near the "garage." He also asked him to build up the land with soil, which would have completely hidden the shallow graves. As a matter of fact, the bodies were discovered only three days before Wine was prepared to begin his task.

Powers' confession was repudiated by him on the ground that he was "dazed" and did not know what he was doing as a result of "beatings inflicted by officers." The defense further sent a special request to President Hoover to launch an "investigation into the methods used in obtaining a confession from Harry F. Powers."

Another defense move was the blaming of the murders on the mysterious "Charles S. Rogers," whom Powers described as "Mrs. Eicher's suitor." It was reported on Oct. 28 that "a letter signed Charles Rogers and addressed to Powers was received in Clarksburg. It bore the postmark of a Massachusetts city." But nothing came of it afterward, and the defense considered turning to its last resort, a plea of insanity. At the last minute, however, the swanky, chubby defendant, perhaps too proud to let himself be called insane, decided to blame Mrs. Lemke's murder on a mysterious "Cecil Johnson" who he claimed had a pass key to the Quiet Dell "garage" and with whom he declared he last saw the woman in Uniontown, Pa. Powers even produced a letter purporting to be from Mrs. Lemke in which she apologized for deserting him in Uniontown.

But this desperate alibi was easily rebutted by Mrs. Fleming's declaration that the handwriting in the note was not her sister's.

At the close of the trial the jury, after a discussion lasting only an hour and forty-nine minutes, returned a verdict of guilty of first degree murder, which, being accompanied by no recommendation, made the death sentence mandatory.

CHAPTER X.

The End of a Wily Bluebeard

WHILE it appeared now that Powers' fate was sealed, discussion of new angles to the case went on as before, and there was much speculation not only as to the exact motives and methods of the killer but as to who and how many other victims there might be. Possible other victims included Powers' only Clarksburg chum, Stamatias Sfikdas, the shoe shiner, whose body, showing that he had been murdered, was found several months after he disapeared in an isolated spot one mile from Pinninnick mine, near Clarksburg. A Mrs. Anna Purcell, who disappeared from Park Ridge, Ill., with several thousand dollars in her purse after having been in correspondence with an unidentified man with the object of matrimony, possibly may have been a victim of Powers, as also might several other vanished women suspected of having had correspondence with Powers. Even a convict named McCluskey, incarcerated in a Florida prison camp, wrote to the Clarksburg police saying, "I can prove that he was connected with the Baker murder in Washington, D. C."

Numerous other letters received by the police involved Powers with potential victims in many states, and an angle of the case felt by many to have been given insufficient attention by the authorities was the part played by Mrs. Luella Strothers Powers, the murderer's legal wife. Not only was Mrs. Powers accused by more than one woman of having acted as a decoy for Powers during his matrimonial expeditions into Illinois and other states, but Sherif Wilford B. Grimm, who searched the Powers house where she lived, found there a large quantity of clothing, furs, jewelry, silverware, and household effects identified as belonging to Mrs. Eicher and Mrs. Lemke. It took two truck loads to cart the stuff away, yet, confronted with this fact, Mrs. Powers continued to deny knowing anything of her husband's career of seduction and murder. She stammered that she had been in poor health for the last two weeks and so had not noticed the presence of this huge amount of someone else's property in her home.

Unimpressed by her excuses, the sherif said: "The finding of these articles in the house shows with absolute certainty that Mrs. Powers had at least guilty knowledge of the Eicher murders, if she didn't assist in carrying them out." Yet Mrs. Powers was never brought to trial for her part in the case and remains to this day unmolested.

In delving into Powers' early record, trying to ascertain what sort of upbringing he had and how he happened to develop into the smooth-tongued demon he was, the investigators came across the fact that under the alias of Joseph Gildeau, Powers had been jailed at Chicago Heights, Ill., in 1925 on the charge of swindling a woman through a matrimonial agency of nearly $5,000. Again, according to police, he had served a jail term in Mansfield, O., and under the name of Herman Drenth had served a term in the Wisconsin penitentiary in 1921 and 1922 for burglary.

Checking up on his various names, it was finally discovered that Herman Drenth and Harm Drenth, a former farmer boy from northeastern Iowa, were one and the same. In other words, Harry Powers was really the son of a Dutch farmer who migrated to America about 1910. William Drenth, the immigrant farmer, then 68 years old, admitted when questioned that he believed Powers to be his son, Harm. He added that he had sent his son to America from Holland to cure him of drinking, which, he said, was his worst fault. "Harm was a bad boy," continued the old Dutchman, "but he didn't like the girls."

One pertinent slant on the sort of training that Powers had given himself in preparing for his career was the revelation that he had read closely the history of the Landru murders in France in 1923.

Henri Landru, the Bluebeard of France, was perhaps the most famous wholesale murderer of recent times. Making love to nearly 300 women, he successfully lured ten of them to their deaths in his villa before setting about securing their property. Landru, a perfect model for Powers, died on the guillotine.

Cold and unemotional to the last, Powers not only ate a hearty chicken dinner just after he heard his own death sentence, but he stood cold-eyed and unmoved on the gallows even as the rope was being adjusted to his flabby neck.

The day after his execution the contents of his last confession, made shortly before his death, were released by prison officials. Powers' account of the murders, not to be taken without a grain of salt, probably is valuable chiefly as an indication of how the unbalanced man wanted the public to think of him. Between the lines of his seemingly frank confession can be read much of conscious self-admiration. Perhaps he was thinking of his hero, Landru, at the time.

"When I got her in the room," read the confession, "I locked the door and told her I was going to ask her certain intimate questions about her mode of living. Mrs. Lemke smiled at first, but later became alarmed and asked me to let her go. I told her to keep quiet and directed her to stand up. With the dim light behind me I gazed intently into her frightened eyes and held her spellbound.

"I told her I was her master and she would have to follow my orders. She closed her eyes and whispered that she was my slave and stood awaiting my commands.

"First I took her across my lap and administered a severe beating. I seemed to possess superhuman strength, and again and again I beat her until she was a mass of bruises. Under my hypnotic gaze she had no will of her own and did not cry out.

"I produced pen and paper and had her make out two checks in my favor. Then I informed her that I would release her after tying her hands and blindfolding her so that she couldn't lead the police to the garage.

"Blindfolded and her hands tied behind her back, I directed her to rise. Swiftly I drew a thin rope from my pocket, tied it around her neck, and strangled her.

"A few days later I visited Mrs. Eicher at Park Ridge, and after spending some time at her home I drove back with her to the garage. I placed her under a hypnotic spell and strangled and buried her.

"She, too, submitted quietly to beatings and willingly wrote a letter authorizing me to take charge of her children. When I had the three of them together I exerted my hypnotic powers and soon convinced them I was their master. I beat the little girl severely while her older sister and brother looked on in silence.

"Somehow, after a while, the boy broke the spell and, while I was busy chastising his sisters, ran upstairs into the locked garage. When he began to shout for help I picked up a mechanic's hammer and struck him a blow on the head. He dropped, but was still alive. Again I wielded the heavy hammer and broke his skull.

"I ran downstairs, where the two girls were locked in one of the rooms. I took the smallest into another room, and, after beating her, I strangled her. Then I took her body and laid it alongside of the boy's. Then I killed the other child."

Get 8 Ounces of Good Neuritis Prescription From Your Druggist

Excess uric acid in the body causes or aggravates neuritis — rheumatism and sciatica. So if you have any of these painful troubles and it is caused by excess uric acid just stop worrying and ask your druggist for 8 ounces of Allenru prescription today.

Twenty-four hours after you take the first dose of this supremely good prescription—excess uric acid will be on its way out—that's how fast it works—in 48 hours the pain and inflammation have usually departed — that's the kind of real medicine you need—swift and safe prescription Allenru—8 ounces costs 85 cents or less.

Note: If you prefer Allenru prescription in small capsule form your druggist can supply you.

End Bad Cough Quickly, at One Fourth the Cost

Home-Mixed! No Cooking! Easy!

Millions of housewives have found that, by mixing their own cough medicine, they get a much more effective remedy. They use a recipe which costs only one-fourth as much as ready-made medicine, but which really has no equal for breaking up distressing coughs.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. The syrup is easily made with 2 cups sugar and one cup water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and makes the most effective remedy that money could buy. Keeps perfectly, and children love its taste.

Its quick action in loosening the phlegm, helping clear the air passages, and soothing away the irritation, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

Pinex is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its soothing effect on throat membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

PINEX for Coughs

Kidneys Must Purify Blood

To Bring Vitality, Clear Skin and Youthful Looks

Women Need Help More Often Than Men

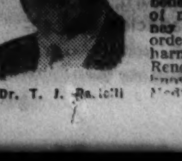
The only way your body can clean out Acids and poisonous wastes from your blood is through 9 million tiny, delicate Kidney tubes or filters. If, because of functional troubles, your kidneys get tired or slow down in their work, these poisons remain in the system and make your eyes look dull and your skin coarse and dry, and at the same time you find yourself all Tired Out, Nervous, and unable to keep up with the speed of modern life.

Functional Kidney troubles also may cause much more serious and disagreeable symptoms, such as Getting Up Nights, Leg Pains, Backache, Circles Under Eyes, Dizziness, Rheumatic Pains, Acidity, Burning, Smarting, and Itching.

Any Doctor can tell you that the speed of modern life and present day foods throw an extra heavy load on the Kidneys and that most people need help from time to time if they are to feel their best and preserve their youthful appearance. Fortunately, for sufferers, it is easy to help functional Kidney Troubles with the Doctor's guaranteed prescription Cystex, which now is available at all drug stores under a positive guarantee to satisfy completely or cost nothing.

Doctors Praise Cystex

Doctor T. J. Rastelli, famous Doctor, Surgeon, and Scientist of London, says: "Cystex is one of the finest remedies I have ever known in my medical practice. Any Doctor will recommend it for its definite benefit in the treatment of many functional Kidney and Bladder disorders. It is safe and harmless." And Dr. C. Z. Rendelle, another widely known Physician and Medical Examiner of San Francisco, recently said, "Since the Kidneys purify the blood, the poisons collect in these organs and must be promptly flushed from the system, otherwise they re-enter the blood stream and create a toxic condition. I can truthfully recommend the use of Cystex."



Dr. T. J. Rastelli

World-Wide Success

Cystex is not an experiment, but is a proven success in 31 different countries throughout the world. It is prepared with scientific accuracy in accordance with the strict and rigid standards of the United States Laboratory and the United States Pharmacopoeia and, being designed especially to act in the Kidneys and Bladder, is swift and safe in action. Most users report a remarkable improvement in 48 hours and complete satisfaction in 8 days.

Guaranteed to Work

Because of its unusual success, Cystex is offered under an unlimited guarantee to do the work to your complete satisfaction in 8 days, or money back on return of empty package. Under this unlimited guarantee you can put Cystex to the test and see exactly what it can do in your particular case. You must feel younger, stronger, and better than you have in a long time—you must feel that Cystex has done the work to your complete satisfaction or you merely return the empty package and it costs you nothing. You are the sole judge of your own satisfaction. Cystex costs only 3c a dose at druggists, and, as the guarantee protects you fully, you should not take chances with cheap, inferior, or irritating drugs, or delay. Ask your druggist for guaranteed Cystex (pronounced Siss-Tex) today.

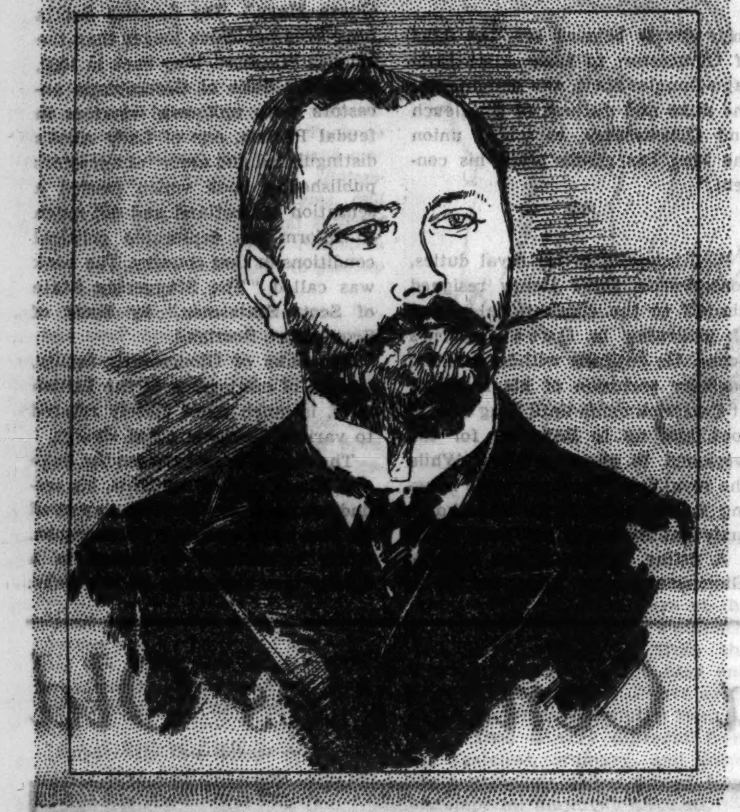
MILESTONES IN MAN'S WAR ON SYPHILIS

Review of 442-Year War on Destructive Disease

This is the last article of a series of three on the subject of syphilis. In the first article were presented a history of the spread of the disease and a discussion of its prevalence in America. The second article described syphilis and its effects on mankind. Herewith is given a brief review of what science has done and is doing to combat the disease with which millions are infected.

By JOHN A. MENAUGH



Fritz Schaudinn, who, with Erich Hoffman, isolated the parasitic organism causing syphilis.

IT IS a matter entirely of viewpoint as to which was the more important discovery, that made by Christopher Columbus when he first sighted the Bahamas or that of Fritz Schaudinn and Erich Hoffman when they first isolated microscopic organisms of the kind that Columbus' sailors carried back to Europe from Haiti to spread destruction throughout the civilized world.

Everyone knows who Columbus was. Histories have made sure of that. To learn anything, however, about Schaudinn or Hoffman, discoverers of the causative agent of syphilis, one must resort to medical books or other scientific volumes. A monumental reference work such as the Encyclopedia Britannica barely mentions Schaudinn, and not in specific connection with his great discovery of the spirochetes of syphilis, and fails to name at all his colleague, Hoffman.

So it goes. As a rule the remarkable men of science, in many cases unselfish in their quest for knowledge to benefit man, get brief consideration, if any, at the hands of the typical historians. Not rarely this or that man of science has saved more lives than some despotic warrior king or imitation Cæsar has been able to destroy to safeguard a tottering throne or flatter an overdeveloped ego. General histories and reference works bulge with information about earls, dukes, and kings—sometimes syphilitic kings.

The story of man's war on syphilis, with men of science always in the van, is the story of an uphill fight from darkness into light waged over a period of 442 years. Syphilis, as pointed out in a previous article, entered Europe in 1493 with the return of Columbus' crew after the famous navigator's first voyage of discovery. From that time until the present, minds among the best in the worlds of science and medicine have been employed in seeking ways to combat the dread scourge.

It has been of comparatively recent date that scientific knowledge in the uphill fight finally has emerged from the shadows. Now there are treatments for the disease that are guaranteed to halt it and cure it. It may not be possible ever to eradicate it completely, but with full coöperation on the part of the general public the time may come when it can be kept under control, as smallpox is curbed by vaccination and typhoid by vaccine inoculation.

When syphilis first struck Europe back in the fifteenth century it raged like wildfire through a race highly vulnerable to its attack. The minute spirochetes of the disease found human bodies totally lacking in resistance to their onslaughts. Syphilis in its first wave grew to epidemic proportions, then to pandemic. Ever since that time it has been the constant unwelcome companion of man, spreading in a terrible manner, receding, spreading, infecting millions, and taking an unestimable toll of lives.

Europe's physicians of the fifteenth century found syphilis a complete mystery. They did not know how it was transmitted. They attributed it to the eating of lizards' flesh, to conversation in public places, to ordinary contagion, and to what not, failing completely to hit upon the true nature of its spread. Their attempts at combating it, of course, were futile. The practice of medicine in that early day, it should be borne in mind, involved a working knowledge of witchcraft and the making of charms.

As early as 1496 Albert Dürer wrote a booklet on the subject of syphilis, describing its symptoms as they were recognized at that time. A year later authorities of Paris, recognizing the danger in syphilis but not knowing how to check it, caused all infected persons to be segregated in an isolated part of the city. In 1497 or 1498 Bartholomew Steber wrote a treatise on syphilis, though he could not have called the disease by that name, since it was from the poem of Girolamo Fracastoro, "Syphilis sive Morbus Gallicus," published in 1530, that the name syphilis was derived. Fracastoro was a celebrated astronomer, physician, and poet of Verona. He described the symptoms of the disease with accuracy in his poem.

The sixteenth century found knowledge of syphilis beginning to blossom. Theophrastus Bombast von Hohenheim, a famous German physician better known as Paracelsus, is credited with hitting upon the idea in 1568 of treating syphilis externally with mercury. Mercury even at that time was a specific for certain diseases of the skin. And syphilis was looked upon as a skin disease. In this connection it might be mentioned that mercury in one form or another was one of the leading, if not the leading, remedy employed in treating syphilis up until the development of more reliable drugs in very recent times.

It is impossible in an article of this length to tell the whole story of man's war on syphilis or even begin to mention all of the men who have had important rôles therein. Only a certain few of the most important milestones in the advance of science in this connection from darkness into light can be noted here. There was Jean Fernel, who was born in 1506 and who died in 1588, who made the valuable discovery that the virus of syphilis would not pass through unbroken skin and who traced the progress of the disease from the first ulcer to general infection. And there was Ambroise Paré (1510-1590), famous Huguenot physician, who made several important discoveries relative to the disease. Students can find plenty of information about Paré in history books, but most of it concerns his political activities during the religious wars of France.

The seventeenth century saw rather slow progress in the advance toward conquest of syphilis. Perhaps one of the most notable discoveries of that century was that of Colle and Musitano, who found that the disease could be transmitted by kissing and through use of a common drinking cup.

In 1718 Palfey (not mentioned in standard books of reference) established the certainty of indirect transmission of syphilis, confirming the discoveries of Colle, Musitano, Horst, and others, and broadening greatly the scientific world's knowledge of the disease. Jean Astruc's book "De Morbis Venereis," published in 1736, was the most complete work of its kind up to that date. It summarized all knowledge of the subject that had been acquired in 243 years. More and more men of science appeared in the picture as the years went on. Then came John Hunter, famous English physician of the eighteenth century. His claim was that syphilis and another disease involving the question of sex were caused by the same virus. His theory was that this virus produced syphilis if the skin was infected and the other disease if mucous surfaces of the body were infected—an absolutely erroneous theory, as later discoveries have proved. Hunter in 1767 deliberately inoculated his skin with pus taken from a case of the other disease, and consequently developed a case of syphilis. Possibility of the two infections prevailing at the same time in the subject from whom he had taken the virus was what he had overlooked. He suffered greatly in his later life from the disease which he unintentionally had planted in his system.

It was Philippe Ricord, an American-born physician who studied medicine and practiced his profession in France, who finally overthrew Hunter's theory some time between 1831 and 1860, probably about the year 1838. Ricord's greatest contributions to the war on syphilis were his reestablishment of the specific character of the disease and his analysis of its three stages—primary, secondary, and tertiary. He laid the foundation of the present medical profession's knowledge of syphilis.

William Wallace, working in Dublin, in 1835 established the contagiousness of secondary lesions of syphilis, and about the same time introduced the use of potassium iodide in treatment of the disease. In all of this time and in the time gone before, it is important to remember, no one knew just what caused syphilis. No one ever had seen the elusive parasitic organisms that caused such wholesale misery and destruction.

In 1868 Louis Pasteur, one of the outstanding men of science, discovered that bacteria were the cause of the disease. That set other scientific men to searching for the mysterious cause of syphilis. They finally found it—the Spirochæta pallida, a protozoan (minute animal) instead of a bacterium (minute plant)—but that is getting ahead of the story.

Edwin Klebs in 1875 to 1877 inoculated apes with syphilis, but was unable to prevail upon the scientific world to recognize his achievement. In 1894 Alfred Fournier established the importance of syphilis as the cause of degenerative diseases. In 1903 the Russian Ilya Metchnikoff and the Frenchman Pierre Roux demonstrated that syphilis was inoculable in apes. Three years later the two announced as a result of their experiments on animals that syphilis could be prevented with reasonable certainty by the prompt use of a 33 per cent calomel (mercurous chloride) ointment in the region of possible infection. This first successful prophylaxis—successful as regards apes—was tried on man, a young medical student who submitted to experimental inoculation, and the subject of the test did not develop syphilis.

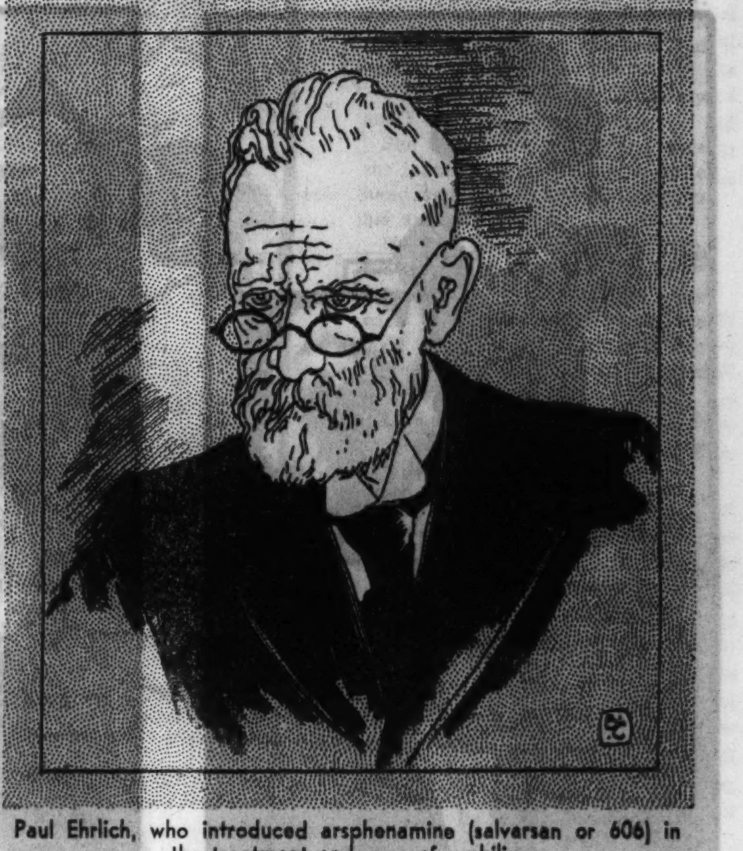
Fritz Schaudinn and Erich Hoffman (sometimes spelled Hoffmann) in 1905, just thirty years ago, isolated the tiny spiral organism that causes syphilis, and gave it the name Spirochœta pallida.

In the course of the next two years August von Wassermann, a German professor of medicine, and two colleagues, Neisser and Bruck, developed the first practical test for syphilis, which has come to be known as the Wassermann reaction.

In 1909 and 1910 Paul Ehrlich, German bacteriologist, introduced the drug arsphenamine, which he had hoped would produce a complete sterilization of syphilis in a single dose. It failed to accomplish this, but finally was accepted by Ehrlich as the most favorable of all compounds that he had studied. No drug approaching it in value in the treatment of acute phases of the disease has been discovered since, though a number of other compounds have been perfected that are better adapted for the treatment of certain manifestations of syphilis and have little poisonous effects upon the subjects treated. Ehrlich called his cure for syphilis salvarsan, or 606, the last from the fact that it was the 606th compound that he had studied. The substance was placed on the market in vacuum-sealed ampules, and amazing clinical effects were reported at once. Many cases of the disease, marked by most distressing lesions and which had been treated with mercury and iodides, yielded immediately to arsphenamine. It soon was discovered, however, that a single dose was not sufficient in a majority of cases to bring about a cure, and that in nearly every case great persistence was necessary before salvarsan could completely destroy the spirochetes in the patient's system. Arrphenamine is soluble in water, but because of its acidity is unusable in this form. Four equivalents of caustic soda must be added before it is ready to be injected into the vein in the form of a disodium salt. To inject the unneutralized form into a vein would mean instant death for the subject.

With the whole world elated as the result of the introduction of a true specific for syphilis—this arsenic compound of Ehrlich's, called variously arsphenamine, salvarsan, or 606,—Ehrlich himself and other scientists continued their studies in the war against the disease.

In 1911 Hideyo Noguchi, Japanese bacteriologist, announced that he had been able to grow spirochetes of syphilis in his laboratory and that he also had been able to cause the disease in animals with his spirochete cultures. Noguchi's great contributions to science involved a study of the causative agents of a number of fatal diseases. In 1918 he discovered the parasite that causes yellow fever, and ten years later he died in Africa as the result of contracting yellow fever while carrying on his experiments.



Paul Ehrlich, who introduced arsphenamine (salvarsan or 606) in the treatment and cure of syphilis.

An important improvement in arsphenamine is a drug known as neoarsphenamine, also produced by Ehrlich. It is considerably more convenient for the physician administering it, as it is unnecessary to neutralize the compound prior to injection. The contents of the ampule simply are dissolved in distilled water and injected directly into the vein. Neoarsphenamine can be given in a more concentrated form than arsphenamine. It has certain advantages over arsphenamine and some disadvantages. Most important of the advantages is that it is less toxic (poisonous) and therefore less likely to produce severe reactions. It is more unstable chemically, however, than arsphenamine.

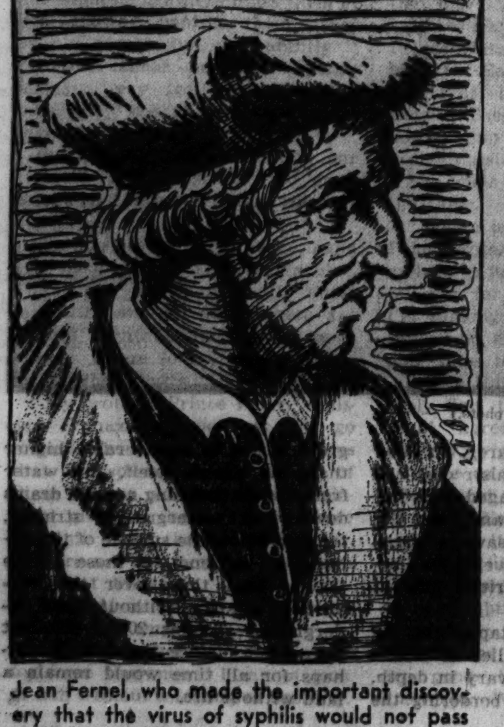
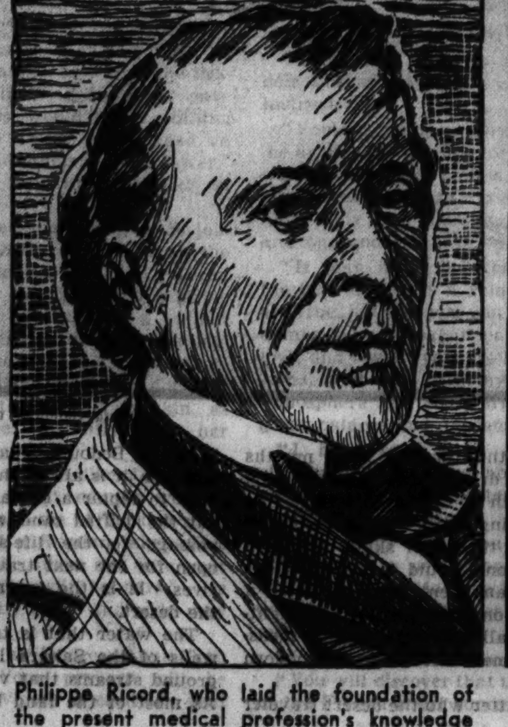
Another drug used in combating syphilis is sulpharsphenamine, a derivative of neoarsphenamine. This product, although similar chemically to neoarsphenamine, differs from it in its biological effects and is said to have certain advantages over it in the treatment of syphilitic lesions. Stovarsol, an acetyl derivative of the arsonic acid corresponding to arsphenamine, is another compound used in the treatment of syphilis. In fact, there are a number of drugs that have been developed within very recent years for the treatment and cure of the disease, each having its particular place in science's war on syphilis. For arresting general paresis, that stage of syphilis in which the brain is affected, physicians have employed with considerable success a fever set up by infection with malaria or typhoid.

No review of man's battle against syphilis would be complete without some mention of the gratifying expansion of the battlefield. In the United States, for instance, there are approximately 700 clinics and dispensaries where syphilis is treated gratuitously or at a nominal cost to the patients. In these clinics alone the number of patients averages a million yearly. In Chicago the person infected with syphilis has his choice of going to a physician, a specialist in venereal diseases, the Municipal Social Hygiene clinic, an out-patient department of one of the many hospitals in the city, a clinic of one of the medical schools, the Illinois Social Hygiene league, or the Public Health institute. Clinics mentioned above are operated at no profit by established philanthropies or by groups of public-spirited citizens.

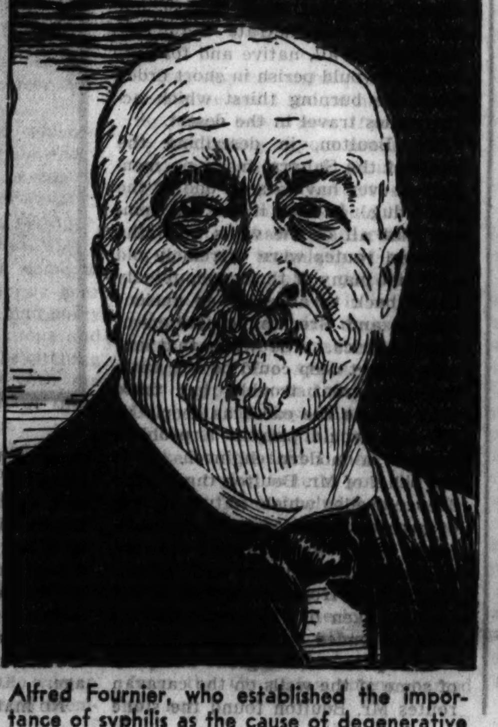
Quite as important, perhaps, as the establishment of numerous clinics for the treatment of the disease are the campaigns being carried on by various institutions and groups for the spread of public knowledge concerning syphilis. It is to public coöperation, after all, that science must look in its efforts to reduce to a satisfying degree the prevalence of syphilis.



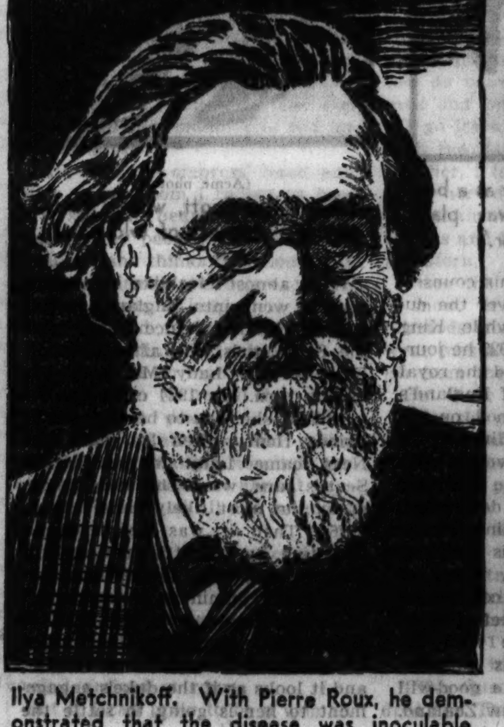
Jean Fernel, who made the important discovery that the virus of syphilis would not pass through a normal skin.



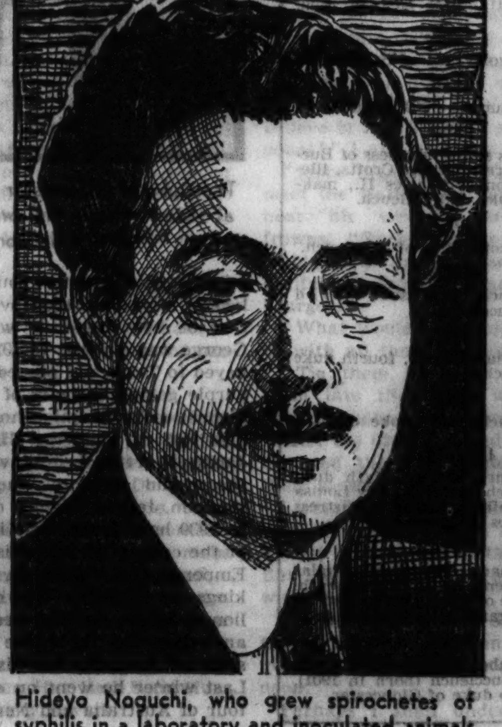
Philippe Ricord, who laid the foundation of the present medical profession's knowledge of syphilis.



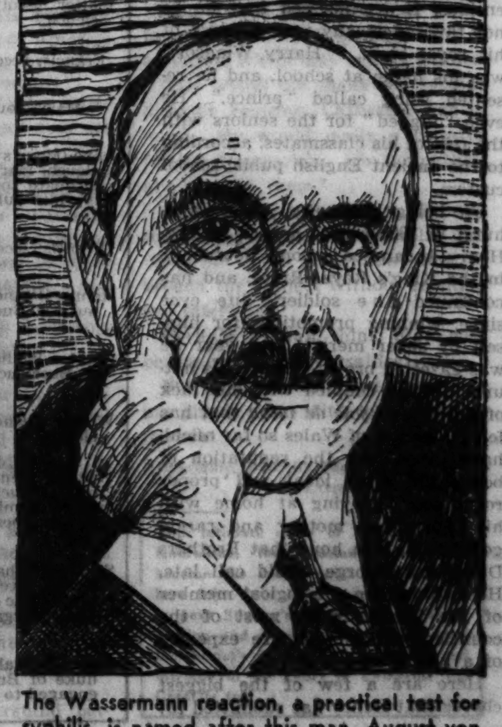
Alfred Fournier, who established the importance of syphilis as the cause of degenerative diseases.



Ilya Metchnikoff. With Pierre Roux, he demonstrated that the disease was inoculable in apes.



Hideyo Noguchi, who grew spirochetes of syphilis in a laboratory and inoculated animals with his cultures.



The Wassermann reaction, a practical test for syphilis, is named after this man, August von Wassermann.

Wales' Bashful Brother Wins One of the Scott Girls

Duke Henry Betrothed to Lady Alice

HIS most excellent majesty George Frederick Ernest Albert of Windsor, bearing the title "George the Fifth, by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, Ireland, and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India, etc.," is the father of five sons.

The youngest, Prince John, died as a child. The eldest, the prince of Wales, is famed as the world's most eligible bachelor. The fourth, the duke of Kent, is well known as the smiling sailor prince who last year married Princess Marina of Greece. The second, the duke of York, has been much talked about as the successor to King George in case the prince of Wales, as many think likely, renounces his rights to the throne when his father dies.

The third son, the duke of Gloucester, however, is comparatively little known. And now that his engagement to Lady Alice Montagu-Douglas-Scott has been announced, people everywhere are asking about King George's tall 35 year old son. What sort of a fellow is he, and what does he do?

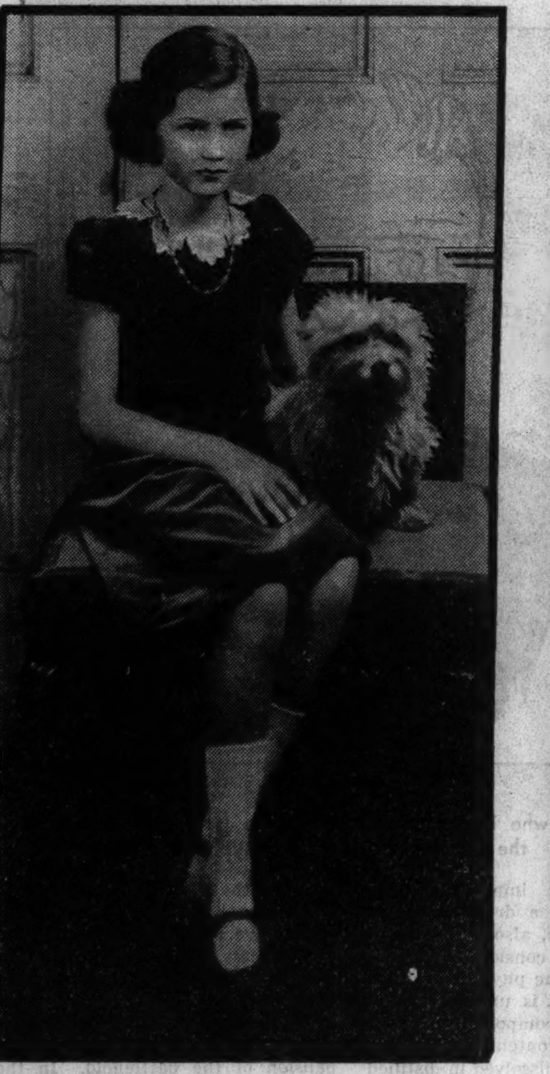
Prince Henry, as the present duke of Gloucester was known before he was presented with a dukedom in 1928, grew up to be a tall but rather shy boy. He was serious and did not adopt the gay life of his elder brother, David, the prince of Wales. In spite of his conservatism, however, he entered into the orthodox activities befitting a prince with a vim that exceeds that of any of his brothers, especially in the field of sport. At Eton he starred at cricket and distinguished himself in long-distance running. Ten miles was a normal afternoon jog for rangy Prince Henry, and as a schoolboy he once covered a mile in the rare time of 4 minutes 54 seconds, which is still only 48 seconds over the world's record.

Henry also became a skilled horseman and polo player and before he entered Eton announced his interest in a military career. Joining the so-called army class in school, he combined elementary military studies with the regular Eton curriculum.



Lady Mary Cambridge, 11-year-old grandniece of Queen Mary, also to be a bridesmaid.

Miss Anne Hawkins, 7-year-old niece of the bride, who is to be a bridesmaid at the wedding.

After five years of Eton, Prince Henry passed the examination to Sandhurst, England's famous military college, and was enrolled among its students. Always conscientious, Henry insisted that he be not favored in any way because of his royal birth. "Harry Windsor" was his name at school, and he resented being called "prince." He even "fagged" for the seniors with the rest of his classmates, according to the ancient English public school custom.

On being graduated from Sandhurst in 1920 at the age of twenty, Henry became a second lieutenant in the King's Royal Rifles, and has continued the soldier's life ever since, winning promotions for himself by sheer merit. Last year he was gazetted brevet-major. His natural ability, coupled with his lack of the sort of joie de vivre that has led the prince of Wales so far afield, have given him the reputation of being the most ideal and proper royal son. Staying at home with his father and mother and rarely going out at an hour that Brothers David and George would call late, Henry has been the logical member of the family to do most of the countless chores that are expected of a king's sons.

Here are a few of the biggest chores that Henry has submitted to: Laying cornerstones and opening new wings of buildings are almost daily duties for the chore boy of the royal family.

As Prince Henry lived singly and conservatively on through his twenties, the gossiping dowagers of England naturally began to speculate as to how soon he would be picking a bride, as every orthodox prince should, and Henry's name became linked with that of many a fair maiden—all to no avail.

Bold in the hunting field, bashful in the drawing room, Henry did not see very much of the eligible ladies of England. He generally spent his evenings at home in Buckingham palace.

On the few occasions when he did go calling Henry was most apt to drop in on his good friend Lord William Scott, whom he had met while they were both serving in the Tenth hussars. As Lord William had a charming elder sister named Margaret and four beautiful younger sisters named Sibyl, Alice, Mary, and Angela, the dowagers naturally got the idea that one of the Scott girls must be the bait responsible for eligible young Henry's calling so often at the Scotts' house.

Lady Alice Scott, who is to be the new duchess of Gloucester.

In 1925 he was one of four counselors of state who took over the duties of the monarch while King George was abroad. In 1929 he journeyed to Tokio and pinned the royal purple garter, insignia of England's highest order of knighthood, on the left leg of Emperor Hirohito of Japan, in return being invested with the grand order of the chrysanthemum, Japan's highest decoration. In 1930 he represented King George at the coronation in Addis Ababa of Emperor Haile Selassie, "king of kings of Ethiopia, the conquering lion of Judah, and the elect of God," and departed for home with the seal of Solomon in his suitcase. Last winter he went on a good-will tour of Australia and New Zealand.

With almost clocklike regularity reports went into England's social columns linking Prince Henry with the Scott girls, one after another. First it was Lady Margaret Ida Scott's turn. In 1924 came the report that she was to be engaged to Prince Henry, then 24 years old. Next came Lady Mary Theresa Scott's turn, when she was spoken of as the most likely candidate in 1926. Then it was Lady Angela Christine Rose Scott's turn to pull into the lead when in 1929 was heralded her "imminent engagement" to Prince Henry, now the duke of Gloucester. And today Lady Alice Christabel Scott is in the ascendant, and it looks as if the duke's engagement to her is going to settle the question once and for all. Considerably more than a rumor, Duke Henry's marriage to Lady Alice has been set to take place little more than two weeks hence, on Nov. 6, in Westminster abbey.

The engagement announcement, coming as it did on Aug. 29, caused quite a stir in London. Not only was the nation thrilled to hear that the next to last bachelor in the royal family was about to take a beautiful bride, but many loyal Britons were horrified that the king should have permitted the announcement to come out the very evening after the tragic death in Switzerland of the much beloved Queen Astrid of the Belgians. The unfortunate coincidence was evidently overlooked until too late, but after the announcement of his son's engagement was broadcast over the radio the king ordered the court into a fortnight's mourning, forbidding any engagement celebration until Queen Astrid had been given due honor.

Thirty-four-year-old Lady Alice, high-spirited, artistic, and, like her royal fiancé, at home in the hunting field, was not downcast over the ill-timed period of mourning. On the evening of the engagement announcement she took naïve delight in springing the great news on her family's friends as a complete surprise. Slipping away from the dinner table at her home in Drumlanrig castle, she suddenly turned on the radio full blast. Her father, the duke of Buccleuch, and his startled guests turned in their chairs to hear the loud speaker roar: "It is with great pleasure that the king and queen announce the betrothal of their dearly beloved son, the duke of Gloucester, to Lady Alice Montagu-Douglas-Scott, the daughter of the duke and duchess of Buccleuch and Queensberry, to which union the king has gladly given his consent."

Well schooled in his royal duties, conservative Duke Henry resigned himself to the conventional period of mourning in Queen Astrid's honor. He dutifully withdrew to the bachelor seclusion of his regiment at Catterick camp until King George took him up to Balmoral for the week-end to shoot grouse. While the royal father and son were banging away at the birds, who should arrive at Balmoral but Lady Alice.

He Resembles His Cousin Carol

A fitting match for the duke of Gloucester, Lady Alice, too, is of royal origin. To be precise, she is the great-great-great-great-great-great-great-granddaughter of King Charles II. of England, and her family is recorded in Burke's Peerage as far back as the distinguished Sir Richard le Scot of Rankilburn and Murthockston, who lived in the reign of Alexander III. of Scotland and as a feudal lord swore fealty to Edward I. of England in 1296.

Appropriate to Lady Alice's unquestioned feeling for her royal bridegroom-to-be, the Scott family motto is "Amo" ("I love"). And weddings have figured prominently in the family history. Not only did Sir Richard le Scot obtain his feudal domain by marriage, but a later ancestor of Lady Alice, the first duke of Buccleuch (pronounced Buck-clew), obtained his title by adopting the name Scott on marrying Countess Anne Scott in 1663. The first duke of Buccleuch incidentally was an illegitimate son of Charles II.

For some three centuries the house of Scott has been close to English kings and has accumulated "lands, titles, riches, and diadems" while the English royal houses waxed and waned and even vanished.

Today the jewels of Lady Alice's mother are said to be "unsurpassed in value by those of any other woman in Great Britain except Queen Mary." The Scottish Scotts have been noblemen longer than the English Windsors. Way back in 1600, when the duke of Gloucester's ancestors were unknown warriors in feudal Prussia, one of Lady Alice's distinguished and arrogant ancestors published a book which caused a sensation in Scotland and did much to reform the deplorable political conditions in that country. The book was called "The Staggering State of Scots Statesmen," by Scott of Scotstarget, Scotland.

The duke of Gloucester's family, instead of originating in the British Isles, is much more closely related to various Teutonic royal strains.

The resemblance between the duke and King Carol of Rumania, his second cousin, is very striking, as proved by the accompanying photographs. Their relationship is traced in a family tree appearing on this page.

Wells of Sahara Centuries Old

SCATTERED over the broad wastes of the Sahara desert are isolated, primitive wells such as the one shown in the accompanying illustration. These wells are located usually on the caravan routes, or, rather, the caravan routes follow the shortest lines between the wells. The particular well illustrated is in southern Algeria, but it is typical of those found throughout the vast extent of Africa's almost limitless region of sand.

The two men shown in the illustration are typical native nomads of the desert. In the hands of one is a water skin, to which is attached a lether thong. The water skin is lowered into the well by means of the thong. Around the mouth of the well, which is about two feet in diameter, is a coping of gypsum, or sand rose, a soft, stonelike material, placed to prevent to a certain degree the drifting of sand into the well's mouth. The lining of the well is of rough stone. This keeps the well from caving in.

According to Rudyerd Boulton, ornithologist of the Field Museum of Natural History of Chicago, wells such as this vary in diameter from two to six feet and in depth from 20 to 180 feet. Mr. Boulton, as the leader of the Straus Field museum West African expedition, last year journeyed from Senegal to Timbuctoo and thence to Algiers and then retraced his steps, traveling over just such terrain as that shown in the picture. He found the desert wells the most important of all landmarks in his round trip over the desert. The wells, according to Mr. Boulton, are the life of life on the desert. Without them men would be unable to penetrate the great Sahara, and all, native and foreigner alike, would perish in short order from the burning thirst which accompanies travel in the desert.

Mr. Boulton, in describing the wells of the Sahara, made no mention of ever having seen one of the wells dug. In fact, it was his opinion that all of the wells upon the caravan routes were extremely old and that many of them undoubtedly dated back to as early as ancient Roman and Grecian occupation of North Africa. The wells that are only 20 feet deep could be dug without any great trouble, but those that go into the earth as deeply as 180 feet would present a problem even to a modern engineer. It is the belief of Mr. Boulton that in the deeper wells, which naturally are of greater diameter than the shallower ones, the diggers are lowered by men on the surface and the dislodged sand from the bottom of the well is taken out by means of baskets suspended on ropes.

As a proof of the great antiquity of some of the wells on the caravan routes Mr. Boulton found the stone copings that protect their mouths from the drifting sand were grooved to a depth of four or five inches by the rubbing of the thongs employed in lifting the water skins. This evidence alone would prove the wells to be many centuries old, since a lether thong would wear but slightly, if at all, into stone in any measure of time restricted to the modern age.

No matter who the desert traveler is, be he Bedouin, Tuareg, or alien explorer, it is always his recognized duty to repair a damaged well, dig out the drifted sand, and keep the passage to the life-saving water open for the next traveler who arrives. It is the unwritten law of the desert.

The water that is tapped by the wells of the Sahara lies in underground streams that vary in depth. As most of the land bordering the great desert is considerably higher than the desert itself, the water from the surrounding regions drains down into underground streams, trapped below the surface of the Sahara, a godsend to those whose travels lead them over the sun-parched wastes. Without these underground streams 20 to 180 feet below the surface the Sahara perhaps for all time would remain a land without life.

THE DIARY OF A MAIDEN

Secret Bride of John Paul Jones

IN THE COURT OF

CATHERINE THE GREAT

Translated from the Russian by Ivan Narodny
Adapted by Margarita Orlov and Louise Bargelt

THE STORY TO DATE

Herewith is presented the fourth instalment of the intimate diary of Princess Anna Kourakina, maid of honor at the court of Catherine the Great of Russia and secret bride of the American naval hero, John Paul Jones. At the incredibly licentious and magnificent Russian court Anna has many terrifying experiences. She even submits to a whipping by the empress rather than act contrary to her ideals and principles and entertain the visiting nobles in the fashion Catherine dictates. Catherine finally comes to appreciate the brilliancy and beauty of Anna and decides to send her to Paris to persuade John Paul Jones to serve Russia in her war against the Turks. In the last instalment the princess captivates a prince from Bokhara and obtains important treaty rights for the empress. This chapter opens with Anna about to attend a formal banquet at Taureda palace on the eve of her departure for France.

Italics appearing in the text of the diary are the editors' explanatory notes.

INSTALMENT IV.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 20, 1787.

I AM invited to a dinner tomorrow night at the Taurida palace.

Her imperial majesty is giving a small dinner for me before I leave for Paris.

I am delighted to get a glimpse of this gorgeous home of Prince Gregory Potemkin, which was built by order of the empress a few years ago, a costly gift to the "prince of Taurida," as she affectionately calls her favorite. How lavish she is with this strange lover of hers! This particular present was in recognition of his conquest of the Crimea.

When I go to the office of the secretary of foreign affairs this morning to obtain my traveling papers, and to be registered as an official of the staf of foreign functionaries, I find everyone confused and discouraged.

The empress has just received a desperate letter from Prince Potemkin.

He wants to evacuate the Crimea! He claims that Russia is on the verge of defeat!

Can anything be more unthinkable!

Russia, despite Catherine's astuteness, had been taken by surprise. The sublime porte, ruling Turkey's swarming hordes, had declared war on Russia in August, 1787. Potemkin had delayed preparations, and the fleet at Sebastopol had suffered severely from a tempest. Potemkin was in despair and ready to give up the war.

The empress was discouraged, too, but over her temperamental commander-in-chief rather than the situation. She could not contemplate abandoning the war, which would mean the ruin of Sebastopol, and also of the fleet, which had been prepared at great effort and expense.

It was at this time she brought to play all her arts of persuasion. She wrote Potemkin twice a week, calling him her "little love" and her "golden pheasant." She implored him in one breath to take courage and reflect that "the brave soul can repair even disaster," and in the next she chided him: "You are as impatient as a five-year-old child."

Apparently this deluge of excited letters bore fruit. At any rate, the prince continued the warfare.

"The empress will never give up the Crimea," I exclaim.

"Certainly not," snaps Baron Simoulin, who has small love for the giant Potemkin. "But she will have to keep up her lengthy letters to her prince of Taurida. That child of fortune can't stand it when luck turns against him. I think, Princess Anna, that the sooner we get that dauntless Commodore John Paul Jones over here the sooner we can retrieve Russia's waning glories."

Commodore Jones! Ever nearer and nearer to me he seems.

Baron Simolin leaves for Paris tonight. He will secure a house for me and furnish it in regal Russian style.

May I follow him soon!

Oct. 21, 1787.

"On our way to the Taurida palace tonight the Princess Lieven confides to me that I am missing a tremendous show. Prince Potemkin won't be here. It will be the play of Hamlet, with Hamlet left out.

"You should see that barbaric Asiatic serving her imperial majesty from dishes of gold.

"It is certainly hard to understand his power over her," she continues. "You can't imagine how ugly he is, with his one eyed swollen face, his long, hooked nose, and his hairy hands with their nails bitten to the quick.

"Doesn't he keep her amused?"

"Not always. They quarrel violently and then make up rapturously. He produces fresh admirers to amuse her when he is away—hurls them at her—and then banishes them if they do not please him. Apparently it does not matter how her imperial majesty may feel towards these men, they are all as chaff before the wind of Potemkin's whims."

But even without Potemkin our banquet is a feast for the gods, served in the great dining room of his palace.

The decorations on every hand are most lavish and spectacular. The walls are hung with finest tapestries and all about there are statues, fountains and myriad small alcoves where lovers can flock for undisturbed trysts.

"My brother, Prince Peter," whispers Princess Lieven as we go towards the dining room, "declares that the splendour and license of these Russian palaces, the entertainment given in them, parallel those of Rome under the emperors."

There are not more than a dozen people at dinner.

Sasha M-monoff is here, sitting next to the empress.

He has been her favorite at court for some time now. I cannot look at him without a feeling of hostility. It is not because of the overtures he made to me on my first arrival at St. Petersburg. I can overlook those. But it is the fact that he is constantly deceiving her majesty. He is not faithful in thought or deed, and yet he fawns upon her with lying smiles and caresses.

Prince Nassau-Siegen is also present, but he never glances my way. He has not forgotten what I did to him that night in the hunting lodge in the forest. Prince Naryshkin tells me that he was lame for days afterward. But how else could I have protected myself? I have never forgotten, either, the whipping I received from her imperial majesty because of my refusal to remain with him that night!

We dine from Prince Potemkin's far famed golden dishes and drink from goblets of Persian glass.

Hundreds of tiny lamps with globes of tinted glass shed their glow over the table.

There are foods from many lands. The prince's cook is always at the palace, even in his master's absence, and there are grapes from the Crimea, oysters from the Riga and melons from Astrakan. I have never tasted such delicious sterlet soup.

The food is very different from the tasteless, ordinary, and sometimes atrocious dishes served from her imperial majesty's kitchens.

"This palace is a doleful place with the master of ceremonies away," her majesty says heavily. She has lost her usual spirits. Potemkin's letter has been alarming, and for once Prince Naryshkin fails to distract her.

"From his letters, I take it, the prince of Taurida is doleful himself," drawls Naryshkin. "He appears to be in need of a stimulant. Why don't you send our Princess Anna to join him? She is of the stuff from which soldiers are made. He might even win a victory or two with our guardian angel at his side."

The empress refuses to smile.

"No army service for Anna. You don't realize the importance of her mission to France. She is a diplomat, a virgin and a siren. I am counting on her to entice that Scotch-American commander into our service. It will infuse some new spirit in our men. Heaven knows they seem to need it."

Prince Nassau looks surly. He does not share her imperial majesty's enthusiasm for Commodore Jones.

"I wish you would let me tell you the truth about that impossible upstart." For once the smoothness is gone from his voice and manner. "I happen to know him. I met him in Paris, you recall."

"And quarreled over the 'Indien,'" puts in Prince Naryshkin with a wink at the empress.

"I never want to see the pirate again! You should hear what the English say of him, if you are anxious for the truth."

This brings a hearty laugh from the empress.

"That's a splendid suggestion, my Prince Nassau. I should listen to what the English say, after the licking that little Scotchman gave them! They would relish nothing better than to see Jones' head on a pike outside their London tower."

She leans forward and pounds on the table.

"You're leaving tomorrow to join Prince Potemkin. He needs all the assistance he can get. And you can tell him for me that if it's possible I'm sending him shortly a valiant sailor and fighter to speed our lagging ships to victory."

Prince Nassau sulks and does not reply, but the wily Naryshkin, as usual, agrees instantly with her majesty.

"Give us a man like Jones," he cries, "and in six months we will clear the Black sea of Turkish ships and make it a Russian lake. Give us a man like Jones and in a year Constantinople will be ours." He turns abruptly to me and adds, very seriously:

"Pray for us, Princess Anna. You are good. Your prayers will be answered. We are in need of a real fighter. The blood of our prince of Taurida is turning to water."

Prince Potemkin's blood never, at any time, had much iron in it when it came to actual fighting. He was, despite his many sins of omission and commission, deeply religious at times and always entertained a vigorous horror of a sudden death. In his secret heart he devoutly hoped to spend the last few years of his life in some secluded monastery where he might atone for the deeds done in the flesh and prepare himself, a little at least, for the future life he feared to face.

Fortunate for him, now the idol of a great empress' heart, that he does not see ahead a few years hence when, no longer a favorite of his beloved, he will court death avidly in his grief and despair; that he does not see the time when Catherine's son, Paul, on the Russian throne at the death of his mother hating every place associated with Potemkin as he hated the man himself—even ordered his body snatched from its resting place and buried in an unknown spot.

A strange finale for a man who once ruled the empress of Russia—to be buried at the end like a stray dog in a forgotten hole!

It is late when we return from the Taurida palace and I pray for a long time before my ikon. I pray for my beloved Russia, as Prince Naryshkin asked me to, and for my knight of the sea. I am counting the hours until I start on my long, long journey to Paris.

Stay close, dear God, stay close!

St. Petersburg, Oct. 25, 1787.

The empress calls me to her boudoir this afternoon for a few final instructions.

"You are going to Paris, which is the arbiter of elegance for the entire world. You will find it a city of much beauty, where the aristocracy have only one pursuit, pleasure; and one goddess, love.

"It may have changed some in the last few years if rumors I hear are true, but still you will find many hymns sung to pagan passions and love, and I want you, my bewitching Anna, to be in harmony with the atmosphere and the spirit of those great palaces and gardens.

"I have seen to it that your clothes are creations not only of modish caprice but patterns of elegance and good taste.

"The gowns which you will wear will set off to perfection the lines of your figure. Madame Friede has designed them to be frank instruments of seduction.

"But there is something else.

"You will discover that the women of the French court surround themselves in a stifling cloud of fragrance.

"I have always been interested in perfumes, though I deplore their excessive use. They are an intriguing subject, and I have read numerous manuscripts by oriental savants on their potency."

She takes from her dressing table a large jewel case of ebony and gold filigree.

"I have some perfumes here which I am going to give you with full directions for their uses on different occasions.

"A clever woman selects her perfumes as her clothes, to suit her personality. This selection I have already made for you. There are light perfumes for the early morning which will emphasize the natural freshness and spontaneity of the day's first hours. There are delicate perfumes for indoors, in the afternoon. You can always remember that roses are poetic, violets romantic, lilies intellectual, and attar of roses spiritual. For the outdoors, nothing is more appropriate than the English garden flowers.

"I have also included a perfume made by a secret process in Arabia with a Mongolian oil for its base and seven Persian blossoms. The tales they tell of its powers would amaze you.

"Keep it for your studio and use it if it ever seems imperative that you enhance your power of allure. It is claimed to bring about what the orientals call a state of nonresistance, and yet the emotions are highly stirred."

I cannot help smiling. "Now just when would I ever want to use a mischief working perfume like that!'

The empress sighs. 'You are incorrigible and I should have learned my lesson before now. If you weren't so captivating in your natural freshness and charm, I should be in despair. If you weren't so determinedly virginal, I should like nothing better than to instruct you a little in the technique of love.

"A certain savoir faire is invaluable in this art, as in any art, if you wish to acquire finesse. Since time began love has been a recognized art. The Arabs, the Greeks, the Egyptians had schools for it. But you, my Boyarina, are such a stubborn virgin in this sad and wicked world that I shall waste no time in trying to tutor you. I'll have to admit," she concludes, narrowing her eyes as she often does when she is inwardly amused, "that you are eminently successful in your own sweet way—that is if the prince of Bokhara is any criterion."

She offers me a glass of her beloved Bourjon, that sparkling water from the Circassian spring named for her.

"There is only one important point I wish to stress before you leave. This is that you are to acquaint yourself with Gen. Lafayette. Be your sweetest, most charming self, so that he will talk frankly with you. Grow to understand him, and notify me at once if you think he is the stuff from which we can make a great military dictator of France. I will make him such a leader and present him to Paris, if you feel he has the capacity and genius to assume such a position.

"From all I hear the situation in that country is growing worse, and its king and queen are spineless, dumb. If France were under a dictatorship the growths of future revolution might be destroyed before they have done inestimable harm."

Poor Catherine! Her antipathy to the new ideas is to deepen rapidly. It is said that later, when the bastille was taken, she had the bust of her beloved Voltaire removed and thrown amid the rubbish in the cellar storerooms of the Hermitage. And when news of the execution of Louis the 16th reached her she was taken so ill she remained in bed for several days.

As I kiss the empress' hand and retire to my room I reflect on how very kind at heart she is, to so many, many people.

Though she thinks that Louis and Marie Antoinette are fools, or worse, she still wants to help them in her own way, and to save them from their threatening destruction.

And she has so many good deeds to her credit. I recall her fight against small pox, the excellent school she established for young women, the foundling hospital, her toleration shown in an annual banquet for priests of all the religions in her realm.

I do not agree, I can never agree with her imperial majesty on questions of morals!

To me the license she gives herself and openly encourages in others seems as dreadful as it did the first week I arrived at court.

But if I can grow to be a woman as courageous, as generous, as loyal and as brilliant, as our great empress, I shall be happy!

Later.

It is far past midnight and I still write on in my diary.

The palace is a gigantic tomb, and a hoot owl in the park keeps me from sleeping.

Everything is arranged. In a few days I start for France—and Paris.

Holy spirits of the starlit night lead me safely, swiftly to the beloved of all my dreams!

Paris, Dec. 28, 1787.

I have been twenty-four hours in Paris and it overwhelms me!

It is more beautiful and impressive, even than I imagined, but clouds of apprehension obscure my vision. Soiled clouds they are, with red streaks shot through them.

It is a city made for happiness, this "Island in the Seine," for gaiety and abandon, but there is now little joie de vivre anywhere. Only turmoil and confusion.

I go for a long ride this morning with the Baroness Simolin. I shall like her, I feel sure. She is neither ugly nor disagreeable, as Prince Naryshkin described her, but she is serious and her judgments of people are stern.

I see the city under a light fall of snow. It never knows our biting blizzards, nor do the people have to wear masks over their faces or perish from the cold.

But there is no happiness!

I see the great palace of the Luxembourg built by Mary de Medici, the long line of the boulevards, the triumphal gates of St. Denis and St. Martin, but everywhere there are crowds seething with discontent. In certain sections hungry mobs flock the streets demanding food.

As we drive slowly along, scandalous leaflets are thrown into our carriage. I stare at one and see printed on it:

"The Queen Has Had Four Hundred and Thirty Lovers!"

Another lampoon gives the names of many of them.

"But all this can't be true!" I cry.

The baroness shrugs her shoulders. "Exaggeration," she declares sharply. "But there has been some fire to throw all this smoke."

I think of our empress. Beside this queen she seems a saint.

"Why does Queen Marie tolerate such vicious attacks? Empress Catherine would never permit them."

"Our empress is clever. She is very different from Marie. The Hapsburg queen on the throne of France has never tried to win her people, nor learned how to hold them by force. She has been pursued by a devil of pleasure for many years. Now she is beginning to pay the price. The people blame her for everything. All their wrath is centered on her. The budget has recently been published. You should have heard the howl that went up. Ever since then they have called her 'Madame Deficit' for her extravagances."

We pass groups of students gathered around the book stalls of the Quais.

They are discussing ideas of Voltaire and Rousseau and spreading printed matter that monarchs are not divine and that there are better forms of government.

"Look at that group of French volunteer soldiers returned from the American war of the revolution. France had better have stayed out of that fracas! They mix with the students and talk freely of America where there is no king or court, and where all men are equal!"

All men equal! "Do they really believe in America that all men are equal?" I ask, curiously.

"More than that! Wait till you meet the Marquis de Lafayette and hear his views." The baroness frowns. "Such ideas are too inflammable to be lightly tossed to these excitable French peasants and bourgeoise."

"What would Empress Catherine do with all these crowds?"

"Tie them in pairs and throw them into the Volga where they belong," replies the baroness angrily. "After the first thousand or so were drowned the rest would come to their senses."

I return to my house oppressed with what I have seen and heard. I must write it all to the empress. But I will wait until I have talked with the queen.

The baroness told me as I left her that I am to be presented to the queen at Versailles tomorrow afternoon.

Perhaps I shall understand better then these things which are going on around me.

The contrast between the French and the Russian ruler is at once apparent to the Princess Anna. Marie had never any desire to play so energetic and lofty a rôle as that enacted by Catherine. Queen of the fairest kingdom in Europe, her supreme desire was to be free, subject only to her own pleasure and caprice. For nearly a score of years she had refused to tolerate any restraining hand.

In vain had the Empress Maria Theresa, who knew her daughter's failings, warned her against the consequences of her folly. She was not even hopeful of her daughter's success as a queen, the day of her accession to the throne, and even when all Europe seemed at the fair queen's feet, Maria Theresa sighed gloomily: "I fancy her good days are past."

Paris, Dec. 29, 1787.
Morning.

And now, my little diary, I have a deep secret to confide to you.

Don't ever betray me or I shall perish with shame!

I slip out of my house early this morning, hire an old cab and drive past the home of the great Commodore John Paul Jones!

But, O, what I see. I still tremble with the shock of it.

I see my beloved. I recognize him from the little portrait I have been carrying with me since that day in St. Petersburg when Baron Simolin gave it to me.

But there is a woman with him!

A carriage is at his door and he is standing beside it, bareheaded, with powdered hair and dark, intent eyes bent on a woman who is leaning far out of the carriage window.

She is young and very pretty, with the softest, fluffiest, loveliest red hair!

I order my driver to go slowly and I see them both plainly.

She is chatting gayly and once she laughs and reaches out a white hand and lays it affectionately on his arm.

He does not smile but his keen, brave eyes never leave her face.

I cannot be mistaken. They know each other very well. They are good friends. Are they something more? Does she love him? Does he love her?

Is there any hope anywhere for little me, a dark haired princess from faraway Tver?

I have been kneeling before my ikon for a long time, just talking to God.

I would not take my chevalier away if his heart belongs to someone else.

But I love him so! I could not be sure of it before. But I know it now. I love him!

The pretty red haired young woman whom Anna sees in the carriage is Mademoiselle Aimée de Tellison, a natural daughter of Louis the 15th by Mme. Bonneval, who later married an official by the name of Tellison. The daughter then took her stepfather's name.

Mademoiselle was still in her twenties and reputed to be vivacious and attractive. She had been of much service to Jones through her royal connections. She had also translated for him, improved his French and obtained needed information for him on important matters.

At the present moment she is investigating for him the possible motives back of Catherine's desire to put him in charge of her Black sea fleet.

Jones, in spite of his wanderings and occasional philanderings previous to the time he met Anna, had been fairly faithful to this charming aristocrat.

* * *

Later.

When the baron arrives to drive with me to Versailles he tells me that the baroness is planning a dinner tomorrow night and hopes to entertain, not only Commodore Jones but the Marquis de Lafayette, as well.

I can judge from Lafayette then, what sort of dictator he would make for France. He smiles grimly. Her imperial majesty is a clever woman but she does not understand conditions in this country nor the men who are getting in control of the situation.

The discontent of the people, which is seen everywhere, is, in Lafayette's eyes, the healthy sign of an unrest which may reform France.

"He would not make the type of dictator Empress Catherine has in mind. He would make a dictator for the bourgeoisie. His sympathies are all with them."

I want to ask Baron Simolin something about Mademoiselle Tellison but I do not know how to broach the subject without seeming too interested.

Perhaps I shall think of a way before we reach Versailles.

But whatever happens—my meeting draws near, with my knight of the sea!

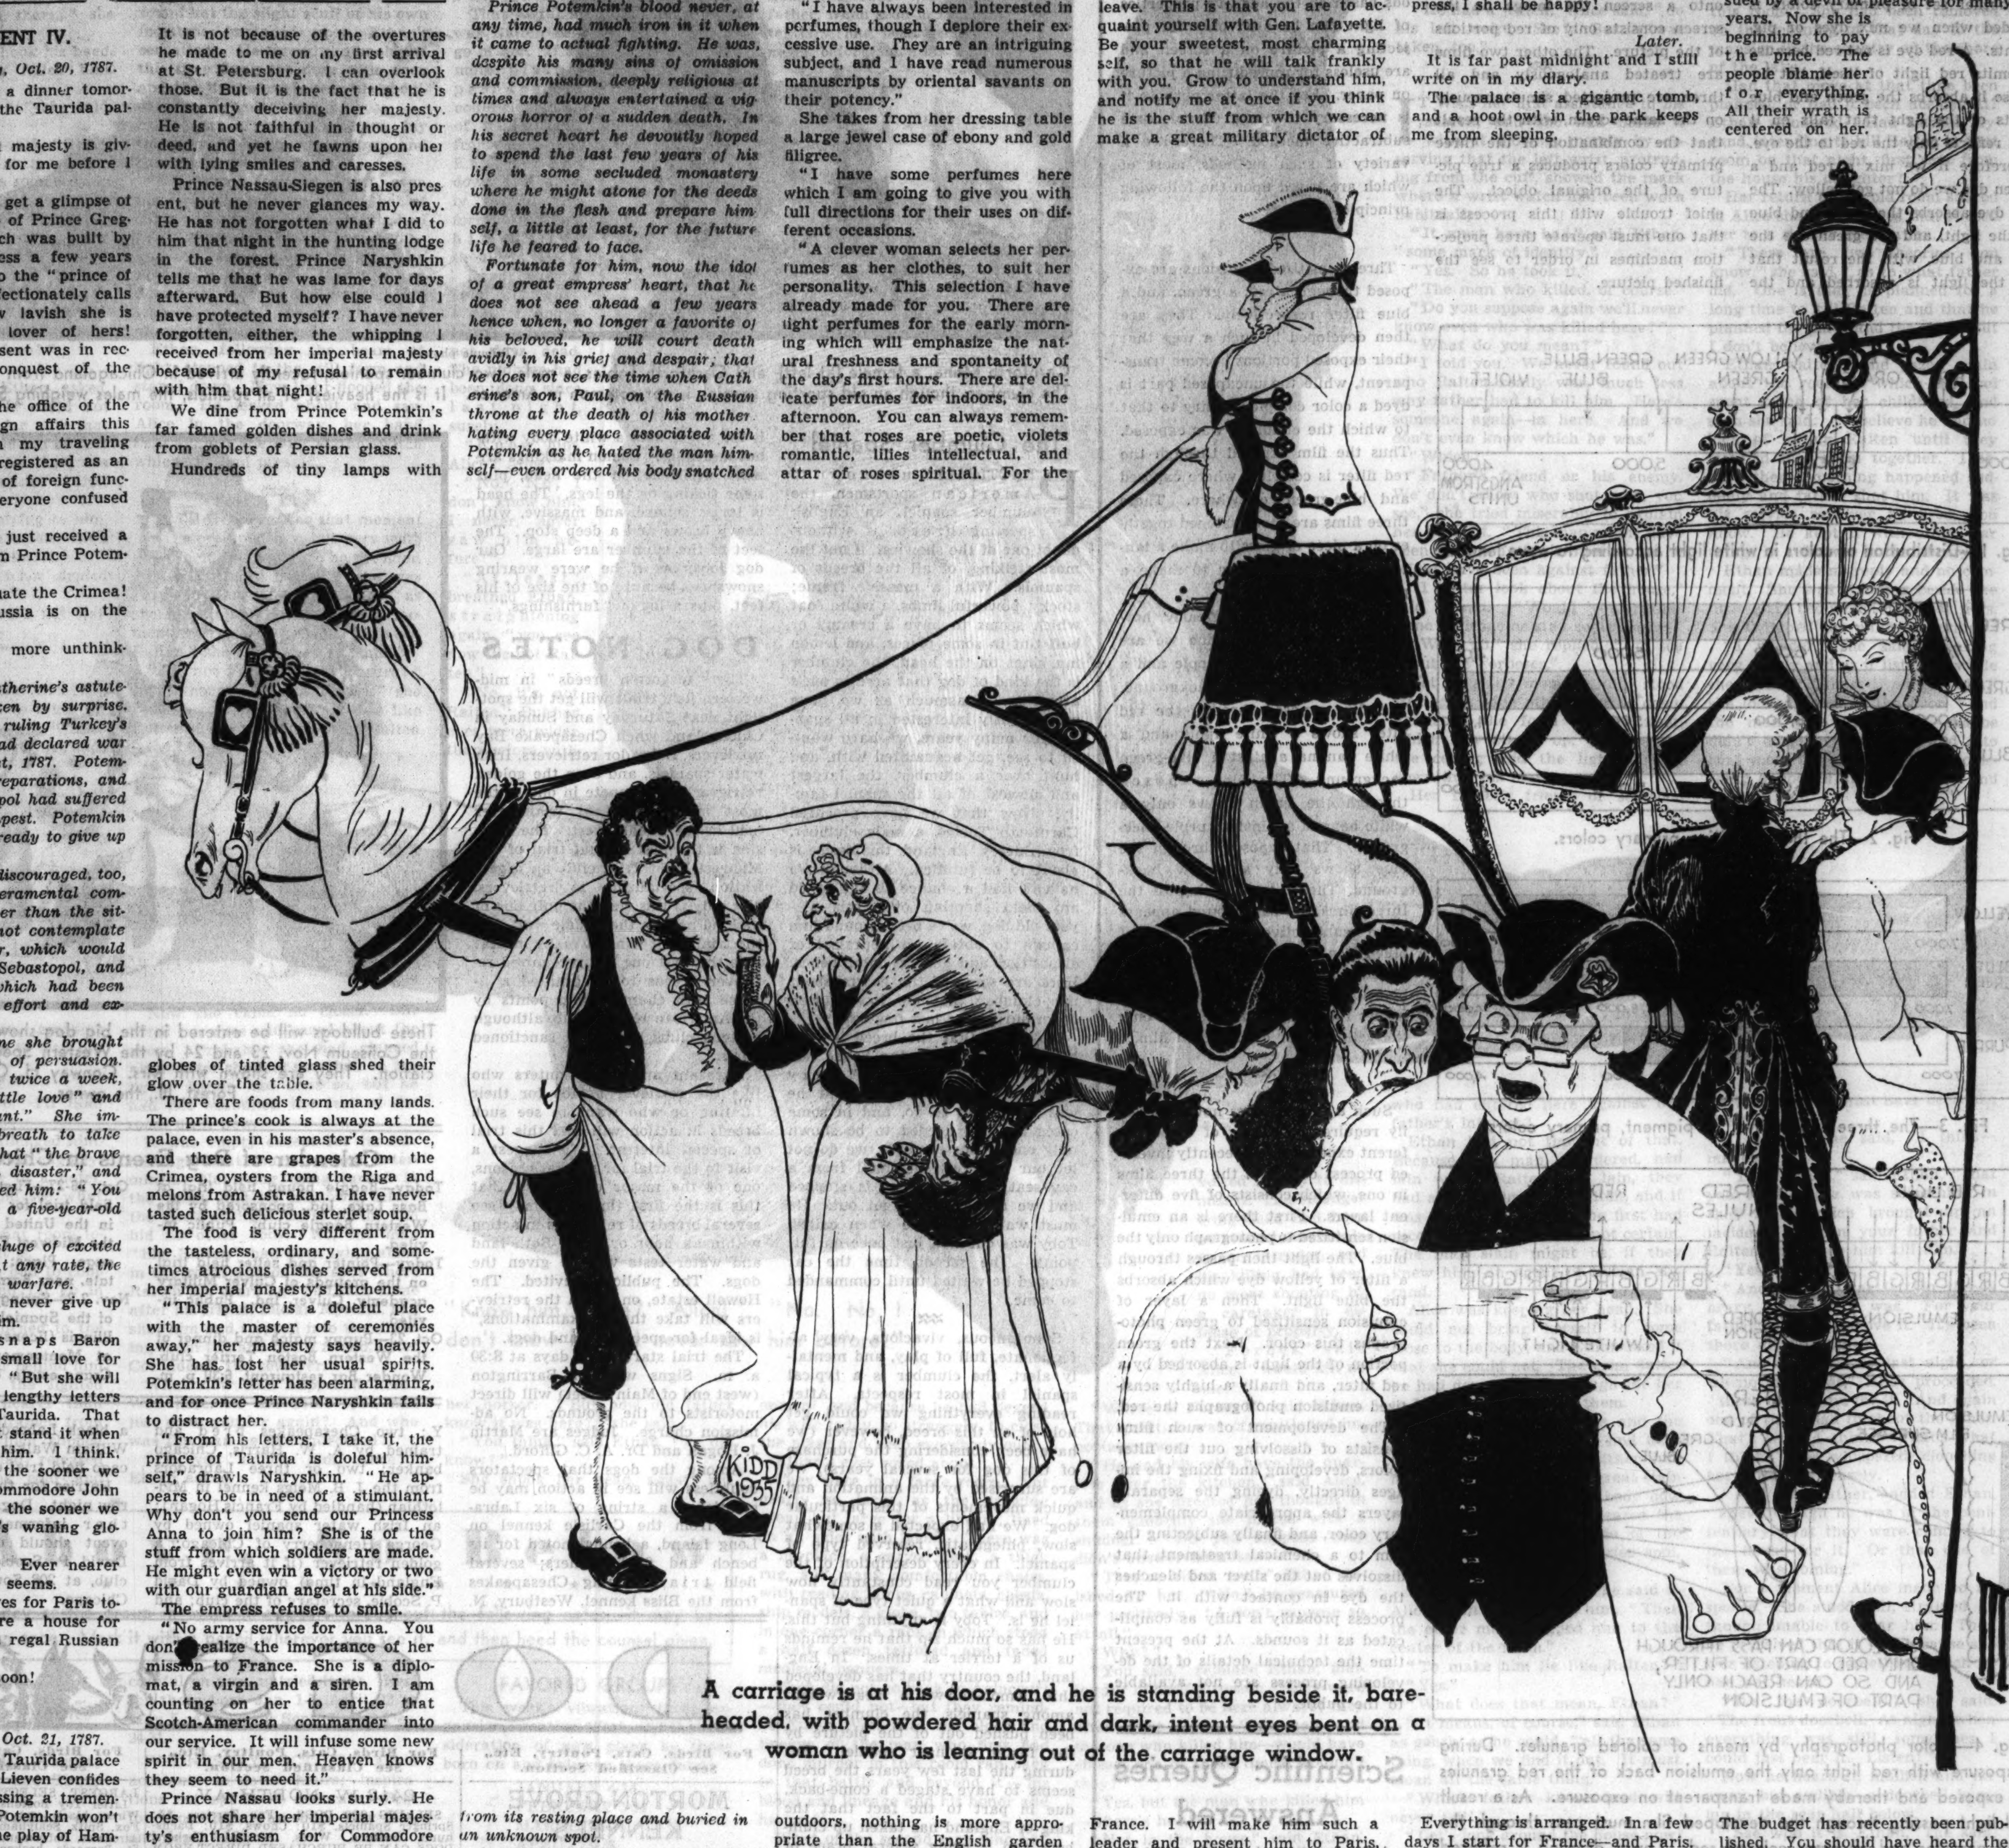
This intimate diary of Princess Anna Kourakina, the Russian beauty who became the secret bride of the naval hero John Paul Jones, will be continued in next Sunday's issue of the Graphic Section and in subsequent issues until the diarist's complete story of love and intrigue in the court of Catherine the Great is told.



A carriage is at his door, and he is standing beside it, bareheaded, with powdered hair and dark, intent eyes bent on a woman who is leaning out of the carriage window.

Highest Skill Needed in Color Photography

FROM his earliest beginnings man has seen the colors of nature and has tried to reproduce them in the pictures he has drawn. When the pictures were made by hand the colors could be put in, and the reproduction made in this way was usually as accurate as that of line. The invention about a hundred years ago of photography provided a strictly impersonal method of copying the shapes of things with almost perfect accuracy. The photographic reproduction of color has been much more difficult.

It is true that within recent years methods have been developed to enable the camera to reproduce natural colors with sufficient fidelity to satisfy all but the ultracritical. Unfortunately, such pictures require at one or more stages in their preparation the services of highly skilled technicians, which renders the process rather expensive and laborious. This does not mean that excellent color photographs cannot be made or that their cost is unreasonably high. It simply means that the ultimate ideal of color photography, the immediate and direct formation of a perfectly colored picture on exposure, is still unrealized.

The processes used in color photography are extremely complicated. A brief outline of the methods is of interest, however, as illustrating the various paths of scientific attack on a difficult problem. Perhaps, though, it would be desirable first to give a short explanation of the basic principles of both photography and of color.

The important part of a photographic film is a layer of silver compounds, principally the bromide. This layer, known as the emulsion, has the peculiar property of becoming more easily reducible to metallic silver when exposed to light.

A film, after being exposed to a light pattern, is placed in a solution of certain reducing agents known as the developer, and the light-exposed portions are converted to black, finely divided silver. Next the film is treated with a fixing solution which dissolves the unchanged bromide but leaves the silver untouched. Thus we have a negative, in which the light parts of the original image appear dark and the shaded parts light.

A positive can be produced directly by means of a reversed development, in which the developed film, instead of being fixed, is placed in a chemical solution that dissolves out the silver but leaves the bromide. The latter is then exposed to light and converted to silver by a developer. This process, which produces a positive instead of negative film, is of little use in ordinary black-and-white photography, but is important in certain types of color reproduction.

Now to define color. Visible light consists of wavelike radiations whose wave lengths lie between 4,000 and 7,000 Angstrom units (an Angstrom unit is about one 250-millionth of an inch). Each wave length has a distinct color value of its own, as is shown when white light is passed through a prism (see Figure 1). When all of these colors are added together the result is white light.

Now, yellow light may be light of a single wave length occurring in the yellow region of the spectrum or, as is usually the case with most of the colors we see, it may consist of quite a number of wave lengths which have an average value corresponding to a shade of yellow. Thus yellow may contain all wave lengths from 5,000 to 7,000 units (see Figure 3). This fact enables us to build up almost any shade we may desire by using combinations of a few, usually three, well chosen colors, known as primary colors.

Look at Figures 2 and 3. If we divide the spectrum into thirds in the way shown the colors will appear to us as indicated. Red, green, and blue are what are known as additive primary colors. This means that we can produce any shade we desire by using these colors alone or by adding them together in suitable combinations. Thus if we flash a red light and a green one together on a screen the result of the combination will be yellow. If we use more of the red the result will be orange; an excess of the green produces a greenish yellow. If we flash all three primary colors together in equal amounts the result will include the whole spectrum and will appear white. A pair of colors such as red and blue-green or yellow and blue, which combine to give white light, are called complementary colors.

Another set of primary colors is needed when we mix dyes or pigments. A red dye is not red because it emits red light of itself, but because it absorbs the green and blue parts of the light that falls on it and reflects only the red to the eye. Therefore if we mix a red and a green dye we do not get yellow. The red dye absorbs the green and blue of the light, and the green dye the red and blue, with the result that all the light is absorbed and the mixture looks black. (In actual practice there will be a yellowish tinge to the black, because the two colors overlap a little.)

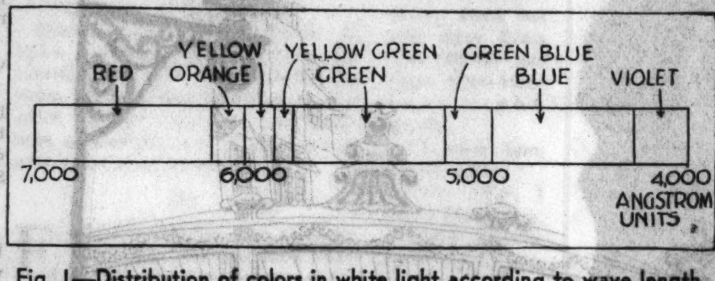

Fig. 1—Distribution of colors in white light according to wave length.

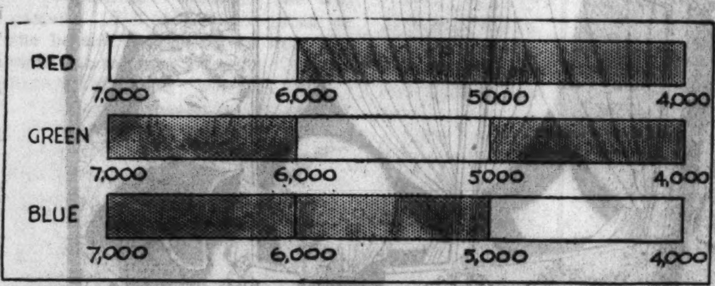

Fig. 2—The three additive primary colors.

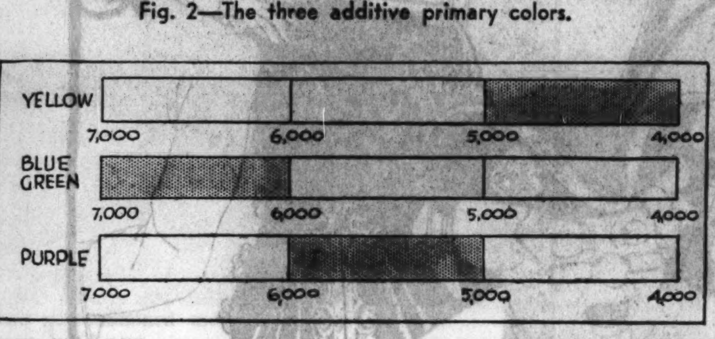

Fig. 3—The three subtractive, or pigment, primary colors.

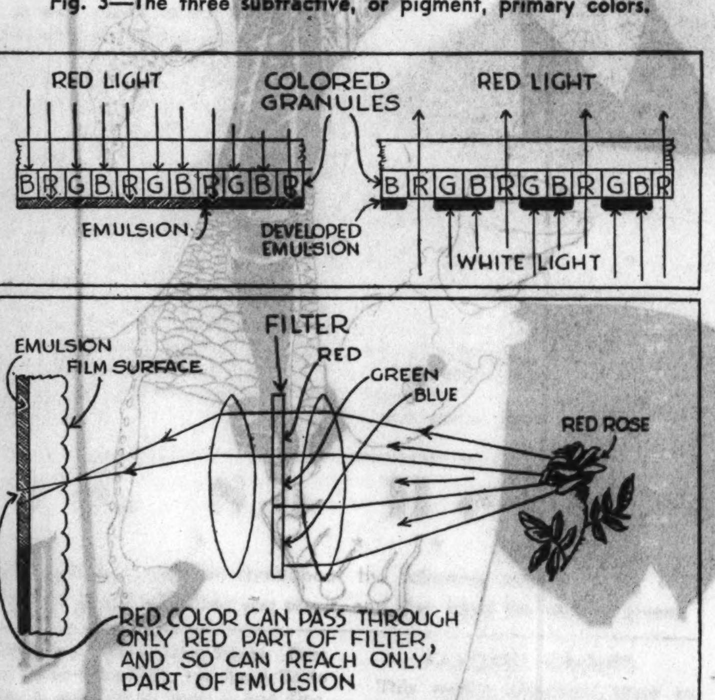

Fig. 4—Color photography by means of colored granules. During exposure with red light only the emulsion back of the red granules is exposed and thereby made transparent on exposure. As a result all light passing through the developed film must pass through the red granules and becomes colored red. Lower drawing is referred to in article as Figure 5 and shows color photography by means of a molded film surface.

But if we mix yellow and purple dyes the former will absorb the blue and the latter the green, so that the mixture will appear red. Consequently yellow, blue-green, and purple are the primary colors for this type of work and are known as subtractive or pigment primaries. They differ mainly from the additive in that a mixture of all three produces black, because together they absorb the whole range of visible light. It will be noticed that each subtractive primary is a complement of an additive one.

Each of these systems of colors finds use in different types of color photography. A method that is simple in theory but difficult in practice uses the additive system. By means of light filters and sensitized film any part of the spectrum can be photographed.

Suppose we now take three photographs of a colored object, using successively a red, a green, and a blue filter. The film exposed through the red filter has received only the red light from the object. If we give it a reversed development the exposed parts become transparent and the remainder opaque. If this film is dyed red or fastened onto a sheet of red glass and projected onto a screen the image on the screen consists only of red portions of the picture. The other two films are treated analogously and all three are projected simultaneously on the same screen, with the result that the combination of the three primary colors produces a true picture of the original object. The chief trouble with this process is that one must operate three projection machines in order to see the finished picture.

A process which avoids this difficulty consists of coating the emulsion with fine granules of red, green, and blue glass, which act as light filters for the tiny portions of the film beneath them. Thus if red light falls upon the film it is stopped by the green and blue particles and only the emulsion beneath the red is exposed. After reversed development only the film beneath the red particles is transparent. When such a film is projected onto a screen it reproduces the colors to which it was exposed. (See Figure 4.)

Figure 5 illustrates a highly ingenious method of using the additive principle, but it is one that requires a special camera and projector. The light passes through a filter divided into three horizontal sections, red, green, and blue. The surface of the film is molded into horizontal ridges of almost microscopic dimensions. Each of these ridges acts as a tiny cylindrical lens and focuses the three colors it receives on different parts of the emulsion behind it. Thus each of the three primary colors exposes a series of very thin strips of the film.

The emulsion is given a reversed development. Now, whe the film is illuminated from behind, the small ridges focus each ray of light on its appropriate part of the filter, which gives it its correct color, and the lens combines the three colored images to form a picture on a screen. In other words, each ray of light in passing through the film follows the same path as did the light that originally exposed that part of the film, but in a reversed direction.

It will be noticed that these methods based on the additive properties of light can be used only for projecting a picture on a screen and are useless for reproducing a picture on paper. For the latter purpose it is necessary to make use of some subtractive method. There are a variety of such methods, most of which are based upon the following principles:

Three sensitized emulsions are exposed through a red, a green, and a blue filter respectively. They are then developed in such a way that their exposed portions become transparent, while the unexposed part is dyed a color complementary to that to which the emulsion was exposed. Thus the film exposed through the red filter is colorless where exposed and blue-green elsewhere. These three films are then fastened together on a piece of glass to make a lantern slide or on paper to make a picture.

To illustrate more clearly how this works let us imagine we are taking a picture of an apple and a banana against a black background. The film exposed through the red filter shows a white apple and a white banana against a blue-green background. The film exposed through the green shows only a white banana against a purple background. That exposed through the blue shows only a yellow background. Then if we superimpose the three films the background appears as a subtractive combination of blue-green, purple, and yellow, which is black. The apple is a combination of purple and yellow, which makes red. The banana shows only the yellow color of the third film.

Such a process does not necessarily require the taking of three different exposures. A recently invented process combines the three films in one, which consists of five different layers. First there is an emulsion sensitized to photograph only the blue. The light then passes through a filter of yellow dye which absorbs the blue light. Then a layer of emulsion sensitized to green photographs this color. Next the green portion of the light is absorbed by a red filter, and finally a highly sensitized emulsion photographs the red.

The development of such films consists of dissolving out the filter colors, developing and fixing the images directly, dyeing the separate layers the appropriate complementary color, and finally subjecting the film to a chemical treatment that dissolves out the silver and bleaches the dye in contact with it. The process probably is fully as complicated as it sounds. At the present time the technical details of the developing process are not available to the public.

Scientific Queries Answered

Address questions of scientific nature to Dr. Thomas M. Beck, Graphic Section, Chicago Tribune. For personal reply inclose stamped, addressed envelope.

What is the material used to make the flints in cigaret lighters? —F. W., Joliet, Ill.

Substances of this nature, which strike sparks on being scratched, are usually alloys of iron and a rare metal, cerium, which is obtained as a by-product in the manufacture of incandescent gas mantles.

You mention certain planets with no oxygen but with carbon dioxide as having a possibility of plant life. If plants decompose carbon dioxide and liberate oxygen, your conclusion about possible plant life must be in error.—Chemist, Chicago.

Living matter on a planet is small in mass as compared to the matter present in an atmosphere. Our methods of determining the composition of another planet's atmosphere are not very sensitive to small concentrations of gases. It is easily possible that plant life could discharge relatively small amounts of oxygen for a long time without producing enough for us to detect. On the other hand, animal life, at least the mundane variety, requires an oxygen concentration high enough to be detectable. Being a chemist, you are surely aware that the expression "no oxygen" is simply shorthand for "insufficient oxygen to be detected by known methods of analysis."

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

(Tribune photo.)

Carnforth Mona, a female (at left), and Carnforth Tobias, a male, two clumber spaniels, recently arrived in Chicagoland from Surrey, England. The clumber, though an old sporting spaniel, is not common in America. It is the heaviest of all spaniels, the males weighing 55 to 65 pounds.

The Clumber Spaniel

PRACTICALLY unknown to American sportsmen, the clumber spaniel, an English sporting breed, is without doubt one of the showiest, if not the most striking, of all the breeds of spaniels. With a massive frame; stocky, powerful limbs, a white coat which seems to have a creamy or buff tint in some places, and lemon markings on the head, the clumber is the kind of dog that arrests one's attention. Inasmuch as we have been greatly interested in all spaniels for many years, we have wanted to see, get acquainted with, and hunt over a clumber, the largest and slowest of all the spaniel family. Now that we have procured Carnforth Tobias, a male clumber, from Surrey, England, this desire is about to be fulfilled. Although we haven't had a chance so far to do any field shooting over this 2½-year-old dog, we've been around him enough to obtain an appraisal of disposition and general intelligence. Here are some of the points about the clumber that we have jotted down during the last few days:

No doubt that the breed is very intelligent. Around the house our dog, Tobias, "caught on" very quickly to several things that he was instructed to do, and in some cases the dog needed to be shown only once. For example, we do not let our dog rush pell-mell from a car seat when the car is stopped and we are about to get out. He must wait and come when called. Toby was checked just once on this point. The second time the car stopped he waited until commanded to come.

Spontaneous, vivacious, very affectionate, full of play, and mentally alert, the clumber is a typical spaniel in most respects. After reading everything we could get hold of on this breed, however (we have been considering the purchase of this dog for several years), we are surprised by the animation and quick movements of this particular dog. We had expected a somewhat slow, phlegmatic, reserved type of spaniel. In every description of the clumber you read constantly how slow and what a quiet type of spaniel he is. Toby is anything but this. He has so much zip that he reminds us of a terrier at times. In England, the country that has developed this lemon-and-white heavyweight among spaniels, the clumber has been pushed out of the picture by the faster springer spaniel. But during the last few years the breed seems to have staged a come-back, due in part to the fact that the king of England has taken up clumbers and is using several brace of them for hunting upland game.

There is no doubt but what the clumber is slow compared to the springer with its swift pace. The lemon-and-white moves at a more leisurely pace — an easy-going bird finder. Sportsmen who like flashy speed and a dog that covers a lot of ground in nothing flat will have none of him.

And while we are faulting the dog from the American hunter's point of view we can mention color and coat. Many sportsmen will find the color objectionable because a white dog is hard to keep clean. But before the hunting season is over we have every reason to believe that the clumber is going to get some good marks as a field dog. They have been rated as smart workers for many centuries, being persistent, intelligent, methodical in their work and usually easier to handle than the faster spaniels.

One thing is certain about the breed: It is one that makes you look twice. In fact, nearly everyone who has seen the dog exclaims, "Beautiful!" His lemon markings, abundance of feather, majestic head, and intelligent expression all combine to give the breed great appeal. We were impressed by this fact when we saw Carnforth Tobias and Carnforth Mona, a female clumber, together the first time they stepped out of their shipping crates. Mona is the property of Lyman Barr of Libertyville, Ill., who imported her from the same English kennel that supplied us with Toby.

Today the clumber male weighs between 55 and 65 pounds, as compared to the springer, which averages around 45 pounds. The preference (so far as color is concerned) is for a dog with a white body without markings. Lemon markings are most desirable on the head, plus some ticking on the legs. The head is large, square, and massive, with heavy brows and a deep stop. The feet of the clumber are large. Our dog looks as if he were wearing snowshoes because of the size of his feet, plus a lot of "furnishings."

DOG NOTES

The "forgotten breeds" in midwestern field trials will get the spotlight next Saturday and Sunday in Chicagoland when Chesapeake Bay retrievers, Labrador retrievers, Irish water spaniels, and even the golden retriever will compete in one of the most interesting field trials ever held in the middle west. The occasion is the first annual trial of the Midwest Field Trial club, an organization specializing in retrievers. Not only is this club the only one of its kind here in the middle west, but the trial itself is noteworthy in that it is the first one for recognized retriever breeds to be granted a license with championship points by the American Kennel club, although eastern clubs have held sanctioned trials.

Pheasant and duck hunters who like the retriever breeds for their hunting or who want to see such breeds in action will find this trial of special interest. We suggest a visit to the trial for several reasons, one of the major ones being that this is the first time you may see several breeds of retrievers in action within an hour or two. Both land and water tests will be given the dogs. The public is invited. The Howell estate, on which the retrievers will take their "examinations," is ideal for spectators and dogs.

The trial starts both days at 8:30 a. m. Signs west of Barrington (west end of Main street) will direct motorists to the grounds. No admission charge. Judges are Martin J. Hogan and Dr. A. C. Gifford.

Among the dogs that spectators doubtless will see in action may be mentioned a string of six Labradors from the Carlisle kennel on Long Island, a kennel noted for its bench and field winners; several field trial winning Chesapeakes from the Bliss kennel, Westbury, N. Y.; two Chesapeakes bred and trained by A. W. Harris, Chicago banker; two or three Labradors from the J. B. Meigs kennel in Midlothian (handled by Francis Hogan); an Irish water spaniel owned by George Henneberry of Chicago; a golden retriever (if it arrives from England in time) owned by David P. Scobie, secretary of the club; and a black Labrador puppy owned by William Walker, a well known Chicago field trial enthusiast.

Entries for the trial close tomorrow night. Dog owners wishing further information regarding the event should communicate with David P. Scobie, secretary of the club, at 208 South La Salle street, Chicago.

These bulldogs will be entered in the big dog show to be staged in the Coliseum Nov. 23 and 24 by the Western Specialty Clubs association. They are shown with Mrs. Conway H. Olmstead of Lake Forest, Ill., the owner.

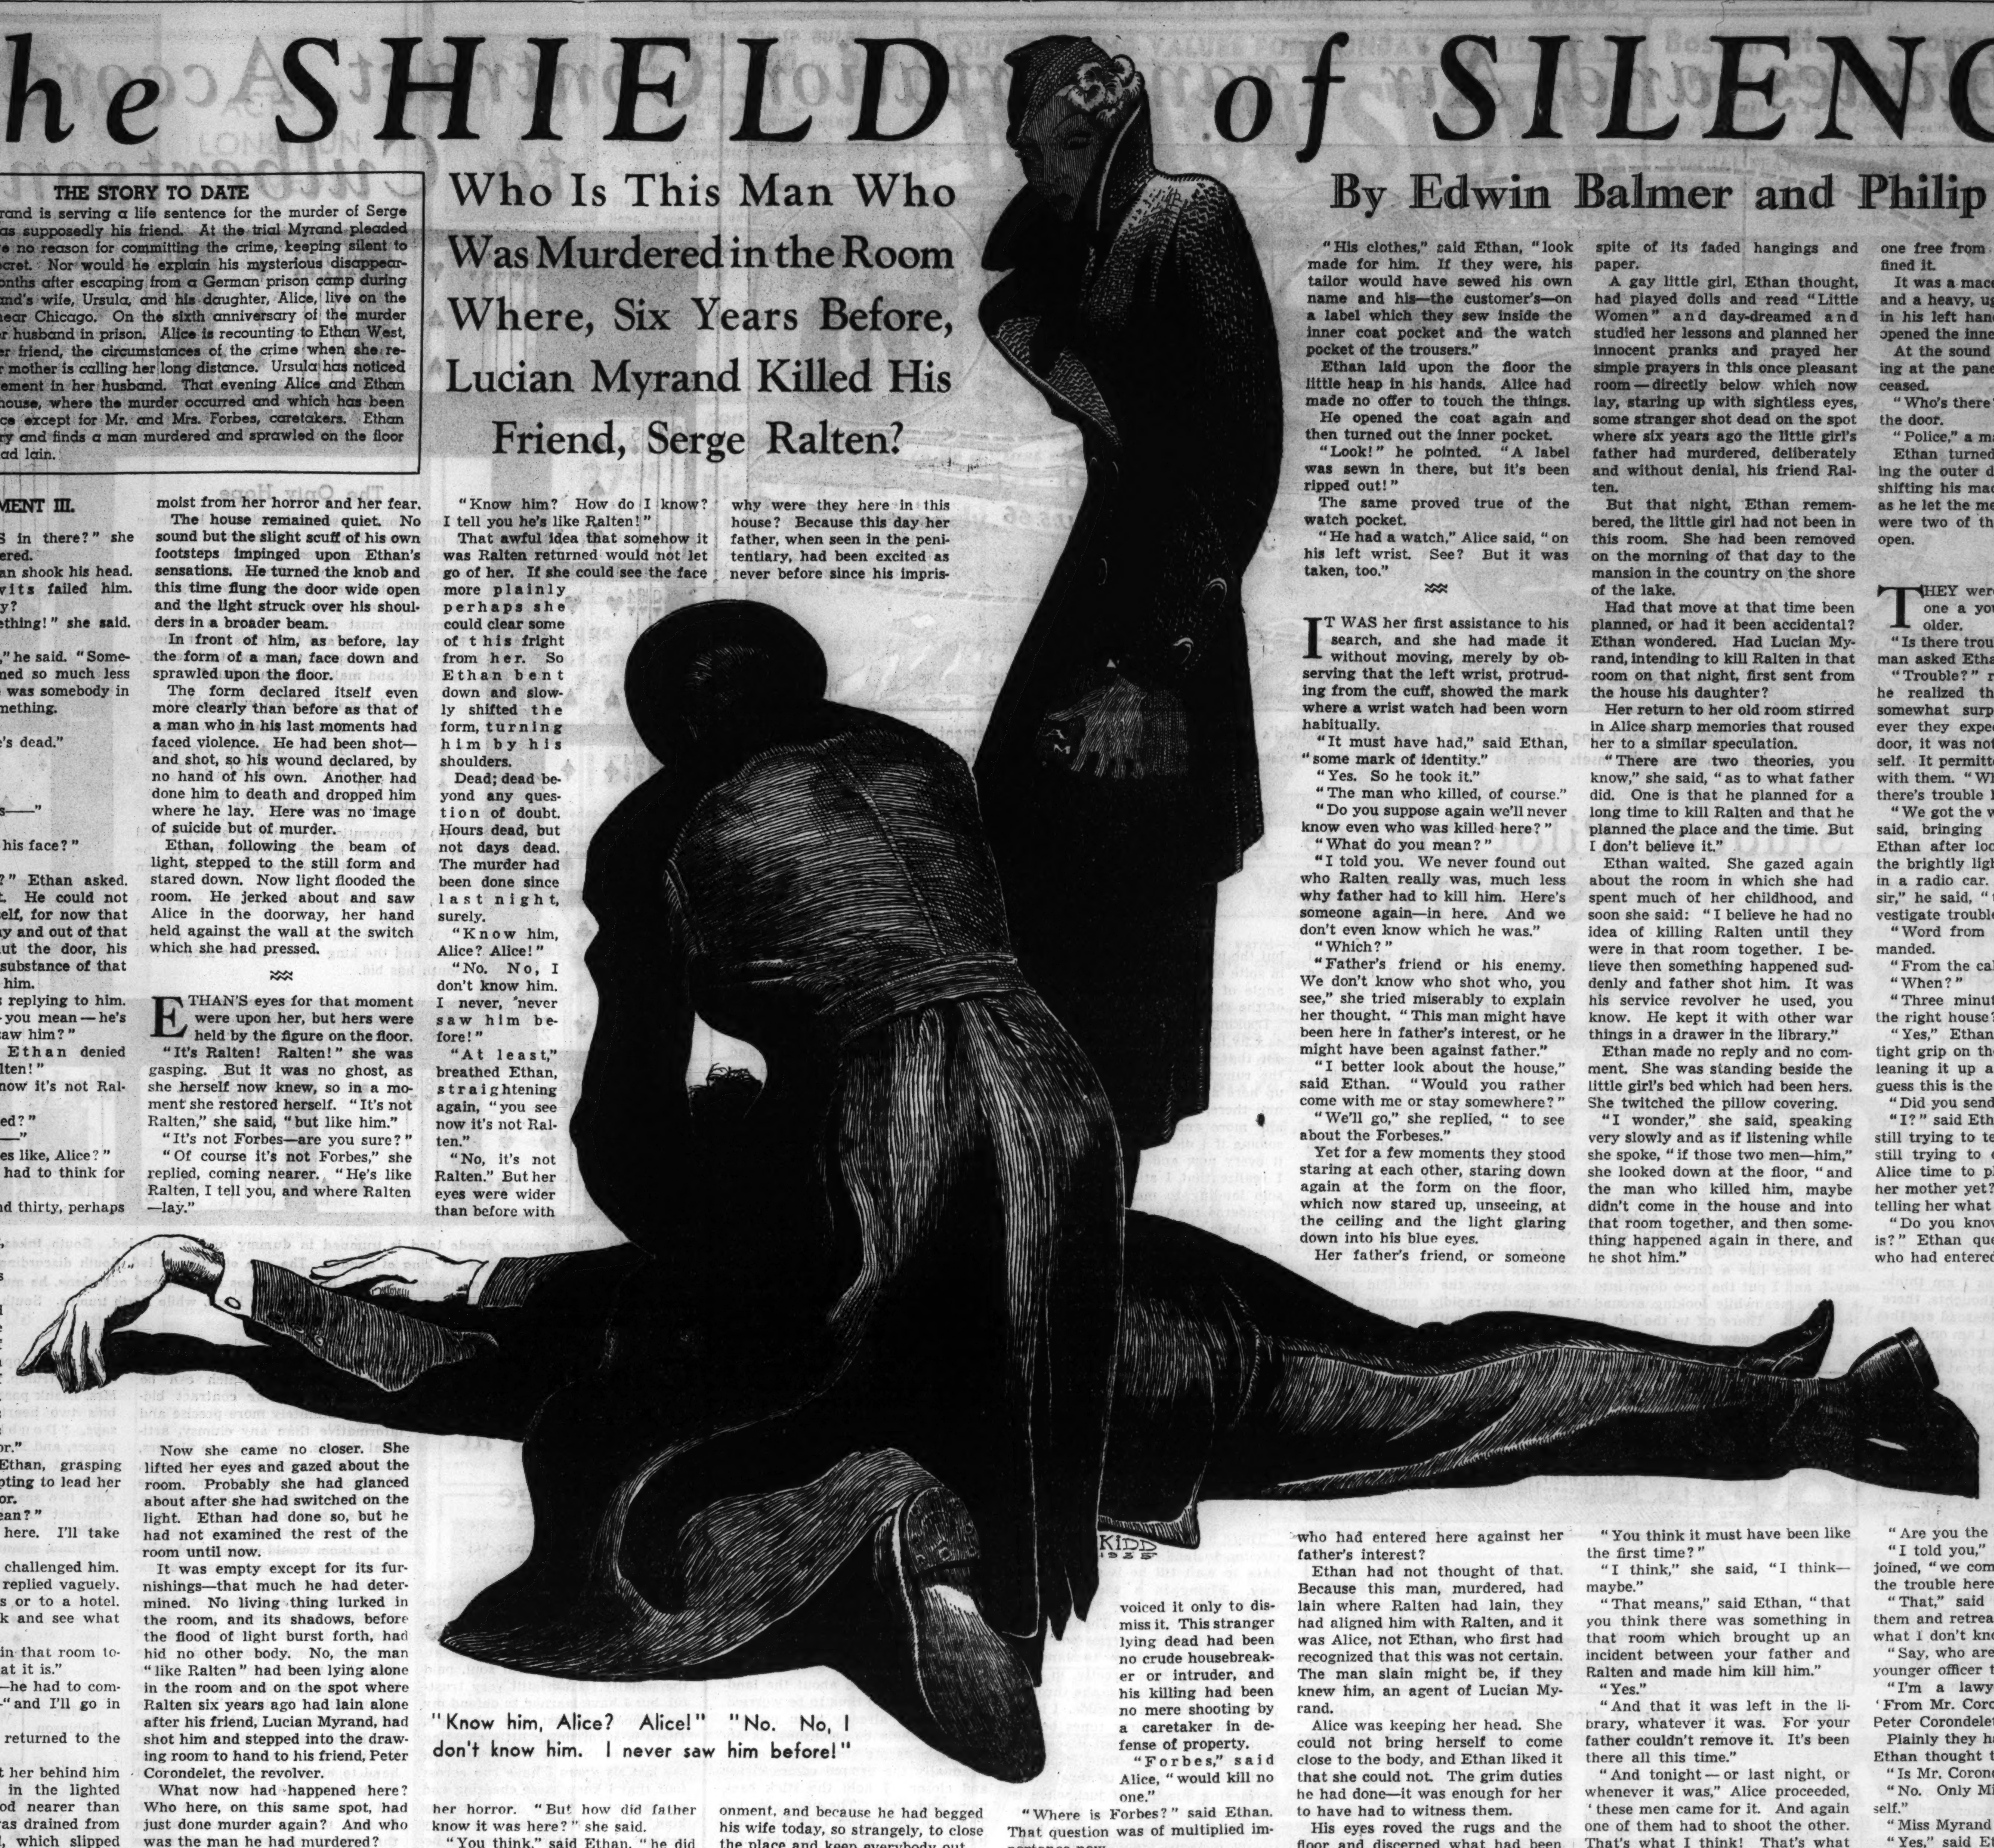
The SHIELD of SILENCE

Who Is This Man Who Was Murdered in the Room Where, Six Years Before, Lucian Myrand Killed His Friend, Serge Ralten?

By Edwin Balmer and Philip Wylie

THE STORY TO DATE

Lucian Myrand is serving a life sentence for the murder of Serge Ralten, who was supposedly his friend. At the trial Myrand pleaded guilty, but gave no reason for committing the crime, keeping silent to shield some secret. Nor would he explain his mysterious disappearance for ten months after escaping from a German prison camp during the war. Myrand's wife, Ursula, and his daughter, Alice, live on the family estate near Chicago. On the sixth anniversary of the murder Ursula visits her husband in prison. Alice is recounting to Ethan West, a young lawyer friend, the circumstances of the crime when she receives word her mother is calling her long distance. Ursula has noticed a strange excitement in her husband. That evening Alice and Ethan visit the town house, where the murder occurred and which has been untenanted since except for Mr. and Mrs. Forbes, caretakers. Ethan enters the library and finds a man murdered and sprawled on the floor where Ralten had lain.



"Know him, Alice? Alice!" "No. No, I don't know him. I never saw him before!"

INSTALMENT III.

"WHAT'S in there?" she whispered.

Ethan shook his head. His wits failed him. What could he say?

"You saw something!" she said. "Something!"

"Not something," he said. "Somebody." That seemed so much less to say—that there was somebody in that room, not something.

"Who?"

"A man—but he's dead."

"Where?"

"On the floor."

"On his face?"

"Yes. Was—was——"

"Was what?"

"Was Ralten on his face?"

"Yes."

"His arms out?" Ethan asked. He had to ask it. He could not have stopped himself, for now that he had backed away and out of that room and had shut the door, his recognition of the substance of that form began to fail him.

"Yes," Alice was replying to him. "Yes, you mean—you mean—he's there now? You saw him?"

"Not Ralten!" Ethan denied fiercely. "Not Ralten!"

"How do you know it's not Ralten?"

"Wasn't he buried?"

"Of course, but——"

"What was Forbes like, Alice?"

"Forbes?" She had to think for a moment.

"Was he tall—and thirty, perhaps—and dark?"

"Forbes wasn't, but Ralten was."

"I tell you it's not Ralten."

But reason had fled from her. She was in the hold of an awful secret in the shadow of which she lived. "He's lying on his face, you said! He's there inside the door."

"Come!" said Ethan, grasping her arm and attempting to lead her away from that door.

"What do you mean?"

"You can't stay here. I'll take you out."

"Where to?" she challenged him.

"To the car," he replied vaguely. "Or to a neighbor's or to a hotel. Then I'll come back and see what this is."

"Ethan, we'll go in that room together—and see what it is."

"You stay here"—he had to compromise with her—"and I'll go in again."

So once more he returned to the door.

She let him thrust her behind him and she did wait in the lighted room, but she stood nearer than before. All color was drained from her, and her hand, which slipped through his as he had released his clasp of her, was cold and moist from her horror and her fear.

The house remained quiet. No sound but the slight scuff of his own footsteps impinged upon Ethan's sensations. He turned the knob and this time flung the door wide open and the light struck over his shoulders in a broader beam.

In front of him, as before, lay the form of a man, face down and sprawled upon the floor.

The form declared itself even more clearly than before as that of a man who in his last moments had faced violence. He had been shot—and shot, so his wound declared, by no hand of his own. Another had done him to death and dropped him where he lay. Here was no image of suicide but of murder.

Ethan, following the beam of light, stepped to the still form and stared down. Now light flooded the room. He jerked about and saw Alice in the doorway, her hand held against the wall at the switch which she had pressed.

ETHAN'S eyes for that moment were upon her, but hers were held by the figure on the floor.

"It's Ralten! Ralten!" she was gasping. But it was no ghost, as she herself now knew, so in a moment she restored herself. "It's not Ralten," she said, "but like him."

"It's not Forbes—are you sure?"

"Of course it's not Forbes," she replied, coming nearer. "He's like Ralten, I tell you, and where Ralten—lay."

Now she came no closer. She lifted her eyes and gazed about the room. Probably she had glanced about after she had switched on the light. Ethan had done so, but he had not examined the rest of the room until now.

It was empty except for its furnishings—that much he had determined. No living thing lurked in the room, and its shadows, before the flood of light burst forth, had hid no other body. No, the man "like Ralten" had been lying alone in the room and on the spot where Ralten six years ago had lain alone after his friend, Lucian Myrand, had shot him and stepped into the drawing room to hand to his friend, Peter Corondelet, the revolver.

What now had happened here? Who here, on this same spot, had just done murder again? And who was the man he had murdered?

"Do you know him, Alice?" Ethan asked.

"Know him? How do I know? I tell you he's like Ralten!"

That awful idea that somehow it was Ralten returned would not let go of her. If she could see the face more plainly perhaps she could clear some of this fright from her. So Ethan bent down and slowly shifted the form, turning him by his shoulders.

Dead; dead beyond any question of doubt. Hours dead, but not days dead. The murder had been done since last night, surely.

"Know him, Alice? Alice!"

"No. No, I don't know him. I never, never saw him before!"

"At least," breathed Ethan, straightening again, "you see now it's not Ralten."

"No, it's not Ralten." But her eyes were wider than before with her horror. "But how did father know it was here?" she said.

"You think," said Ethan, "he did know?"

She shook her head, agast; but why were they here in this house? Because this day her father, when seen in the penitentiary, had been excited as never before since his imprisonment, and because he had begged his wife today, so strangely, to close the place and keep everybody out.

Ethan's eyes roved about.

They were in a large room. Not nearly so large as the drawing room, but large for a library, lined on all sides with books. There was a fireplace, a carved desk, a thick rug, and many comfortable chairs, with reading lamps, cabinets, chests, ship models, a globe, two tables, and in one corner a rack in which stood a half dozen tattered and faded medieval banners.

They did not go back to Agincourt—they could not—but they reminded Ethan West that the blood and lineage of the man who first had done murder in this room ran back to that battle and beyond it—his blood and lineage and his honor and his pride.

What of the second man who had done murder here? Who was he? And what connection had he and this murder which he had done on the same spot with that strange, silent soldier and gentleman locked in Joliet penitentiary for life?

A SINGLE shot, just one, had sufficed for this man, as it had for Ralten.

Ethan stared down at him, wondering whom he had faced when he had been shot and what was the reason. He had been thirty-five or thereabouts. His hair was black. He had been tall, slender, not muscular, with fairly regular features. The motionless eyes, which had not been closed, were blue. His clothes were good in fit and quality.

"You're sure you don't know him?" Ethan asked Alice again.

"I don't. Mother—or father—may."

"Yes," said Ethan.

"But father didn't know this." Alice defended her father with sudden fierceness. "It wasn't because he knew this was here that he told mother to keep everybody out of the house. It was because he wanted to prevent this man coming here to be killed; don't you see?"

"Of course I see," said Ethan, but he had to add: "How could your father know this man must be killed if he came here? Would Forbes kill anybody coming into the house?"

"Forbes?" repeated Alice again. "Forbes?" The idea that he had shot this man and left him in this way was so impossible to her that she had difficulty even in considering it. Indeed, Ethan himself had voiced it only to dismiss it. This stranger lying dead had been no crude housebreaker or intruder, and his killing had been no mere shooting by a caretaker in defense of property.

"Forbes," said Alice, "would kill no one."

"Where is Forbes?" said Ethan. That question was of multiplied importance now.

"He and his wife have the quarters over the kitchen," said Alice, and as she directed her thought to them suddenly she jerked with a shudder. "Do you suppose they didn't answer because——"

"They're killed, too?" Ethan finished for her. "No," he reassured her positively. "I don't suppose so at all."

"Why?"

"You said," rejoined Ethan, finding for himself a reason, "they were not required to be here always; they often were away. This man—and the one who killed him—would have chosen one of those times, wouldn't they?"

"Yes, but the man who killed him—where's he?"

"Not in the house," said Ethan. "That's one thing that ought to be certain. Could you imagine him staying?"

"No."

"I'll go to the Forbes' quarters in a minute, but first I want to know who this man—was."

"Yes," said Alice.

"I know I ought to call the police, but I won't just yet."

"No," Alice agreed with him again. She was standing quite still and almost straight. She did not move her feet, but Ethan saw she swayed a little. He felt none too steady himself, but excitement surged hotly through him.

He bent and opened the coat of the form on the floor and thrust his fingers into the inner pocket where most men carry card cases or wallets and papers important to them.

This pocket was completely empty.

The side coat pocket produced a handkerchief of good linen but without even an initial.

The waistcoat pockets were empty also except for a pair of tickets for a performance at the Schubert theater which Ethan realized was at this hour being given. The trousers pockets were more difficult to explore. In them Ethan found a pocket knife, a bunch of keys and two loose ones, and six silver coins, mostly quarters, and a roll of bank notes.

These were five fifty-dollar bills, three twenties, and two tens; three hundred and thirty dollars.

Ethan gathered his loot together and held it, looking down.

"He wasn't killed in here to be robbed," he said. "Well, I never thought so."

"No," Alice agreed again.

"His clothes," said Ethan, "look made for him. If they were, his tailor would have sewed his own name and his—the customer's—on a label which they sew inside the inner coat pocket and the watch pocket of the trousers."

Ethan laid upon the floor the little heap in his hands. Alice had made no offer to touch the things.

He opened the coat again and then turned out the inner pocket.

"Look!" he pointed. "A label was sewn in there, but it's been ripped out!"

The same proved true of the watch pocket.

"He had a watch," Alice said, "on his left wrist. See? But it was taken, too."

* * *

IT WAS her first assistance to his search, and she had made it without moving, merely by observing that the left wrist, protruding from the cuff, showed the mark where a wrist watch had been worn habitually.

"It must have had," said Ethan, "some mark of identity."

"Yes. So he took it."

"The man who killed, of course."

"Do you suppose again we'll never know even who was killed here?"

"What do you mean?"

"I told you. We never found out who Ralten really was, much less why father had to kill him. Here's someone again—in here. And we don't even know which he was."

"Which?"

"Father's friend or his enemy. We don't know who shot who, you see," she tried miserably to explain her thought. "This man might have been here in father's interest, or he might have been against father."

"I better look about the house," said Ethan. "Would you rather come with me or stay somewhere?"

"We'll go," she replied, "to see about the Forbeses."

Yet for a few moments they stood staring at each other, staring down again at the form on the floor, which now stared up, unseeing, at the ceiling and the light glaring down into his blue eyes.

Her father's friend, or someone who had entered here against her father's interest?

Ethan had not thought of that. Because this man, murdered, had lain where Ralten had lain, they had aligned him with Ralten, and it was Alice, not Ethan, who first had recognized that this was not certain. The man slain might be, if they knew him, an agent of Lucian Myrand.

Alice was keeping her head. She could not bring herself to come close to the body, and Ethan liked it that she could not. The grim duties he had done—it was enough for her to have had to witness them.

His eyes roved the rugs and the floor and discerned what had been plain enough, though neither had noticed it. There was no great stain of rusty blood where the body now lay. A few feet away, nearer the door but more to the side of the room, there was a wide dried spot.

Ethan went to it.

"He fell here, I think," he said to Alice when she spoke to him. "Then the other man dragged him to the center of the room."

"To make him lie like Ralten?"

"Yes."

"What does that mean, Ethan?"

"It means, of course," said Ethan as gently as he could, "all the same thing, when we find it out. It must mean all the same thing."

"Which father knows and will never tell!"

"Let's look around the house now, Alice."

They left the lights ablaze but closed the door as they deserted the library with its dead. They stepped again through the splendid drawing room wherein the guests had been gathered that night. How differently this new murder must have been done! In these rooms and in the house, two men alone? Or more?

But this time the murderer had fled.

No sign nor sound told of him. Room after room, Alice lit the house, and they came to the caretakers' quarters.

No trouble there. No one there, alive or dead. The appearance of the Forbes' room, bed made, everything in order and tidied, declared that the caretaker and his wife merely were away. There was no smallest suggestion in the servants' quarters of alarm or catastrophe. In the servants' hall in the rear, as at the front, a single melancholy bulb had been left burning.

But now the whole house was alight, upstairs and below

Ethan, no longer leading, for he feared no further surprise, followed Alice Myrand as she showed him the way from the rear to the front of the house, upstairs, and she switched on the lights in the rooms which had been her mother's and father's and her own.

The bedroom and dressing rooms and bath which Lucian and Ursula Myrand had shared were above the drawing room. The bedchamber of their child, who had been eleven at the time of the killing of Ralten, was directly above the library.

It was a child's room yet, unchanged since the May of the murder—a cheerful, even gay room in spite of its faded hangings and paper.

A gay little girl, Ethan thought, had played dolls and read "Little Women" and day-dreamed and studied her lessons and planned her innocent pranks and prayed her simple prayers in this once pleasant room—directly below which now lay, staring up with sightless eyes, some stranger shot dead on the spot where six years ago the little girl's father had murdered, deliberately and without denial, his friend Ralten.

But that night, Ethan remembered, the little girl had not been in this room. She had been removed on the morning of that day to the mansion in the country on the shore of the lake.

Had that move at that time been planned, or had it been accidental? Ethan wondered. Had Lucian Myrand, intending to kill Ralten in that room on that night, first sent from the house his daughter?

Her return to her old room stirred in Alice sharp memories that roused her to a similar speculation.

"There are two theories, you know," she said, "as to what father did. One is that he planned for a long time to kill Ralten and that he planned the place and the time. But I don't believe it."

Ethan waited. She gazed again about the room in which she had spent much of her childhood, and soon she said: "I believe he had no idea of killing Ralten until they were in that room together. I believe then something happened suddenly and father shot him. It was his service revolver he used, you know. He kept it with other war things in a drawer in the library."

Ethan made no reply and no comment. She was standing beside the little girl's bed which had been hers. She twitched the pillow covering.

"I wonder," she said, speaking very slowly and as if listening while she spoke, "if those two men—him," she looked down at the floor, "and the man who killed him, maybe didn't come in the house and into that room together, and then something happened again in there, and he shot him."

"You think it must have been like the first time?"

"I think," she said, "I think—maybe."

"That means," said Ethan, "that you think there was something in that room which brought up an incident between your father and Ralten and made him kill him."

"Yes."

"And that it was left in the library, whatever it was. For your father couldn't remove it. It's been there all this time."

"And tonight—or last night, or whenever it was," Alice proceeded, "these men came for it. And again one of them had to shoot the other. That's what I think! That's what I think!" she whispered, clenching her little fists tensely.

"And your father," added Ethan, "knew, though he was in the penitentiary, that they were coming to the house for it. Or that one of them was coming."

For a moment Alice made no response. She stood still, strained, as though unable to hear him. Then he perceived that it was because she was listening to something which he had not heard.

"It's the doorbell!" she said. "The front doorbell. At night, when everything was still, sometimes I could just hear it. Listen!"

Now he heard it, muffled and far away, but audible—a doorbell buzzing in the rear hall below.

"See who it is, Ethan," she said. "Leave the lights on up here. Leave all the lights on."

"I will. . . . Ethan!"

"What?"

"I've got to phone to mother. I've got to talk to mother—first."

They were in the upper hall now, and they could hear the bell buzzer sounding almost continuously. As they had come from the rear of the house, they had left doors open behind them and the signal was sharp and ceaseless.

It was reinforced by a pounding at the front door. That was heavy oak, Ethan remembered. The sound was of a club beating upon the wood.

"Police," said Ethan to Alice. "Nobody else would make that noise."

"First I've got to get mother," Alice repeated, and she stopped at the door of her mother's room.

TO THE right of the front door as Ethan approached it was a window over which a shade was drawn but which by its position must command the street.

Ethan went to this window, thrust back the edge of the blind, and looked out. He could not see the front steps of the house, but he could see the street directly in front, where a small car stood at the curb in front of the car in which he had driven with Alice from Lake Forest.

A police car, he thought, but he could not see it distinctly. He turned from the window, and in this little alcove from the hall he saw two old iron weapons, medieval in type, crossed on the wall as decorations. He reached up and twisted one free from the wire which confined it.

It was a mace with a light handle and a heavy, ugly head. Holding it in his left hand, with his right he opened the inner door.

At the sound he made the pounding at the panel of the oaken door ceased.

"Who's there?" he called through the door.

"Police," a man answered.

Ethan turned the knob unlatching the outer door and stood back, shifting his mace to his right hand as he let the men outside—for there were two of them—push the door open.

* * *

THEY were police in uniform, one a young man, the other older.

"Is there trouble here?" the older man asked Ethan.

"Trouble?" repeated Ethan, and he realized that his appearance somewhat surprised them. Whoever they expected to answer the door, it was not a person like himself. It permitted him to temporize with them. "What makes you think there's trouble here?" he asked.

"We got the word," the older man said, bringing his eyes back to Ethan after looking past him into the brightly lighted house. "We're in a radio car. We got the word, sir," he said, "to come here to investigate trouble."

"Word from where?" Ethan demanded.

"From the call station."

"When?"

"Three minutes ago. Ain't this the right house?"

"Yes," Ethan said, relaxing his tight grip on the mace he held and leaning it up against the wall, "I guess this is the right house."

"Did you send in the call, sir?"

"I?" said Ethan. "No." He was still trying to temporize with them, still trying to delay them to give Alice time to phone. Had she got her mother yet? And how was she telling her what had happened here?

"Do you know whose house this is?" Ethan questioned the police, who had entered as he had retreated a little. They were all now in the hall, and the younger of the two men in uniform closed behind him the outer door.

"It's Myrand's, isn't it?" said the man who had spoken before. "Him that's in the pen. The man on beat said so."

"Are you the man on beat?"

"I told you," the older officer rejoined, "we come in a car. What's the trouble here?"

"That," said Ethan, confronting them and retreating no farther, "is what I don't know."

"Say, who are you?" It was the younger officer this time.

"I'm a lawyer," said Ethan. "From Mr. Corondelet's office. Mr. Peter Corondelet's."

Plainly they had heard of him, as Ethan thought they might have.

"Is Mr. Corondelet here, too?"

"No. Only Miss Myrand and myself."

"Miss Myrand? You mean——"

"Yes," said Ethan. "The daughter of the owner of the house."

"She don't live here."

"No. We just came here, she and I together, a little while ago."

"Why?"

Why? That was it. That was what was going to be exceedingly awkward to explain.

"We had the same tip you got later," Ethan replied, able to think of nothing better. "We got the tip tonight there was trouble here."

"All right. Was there?"

"There was."

"What trouble?"

"There's a man dead in here."

"Dead? How? Who?"

"We don't know who, but he was shot."

"Shot?"

"Yes. Come in. You had better come in and see him. We think—in fact, we're pretty sure—that he was murdered. Come this way, please."

This Week's Opportunities for All of Us

For BUYING: Monday, Tuesday afternoon, Wednesday, and Thursday.

For SELLING: Monday and Tuesday.

For ROMANCE: Monday forenoon, Tuesday afternoon, Thursday, Saturday afternoon.

For FINANCE: Wednesday, Saturday, and next Sunday.

For TRAVEL: Today, Monday, Thursday, and Friday.

For OCCUPATION: Today and Saturday.

For LEGAL MATTERS: Today, Thursday, and Friday.

For IMPROVING HEALTH: Today, Wednesday, and Saturday.

DAY BY DAY

MONDAY, TUESDAY, and WEDNESDAY: Don't overlook opportunities to cultivate friendships; coöperate with friends, new ones and old ones, too; choose the right kind, however.

MONDAY, OCT. 21: Very haywire; choose new in preference to old if forced to make decision. Best for those born April 10-22, Aug. 13-25, and Dec. 12-24.

TUESDAY, OCT. 22: First of four days for finishing old plans; careful on new, untried items. Best for those born Jan. 1-5, April 22 to May 5, Aug. 25 to Sept. 7, and Dec. 24-31.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 23: Avoid accidents in later hours; inspirations not apt to be accurate. Best for those born Jan. 5-15, May 5-16, and Sept. 7-18.

THURSDAY, FRIDAY, and SATURDAY: Good period to study and get the low-down on your real inner self; avoid negative secrets and confidences; keep acts above possible criticism.

THURSDAY, OCT. 24: Steer around money decisions in midafternoon; don't shift ideas too fast. Best for those born Jan. 15-27, May 16-28, and Sept. 18-30.

FRIDAY, OCT. 25: Favorable for thinking out your problems to their conclusions; wind up the old. Best for those born Jan. 27 to Feb. 8, May 28 to June 10, and Sept. 30 to Oct. 12.

SATURDAY, OCT. 26: Accent on all that has been for last three days; make no quick changes. Best for those born Feb. 8-20, June 10-22, and Oct. 12-24.

SUNDAY, OCT. 27: If upset, try to relax; don't start out in new directions; hold emotions. Best for those born Feb. 20 to March 4, June 22 to July 4, and Oct. 24 to Nov. 5.

FAVORED GROUPS

This week's vibrations favor expansion, creative effort, and the consideration of new plans by those born on and between these dates:

JANUARY 4-14.
FEBRUARY 5-11.
MARCH 16-24.
APRIL 13-29.
MAY 3-15.
JUNE 7-13.
JULY 17-25.
AUGUST 16-28.
SEPTEMBER 5-20.
OCTOBER 9-18.
NOVEMBER 17-28.
DECEMBER 15-30.

Notable persons born in the foregoing periods are Mona Barrie, Irene Dunne, Marion Talley, Albert Payson Terhune, Reginald Denny, Doris Duke, Corinne Griffith, and Harry Richman.

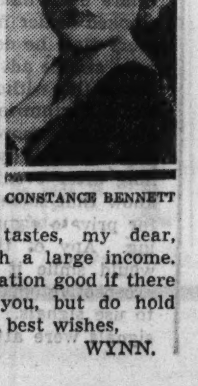
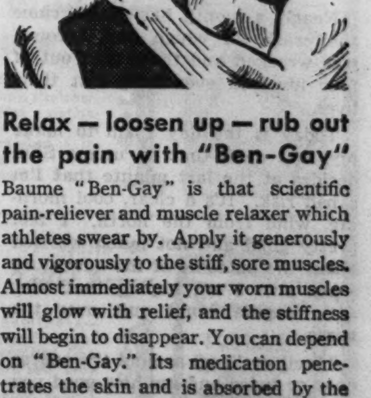
An Open Letter to Constance Bennett



CONSTANCE BENNETT

Dear Constance: Yours is not the horoscope of a natural saver. I dare say you care nothing for money itself. That is as it should be, if you realize what it is you do care for in the department of what money will buy. It is my suggestion that you adjust your sights on the basis that you could spend all you can earn if you were really to try hard. You have expensive tastes, my dear, even for one with a large income. It would do the nation good if there were more like you, but do hold some of it. With best wishes,

WYNN.



Relax — loosen up — rub out the pain with "Ben-Gay"

Baume "Ben-Gay" is that scientific pain-reliever and muscle relaxer which athletes swear by. Apply it generously and vigorously to the stiff, sore muscles. Almost immediately your worn muscles will glow with relief, and the stiffness will begin to disappear. You can depend on "Ben-Gay." Its medication penetrates the skin and is absorbed by the blood stream, bringing welcome relief.

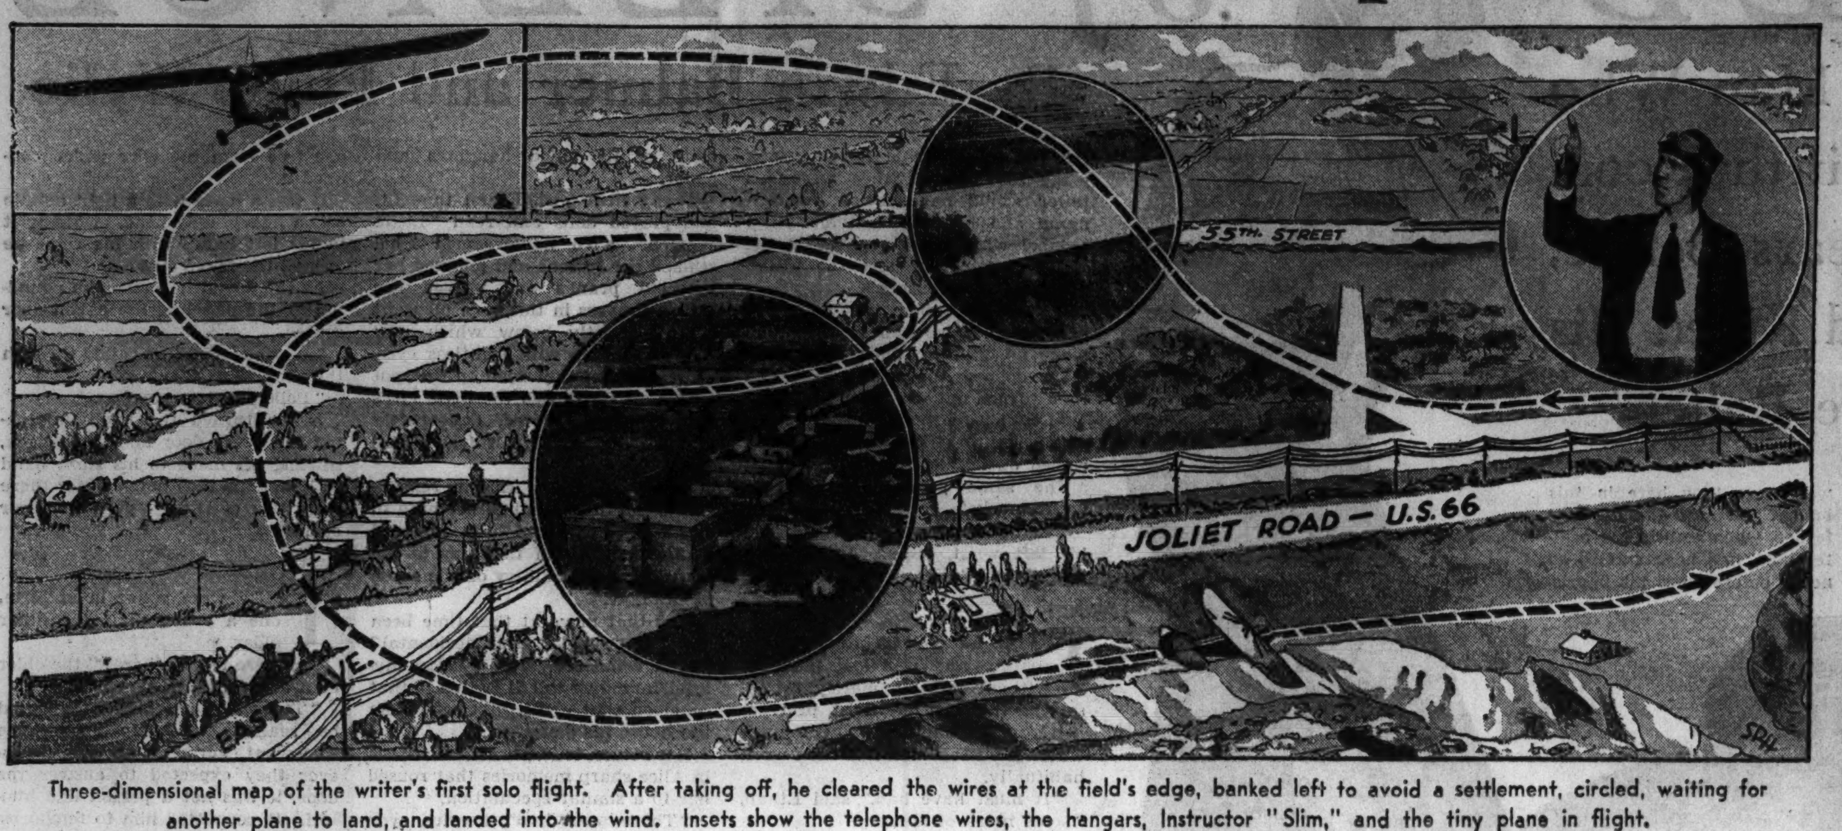
Airplanes and Air Transportation



Three-dimensional map of the writer's first solo flight. After taking off, he cleared the wires at the field's edge, banked left to avoid a settlement, circled, waiting for another plane to land, and landed into the wind. Insets show the telephone wires, the hangars, Instructor "Slim," and the tiny plane in flight.

This is the sixth and concluding instalment in a series of six articles on "Learning to Fly." The student pilot tells in this instalment of the disaster that postponed his first solo, of instruction in forced landings, and finally of his successful solo flight.

Student Pilot Makes His First Solo Flight

By GUY MURCHIE JR.

IT IS a bright, clear Sunday afternoon, Aug. 4, as I drive out to Stinson airport for lesson number six, which probably is to include my first solo flight. I have been able to think of little else all day. I feel as if I could fly alone all right, for I have taken off and landed entirely unassisted more than half a dozen times already—but there is just enough uncertainty in my mind to keep me from being very calm about it.

What if the engine should die just as I get over the wires? What if I should have to come down in one of the quarries? Just as I am thinking these uncertain thoughts, there ahead of me beside the road are the quarries themselves. I am only half a mile from the airport now. As I get nearer I look closely at the field immediately to the right of the road, wondering if it would be a good place to land if my engine failed just over the quarry. In fifteen minutes or even less I may be up there all alone, and sizzling downward to a forced landing. It seems a very practical thing to look over the ground underneath before I go up.

Just at this moment I notice that there seem to be a great many cars parked along the road, and a motorcycle policeman directing trafic near the airport. I begin to wonder if these people all are stopping to watch the Sunday afternoon flying.

Then I notice something yellow and red off in the field to the right, about 300 feet from the end of the runway. It is a plane, and there is another plane right beside it. Both are wrecked.

Parking my car, I hurry over to the scene of the disaster, and as I get near I recognize that the little red and yellow plane is our Aeronca, which I was due to fly in about ten minutes. My first thought is that perhaps Slim, my instructor, was flying in her.

Coming up to the crowd, I see Slim standing in the midst. I go up to him. "It was Hobbs," he says. "He's one of the other instructors. He was flying with a student. They were struck by a plane from Municipal airport, and both planes fell spinning to the ground. I guess you won't go flying today after all."

I drive home again, thinking very hard about what caused the tragedy, so it may never happen to me. It does seem almost unbelievable that, with the whole sky to fly in, two planes should ever collide by pure coincidence as did these.

But there is one thing that strikes me as a great weakness in most airplanes—they do not give the pilot adequate vision. In the Aeronca, which Slim says is better than most ships, you can't see directly in front of you because of the engine, nor anywhere except out to the side on which you happen to be sitting. What is behind you, directly in front of you, most of what is below you, and all of what is on the opposite side from where you sit is completely unknown to you. A thousand-foot dirigible could approach you from one of your blind sides without your ever being aware of it. Some day, I suppose, this weakness will be corrected.

Nearly a month has passed since the crash, in which our Aeronca was wrecked and three men out of four involved eventually lost their lives.

Today is the day I am to make my first solo—that is, unless Slim decides at the last minute that I'm a bad risk. It's a clear, cool morning, wind from the north. I feel pretty good and not much worried about the outcome of the adventure—but still I am hoping that that little engine won't quit over the wires.

"Well, we'll go around the course once or twice and see how good you are," says Slim cheerily.

He gets in beside me and we take off to the north. The ship rides through the air quite smoothly—this cool weather is good for flying—and I feel more relaxed than ever before. The stick is getting so it feels more like a baseball bat than a crowbar. I suppose it will be some time before it gets to feel like a wand.

After one trip around the regular rectangular course which I always fly, Slim says: "When you have to make a forced landing, always land into the wind if you can, but if there is no field in the right direction for that, take the next best cross landing."

We take off again. Half way around the course Slim suddenly pulls the throttle closed and says, "What're you going to do now?"

"It looks like a forced landing," say I, and I put the nose down into a glide, meanwhile looking around for a field. There off to the left is a strip of meadow that looks landable, though a bit rough. I bank that way, making a half turn to get heading into the wind. As I swoop low preparatory to leveling off a few feet above the grass, Slim gives her the gun again and up we go.

Upper sketch: The greatest danger in making a forced landing.
Lower sketch: You live longer if you respect the law of gravity.

"I just wanted to see what you'd do," says he. "I didn't want to actually land. It might frighten those horses down there."

"Well, how did I do?"

"Not too good," says Slim. "There are better fields over here to the right. That field you picked has a wire fence running through it. You might have missed the fence, but then you mightn't, and we'd land with the ship all tied in a knot around us."

Pretty soon Slim pulls the throttle on me again and I try once more my hand at picking out the spot. This time I realize better that at 500 feet there isn't a great need for hurrying, and I spend more time looking around—with better results when I come down. It is not easy, though, to judge the exact condition of the ground from several hundred feet up. Rough places big enough to trip up the wheels and turn the plane over on its nose are scarcely noticeable to my unpracticed eye, and a thing like a four-foot haystack or a couple of sheep seems not worth thinking about from 500 feet.

As I finish my fourth time around the course, Slim quietly steps out of the cabin and says, "Now see what you can do alone."

"I'll miss you," say I.

"Well, don't miss the field," grins he. "If you overshoot, go on around a second time. You've got plenty of gas, so go on around for four hours if you have to. I'll stand here by the runway. If I hold my hands down this way, that means to land. If I sweep my arms this way, it means to go on around again. If I hold up my handkerchief, that means the wind is changing. If I don't do anything, that means do what you think best. O. K.? Now, don't start till I get clear."

He walks back from the little plane. "O. K.!" he shouts.

With a slightly delirious feeling I give her the gun, heading straight down the runway. I don't think of Slim any more. He is standing back there somewhere on the field. All I can think is that it's up to me, and I concentrate on the business of getting off the ground.

The ship feels noticeably lighter without Slim's 170 pounds, and the tail rises off the cinders more easily than usual. Holding the stick forward, with the propeller roaring full blast, we race forward over the slightly uneven surface. Presently begins that familiar clickety-click feeling of the wheels jumping lightly over the tops of the lumps of cinders—then, before I know it, we are in the air. Being 170 pounds lighter has reduced the takeoff run considerably. Hanging barely off the ground, the plane flies level for a few seconds, gathering more speed, and then, with no perceptible urging from me, it begins to climb.

Now I can look right down on the road at the edge of the field and wonder what the people in those cars think of that crazy aviator zooming just over their heads. Now we are over the cornfield beyond the road — rapidly coming to the small quarry with the lake in it. The altimeter reads 200 feet already. I never went up so fast before.

I almost forget I am alone and have to keep reminding myself: "You're alone—it's up to you now—you're soloing—whatever happens now, you've got to cope with it alone. If the motor quits, you've got to come down—alone! It might quit any second!"

Hurriedly I look over the ground beneath me, thinking of whether it would be better to try that cornfield there or that open lot between those rows of houses over there in case the engine quits. Before I have time to make up my mind we have passed that place and I have a different set of fields to choose from.

At about 500 feet I level off, cutting the throttle down to about 2,100 R.P.M.'s, the regular cruising speed, but the plane keeps on rising a little in spite of me. I have to adjust the angle of attack to the new weight of the ship.

Looking down at the landing field as I fly by down wind, I can see the dot that must be Slim standing in the runway. It seems queer being up here alone and looking down at him there, but I don't feel nervous any more and would forget I was soloing if I didn't remind myself of it every now and then. Of course, I realize that I still have my first solo landing to make, and that is considered the real test.

Looking around in the sky for other planes, just in case some bird might be coming over from nearby Municipal airport, as happened in the tragic case of Hobbs, I fly toward a position down wind from the field. A few seconds after I stop looking for trafic, suddenly something moves past me in the sky overhead. A plane! It is a big red biplane overtaking me from behind. I wonder if the pilot of it saw me, or whether it was pure luck that made him pass a bare hundred feet or so directly over my head.

There he goes into a glide. He is circling to land at our field. I will have to wait till he is off the runway. Flying in a wide circle, I watch him land and taxi slowly over to the hangars. Then I bank around over the quarries south of the field preparatory to landing. Straightening out directly in line with the runway, I close the throttle part way and start my glide. I have done this some thirty times before with Slim beside me, but it seems a little different every time—especially this time. There is always the perplexing question of just when is the proper time to close the throttle. You can't judge by your horizontal distance from the field, because your altitude makes just as much difference. And even your altitude and your horizontal distance together don't answer the question, because the velocity of the wind and the angle of glide and the bumpiness of the air all play a part. It is far from easy for me to judge correctly the proper moment. If I wait too long I will overshoot the field and have to climb again and come all the way around to try a second time. If I don't wait long enough I will not be able to reach the field without giving her the gun again, and if the gun should fail it would be just too bad, with that quarry below and those damnable wires at the field's edge.

Taking what seems the right moment, I pull the throttle shut and coast down—down—the wind whistling through the braces and wires as the idling "prop" spins with a gentle whirring tone. I can see our shadow moving along the ground below, which gives me a fair idea of my ground speed (speed in relation to the ground), but my air speed (speed in relation to the air) is never so easy to judge. The whistling sound of the wires and that indefinable feel of the ship are about all there is to go by. I keep my nose well down, remembering Slim's oft-repeated warning that 70 per cent of flying accidents result from failure to do just that. Motion through the air must be kept up at all costs, or the plane won't keep up.

Nearer and nearer comes the field, with the speck of Slim far down the runway growing bigger and bigger. Will I get over the wires? A bit doubtful on that important point, I gun her a little to make sure. The engine sputters a bit, having been cooled during the glide, but responds after a second or two and I get safely over the wires.

Now the landing. Slim in the distance seems to be doing nothing, so I forget about him and concentrate on the ground before me. During the glide I could look over the engine and see the runway with comparatively unobstructed vision, but now, leveling off, the plane's nose is higher and in the way. I have to look under the left cylinder and mostly to the side, judging my height above the ground and speed by the small strip of earth that I can see beneath me.

I am not worried about the landing. There is no time to be worried. The landing already is in process, and my whole consciousness is absorbed in easing the ship to earth. Gradually the ground comes closer and closer. I hold the stick back more and more. The nose goes up. The tail goes down. At last, just before the ground touches the wheels, I ease the stick all the way back to drop the tail skid to the cinders. Ah! Click—bump. With a relaxing rumble the ship settles on its three points and coasts to a stop.

How easy it all seemed! The takeoff, and the landing, too, were easier than when Slim was in the plane with me, probably because the lightened load enabled the plane to stay in the air with less air speed.

In a few seconds Slim comes running to the cabin door. He extends a congratulatory hand. "Now you're a pilot," he grins, shaking my hand. "Go around again."

FAVORITE POEMS

SAMUEL TAYLOR COLERIDGE, writer, poet, and philosopher, was called "the best intellect since Samuel Johnson." He was born in his father's vicarage in Devonshire, England, Oct. 22, 1772, and died July 25, 1834. He entered Cambridge university, left before graduation, and enlisted in the army, a field for which he was not fitted and from which his friends extricated him. His first volume of poems was published in 1796. Later he became a warm friend of the poet Wordsworth, who gave him the idea of the albatross for the poem "The Ancient Mariner." That work, "Kubla Khan," and "Christabel" are among his best known poems.

KUBLA KHAN

In Xanadu did Kubla Khan
A stately pleasure-dome decree:
Where Alph, the sacred river, ran
Through caverns measureless to man
  Down to a sunless sea.
So twice five miles of fertile ground
With walls and towers were girdled round:
And there were gardens bright with sinuous rills,
Where blossomed many an incense-bearing tree;
And here were forests ancient as the hills,
Enfolding sunny spots of greenery.

But O! that deep romantic chasm which slanted
Down the green hill athwart a cedarn cover!
A savage place! as holy and enchanted
As e'er beneath a waning moon was haunted
By woman wailing for her demon-lover!
  And from this chasm, with ceaseless turmoil seething,
As if this earth in fast thick pants were breathing,
A mighty fountain momently was forced:
Amid whose swift half-intermitted burst
Huge fragments vaulted like rebounding hail,
Or chaffy grain beneath the thresher's flail:
And 'mid these dancing rocks at once and ever
It flung up momently the sacred river.
Five miles meandering with a mazy motion
Through wood and dale the sacred river ran,
Then reached the caverns measureless to man,
And sank in tumult to a lifeless ocean:
And 'mid this tumult Kubla heard from far
Ancestral voices prophesying war!
  The shadow of dome of pleasure
  Floated midway on the waves;
  There was heard the mingled measure
  From the fountain and the caves.
It was a miracle of rare device,
A sunny pleasure-dome with caves of ice!

A damsel with a dulcimer
In a vision once I saw:
It was an Abyssinian maid,
And on her dulcimer she played,
Singing of Mount Abora.
Could I revive within me
Her symphony and song,
To such a deep delight 'twould win me
That with music loud and long
I would build that dome in air,
That sunny dome! those caves of ice!
And all who heard should see them there,
And all should cry, Beware! Beware!
His flashing eyes, his floating hair!
Weave a circle round him thrice,
And close your eyes with holy dread,
For he on honey-dew hath fed,
And drunk the milk of paradise.

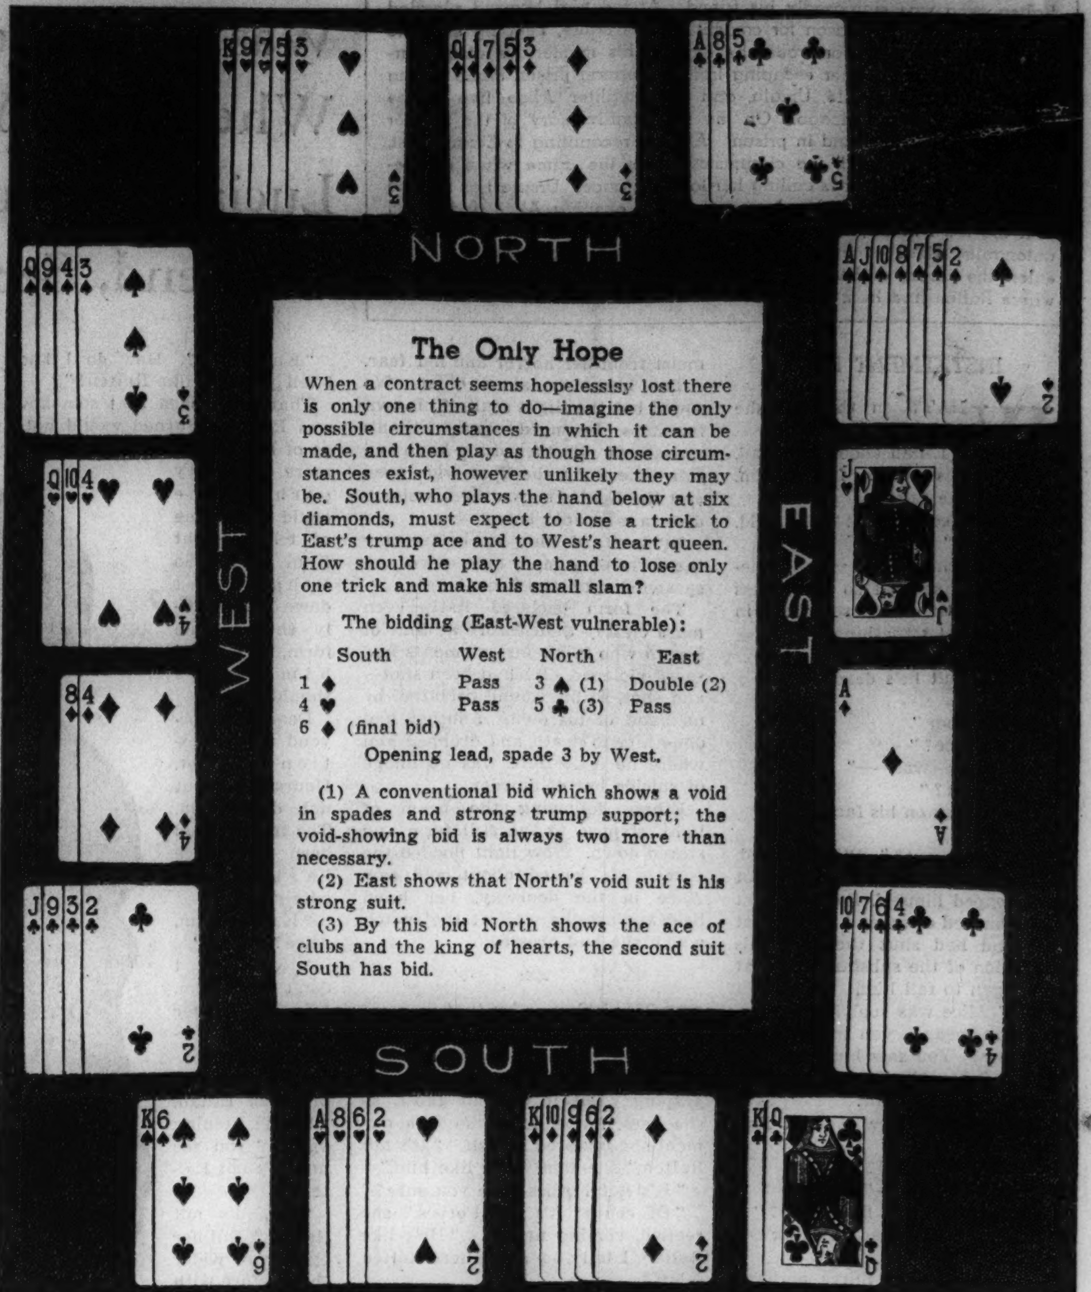
Contract According to Culbertson



The Only Hope

When a contract seems hopelessisy lost there is only one thing to do—imagine the only possible circumstances in which it can be made, and then play as though those circumstances exist, however unlikely they may be. South, who plays the hand below at six diamonds, must expect to lose a trick to East's trump ace and to West's heart queen. How should he play the hand to lose only one trick and make his small slam?

The bidding (East-West vulnerable):

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Pass	3 ♠ (1)	Double (2)
4 ♥	Pass	5 ♣ (3)	Pass
6 ♦ (final bid)

Opening lead, spade 3 by West.

(1) A conventional bid which shows a void in spades and strong trump support; the void-showing bid is always two more than necessary.

(2) East shows that North's void suit is his strong suit.

(3) By this bid North shows the ace of clubs and the king of hearts, the second suit South has bid.

SOLUTION: The opening spade lead is trumped in dummy and a club led. South takes the club king and queen, then leads and trumps his king of spades. The ace of clubs is led, South discarding a heart. Now the king of hearts is taken, then a diamond is led. Since East has the diamond ace alone, he must take the trick and lead a club or a spade; on either of these South discards a heart, while North trumps. South now has the ace of hearts and high diamonds, and need not lose another trick.

Cheats Can't Succeed at Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON

I NEVER learned to cheat because I always felt that the temptation might be too great to resist. But in the course of my experience I came up against cheaters and, being a trustful soul, paid the penalty. I am still very trustful, but I have learned to defend my pocketbook against the sharps. There is surprisingly little cheating going on in the world of bridge. In the last six years I have run across four that I knew were cheating and a dozen or so of the petty larceny kind. All of them paid the heavy penalty of social ostracism. I believe there would be a couple of million cheaters at least if it weren't for the fact that the art of cheating is a very difficult one, requiring courage and patience, and that even then the best of artists is defeated by the inexorable rhythm of what is more or less probable in the ebb and flow of cards.

There are about three common ways of cheating at cards. The first is by stacking the deck or introducing a cold deck. The sharper tries to protect himself against the cut by replacing the cut halves of the deck in their original order or by bending a card so that an unwary player will cut at the prepared place. The second way is by dealing seconds, the trick of a few aristocrats of crookdom. By practicing for years as a person might in order to become a great violinist or pianist a man can make his fingers so supple that when, in dealing from a marked pack, he sees an ace or a king about to go to an adversary, he can deal that player instead the card just below the ace or king. When one of these virtuosi deals, his fingers are truly quicker than the eye. I have been told that the only way to detect this trick is to listen to the deal instead of watching. It seems that when a card is dealt from anywhere other than the top of the pack its snap is slightly muted. The third way of cheating is by signals.

None of these methods of cheating will succeed in the long run at bridge, because bridge is not a game of climaxes, but of steady, consistent strategy. At some card games a crook can play honestly for hours, never plunging, and wait for a time when his victims have grown careless or unsteady. One crooked deal or one use of a crooked set of signals can then shear a lamb of all his fleece. It is not so at bridge, where each hand is important. A crooked dealer must use his talents every time he deals if he wishes to get a sizable advantage, and he cannot do this without rhythm in cards and a rhythm in good breaks. If a player gets more than his share of good cards every time he deals, evening after evening, his adversaries know that something is wrong. As for private signals, they are amusing. Any of the ranking players would smile if warned that some prospective opponents were plotting to use signals. The very fact that signals were attempted would be a confession of inferiority, because the delicate inferences which can be conveyed in regular contract bidding are infinitely more precise and informative than any clumsy, artificial signals. Two average players, even using marked cards—the deals, of course, being honest—would have no chance against a pair of experts.

Quite apart from the futility of signals, any persons naïve enough to try them would quickly and ridiculously expose themselves. For example, suppose that Mr. and Mrs. Blank, playing against Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, have agreed upon some signals. In their code "a spade" means a weak spade bid; "one spade" a strong spade bid. "Double" means a bluff double, to be taken out; "I double" means a strong double, to be left in. Also Mr. Blank has told his wife that if he shifts his cigaret from his right hand to his left hand it means that he has strength in the opponents' bid suit. Now let the game start. It will not be necessary to run through all the signals before the curtain will ring down on the comedy. One of the first deals produces this:

Mr. Blank
♠ K 10 9 7
♥ Q 7 2
♦ K Q 9
♣ A K 6

Mrs. Robinson — N. W. E. S. — Mr. Robinson

♠ Q 8 6 2
♥ 5 3
♦ J 8 7 5
♣ 10 7 3
Mrs. Blank

Mr. Blank opens the bidding with one no trump. Mr. Robinson and Mrs. Blank pass, but Mrs. Robinson bids two hearts. Mr. Blank now says, "Double." Mr. Robinson passes, and Mrs. Blank, understanding that her husband wants to be taken out, names her best suit, bidding two spades. That is the final contract and just two spades are made.

Fifteen minutes later this hand is dealt:

Mr. Blank
♠ K J 6
♥ A Q 10 8
♦ A K 4
♣ Q J 2

Mrs. Robinson — N. W. E. S. — Mr. Robinson

♠ Q 7 5 4
♦ J 9 8 3
♣ 9 8 7
Mrs. Blank

Mr. Blank again opens the bidding with one no trump, and, as before, Mr. Robinson and Mrs. Blank pass and Mrs. Robinson bids two hearts. Mr. Blank now says, "I double," not "Double." Mrs. Blank, the devoted wife, leaves the double in, and the Robinsons are set three tricks. The Robinsons, remembering that a little earlier Mrs. Blank, with an almost identical hand, acted quite differently, will not, being polite, say anything yet, since this may be just an accident. But from now on they are watching. It will be a question of a few more such bizarre coincidences and "the jig is up."

TODAY'S QUESTION

Question: What is the proper way to play the trump suit when declarer has A Q 7 5 3 and dummy has J 6?

Answer: Declarer should first lead a low trump toward the J 6 in dummy. To finesse for the king with this combination of cards is futile, for the opponents must win at least one trick in any case. By first leading a low card declarer loses only one trick if K x is at his left, for the king will win the first trick, and then the ace, queen, and jack will win the next three tricks for declarer. If the outstanding cards are divided 3-3, declarer also loses but one trick.

Flush Poisons From Kidneys and Stop Getting Up Nights

Be Healthier, Happier Live Longer

When you can get for 35 cents a supremely efficient and harmless stimulant and diuretic that will flush from your kidneys the waste matter, poisons and acid that are now doing you harm, why continue to break your restful sleep by getting up thru the night.

Just ask your druggist for Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules—but be sure and get GOLD MEDAL—right from Haarlem in Holland. Other symptoms of weak kidneys and irritated bladder are backache, puffy eyes, leg cramps, moist palms, burning or scanty passage.

"I tried everything for constipation—then I found the 3-minute way!"

Feeling logy? Get tired easily? Then say to yourself as millions of other people have said: "I won't put up a day longer with the troubles that come from constipation. I'll take three minutes off tonight—and for those three minutes I'll chew FEEN-A-MINT, the delicious chewing-gum laxative." Not like jolting "all-at-once" cathartics, FEEN-A-MINT works pleasantly and easily. There are no cramping pains, no unpleasant after-effects, nothing to cause a habit. Three minutes of your time is a small price to pay for such easy relief from constipation. And it's the ideal laxative for the entire family. FEEN-A-MINT—the three-minute way—is only 15c and 25c a box.

Balieff for Mayfair Room of Blackstone

'Chauve Souris' Star to Lead Program in New Cabaret De Luxe.

THE new Mayfair room in the Blackstone hotel will open next Saturday night with Chrysis De La Grange, pretty Parisian girl, scarcely out of her 'teens, as star. She is making her American debut after successes at the Ambassadeurs, the Casino De Paris, and the Bal Tabarin in Paris. Nikita Balieff, of "Chauve Souris" fame, will be the master of ceremonies. Kavelin and his orchestra, from the Tavern on the Green in Central park, New York, will play for the floor show and public dancing. George and Jalna, dance team, and the Mannikins, eight girls with trained dogs, complete the revue. Formal dress is requested by the Mayfair management.

● The reopening of the Joseph Urban room in the Congress hotel is set for Nov. 7. This former supper room will be transformed into a dining room, with an outstanding floor show and celebrated dance orchestra. Elaborate plans are being made for the opening festivities.

● The Radio Rogues, three singing comedians, have been engaged to make their first Chicago supper club appearance at the Chez Paree when that café presents a new production on or about Oct. 30. This trio's impersonations of Rudy Vallee, Kate Smith, Jack Benny, Chandu, Fred Allen, Amos 'n' Andy and others are well known to radio audiences. Until this new show is launched, Gertrude Niesen, Phil Harris and his orchestra featuring Leah Ray, the Hartmans who satirize ballroom dancing, Jack Holland and June Hart, and Edna Strong will continue on the bill. Jerry Conley and Freddy Wittner, pianists, are featured at the cocktail hour.

● Charles Collins, the dancer, now at the Empire room with Veloz and Yolanda, is giving up his eccentric specialty routines to form a ballroom dance team with his wife, the Broadway musical comedy star, Dorothy Stone. His last Palmer house performance will be on next Wednesday evening.

Stone and Collins will open their career at New York's Ambassador hotel on Nov. 7. They have been rehersing continuously and were coached by Veloz and Yolanda.

● Rosalean and Seville, dance duo, will open in the Terrace room of the Hotel Morrison with Enric Madriguera and his band next Tuesday. Two years ago Rosalean Betz, aged 19, daughter of a Philadelphia brewer and niece of Col. Ruppert, became the dancing partner of Gene Seville. She had studied with Ruth St. Denis, and later with Michael Mordkin. Her first appearance on the stage was in an opera ballet in Philadelphia. Gene Seville is an Argentinian who studied architecture until he became the dancing partner of June Knight.

● Horace Heidt and his Brigadiers orchestra continues in the Gold Coast room of the Drake.

With Georges and Jalna, dance team, Heidt is presenting his own array of thirty musicians and singers, including Lysbeth Hughes, singing harpist; Alvino Rey, guitarist; the Four King Sisters, Jerry Bowne, Art Thorsen, the Radio Ramblers, and a glee club.

● Gina and Giano are stars in the new Blackhawk café's floor show which augments the music of Joe Sanders and his orchestra. Their program includes a new interpretation of "Bolero." The team came here from the Ritz Carleton in Boston. Also in the show are Barbara Parks, blues singer; John Paul Jones, baritone, and Pete the Page Boy.

● Harry's New York cabaret offers Austin Mack's seven-piece band, known as the Century serenaders. Long the musical leader of "Texas" Guinan's night club shows, Mack has assembled a group of versatile musicians who double or triple to a total of seventeen instruments. The floor show stars Margot Robell, operatic and musical comedy singer.

● George Olsen and his band, starring Ethel Shutta, continue at the College inn, with the familiar ice skating carnival.

● The new Royale Frolics features Sammy White, who has danced in the "Ziegfeld Follies" and "Show Boat." Another entertainer is Dolly Kay, blues singer. Hinda Wausau appears in interpretive dances. Billy Reed and Louise Mele, formerly of "Sons of Guns," "Good News," "Follow Thru" and "Anina," introduce new dances. Henri Lishon and his orchestra play for the floor show and public dancing.

● Marian Kingston, tap dancer appearing at the Stevens hotel where Baron and Blair, Rosini and Seymour Simons' band are featured, is introducing a new dance called "Truckin," in the Continental room floor show. On Oct. 25, Miss Kingston will be replaced by Jean and Marian Cutler, a Chicago sister team.

OCTOBER 20. 1935.

Mrs. John McKinlay Jr. was one of the Beverly Hills matrons who worked to make a success of the country fair given by the Ridge Service Guild Oct. 11 and 12.

Miss Jean Rawlins' engagement to Edwin C. Ward was announced late last month by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Steven C. Rawlins of Evanston. Mr. Ward is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Ward of Kenilworth. The wedding is planned for next April.

Mrs. Wilbur G. W. Glos is president of the Junior auxiliary of the Ridge Service Guild, which gave a benefit recently.

Miss Grace Graver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Graver, aided the Morgan Park Home for Dependent Children by working for the recent benefit given by the Ridge Service Guild, which contributes to the home.

TRIBUNE PHOTOS.

Society to Hold Benefit Parade of Court Gowns

Glories of Past Under De Veyrac's Modern Lighting at St. Luke's Show.

By Cousin Eve.

THE women of St. Luke's hospital board have many strings to their lute. For some years their fall fashion show has drawn two lively multitudes to the Stevens ballroom. One in the afternoon for tea, the other for dinner and an evening show where husbands sit wide-eyed and wonder.

Mrs. John Gary is president of the woman's board. Active on it are Mrs. A. Watson Armour, Mrs. Newton Perry, Mrs. Walter Wolf, Mrs. Sterling Morton, Mrs. Frank Hibbard, Mrs. Kersey Reed, Mrs. Bryant Reid, Mrs. William Hodgkins and many more.

Last season's high moment was the showing of wedding gowns of fashionable brides down the years—Mrs. Ogden Armour's yellowed satin, Mrs. Mark Cumming's gown, still in excellent style, Mary Barnes Sudler's knee length bridal satin, rather funny now. A long procession of vanished pomps of yesterday, to wedding music.

Veyrac Lighting Also in Wheeler's Lake Forest Home.

After the pageantry of new winter clothes this year, old court dresses will be a feature Wednesday afternoon at the Stevens. And another new and entrancing idea, modern lighting by the Marquis de Veyrac of Paris, who disapproves of brilliant blares of light even on the young beauties who parade.

One afternoon last week I came unexpectedly upon some of the Veyrac lighting in the new and absolutely ravishing house of Mrs. Leslie Wheeler in Lake Forest. Rumors of the dashingness of this house have been abroad for months, and one can say that it is the most friendly and exciting house one has seen, perhaps ever, and with a vivid chatelaine who lives over every part of it. I mean to write about it again, some of its qualities and parts. But on going to the dining room, there was this intriguing beam like a small but blazing eye up in the molding, shooting its ray across the room to a panel by Philpotts. And was that a marvelous thing! This man, this English artist, has evolved a new mode of painting in this divine room, a beautiful scheme of line and opalescent color.

Costumes from Czar's Court Will Be on Display.

But back to our muttons, which is court costumes. We shall see brocades and velvets which rustled in the white and gold ball room in the winter palace of the czar at St. Petersburg; a lustrous enormity which dipped and swirled in the dance at the slightly nouveau riche court of Napoleon III. and Eugénie at the Tuileries. And other, more recently worn court trains of Chicago women. Also a few quite old glad rags of the Chicago of long ago. The trouble about showing these court trains is that most women have already cut them up for their daughters.

Japanese Ambassador and Wife Will Cause Stir Here.

And then on Nov. 1. Pomp and Circumstance. I am not referring to those two popular Chicago men who go by those names among their club friends. But to the coming of the Japanese ambassador, Hirosi Saito, from Washington, with Mme. Saito. The Japan-America society, wishing to honor Prof. John Wigmore of Northwestern on the occasion of an imperial decoration, forwarded the invitation. In the Japanese foreign office, no ambassador can absent himself from his embassy without cabling home for permission. This took time. But their excellencies the Saitos will dine with a large company at the Army and Navy club. Gen. Charles Dawes will be toastmaster. The committee includes Mr. and Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Mrs. Dawes, Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne, Mr. and Mrs. Silas Strawn, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. William Hale, the Graham Aldises, Adlai Stevensons, and Russell Tyson.

Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter will entertain the distinguished Japanese at luncheon before taking them on to the afternoon symphony concert. Their newly done salon with old Chinese panels, which are admirable ancient paintings, and their music room with its collection of rare musical instruments will see many distinguished visitors this season.

Commercial Club to Compete with Grove House Party.

The Assembly ball, one hears en passant, has taken the night of Dec. 6, at the Blackstone. The Grove house party, of which Mrs. Lawrence Houghteling is chairman and Mrs. Howard Fenton and Mrs. Leslie Wheeler co-chairmen, is such a wild success at the Mayfair room opening of the Blackstone, Oct. 25, that all space is sold. It will be a young and glamorous party. If only the Commercial club men had not decided to have their huge dinner at the Blackstone the same night! Husbands all upstairs speechifying.

Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick's conversation was ever stimulating. She arrived on the Normandie. Who else would take a chance on a Portuguese house party, a day's motor ride from the port of Lisbon? Who else would react to the swimming pool, replenished from the swirling river [I believe there were no baths]. Who else would like the old Portuguese castle, made over modernistically?

Zuloaga's Art Lit by de Veyrac's Beams.

Rather more I was intrigued by her visit to the artist, Zuloaga, in the north of Spain between Hendaye and San Sebastian. It is a few years since I visited this famous studio. Now part of it is a museum. Zuloaga has eleven El Grecos, just fancy that! And he has had Marquis de Veyrac down from Paris to let some beams into his ceilings. Mrs. Chadwick was interested in a portrait of Mrs. James Corrigan that sat upon an easel, a rather metallic portrait of a woman of immense wealth, whose life is a progress from one luxurious place of excitement to another.

One visitor at the studio was a British colonel. Clarke Stewart was, I believe, his name. He was about to sit for his thirty-first portrait by Zuloaga, and that seems to me the all time high for masculine vanity. Because, after all, sitting for a portrait is a crashing bore.

Folly was always the half sister of fashion. In Paris they speak of the Italian push into east Africa as "a little colonial war" and make hats with a splash of coq plumes à la Bersagliere, or frogged coats that make their wearers look like little generals.

Paris Styles Produce Mature Children.

Friends arrive from Paris—little hats miraculously over the right eye—short skirts, a very few fig leaves in the evening. Painted cheeks and lips, hair curled baby style on the neck, make them feel young, indeed in the infant class.

From these mature youngsters, much talk of how stay-at-homes look settled and middle-aged, back numbers as to dress and blah as to appearance. All highly amusing. For my part, cosmetics always seem something one does dashingly of an evening.

Most of the smart women I know, those of elegance and distinction, avoid make-up; look upon eye shadows as vulgar, and facial liftings as profanation of the holy temple.

But it seems there is a new form of torture running riot among leaders of our new society. Layers of fat are sliced off the silhouette. The all time low of feminine vanity has perhaps been reached. But it seems that men, too, are patrons of the same New York surgeon, letting themselves be carved like cold turkey. What of the spirit?

Into a crowded room the other day to meet Mlle. Marvingt, famous French aviatrix and chevalier of the Legion of Honor. Her mane of short white hair surprised me, for I thought that all flying women were slim young eaglets like Amelia. The valorous flyer was seated, and reading with machine gun-like rapidity the list of her flights over the North polar regions and the Sahara, while making a plea for the use of balloons and aeroplanes in carrying wounded off fields of battle. She is touring this country for that humanitarian purpose. Nobody thought to tell her that war is not our regular diet, and we do not have wounded men lying about. She was heart and soul for her cause and full of energy and fire, and when I saw her handsome black eyes blazing with electricity, and heard her gay laugh, I realized that her brand of youth was that of courage and faith in unseen things, far removed from lipstick or the latest kink in the silhouette. Indestructible, in fact.

Alliancistes Can't Be Bothered with Reservations.

Mlle. Marvingt carried a side line of spiritualism, which seemed to intrigue her greatly. At the large luncheon in Piccadilly, following her speech, Consul General Weiller presided, with the French aviatrix and Amelia Earhart on either side. There were little flags for nearly everybody.

The members of the Alliance Française are, it seems, highly temperamental. Up to the morning of this luncheon, only twenty reservations had been made. Yet sixty-three Alliancistes came bustling in for luncheon. Hence a shortage in flags, food, and service. However, it was a charming luncheon and I had a good time. Mrs. Dewey made a French speech which Mlle. Marvingt called "exquis." And Mr. Weiller, asked to speak English, did so most engagingly. He told the story of an American who had learned to speak what he thought was French in honor of a visiting French ambassador. His after dinner speech was something that nobody understood, neither his fellow citizens nor the foreign guests. Finally the French envoy stopped him. "Do speak English—mon cher—your French is so wonderful it makes me homesick."

Among the guests, Mr. and Mrs. Carter Harrison, Mrs. Donald MacPherson, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Follansbee, Mrs. Schuyler Terry, herself a daring flyer; Mrs. Thomas Hinde, Miss Gertrude McCarthy, Mrs. Hayden Harris, Mlle. Rouillier, Mrs. Ralph Winston. And Fanny MacPherson, Francis Jeffery, Mrs. Edward Smith from the young French set. And Mrs. Ernest Graham, who had loaned the delightful Amelia for the occasion. This was a generous gesture inasmuch as it had cost the Woman's Motor corps, of which she is the president, $500 to have Miss Earhart and her husband that day for a later luncheon.

Castruccio Just Bought a Medal for Amelia.

The fact that Amelia Earhart had received $500 for her presence at a large club women's luncheon last May was unknown to former Consul General Castruccio when he handed her a Balbo medal which he had bought. Other consuls present gave her a watch and corsage bouquets as gestures of their great admiration for the magnificent exploits of the great flyer. Italy has decorated few women, and only for outstanding friendship for Italy. Two women were awarded medals for their writing, one being Mrs. George von L. Meyer, who lives in Rome, a former American ambassadress. The other lives in Chicago. They were specially designed medals, with Romulus, Remus, and the wolf, and a Victory worn on a striped ribbon. Since then, for their war work for Italy, Mrs. Hermon Butler, Mrs. Wentworth Field, and Mrs. Everts Wrenn received citations and silver medals. They did Red Cross work twenty years ago during the war.

Italian Ambassador Insulted If Dinner Guests Are Late.

Just after the Balbo flight, Ambassador Augusto Rosso was walking in the Italian building of the World's Fair with a handsome and charming young woman who had helped to entertain the flyers. The ambassador seeing the Balbo medals bought one and gave it as a souvenir to his pretty companion. This lady has been saying since that she was decorated "by the Italian government," but the pretty plaque has not yet been recalled by Ambassador Rosso.

This charming man can be, however, quite a disciplinarian and I only wish he might live a while in Chicago, where lateness at luncheons and dinners is practised a lot.

The ambassador invited to dine at the embassy in Washington a charming Chicago woman who had helped make the visit of Balbo's Squadra Aeronautica Atlantica a social success. Unluckily, she went beforehand to a cocktail party. And expected at the Roman palace which is the embassy, at eight o'clock, she did not arrive until after nine. The embassy party was well in the middle of dinner when the tardy one crept in, stricken by the glacial atmosphere of the immense room. She saw that being [illegible] late to dinner, looked upon in [illegible]go as an amiable eccentricity provided you are worth waiting for, was regarded in an embassy of Washington as being an insult to a foreign power.

Mrs. Charles Wesley Dempster has sent out invitations to meet Mrs. Mary Breckinridge in the Drake ballroom Oct. 30 at 11 o'clock in the morning. Mrs. Breckinridge will speak of the Frontier Nursing service and show new slides. She is a fascinating speaker.

THEY'LL AID SERVICE CLUB

When the Service club presents its annual revue on Nov. 2 at the little theater in the Civic Opera house Mrs. Newton C. King (right) and Miss Marjorie Mills will be among those dancing in the chorus.

HELPED BIG BENEFIT

Miss Adelaide Atkin, the younger of the two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Atkin of Winnetka, is active in the work of the Chicago Junior league, as is her sister, Miss Margot. Both were on hand at the Open House the league held as a benefit at the Drake recently and both were among those who worked for weeks to make it the huge success that it was.

N. Y. Society in Action on Skating Rinks

Distinguished Fans Already Practicing Fancy Figures at Aristocratic Ice Club.

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK If autumn comes, you can be certain the Ice club is in the offing. This shy and ultrafashionable organization allows no grass to grow under its skates after the frost is on the pumpkin. What it craves is ice. And to insure members of plenty of ice, no less than ten miles of brand new piping have been laid on the rink of the club's headquarters adjoining Madison Square Garden. The club itself is all dolled up in a fresh coat of peacock blue and orange paint, and looks brighter and gayer than ever before.

For nearly a fortnight, that contingent of Manhattan's 400 who'd rather skate than eat have been cutting daily capers on the Ice club rink.

Dr. Eugene H. Pool, the famous surgeon, jumps over to do his skating between operations, he's that enthusiastic about the sport. Almost any afternoon at five, you'll find the dapper, gray haired surgeon practicing fancy figures with Betty Chase or Willie Boeckl.

Sherwin Badger, who has been United States skating champion more times than we can remember, is another "ice pest." He was president of the Ice club last year. The 1936 officers include David T. Layman, president and treasurer; Charles G. Meyer, vice president, and William A. Sands, secretary.

The Olympic games have thrown the Ice club schedule into a cocked hat, but tentative plans call for a skating show in December in the interest of the Olympic teams and another exhibition in March.

The elegant ladies who haunt the Ice club in fancy skating togs include Mrs. Henry de Rham, the attractive Helen Wilmerding, Mrs. Henry W. Howe, and Mrs. Arthur W. Lawrence.

Mrs. Marjorie Hutton and Joseph Davies Will Wed Soon.

Despite their denials, Mrs. Marjorie Post Close Hutton of New York and Joseph E. Davies, Washington attorney, will be married soon after her interlocutory divorce decree becomes final Dec. 7.

Not more than a half dozen intimate friends have been the confidantes of the onetime Mrs. Edward F. Hutton on this subject. Society would give a nickel to know more of her plans, but she is too shrewd a business woman to be anything but silent about her personal affairs at this time.

Mrs. Hutton is not only one of the most beautiful but also one of the most intelligent matrons in society. She is an extremely able business woman, quite capable at coping with her tremendous breakfast-food fortune. She looks so young and is so extraordinarily handsome, it's difficult to realize she's a grandmother.

Tradition and Modernity Meet When Mrs. Whitney's at Club.

A lady—old fashioned variety—in a night club is a rare sight. So it's always a bit of a shock to see Mrs. Payne Whitney at a ringside table in a hot spot! But she was at the ringside the other night when Le Mirage opened. Her pretty niece, Eve Symington, is the featured entertainer there.

The charming, sweet faced Mrs. Whitney was never one to pay attention to the dictates of fashion. As a matter of fact, she doesn't care a fig about clothes. She wears whatever happens to be in the closet, her vast millions notwithstanding.

At Le Mirage, Mrs. Whitney was garbed in a simple black and white print dress with no trimmings and no jewels. Her graying hair was pulled into a semi-pompadour and pinned into an old fashioned knot at the back of her head.

Popular Young Bachelor Squires Mrs. Whitney.

Mrs. Whitney may sometimes look a bit dowdy next to her sister-in-law, Gertrude Payne Whitney, who's always the last word in sartorial perfection. But the chances are Helen Whitney would come off with top honors for her charm of manner and sweet, old fashioned self.

The proof of the pudding is in the fact Mrs. Whitney was squired by one of the town's most popular young bachelors, the blond and husky John McClain! John is a special favorite of the Whitneys, and it's not unusual to see him showing Mrs. Payne Whitney about Broadway.

Other members of the clan at Le Mirage included Cousin Joan Whitney Payson and the Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitneys, Gladys especially chic in a heavy white crêpe gown.

Italians Think Barbara Hutton Heartless.

It appears the Italian frown is centered on Barbara Hutton at this time.

Sources close to the Hutton family have admitted that the beauteous Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow has earned the displeasure of Italy's sons and daughters because of what they consider her "heartless and cold-blooded" choice of honeymoon setting with her Danish count.

The teacup rattlers along the Grand canal report that the luxurious Haugwitz suite at the Grand hotel in Venice is the one Babs occupied on her first honeymoon with the late Prince Alexis Mdivani, who crashed to his death in an automobile accident last August.

IS ENGAGED TO WED

Miss Virginia Boose, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John H. Boose of La Grange, who announced her engagement to R. F. Bostelman, son of Dr. and Mrs. R. D. Bostelman of La Grange, at a tea yesterday. Miss Boose attended the University of Wisconsin and was graduated from the New York School of Applied and Fine Arts. Mr. Bostelman is a graduate of the University of Michigan and of Northwestern law school.

British Clergyman Allows Hatless Women in Church

LONDON A pioneering clergyman has decided that women may enter church hatless. Says the Rev. T. B. Scrutton, rural dean of Kingston, Surrey, and son of the late Lord Justice Scrutton: "No woman need worry about headgear in the Kingston Parish church, whether during the service or at any other time. Any girl who enters a church to say her prayers in the hatless state in which so many now go around out of doors, is in danger of being pounced upon and turned out, just because St. Paul warned Greek women not to cause talk by being too unconventional. All that St. Paul did was to bid the Corinthian women to keep the convention of their time and place."

This probably is the only English church which dared to waive the rule laid down by St. Paul. Hatless women tourists, for example, always are invited to cover their heads with at least a handkerchief when they "do" a cathedral.

Third Tribune Congress to Be February Event

Forum on Current Problems to Draw Clubwomen of City, State, and Nation.

By Ruth DeYoung.

ONE of Illinois' real black dirt farmers is coming to Chicago next Feb. 13 and 14. So are executives of all the important state federations, dozens of leaders in education, and hundreds of civic and charity workers.

For all of them the objective will be the same. They are coming to attend the sessions of the third Woman Congress to be held Feb. 13 and 14 in the Palmer house under the sponsorship of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

THE TRIBUNE organized the first Congress three years ago in answer to a widespread appeal from women for a comprehensive, authoritative forum on current affairs. In truth, this appeal was a depression outgrowth. Troubled economic times, coupled with the responsibility of suffrage, had impressed upon club and society leaders, mothers and professional women alike the need for an acquaintance with local, national, and international problems affecting their lives.

Alert Women Throughout Nation Manifest Interest in Congress.

Now, as plans are under way for the third congress, alert, representative women, not only in Illinois, but throughout the country, are anticipating the gathering as one of the most important assemblies in the United States for the consideration of modern affairs.

"An inspiring meeting answering a vital need." This is what Mrs. Stella W. Rose of Silvis thinks about the Congress. Mrs. Rose did not attend the former sessions, but she wrote for tickets of admission this time as soon as the first announcement of the dates was made. Mrs. Rose is 29 years old and a black dirt farmer in that beautiful country that borders the Rock river. "I am hoping to build something to which, some day, I can point with pride as real achievement," she writes.

Mrs. William S. Hefferan, respected member of Chicago's board of education, found last year's meeting "extremely interesting." She will be in the audience again this year. So will Miss Elizabeth Webster, director of Chicago's Council for Social Agencies; Miss Ellen Holt, whose influence both in social and philanthropic affairs is well known; Miss Clara E. Laughlin, author, lecturer, and business woman; and Miss Dora Wells, whose record of achievement as principal of Lucy Flower Technical High school is to the city's credit.

Downstate Women Active in Public Life Are to Attend Conference.

From Sidney, Salem, and Mount Carroll will come women whose influence in public affairs today is vital. Mrs. Edward J. Lehman, elected to the presidency of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs last May when Mrs. William Franklin Farrell was elected to a directorship in the general federation, lives in Sidney. She has indicated her interest and coöperation in handling the details of the Congress organization. Similar interest has been expressed by Miss Helen McMackin of Salem, whose post is the presidency of the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. Mrs. Samuel James Campbell of Mount Carroll, capable Illinois regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, will be in Chicago for the meetings.

Because of the interest and enthusiasm expressed at this early date throughout the state and in other states ranging from New York to Arizona, action will be taken this week to procure special railroad rates for women coming from a distance.

Busy Women to Find Time from Activity to Attend Sessions.

Mrs. Owen W. Dynes, general chairman of the Chicago flower show sponsored each spring by the Illinois Garden club, points out that she and her organization always are busy in February, "but we can take time out for anything as interesting as the Congress." Another busy person at this time in February is Mrs. Ora H. Snyder, active in the candy industry, but she will be in attendance at the sessions in the Palmer house.

Mrs. Minna M. Schmidt, the figurine specialist whose contribution to the Chicago Historical society is a continuing source of delight, writes from the south that she wants to be in the Congress audience. Mrs. Mark P. Mears, Mrs. Ralph H. Webster, and Mrs. Philip L. Seman, presidents of three of Chicago's most outstanding women's clubs, already have made ticket reservations.

List of Clubwomen Interested Contains Many Prominent Names.

And still others whose interest has been indicated by letter and telephone include Mrs. Frank P. Hixon, president of the Illinois League of Women Voters, and Mrs. Jasper King, head of the Cook County league; Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, leader of Illinois' Democratic Women; Miss Harriet Fulmer, immediate past president of the Illinois State Nurses' association; Miss Marie Sullivan, assistant manager of the public relations department at the Hotel Sherman; Mrs. William J. Pigott, newly appointed chairman of music for the General Federation of Women's Clubs; Miss Frances L. Swain, director of home economics in the Chicago public schools; Miss Mary Herrick, president of the Federation of High School Teachers; Mrs. Mabel P. Simpson, executive secretary of the Citizens' Schools committee; Miss Julia I. Felsenthal, president of the Conference of Jewish Women's Organizations; Mrs. George V. McIntyre, president of the Big Sisters, and Mrs. Mary F. McWhorter, president of the Cook County auxiliary of the Ancient Order of the Hibernians.

There will be no admission fees for the six sessions of the Congress on Feb. 13 and 14, but because of limited seating capacity, tickets will be issued for each session. Inquiries concerning the program or tickets will be answered in the Congress headquarters, Room 1418, Tribune Tower, telephone Superior 0100, Local 710.

Correspondent in London Bemoans Public Utilities

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON Maxim Gorky has furnished us with a new topic of conversation: "What were you doing on Friday, Sept. 27, 1935?" Through the Russian embassy and the press, he has appealed for voluminous data on everything everywhere in the world which happened on that day. And as he expressly invites personal letters from readers describing their experiences on that day, people have been amused and rather prone to turn a critical eye on the major and minor happenings of that space of 24 hours.

My own preoccupation that day was with the British supply of electricity. In my borough, electricity is supplied by the borough authorities and a complicated business it is, indeed. Just now I am negotiating with them for a supply of electricity for an "electric cooker." The house already is wired for electric light, but "power" must be brought in for the new stove, and this, I find, will cost me $3. "And very lucky you are, modom," said the uniformed borough inspector. Just why I was "lucky" wasn't very clear, but I discovered, on inquiry, that there just happens to be, in front of the house, a connection point with the network of electric power wires, but if I lived on the other side of the street and fifty yards down, it would cost me $60 for the privilege of buying electric power from the borough!

Does that seem madness to you? It does to me, still, although I am getting used to it. That is the way electric power is sold all over England. Of course, electric lighting now is all but universal in use, but it is sold in a higgledy-piggledy way by innumerable small monopolies, each with its own kind of current. It often happens in London that if you move from one house to another a few blocks distant, you have to buy all new electric light bulbs and change the motor on your vacuum cleaner to fit the new current.

Londoners in Stitches Over This Current Bit of Humor

LONDON Latest jest now going the rounds in London: Woman from the big house, calling on the woman in the little house: "We are greatly troubled at our house with rats. I suppose you are similarly troubled, with mice."

Women Deans to Meet Friday in Springfield

Men in Same Educational Field Invited to Share in Convention Program.

By Ruth DeYoung.

FOR the first time in the history of the Illinois Association of Deans of Women, the members will share their annual convention program this week with their masculine contemporaries in education.

MISS ELIZABETH OAKES.

[Gibson Photo.]

Miss Elizabeth B. Oakes, president of the association, has invited principals, superintendents, and deans of boys in secondary schools and colleges throughout the state to attend the association's sixteenth yearly meeting, which will convene Friday in Springfield, to continue through Saturday.

"We feel that these men will be interested in the survey of personnel work and the guidance movement which our program will stress," Miss Oakes commented yesterday. The principal speaker on this subject will be Miss Sarah M. Sturtevant of Columbia university in New York City. Miss Sturtevant will discuss "The Dean's Relation to the Total Personnel Program in High School and College" at the dinner meeting at 7 o'clock Friday evening in Springfield's Leland hotel.

Miss Sturtevant is the author of a number of books and has important connections in various women's organizations. She is president of the New York Association of Deans, and also president of the Woman's Faculty club of Columbia university.

Miss Sturtevent will deliver a second address on Saturday noon, discussing the question, "What of Professional Standards for Deans and Counselors?" After this luncheon there will be a drive to Lincoln's tomb for the delegates, followed by tea in the executive mansion.

Chicago and Suburban Deans to Preside Over Round Tables.

Several Chicago and suburban deans will be leaders of the round tables that are to be held on Saturday morning. Miss Ada L. Weckel of the Oak Park and River Forest Township High school will lead the round table on "Character Building in Our Schools." Taking part in this panel discussion will be Miss Maria Leonard, dean of women at the University of Illinois; Miss Mary L. Mutschler of Rockford college at Rockford, Miss Emma Fleer Muller of the Chicago Normal college, Miss Eunice Prutsman of the J. Sterling Morton High school, Miss Helene E. Wilson of the Thornton Township High school at Harvey, and Miss Cornelia S. Pierce of the Mount Vernon High school.

Deans of other Chicago and suburban schools will make committee reports during the two day session. In the delegate body most of the secondary schools and colleges and universities in the state will be represented.

Illinois Federation Tea to Be Held for Mrs. Thomas G. Winter.

Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, past president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and associate director of public relations for the Motion Picture Producers of America, will be the guest of the motion picture department of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs at a tea at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Sherman hotel. Coöperating with the federation in giving the party is the Better Films Council of Chicagoland.

A short program will be given by the Seventh district chorus, which sang in June at the general federation triennial in Detroit. As chairman of the federation's motion picture department, Mrs. Charles R. Holton will be hostess, with Mrs. Richard M. McClure. Other special guests will include Mrs. Edward J. Lehman, Illinois federation president; Mrs. Walter W. Seymour, second vice president of the general federation, and Mrs. William F. Farrell, general federation director for Illinois.

General Federation to Support Woman's Symphony Orchestra.

Mrs. William J. Pigott, newly appointed chairman of music for the general federation, has indicated that special support and emphasis will be given the Woman's Symphony orchestra of Chicago this year. Since this is the tenth anniversary of the orchestra's founding, there are to be special features of celebration during the season. The real birthday party will be held Dec. 15 at the time of the orchestra's second concert in the Studebaker theater. The first of these concerts is scheduled for the afternoon of Sunday, Nov. 10.

Miss Barbara Abel has written a clever skit, "The Future Has a Past," to be given next Thursday evening in celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the founding of the Chicago Y. W. C. A. The party will begin at 7:30 o'clock in the Harriet Hammond McCormick Memorial, 1001 North Dearborn street. The skit to be given by the business girls of the central branch will recall the days when the Y. W. C. A. was "a boarding home for young ladies," and hams, potatoes, and molasses were welcomed in lieu of cash.

MISS ANNA V. RICE.

Miss Anna V. Rice of New York City, general secretary of the national board of the Y. W. C. A., is to be a guest speaker at the meeting. Mrs. William L. Hodgkins will introduce Miss Rice. On Friday and Saturday Miss Rice will address a leadership conference at the McCormick residence to discuss its program and policies for the coming year.

In contrast to the tradition and age that characterize the party of the Y. W. C. A., will be the tea this week for the juniors of the Chicago chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. Frederick J. Dickson, senior regent of the chapter, has issued invitations

MISS RUTH ORNDORFF.

[Paul Stone-Raymor Photo.]

Miss Ruth Orndorff, a young woman of charm who has made a brililant record scholastically, is chairman of the new group which will coöperate to the members of her board and her committee chairmen to meet the newly organized juniors at tea Saturday afternoon in the Stevens hotel.

with the senior organization in its program of patriotic and philanthropic activity.

Chicago Hadassah's contribution to the building fund for the Rothschild-Hadassah-University hospital in Palestine will be completed Tuesday afternoon at a meeting of the organization in the Covenant club. The Chicago fund commemorates the memory of a Hadassah member, Goldie Feingold. Mrs. Arthur H. Spiegel, chairman of the woman's board of Michael Reese hospital, will be the guest speaker. Mrs. Harry M. Fisher will preside.

TO LIVE IN CHICAGO

Miss Ruth Swift, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hastings Swift of Boston, will be coming to Chicago to make her home as the bride of Errett Van Nice. Mr. Van Nice is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Errett Irvin Van Nice of Chicago. Their engagement to be married was announced the last week in September.

A&P COOKING SCHOOLS OPEN ON TUESDAY!

George Rector to Conduct Classes

Kate Smith to Sing!

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company has again brought to Chicago that lovable, interesting and charming George Rector that entertained you by the hour at the A&P Carnival at A Century of Progress in 1933. Mr. Rector says "Showmanship makes the meal," and he is going to show those who attend these series of classes just how it's done.

George Rector
Master Food Showman

George Rector was born heir apparent to the famous "Rector's" of the gay nineties, that famous rendezvous of such characters as Diamond Jim Brady, Caruso, and most all of the famous of their day. All of his life has been devoted to the science of cookery showmanship—small wonder that today Mr. Rector is so famous.

You are personally invited to attend each session of the A&P Cooking School—remember, it's all Free—so come early and be sure of a good seat.

Aragon-Trianon Chosen

Because of their large seating capacity the Aragon Ballroom and Trianon Ballroom have been chosen as the "spots" for these great A&P cooking schools! The sessions at the Aragon will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 22 and 23, at 1:30 P. M.—and the sessions at the Trianon will be on Thursday and Friday, Oct. 24 and 25, at 1:30 P. M. Remember, the shows are all Free—and will be conducted in person by that inimitable George Rector. See the Modern Kitchen completely equipped by Marshall Field and Company, as well as many other interesting features.

Songbird of South to Sing!

Kate Smith, famed on radio and stage as the 'Songbird of the South,' will personally appear and sing at each session of the A&P Cooking School.

Kate Smith

Miss Smith, who is now heard on A&P's Coffee radio program each Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday night at 6:30 P. M. over Station WBBM, is setting a new high in radio popularity.

She will be George Rector's guest at the Cooking Schools and plans to serve up several delightful song hits at each session. Be sure to come as A&P's guest, admission free, but come early because it's first come first served.

Church Women Set High Goal in Membership

Illinois Catholic Group in Drive for 50,000 New Names on Its Roster.

FIFTY thousand new members is the ambitious goal of the Illinois Club for Catholic Women in the drive it has undertaken under the leadership of Mrs. L. Robert Mellin. With a new clubhouse to show off and a program that runs the gamut of social educational and philanthropic affairs, the appeal is backed by sound argument.

[Monfort Photo.]

Mrs. Mellin hopes to achieve the goal by Nov. 4 when the new members will be welcomed at a banquet in the quarters, 111 East Pearson street. Mrs. Frank J. Lewis, club president, will introduce Bishop Bernard J. Sheil as the speaker on this occasion.

As a stimulus to the drive, special meetings are to be held this week in more than 200 Catholic parishes throughout the city. At these meetings club representatives will tell about the club and explain that the annual dues have been reduced to a nominal charge. An athletic department, designed to attract juniors, is to be one of the club's major activities this new year. Under the direction of Gordon B. Hueghens, riding, swimming, dancing, skating, and every variety of gymnastics will be taught.

A choral society, under the direction of William Davies, also is being organized. Mr. Davies is planning to develop both an orchestra and band. Classes in French, Spanish, and public speaking will provide for the linguists.

Conforming with Cardinal Mundelein's plan for the centralization of all Catholic women's activities under one roof, a number of other Catholic groups already have taken office space in the building of the Illinois Club for Catholic Women. Among these groups are the Illinois Council for Catholic Women, the Catholic Daughters of America, the Daughters of Isabella, and the Catholic Instruction league.

Joint Committee on Motion Pictures to Have First Meeting.

The joint committee on motion pictures will hold its first meeting of the autumn and winter season at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning at the Woman's City club, 6 North Michigan avenue. This committee occupies an unusual position among Chicago clubs and organizations. Its object is to study the motion picture situation, to uphold the city ordinance governing the exhibition of motion pictures, to oppose the production and exhibition of objectionable films and misleading advertisments, and to promote active propaganda for better films.

Antedating the Legion of Decency and the better films departments of the federation of women's clubs by more than a decade, the committee has an honorable record of work back to the days when penny arcades, nickleodeons, and beefy burlesque shows held full sway. Reorganization was carried out in 1926. Mrs. E. O. Brooks is chairman of the committee.

Two Groups to Have Reception for Aviatrix Here from France.

One of the nicest parties on this week's calendar is the reception which the greater Chicago chapter of the National Aeronautic association and the Chicago unit of the Woman's National Aeronautical association will have tomorrow evening in the Palmer house for Mlle. Marie Marvingt. Mlle. Marvingt was the first licensed woman pilot of France, she is chevalier of the Legion of Honor and professor at the University of Nancy. The speaker tomorrow evening will be Maj. George Vest, supervising inspector of the bureau of air commerce for the fifth district. Maj. Vest will discuss the work of the bureau.

Mrs. Schuyler Terry is chairman of the committee planning the party. Included in its membership are Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, Mrs. Mitchell Follansbee, Miss Sophonisba Breckenridge, Mrs. Bruce McLeish, Miss Mary Sim, Miss Alice Ademic, and Miss Jane Ray.

Arnold Gingrich to Speak Before Willing Workers' Woman's Club.

Mrs. Louis Smart is to be hostess at a meeting of the Willing Workers' Woman's club Wednesday afternoon at the Standard club. Arnold Gingrich, author and editor, will speak and Art Kahn, pianist, will play. The Willing Workers' Woman's club, with Mrs. Julius C. Moses as president, has been in existence for 33 years, working with the Winfield sanitarium in behalf of tuberculosis patients. Through the Jewish tuberculosis service the members distribute milk and eggs daily, also provide clothing and shoes for forty families.

Alumnæ representing more than fifty colleges and universities will be guests at a tea Tuesday afternoon given by the Chicago College club and the Chicago collegiate bureau of occupations at the club, 196 East Delaware place. Special guests will be the young women who, following their graduation last June, have sought to establish business or professional connections in Chicago. A program will be given by Miss Kate Alice Merrill, violinist, assisted by Milton Treshaunsky. Miss Helen Bennett and Mrs. Miette B. Denell will be introduced as speakers.

WILL BE A MODEL AT HOSPITAL BENEFIT

Miss Katherine Bulger will aid at the annual affair for St. Luke's.

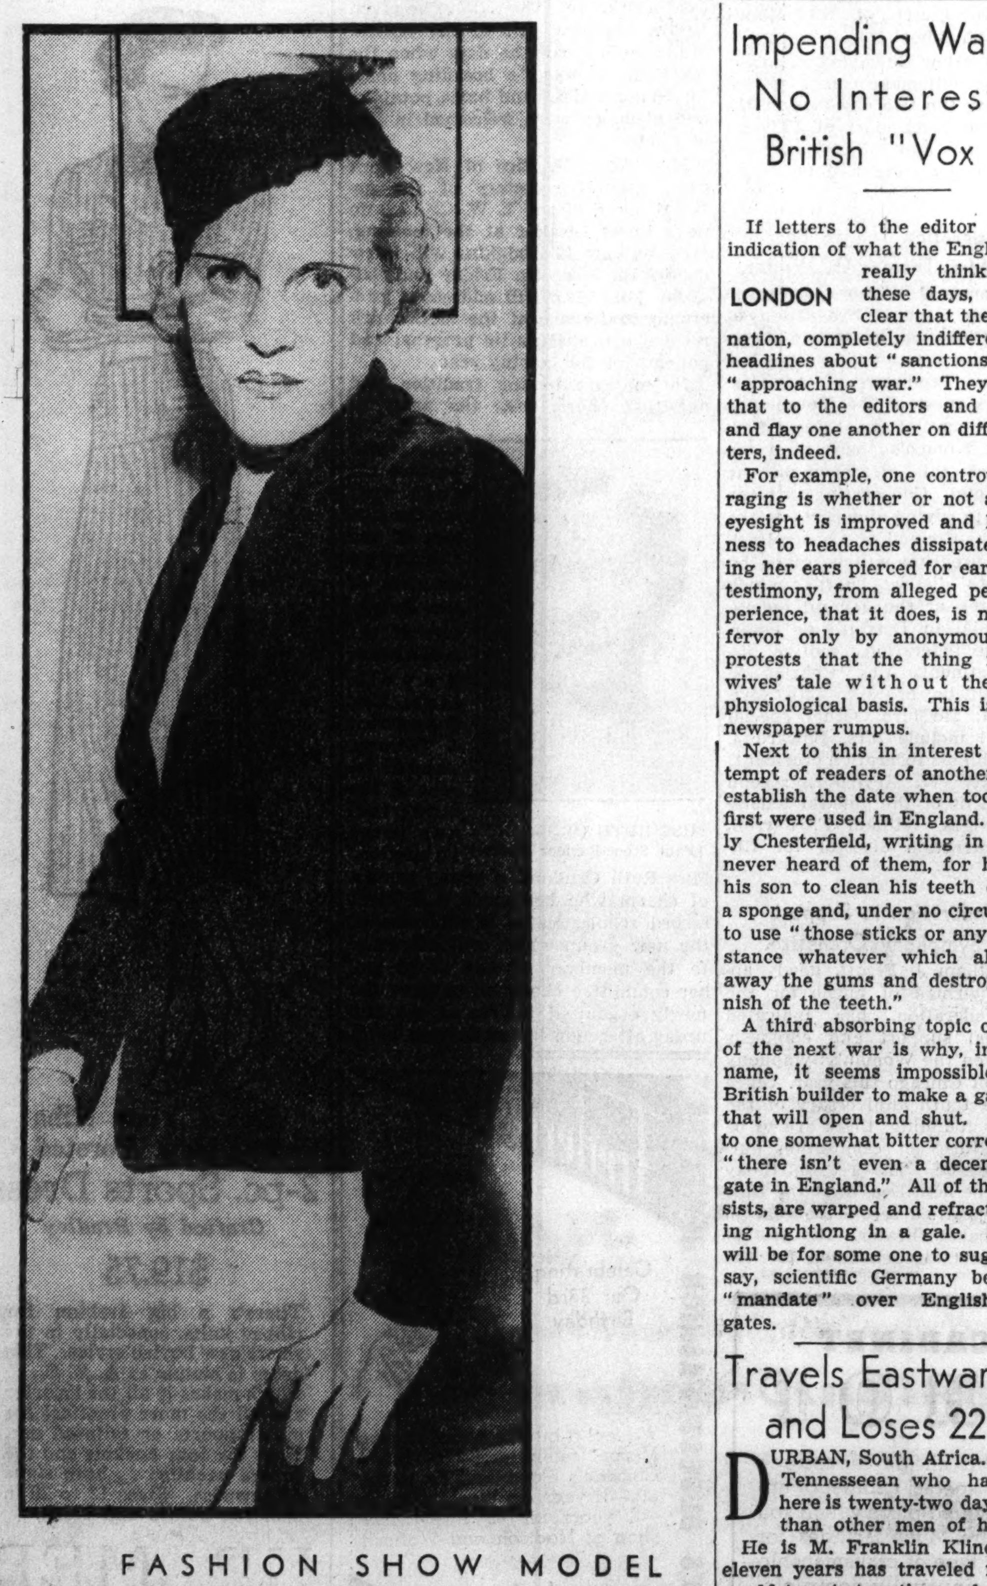
St. Luke Style Show Highlight of Social Season

Miss Katherine Bulger, debutante daughter of the Thomas S. Bulgers of Winnetka, will be a model in the fashion sow to be given next Wednesday afternoon and evening in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel as a benefit for St. Luke's hospital. The show, always the biggest money raiser of the many benefits given annually, has become, during the nine years the woman's board of the hospital has been sponsoring it, one of the highlights of the social season as well.

It was Mrs. Frank Hibbard who suggested that a fashion show be given each year, instead of a ball, when she joined the woman's board ten years ago, and all her fellow workers have been thankful to her ever since for her idea, for the show is no more work than the ball and it is far more lucrative. The first year it netted $9,000, and one year the proceeds amounted to $40,000. It is hoped that at least $30,000 will be realized this year.

It really was the woman's board that started St. Luke's, for it was a group of women members of the Camp Douglas Aid society, which met with the Rev. Clinton Locke, rector of Grace church, in February, 1864, and resolved to establish a hospital and name it St. Luke's. The women had been supplying the sick soldiers of Camp Douglas with comforts, which made them realize the urgent need for a hospital. A small wooden house with grass and flowers surrounding it was found on State street near Eldridge court, and in it a seven bed hospital was established.

The first contribution to the building fund was the outcome of a small fair held by two young girls of the parish. With this money, $125, the hospital was moved into a larger house, in which there could be eighteen beds. In 1871 the hospital moved to its present site on South Michigan avenue. In that year the first charity ball was given under the direction of Mrs. N. K. Fairbank and Mrs. H. O. Stone. The balls were given annually until the fashion show was started.



FASHION SHOW MODEL

Miss Phyllis Peck of River Forest was one of the models in a fashion show given recently at a bridge tea the Oak Park and River Forest Infant Welfare workers gave as a benefit. Miss Peck's brown jacket and hat contrasted smartly with a yellow frock.

Impending War of No Interest to British "Vox Pop"

If letters to the editor are a fair indication of what the English are all really thinking about

LONDON these days, then it is clear that they are, as a nation, completely indifferent to the headlines about "sanctions" and the "approaching war." They leave all that to the editors and statesmen and flay one another on different matters, indeed.

For example, one controversy now raging is whether or not a woman's eyesight is improved and her proneness to headaches dissipated by having her ears pierced for earrings. The testimony, from alleged personal experience, that it does, is matched in fervor only by anonymous medical protests that the thing is an old wives' tale without the slightest physiological basis. This is a tip-top newspaper rumpus.

Next to this in interest is the attempt of readers of another paper to establish the date when toothbrushes first were used in England. Apparently Chesterfield, writing in 1754, had never heard of them, for he advised his son to clean his teeth daily with a sponge and, under no circumstances, to use "those sticks or any hard substance whatever which always rub away the gums and destroy the varnish of the teeth."

A third absorbing topic on the eve of the next war is why, in heaven's name, it seems impossible for the British builder to make a garage door that will open and shut. According to one somewhat bitter correspondent, "there isn't even a decent garden gate in England." All of them, he insists, are warped and refractory, banging nightlong in a gale. Next step will be for some one to suggest that, say, scientific Germany be given a "mandate" over English garden gates.

Travels Eastward and Loses 22 Days

DURBAN, South Africa.—(AP)—A Tennesseean who has arrived here is twenty-two days younger than other men of his age.

He is M. Franklin Kline, who in eleven years has traveled round the world twenty-two times, always in an easterly direction.

Each time he crossed the international date line he dropped a day. Hence his gain on Father Time.

"I've traveled 1,250,000 miles in my life, always east, and have never grown tired of it," Kline said.

Jascha Heifetz Recital to Aid Philanthropy

Concert Tomorrow Evening Under Sponsorship of Jewish Women of City.

JASCHA HEIFETZ, the violinist, will appear in recital at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow evening at Orchestra hall under the auspices of the Chicago section, National Council of Jewish Women. Proceeds of the concert will be used for the philanthropies which the council has maintained for 43 years in Chicago.

MRS. LOUIS E. GOLAN.
[Gibson Photo.]

Culminating weeks of activity on the part of her committee, Mrs. Louis E. Golan, chairman of boxes, reports a complete sell out. Among those who have boxes will be Mrs. Arthur Spiegel, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Byfield, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin I. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Max Korshak, Judge and Mrs. Harry Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Alschuler, and Mr. and Mrs. Ulysses S. Schwartz.

Mrs. Harry J. Myerson, president of the council, has been assisted with arrangements for the concert by Mrs. Harry A. Kahn, general chairman; Mrs. Morris, vice chairman; Mrs. Samuel L. Herman, treasurer and ticket chairman; and Mrs. Milton Klein, secretary.

Luncheon and Committee Meetings Other Events on Council's Schedule.

Other activities of the council for the week include a membership luncheon at 1 o'clock Wednesday at the home of Mrs. S. P. Platt, 3422 West Monroe street. The budget and executive committees hold a joint meeting this morning and Thursday and Friday mornings at 10 o'clock. The peace committee meets at 10:30 o'clock Friday, and a membership luncheon will be held at 1 o'clock Saturday at the home of Mrs. Leo F. Miller, 2048 Humboldt boulevard.

Another musical benefit in prospect is the concert which Richard Crooks, Metropolitan opera tenor, will give Nov. 22, at the Auditorium, under the auspices of La Rabida-Jackson Park sanitarium. Mrs. Cope J. Hanley is general chairman, and Mrs. Clifford G. Roe, president of the board, is in charge of the sale of boxes. Mrs. Harry R. Kurrie is chairman of patrons and patronesses, and Mrs. Robert A. Black of ticket sales.

Prairie State Club to Open Season Formally with Luncheon.

The Prairie State club will open its season formally with the president's annual luncheon and reception at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow at the Stevens hotel. Mrs. Thomas C. Lyne, president, and her board will receive.

Among the special guests will be Mrs. Walter W. Seymour, second vice president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Edward J. Lehman, president of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Marion H. Biel, president of the First district of the Illinois federation; and Mrs. Charles S. Clark, president of the Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen. Jeanne M. Devaney, soprano, and Edna Means, entertainer, will give a program.

Chicago Woman's Club to Hear Lecture Series on Topic of Cancer.

"Cancer: Its History, Its Treatment, Its Cure" will be the topic of a series of five lectures to be held on consecutive Thursday mornings at 11 o'clock, beginning this week, at the Chicago Woman's club. The cancer research committee, headed by Mrs. James B. Herrick, has arranged the series. The story of cancer, its scientific aspects, the transmission of cancer through inheritance, and cancer of female structures are aspects of the subject to be discussed.

Speakers will include Dr. F. L. Rector, field representative of the American Society for Control of Cancer; Dr. James P. Simonds, professor of pathology at Northwestern university medical school; Maude Slye, director of the cancer laboratory at the Otho S. A. Sprague Memorial institute at the University of Chicago; Dr. Fred L. Adair, chairman and professor in the department of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Chicago; and Dr. Max Cutler, director of the tumor clinic at Michael Reese hospital.

Two lecture series will begin this week under the auspices of the Chicago Woman's Aid. Mrs. Raymond S. Simons, attorney, will present a course in current government, beginning at 11 o'clock Friday, under the title, "From Private Opinion to Public Action."

Harry D. Gideonse, professor of economics at the University of Chicago, will start a series of seven lectures on current world affairs Friday at noon. Successive lectures will be given at semi-monthly intervals.

Irving Stone to Speak to Friends of American Writers.

Irving Stone, the author, will speak at the opening luncheon of the Friends of American Writers Wednesday at the Chicago Athletic association, 71 East Madison street. Mr. Stone will discuss "The Writing Game." Mrs. Frederic H. Bradshaw of Oak Park, newly elected president, will present Mrs. Samuel Harkness and Miss Rose Coleman, winners of the first and second awards in the organization's short story contest, who, with Donald Culross Peattie, Louis Redfield Peattie, and Carl Milam, will be special guests.

The ninth biennial conference of the National Council of Jewish Juniors this week in Washington, D. C., will draw Miss Vera Teplitz, Miss Mae Freedman, Miss Agatha Deyen, and Miss Ruth Strauss as delegates from Chicago.

Mrs. Alfred Hamburger will review Winifred Wise's "Jane Addams" at a book review luncheon at the Medinah club Tuesday.

British Columbia Boasts of Highest Falls in the World

VANCOUVER, B. C.—[U. P.]—British Columbia may lay claim to having the highest waterfall in the world.

The fall lies thirteen miles northwest of the Great Central lake. Here there is an enormous rock formation over which Della falls drops a distance of 1,500 feet, according to provincial geographical figures. The falls are almost ten times as high as the world famous Niagara falls and nearly four times as high as Victoria falls in Africa.

The Della falls are not easily accessible, but it is understood they are to be exploited as one of the province's tourist attractions.

Business Women Have Leader in Helen McMackin

ITS no wonder the business and professional women of Illinois put Helen McMackin of Salem at the helm of their state federation. She's a delightful person with plenty of brains, vitality, and good common sense to back up her charm of manner.

MISS HELEN McMACKIN.
[Palmer House Studio Photo]

She always has lived in Salem, the daughter of Charles Lincoln and Eugenia Drake McMackin, and the sister of the city's mayor, Maj. Omar McMackin. She likes to come to Chicago but she has enough to do in the home furnishing business to keep her actively interested at home. In this business she is associated with her father.

Helen McMackin doesn't remember much about her cradle days. She crawled out, painted her shoes green, and she's been going ever since. After her preliminary education in the Salem schools, she attended Bishop Robertson hall and then Washington university in St. Louis. In 1918 she was granted a degree as an instructor in surgical dressing at the Barnes hospital. The same year she served as district chairman in the Liberty Loan drive.

Hunting, dogs, and horses are her favorite hobbies, along with the collection of antique glass and furniture. A sofa, now in her possession, came from the historic Lemon home in Salem. It frequently was sat upon by Abraham Lincoln, also by John Sobieski, exiled heir to the Polish throne.

Besides the presidency of the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, Helen McMackin holds the state treasurership in the Illinois Officers' club of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and the presidency of the American Legion auxiliary unit to Luther B. Easley post No. 128.

As president of the business and professional women, Miss McMackin has emphasized the need for every woman knowing what becomes of her tax dollar. If women are to participate in the economic world, they should have something to say about the use of their tax dollar, she points out.

Nazis Cut Rates to Big Families

BRAUNSCHWEIG, Germany.—(AP)—That tourist trafic is being linked with the Nazi repopulation scheme was revealed by the local traveling bureau which announces "highly reduced" hotel rates for large families.

Parents with two children will be given a 5 per cent reduction in all hotels in Brunswick and an extra 5 per cent off for each additional child.

It's all part of a national effort to place large families into the foreground and grant them every possible facility.

Paris Society Flits from Turf to Auto Shows

And Back Again; Motors and Horses Dominate Smart Set's Activities.

By May Birkhead.

PARIS The chief gathering places of society these days in Paris are the autumn races at Longchamp and the motor show at the Grand Palais. In spite of the undercurrent of anxiety as to political developments the attendance at race course and automobile salon is as large as ever. The sweepstakes feature recently introduced has given the Longchamp track particular animation, and last Sunday a great throng turned out for the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe.

Women's dress is showing military touches, not only in braid and gold buttons on coats but in the hats. Lady Granard, Ogden Mills' sister, who is in partnership with Lord Derby for their racing interests in France, was wearing black with an ample silver fox collar and a hat of draped black velvet. Mrs. Berry Wall, who is resuming her Wednesday morning musicals at the Union Interalliée next month; Mrs. Constance Coolidge, who has an important stable in France; Señora Martinez de Hoz, wife of the Argentine turfman, and herself always a cynosure at the tracks for her sartorial perfection, this time in a robe-manteau of black diagonal trimmed with breitschwanz and a black felt casque trimmed with feathers, were some of those who help to make Longchamp of interest to the carefully dressed woman who likes to know the last word in fashion by what is worn on such occasions.

This autumn the Ritz has inaugurated a series of Thursday evening gala dinners and dances that are attracting much interest. This famous hostelry in the Place Vendôme has, since it was opened over a generation ago, seen many celebrities from Chicago pass through its doors, entwine themselves around the delicacies prepared by its chefs, or receive the salutations and the solicitude of Olivier, often called the greatest of maîtres d'hôtel.

Today the floral decorations at the Ritz, especially on gala occasions, are lush, for the establishment has its own extensive greenhouses. At this time of the year chrysanthemums and dahlias burgeon in the Regence dining room and in the Psyche salon.

The automobile show comes at a moment when everybody, as the saying goes, comes back to town. We understand, by the way, that the Herman Gades, who have been for some time at their Château du Mesnil-St. Denis, near Trappes, will come into Paris for the winter. They have been extending their usual delightful hospitality in recent months. Their neighbors, the Arthur Moultons, who have the Château de la Verrière, are leaving soon for Florida, and will spend much time on their new boat, which they bought to replace the one destroyed by fire last year.

H. Gordon Selfridge and his daughter, Vicomtesse de Sibour, who have been much on this side of the channel in recent weeks, are sailing today for the United States. They will visit Chicago during their American sojourn.

USHER AT CHILDREN'S ENTERTAINMENTS

Mrs. Dorothy Wegg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Wegg, is to be an usher at the series of children's entertainments the Chicago club of the alumnæ of Hollins college is sponsoring this winter raise money for scholarships. The first of the series will be given morning and afternoon on Saturday, Oct. 26, in the Studebaker theater when "Alice in Wonderland" will be given by the Clare Tree Major Children's theater of New York.

When Chicago Was Young

The Elegant Eighties

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd, of New York.

Chicago, April 30, 1886.

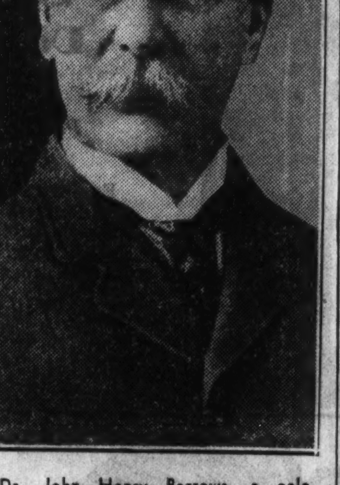
DEAR JULIA: Delightfully warm weather today induced us to have Michael get out the victoria for a drive away out to Hyde Park to see a tract of land in which Will was interested because he has a client who is one of a syndicate which has just bought it. The sale is an important one . . . thirty-two acres lying east of the Illinois Central tracks, immediately north of Jackson park. Some eastern men have bought this from the Illinois Central for the terrific price of $140,000, about $4,375 an acre. The property is bounded on the south by 56th street.

We got out of the carriage there and walked along the lake front in order to get a good view of the land. It looks rather desolate, but there are to be improvements made . . . sidewalks and pavements costing thousands of dollars, and there is talk of a large hotel to be erected on the block next the lake. "Watering place accommodations" are promised in this fine new hostelry. Three stories high it will be, with wide verandas running all around it. Designed as a summer resort primarily, it is to be kept open during the winter to accommodate sleighing parties. It is quite a long drive, but young people won't mind that. I feel quite enthusiastic about closing our house in summer and going out to the new hotel, but Will suggests that I wait before engaging rooms, as syndicates often are not able to raise the money for their ambitious projects. And it is a goodly sum to materialize—$250,000.

As we reëntered the carriage Will said he supposed he should have invested in real estate, as many of his friends had done, for he knew he'd have been a richer man today if he had. But he has always dreaded the responsibility of land.

Potter Palmer is buying lots on the north side and will build houses for rent, we hear. I noticed in today's paper that he has bought a lot on Astor street, north of Banks street, paying $15,000 for 80 feet. People are beginning to build north of Division street, but I prefer our location . . . south of Chicago avenue. It's much more convenient.

On our way home from the south side we stopped on Indiana avenue to call on Dr. and Mrs. John Henry Barrows. Dr. Barrows is the brilliant pastor of the First Presbyterian church, beloved for his kindliness and admired for his learning and eloquence. He looked tired, I thought, and Mrs. Barrows told me privately that the last winter has been a hard one for him. She didn't mention the cause, but I think he has felt the criticism leveled against him by narrow religionists because of a speech he made at a testimonial banquet for David Swing. It was a lovely, brotherly speech, but in it he referred to Dr. Swing as "a high priest of the beautiful in the midst of our Philistinism." Anonymous letters have come to him, accusing him of being a "truckling Iscariot." O dear! I shouldn't like to be a minister.



Dr. John Henry Barrows, a celebrated Chicago minister of the eighties.

I suppose the literal can never understand that the spirit bloweth where it listeth. Dr. Barrows, of all men, is truly evangelical. I've heard him preach bravely to his rich congregation on the subject of sin, but he delights also to discern the mind of Christ in all who are seeking to preach righteousness in our wicked city.

As we rose to go the dominie told us a good story. A speaker for the Humane society had made an address advocating gentle measures with children and opposing whipping. At the close a gentleman stood up and asked if he practiced what he preached . . . if he never struck his own children. "Certainly I practice what I preach," replied the speaker. "I never strike my children except in self-defense."

In the gale of laughter that followed this tale we left. I wish we were not so far from the south side, I'd like to see more of the delightful Barrows family.

Much love, dear Julia.

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

The Rev. Dr. John Henry Barrows (1847-1902) won international fame for his leadership of the World Parliament of Religions during the Columbian exposition of 1893. He was president of Oberlin college at the time of his death.

The Chicago Beach hotel seems to be the hostelry indicated by Martha, but it didn't materialize until the world's fair era, six years later.

Mrs. William T. Daum has copied for us the sign she found at Somonauk, Ill., in a collection of pioneer relics. It had once hung in an old inn.

When you come unto the fire,
Set you down is my desire,
That other folks, as well as you,
May see it and may feal [sic] it, too.
If anything your mind doth crave,
Then give a call, you shall it have.
My liquor is good, my measure just,
But I am lame and cannot trust.
Be pleased to call for what you need,
For more than that I cannot speed.
But if to me a boon you'd do,
Be pleased to pay before you go.

Old Chicago Harthstones.

3400 SOUTH MICHIGAN AVENUE.

[Requested by May Farrell.]

This imposing mansion was built by the rich merchant, Emanuel Mandel. It was under construction for two years, being completed in 1893. It is still owned by the widow of the builder. An account of its furnishings, contained in a yellowing newspaper of the day, tells of its great library with tapestry hung walls, mahogany bookcases, and silver chandelier; and the drawing room with satin damask walls and a floor covered with an Aubusson rug of great value. The bedrooms were luxurious, too, and in one a brass bed with satin canopy is described in detail. The third floor was occupied by a ballroom with movable stage. A crowning bit of luxury was a barber's chair in the master's bathroom.

During the world war Mrs. Mandel turned the house over to the government and many soldiers were billeted there. It is now a rest home.

Mrs. Mandel, famous for her philanthropies, will celebrate her 87th birthday on Oct. 25 at her Highland Park home.

If any old house interests you ask us about it and we will try to find its story. Or if you know the history of any old house send it in. Address Herma Clark, care CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

2,000 Pilgrims Journey Over Near East Road

JERUSALEM.—[U. P.]—The opening of a new direct route between Irak and the Hijaz is causing considerable worry in Syria.

The protest is from the merchants of Damascus and outposts on the old Syrian route. On the new route agreements have been reached with the governments of Irak and Hijaz for establishment of a sanitary post and a passport office at Idha.

To date 2,000 foreign pilgrims have journeyed over the new highway. Pilgrims from Mecca will not be allowed to carry cameras. The reason for the ban is to prevent photographing of the rites and scenes sacred to the Moslem religion.

Mustapha Kemal to Put Radios in Peasant Huts

ANKARA.—(AP)—In an effort to increase the Turkish peasantry's knowledge of domestic and foreign events President Mustapha Kemal has sponsored a measure to abolish the import duty on radio sets.

Duty on the average set from America now is sometimes twice as much as its retail value. With erasure of the duty, it is believed, Turkey will offer an important market for the instruments.

London Praises Ballet Art of Chicago Girl

Ruth Kahmann, Appearing with Russian Troupe, Wins British Acclaim.

By Ann Whittingham.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON The 17 year old niece of a Chicago banker is making a sensation in the Russian ballet in London after a great success in Paris and Monte Carlo.

Her name was Ruth Kahmann, but as prima ballerina with the ballets of Leon Woizikovsky she is known and headlined as Ruth Chanova. This name was worked out from her mother's name, Buchanan, when Ruth entered the corps de ballet of Col. De Basil of Monte Carlo.

It was James L. Buchanan, vice president of the First National bank of Chicago, who helped his niece to get the training that she needed, both in America and in Europe. He was certain that she had definite talent, and he wanted to make sure that every chance was given for this to be developed to the fullest extent.

Now Famous Dancer Began Her Training in a Chicago School.

In 1929, when Ruth Kahmann was 11 years old, she began studying ballet at the Chicago school of Serge Oukrainsky. There she stayed for two years before taking the step of going to Paris to study for another two years.

Finally, in 1933, she had the opportunity to enter the group under the teaching of Nijinska. Her progress there was rapid. At first she was placed in the fourth and back row of the ensemble. As rehersals progressed she was advanced until, when the time for the first performance came, she was in the front line, and also had been given a small part to do in another ballet.

Then, with Col. De Basil, who insisted that every one in his corps bear a Russian name, she became Ruth Chanova, and began getting bigger and bigger parts as her ability was recognized.

First Important Success Came with Creation of "Ophelia" Role.

Her first really important success came from a great chance, in Paris. There, with the Russian opera at the Chatelet, she created the part of Ophelia with her teacher, Nijinska, dancing the part of Hamlet. The music was that of Liszt, and the ballet, which was being done for the first time, was after the choreography of Nijinska.

Before coming to England for the three weeks' London engagement Ruth Chanova made a great hit in Paris, dancing at the last performance ever to be held at the old Trocadero palace, before a full house capacity of 6,000 persons. French critics and Russians of the old school, including the former director of the Imperial Russian ballet, acclaimed her as a new and great star.

However, the young girl has not let the success turn her head. She continues working on her dancing as though she still were a beginner, and says, with great modesty: "I have been most fortunate, but I have a long way to go."

A SHIPLEY GRADUATE

Miss Ellen Allen, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Porter Allen of Winnetka, is a comparative newcomer to the north shore, for she and her parents moved here from Pennsylvania only four years ago. She is a graduate of the Shipley school at Bryn Mawr, however, so she knew a number of Chicago girls when she moved here. She was introduced to society at a luncheon at home on a busy day in September.

Chicago Artist Wins Spurs in One-Man Show

Berenice Newman Joins Painters Introduced by All-Illinois Society.

By Eleanor Jewett.

THE All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts has started a number of our popular painters on their road to fame. Lane K. Newberry, John Doctoroff, Nina K. Griffin, Julius Moessel, and Dale Nichols are a few names that come rapidly to mind when one recalls one man shows sponsored by the All-Illinois which have introduced worth while talent to Chicago.

The All-Illinois is now sponsoring the exhibit of still life and landscape painting by Berenice Newman in the Lord Nelson room, Drake hotel, the customary scene of its more important one man shows. Mrs. Newman has done justice to the significance of her gallery and her exhibition takes rank shoulder to shoulder with those which have preceded it. Startlingly decorative are many of her still life arrangements. From one to another of the flower studies you may pass with no sense of monotony nor boredom. Each incident comes fresh from her brush. The blossoms are fragrant and vivid, exquisitely painted, and the compositions are sufficiently diversified to provide one with a continual thrill.

Petunias in Black and White Challenging Experiment.

One of the most amazingly successful of Mrs. Newman's experiments is the gorgeous black and white study of petunias. This was attempted with deliberate purpose on the part of the artist and climaxes a number of such studies. The unique "Wall Pocket on Back Porch" lends one to think of many a novel place for flowers. It is a fascinating little arrangement, hinting of California or Italy where a hot sun beats on a blue wall and flowers luxuriate in the heat.

So many of the flower paintings are noteworthy that one hates to miss mentioning even a single canvas by name, but if choice there must be then do not overlook the magnificent "Floral Bouquet" or the lovely "Crab Apple Blossoms," "White Roses and Zinnias," "The Black Urn," "Small Basket of Blossoms," and "Iris."

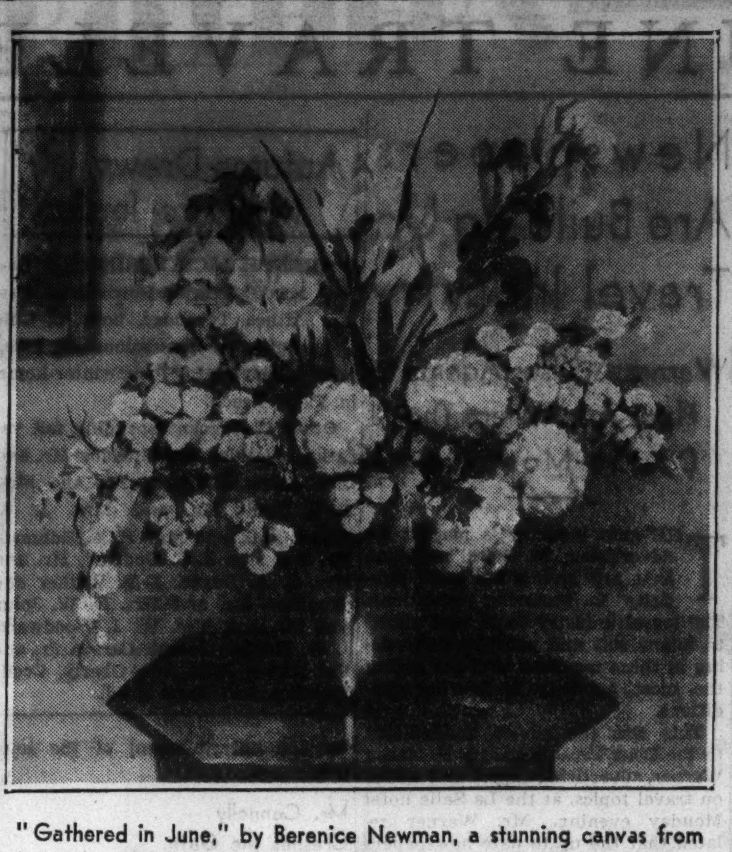
New to Landscape Painting, Mrs. Newman Shows Promise.

Mrs. Newman has only comparatively recently taken up landscape painting and her progress in this type of work is surprising. Several interesting landscapes give us a suggestion of what we may expect later on. "The Pool" is a memorable canvas, intimate and friendly. "Memory of Upper Michigan," "Edge of Pine Grove, Baldwin County," "Country Road," and "Early Autumn: Brown County" show us her handling of birch trees and pines, of sedge, of hills, of marsh, meadowland, and sky.

The exhibition will continue through Nov. 4 and is well worth seeing. In fact, Mrs. Newman's show is a delightful place in which to spend an hour.

Dannhausen's Paintings Charm with Their Spirit.

The All-Illinois is sponsoring an exhibit of paintings by E. G. Dannhausen in the Florentine room, Congress hotel, through the month of October. Most of the exhibition is devoted to water colors, but there is a scattering of oils, eight in number, and a half dozen pen and ink drawings to balance the exuberance of the lighter medium. Mr. Dannhausen became well known during A Century of Progress through his picturesque interpretation of a corner in the Belgian Village—red roofs and a feeling of monastic peace. The painting was called "The Hour of Prayer," and it bulks large in the present show. "Winter Wonderland" and "The Bridge" are two other intriguing oils.



"Gathered in June," by Berenice Newman, a stunning canvas from her one man show of flower paintings and landscapes in the Lord Nelson room, Drake hotel, under the auspices of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts. The exhibit will run to Nov. 5.

There are water colors in quantity and of quality. Evanston, Chicago, St. Joe, Milwaukee, and the Wisconsin countryside have yielded subjects for his brush. The paintings are animated, sparkling, colorful, and authentic. "Salt Creek in Fall" is particularly delightful, but it would be stupid to quote the catalog titles in full, as one almost should do in fairness, to accent this and that attractive sketch. There is scarcely a water color that does not touch the imagination. They are not great, but they are charming.

News of Interest to Lovers of Art.

The Hoosier Art gallery, 211 West Wacker drive, has opened a delightful exhibition of sea and landscapes of the eastern coast, and portraits by Samuel F. Hershey, and of Indiana and Provincetown scenes by Gordon B. Mess.

The Chicago Woman's Aid opened an exhibit of paintings and lithographs by Leon and Sadie Ellis Garland last Monday. Daniel Catton Rich was the guest speaker. The exhibit will continue through the month.

The Allerton House gallery is showing to Oct. 31 water colors and oils by Jay Datus. The paintings are of scenes in Mexico, Honduras, and the West Indies. It is an interesting exhibit.

The Anderson galleries, 536 South Michigan boulevard, will open an important show of early American landscapes tomorrow. The group of painters include such well known men as Inness, Wyant, Blakelock, and Martin and also some of the earlier men whose work today is hard to find—such men as Cropsey, Enneking, Parton, Bristol, Eastman, Johnson, and Hart, names strange to most of us. It will be an American art show and as such of great interest.

The Anderson galleries have another exciting announcement and that is of an exhibit of desert paintings by Harry B. Wagoner, the finest interpreter of the beauties and mysteries of the desert painting today. Last year it was impossible to arrange a Wagoner exhibit, as Mr. Wagoner had sold every picture virtually from his easel. He is immensely popular with a large and discriminating public. This exhibition will open Nov. 11. Mark the date as a red letter day. It will be a magnificent show.

Miklos Gaspar has finished his series of murals for the boys' club room in the Union League club, and they are excellently done. He has added a rich page to the art treasures of Chicago. Possibly more, certainly as, important as the artistic significance of the murals is their thesis: The reclamation of underprivileged boys. The ragged, desperate child of the streets is shown gradually being taught to be a competent citizen through the various agencies of the Union League club's boys' clubs. The gym, the workroom, the reading room, the playfield, the lecture hall, the dozen activities that have weaned many boys from the streets and given them a fresh start in life are illustrated. For the work and for the murals there can be nothing but admiration.

The South Side Art association opens today its fall exhibition of paintings by artist members at the Chicago Beach hotel. Lorado Taft will address the guests.

The 46th annual exhibition of American paintings and sculpture opens in the east wing galleries of the Art institute on Thursday, Oct. 24. It will continue through Dec. 8.

Famous English Clock Has Day of Berserk Chiming

LONDON

London is a city of church bells and chimes, and everybody is used to glancing at his or her watch when the hour is struck. Apart from the London "underground," there are few places where one can't, on the hour, hear some church bells striking the time. From the chimes of "Big Ben" to the bells of the nearest parish church they are an important part of the Londoner's life.

This explains the excitement on Baker street recently when the sedate, huge clock on the tower of the Abbey Road Building society suddenly went looney. At 4 o'clock it played, as usual, a few bars from "Fine Old English Gentleman" whereafter it struck 44 times. Heads were poked out of windows, and in the street people stood around and counted the strokes. At 5 o'clock it seemed exhausted and could produce only 22 strokes, but at 6 it had gained its second wind and struck 51 times. By this time every newspaper in town had been informed by scores of readers of what was happening, and art editors were getting out pictures of the clock tower. At 7 o'clock heads again were poked out of windows, but the clock, although it continued to tick off the time correctly, refused to strike at all!

Amicie de Burgh Whyte Announces Troth to Roderick Walter, Young London Lawyer

LONDON

Miss Amicie de Burgh Whyte, the English granddaughter of the late Mrs. Vaux and Mr. Frederick Vaux of Chicago, has announced her engagement to Mr. Roderick Walter, a young barrister here.

Amicie was a debutante during the London season of 1932, and was presented at court in May of that year by her mother, who adopted English nationality on her marriage to Mr. William de Burgh Whyte. During that year, and since then, Amicie has been prominent in many society charities, and was one of the most popular bridesmaids at several important weddings in St. Margaret's, Westminster. Her own wedding, she says, probably will not be at St. Margaret's, but at a more intimate church. The wedding probably will take place next February.

Mr. Roderick Walter is the great grandson of the man who founded the London Times, and his father, Mr. John Walter, is one of the chief proprietors of the Times today. Mr. Walter is only 24 and has just passed his last examination toward entering the bar. He went to Eton and then to Cambridge, and has known Miss Amicie de Burgh Whyte ever since her début.

Mrs. De Burgh Whyte last visited Chicago shortly after the death of her mother, Mrs. Frederick Vaux, last April. It was while she and her other daughter, Joan, were in Chicago, that Amicie became secretly engaged. Amicie and Mrs. Whyte spent the summer in Austria while Mr. Whyte was in Czechoslovakia and Joan was in Scotland. Mr. Whyte is the English engineer who laid the tunnels under the East river in New York before the war. He and Sir Henry Japp were co-directors of the production department of the British war mission in America in 1915-'18.

Irish Towns Go Gaelic.

DUBLIN.—(AP)—Towns in Ireland are showing an increasing tendency to drop their Anglicized names and revert to Gaelic designations. In addition to Queenstown, which became Cobh several years ago, Kells has become Ceannanus Mor, Newtonbarry has become Bunclody, and King's County is now Offaly.

Drawings on View in London Gallery Satirize Hitler

LONDON

Tooth's gallery is showing a remarkable exhibition of satirical anti-Nazi drawings by Baron von Ripper, a 25 year old Austrian artist who has known the inside of a concentration camp. They are pen and ink drawings, and Von Ripper has taken his revenge in them on the "totalitarian state."

"Education of the Citizens" shows a grill, representing medieval torture, with a circus horse being trained in the background. "Registered Association of German Christians" pillories Hitler's religious movement. A man plays an organ which turns a wheel on which dead men are hanging by their necks. "A Talk to a Child Before Its Birth" shows a series of milestones in the child's life, including school, military service, the factory, and the hospital. All of the drawings are grim and arresting, and are attracting much attention.

ESCORTED TOURS

Tourists Leave for Europe, but Plans Indefinite

Itineraries Are Based on Outcome of War Situation on the Continent.

MR. AND MRS. S. G. McALLISTER and Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Thayer left yesterday on the Ile de France for a month or two of European travel. Sailing for France on the same ship were Mr. and Mrs. Leon Girard and their son, Alfred; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carton, and Richard Pfefferkorn.

Many Chicagoans now leaving for Europe plan to make up their itineraries as they go along, since an outbreak of war would alter any plans they might have. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Stanley, who embarked last week on the Berengaria, will travel extensively, but have left their schedule flexible. Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Strong, who sailed on the same ship, will visit England and France and then, if conditions remain unchanged, will tour several other countries. After having visited relatives and friends in Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Evan Phillips sailed for England on the Aquitania. Mr. and Mrs. E. W. H. Vesey, who have been visiting in Highland Park, are returning on the Britannic.

Bound for Mediterranean Lands.

Confident that there is no cause for alarm, several Chicagoans sailed yesterday on the Rex to visit Italy. Among them were Dr. Hans Deutsch, Mrs. Jennie Eger, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Camen. Others on the Rex were Miss Vivian Abbo, who will visit relatives on the French Riviera; Kindall Niglis of Madison, Wis., and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Da Prato of Negaunee, Mich.

Adam Waldek and Dr. John T. Lobenhoffer, who will tour the continent together, left Wednesday on the President Harding. Mrs. Clara S. Wilson and Marion T. Gibson sailed on the same ship. Mr. and Mrs. Wesley MacMurray and their children, Elizabeth and Robert, left Thursday on the City of Havre to visit relatives in England and South Africa.

On the Europa when it steamed out of New York Tuesday night were Charles A. Monroe and his daughters, Mrs. Charles A. Moore and Mrs. Herbert Lloyd, and Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Evans, all of Chicago, and Prof. Stanislaus Zowski of Milwaukee. The following night Henry Regnery of Hinsdale left on the Albert Ballin for a course of study in Germany.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Sexton, Mrs. A. F. Lee, Miss Dorothy Platt, and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Memmel, all of this city, and the Misses Margaret Hartmeyer and Mary Longfield of Madison, Wis., sailed on the Queen of Bermuda, Wednesday for vacations in Bermuda.

Among the Chicagoans now aboard the Pennsylvania as it steams from San Francisco to New York via the Panama canal are Mr. and Mrs. Austin J. Lindstrom and Miss Eva H. Smith.

Westward Trafic Still Heavy.

The Majestic, the Normandie, and the President Roosevelt sailed from European ports Wednesday with many Chicagoans on their passenger lists. Aboard the Majestic are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seymour, Dr. P. W. Salit, Mrs. W. A. Bade, Mrs. W. Hayes, and John Kooreman. Returning from European holidays on the Normandie are Mr. and Mrs. Henri F. de Joughe, and Mr. and Mrs. M. Dreyfus, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Cook, Mr. and Mrs. John E. MacLeish, Miss Mary O'Bryan, Mrs. Vivian S. Washington, Mrs. Catherine Nelson, Mrs. J. S. Ackerman, Mrs. M. Weisse, Mr. and Mrs. Abner Rosenfelt, Frank R. Stenson, John V. McCarthy, and H. Norman Bell.

Aboard the President Roosevelt are George H. Dapples, Dr. John G. Cole, and P. J. Brown.

Mrs. Raymond Dund and Mrs. Lignante of Chicago were among the passengers on the Ile de France when it reached New York Tuesday. Robert M. Adams of Chicago and Miss Marguerite Strudel of Park Ridge returned on the City of Havre.

John M. Chapman returned from South Africa on the City of New York.

DETOURS

By Frederic Babcock.

VACATIONISTS who once regarded dude ranching as strictly a summer proposition have learned in recent years that some of the most desirable of the ranches are open only in the winter, while others take guests the year round. The summer places are found chiefly in Wyoming, Montana, and Idaho; the winter and all-year places are centered in New Mexico and Arizona.

One of the railroads operating out of Chicago plans to carry a large number of easterners and middle westerners this season to these ranches in the southwest. Officials of the road relate that the guest rates have been drastically reduced from the pre-depression levels, with the result that a heavy increase in patronage is anticipated.

● Dude ranching got its start about forty years ago. The Eaton brothers of northern Wyoming are usually credited with the discovery that there was more money in entertaining city dwellers from the east than there was in raising cattle, sheep, and horses. From their beginnings there has sprung an industry numbering hundreds of ranches throughout the Rockies and doing a business of millions of dollars annually.

In the early days the paying guests were tucked away in spare rooms in the ranch houses. As their numbers increased, extra rooms and cabins were added. The final development was the establishing of places whose sole purpose was to entertain the "dudes" in a typically western atmosphere. On these ranches the diversions include riding, hiking, hunting, fishing, swimming, and tennis. Many of the customers play at such strenuous sports as steer roping and bulldogging, even though their efforts are not taken very seriously by the cowhands themselves. The play is carried on in a setting enhanced by rugged peaks, rolling foothills, unpruned forests, and unpolluted streams.

● In the southwest, which boasts of having from 70 to 80 per cent of the possible annual sunshine, most of the winter ranches lie between 1,500 and 4,500 feet above the sea. Theirs is a hot summer, a late fall, an open winter, and an early spring. Between 4,500 and 6,500 feet is the middle ground, where the ranches are open both winter and summer. From 6,500 to 8,500 feet, spring, summer, and fall activity is the rule. The country surrounding Phoenix and Wickenburg, Ariz., is dotted with winter places, and there are numerous others around Santa Fe and in southern Arizona and New Mexico.

Trip to Europe Is Contest Prize

AS part of a plan to stimulate travel to Europe in 1936, a poster contest, with prizes totaling $800 and a round trip passage to Europe was announced last week by the Institute of Foreign Travel, 80 Broad street, New York. The contest will be open to artists of the United States and Canada, and three prizes, the first $500 and passage to Europe, the second $200 and the third $100 will be awarded.

Posters are to be in color and to scale to 23 inches by 36 inches. The art work is to be built around the phrase "See Europe Next," and must be general enough in appeal to stimulate travel to Europe as a whole. Reproductions of the winning poster will be distributed for display throughout the United States and Canada, the institute announced.

Charles T. Coiner, Byron Musser, Gordon Aymer, Edward F. Molyneux, and Edwin Georgi have been selected as a jury of award by the Art Directors' club, which is coöperating in the contest. The competition closes Dec. 31, and the awards will be announced early in January.

What and where is Blida? —E. V.

It is a little walled town, an hour's run from Algiers, and famous for its orchards and gardens. When Abd-el-Kebir fled from Spain in the 15th century to find an earthly paradise, he found Blida, and stayed there. Most tourists agree with his choice.

Newspapers Are Building Up Travel Industry

Warner Advises Agents to Place Ads Where They'll Do the Most Good.

THE auto industry is placing its advertising in those mediums that are giving the most publicity to motoring conditions. The travel industry could well afford to follow suit and place its advertising in those mediums that are giving the most publicity to touring conditions.

This was the advice handed out to the Bons Vivants society by Mason Warner, advertising expert and writer on travel topics, at the La Salle hotel Monday evening. Mr. Warner related that the up to date newspapers of America have established travel sections and are devoting much more space to the business than are the magazines, and that consequently they are performing a wider service both to those who wish to buy tickets and those who wish to sell them. He recommended that the sellers cash in on this ready-made market.

A Depression That's 4,000 Years Old.

Most of the address was devoted to things Mr. Warner learned in the course of his travels in the orient. Here are a few of his observations:

"China is in the midst of a depression—a depression that started 4,000 years ago. It will get over it eventually."

"In Bali the men follow their interpretation of Biblical instruction. They work one day a week and rest six."

"Old timers in the Philippines believe the new government there will last six months after independence takes effect."

"Japan is dominated by a single thought: The white man is through in Asia."

"As travel continues to grow in the next four or five years it will come largely from the tourist and second classes."

"Young Balinese children are doped with opium fumes and rice wine until they go into a sort of St. Vitus dance for the entertainment of the tourists."

Mr. Connelly Crashes the Gate.

Other events on the Bons Vivants program included a trip into the fourth dimension, with Vincent Gottschalk as conductor; songs by the Kathryn Bennett trio, with harmonica interpolations by Tom Wall, and a skit by George Nearpas, the whistling brakeman. An unscheduled event was the appearance of One-Eyed Connelly, who crashed the gate and made an impromptu talk.

The dinner and meeting marked the opening of the season for the society, made up of Chicago steamship and travel agents. A dinner-dance at the College Inn is planned for Nov. 4, when the annual election of officers will be held.

Autumn Draws Many to Indiana

FRENCH LICK SPRINGS, Ind.—Mrs. E. Preston Rowles and Miss Althea Tevander, both of Chicago, have been sojourning here, prior to leaving for their winter home in Palm Beach.

Other Chicagoans spending fall vacations at this resort include Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ettlinger, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Bradt, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Schram, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Hehman, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Godfrey, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Buyer, J. B. Walker and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Woodward, J. W. Hunter, Joseph Carson Jr., and the Misses Julia Ann Oberly, Cecile Fleming, and Anna Reed.

Chicagoans Go on Tour of Illinois Scenic Spots

AN "autumn leaves tour" to the Apple River Canyon state park and to the home of Gen. Grant in Galena will leave Chicago over the Illinois Central this morning. The party will detrain at Warren for a 30 mile motor trip through the hills and then will proceed to Galena, where it will entrain for the return trip. Members of several local organizations will participate in the outing.

Repopulating Turkey.

Come down now and save on Sunshine Vacations..

Smart vacationists are outwitting winter in Miami this year. They have found that, by coming now and taking advantage of low seasonal rates, they can spend a full winter here at much lower proportionate cost than that of a short stay later. Families especially, find they can close Northern homes and live here at actual savings through fuel and heavy clothing economies.

The Season Begins November 1

There's plenty to keep you busy. The million-dollar sports parade is already on. Golf, Tennis, Fishing, Riding, and Surf Bathing are at mid-season best. Children may register in school on arrival. So pack your bags, dismiss your winter worries, and set sail for June in Miami's golden sunshine.

COSTS ARE MODERATE

Accommodations for 150,000 visitors assure competitive rates to all. 200 hotels from $2 to $10, 10,000 apartments, "ready to live in," from $200 to $750 for 6 months season, or at special prices by week or month; and 5,000 furnished homes.

Sugar Skulls on Display at "Day of Dead" Fetes

Mexico's Distinctive Celebration in November Has Weird Accompaniment.

By Winifred Lee Wagner.

DISTINCTIVE among the customs of Mexico is its celebration of the "Day of the Dead." The fiesta lasts for two days—Nov. 1 and 2.

For days in advance bakers' windows are full of displays of "Bread of the Dead," round loaves varying in size from the quite small to perhaps thirty inches in diameter. The tops have designs in the shapes of bones, hoarily frosted white with sugar, and bits of black figs inside.

Confectioners display sugar skulls, having eyes of colored tinfoil, and ranging in size from a couple of inches to life size. They are somewhat reminiscent of the sugar Easter eggs of our childhood.

Drawn Knives and More Deaths.

On the Day of the Dead every one goes to a cemetery laden with flowers and candles. In these times it resembles our Decoration day; but in the old days families took their dinner basket laden with food and drink, spread it out on the grave, and stayed all day and part of the night, singing praises of those who had gone. And often, as the shadows lengthened and the pulque took effect, they would recall things not altogether to the credit and glory of the departed one.

"Well, after all, he wasn't as good as all that. I remember once when he . . ." And then an indignant relative to the defense: "You can't say that about my relation . . ." All too frequently ending with drawn knives and another of the dead lying across the grave.

The practice, therefore, has been prohibited in the large cities, and is continued only in the outlying districts. It is to be understood, of course, that this took place only among the lower, and sometimes the middle, classes. In the better cemeteries the custom has always been to bring flowers and candles and to leave the private mausoleums open for visits from friends.

The Romance of Don Juan.

The climax of the day comes in the evening with the performance of the play "Don Juan Tenorio." It is traditionally and faithfully given each year at this time, but at no other. No theater opens unless to present this play. It is well done in the larger ones; it falls into burlesque in the street shows.

"Don Juan Tenario" is, of course, one of the immortals of literature. It was written by José Zorrilla y Moral, and all in verse. The custom of its presentation on the Day of the Dead has been carried on in all Spanish speaking countries for a hundred years or more. It originated in Spain, home of the author, but the tradition is carried on in South America, Mexico, and other Spanish influenced countries as well. In fact, it may be said to be "an old Spanish custom."

Blue Ribbon Goes to the Normandie for Speed Record

REPRESENTING the "Blue Ribbon of the Atlantic," the Harold Keates Hales trophy for speed record on ocean crossings will be turned over by the Rex of the Italian line, previous record holder, to the French line flagship Normandie at a ceremony to be held aboard the Normandie in New York Tuesday evening.

Arnoldo Palanca, general American representative of the Italian line, will turn the trophy back to Mr. Hales, who will then present it to Henri Morin de Linclays, general manager of the French line for the United States and Canada, who will in turn place it in the keeping of Capt. René Pugnet, commandant of the Normandie.

The crossing which gave the Normandie the title to the trophy was her maiden voyage from Havre to New York, May 29 to June 3, 1935. She made the 2,971 nautical miles from Bishop's rock to Ambrose lightship in 4 day 3 hours 13 minutes 38 seconds, at an average speed of 29.94 knots.

Hotels in Florida Open Office Here

IN the expectation that there will be a heavy flow of trafic this winter from the middle west to Florida, the Miami Biltmore hotel of Coral Gables last week opened an office at 180 North Michigan avenue in Chicago. E. E. Ferguson, formerly of this city, is in charge as midwestern representative.

Mr. Ferguson said yesterday that his travels in the last few months had convinced him that Florida was in for its greatest season. He predicted that the increase would come largely from this section of the country. A few years ago, he said, most of the business came from the east, but in recent years the Chicago area has been showing a much larger percentage of the total.

Mr. Ferguson is also representing the Roney Plaza of Miami Beach and the British Colonial of Nassau. The two, with the Miami Biltmore, are controled by the Henry L. Doherty interests. This is the first time the three hotels have had a local office.

3 great Rug Sales
Bigelow-Sanford
Famous Mohawk
Broadloom Carpet

Oriental Reproductions $44.75

Just 50 Bigelow-Sanford Oriental reproductions . . . priced lower than medium grade Axminsters! Ordinarily they sell for much higher prices—but, because of slight irregularities (so imperceptible the buyer had to point them out to us) we can price them way down for this sale. Copies of Sarouks, Kashans, Kermans, and Chinese—all WASHED the same as genuine Oriental rugs. 9x12 feet.

Seamless Worsted Wiltons $59.75

Mohawk worsted Wiltons . . . the longest-wearing type of rug . . . at the lowest price we have ever heard. For this special sale we have priced them as low as ordinary wool Wiltons. All brand new designs! All perfect—with that deep, resilient pile that assures you years of down-right service Only 45 rugs. We cannot guarantee a repeat offer of these values. 9x12 ft.

New Twisted Yarn Frieze $3.98 SQ. YARD

Usually, textured broadloom of this superior quality sells at $5.50 a square yard. Thanks to Mandel's huge purchase you can now have perfect decorator-type carpet at a price that's sensational. A weave that scarcely shows foot-prints. A carpet that does with any type decoration, including modern. Choose from the season's newest colors! 9 and 12 foot widths.

Cover your floor from wall to wall—or have rug sizes made. A 9x12-foot rug regularly sells for $67.50. In this exciting sale, only $49.26. All other sizes at proportionate savings.

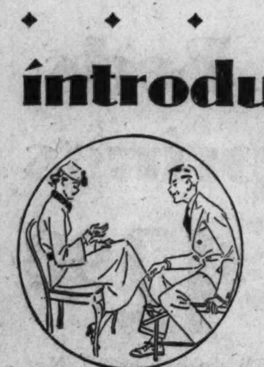
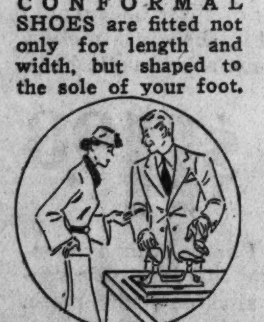
An Important Message to Women Who Have "Tired, Aching Feet"

It Is You Women Who Will Want to Know About the Most Amazing Shoe Comfort Development to Date

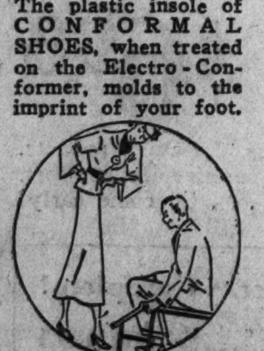
◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ the Plastic Sole introduced in Conformal Shoes



CONFORMAL SHOES are fitted not only for length and width, but shaped to the sole of your foot.



The plastic insole of CONFORMAL SHOES, when treated on the Electro-Conformer, molds to the imprint of your foot.



As you walk the soles solidify into a permanent, flexible, resilient imprint . . . fitted to the moving foot!

When you first step into a pair of CONFORMAL SHOES, and feel them molding to your footprints, there's a new comfort sensation mere words cannot describe! The secret of this new comfort, this new lightness of motion, is a plastic insole, a sensational feature that has revolutionized the whole theory of shoe construction. We will be glad to explain this principle to you . . . even demonstrate it and you will not be obliged to buy.

This Shows WHY

you get such Fast Relief from Real BAYER ASPIRIN

DROP A BAYER ASPIRIN TABLET INTO A GLASS OF WATER. BY THE TIME IT HITS THE BOTTOM OF THE GLASS IT IS DISINTEGRATING.

Quick Relief for Headaches, Neuritis, Rheumatic Pains

The old adage says, "what you see you believe." So the nurse pictured above, shows you two actual photographs to prove the quick action of Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

Look at them, and you will see one reason why Scientists rate BAYER ASPIRIN among the fastest agents, now known or ever known, for the relief of headaches, neuritis, neuralgia, and rheumatic pains.

You'll see that a Bayer Aspirin tablet, dropped into a glass of water, starts to disintegrate, or dissolve, before it hits the bottom of the glass. Hence, is ready to go to work almost instantly you take one. For what happens in that glass happens in your stomach when you take a BAYER ASPIRIN tablet. Relief comes in a few minutes.

Countless thousands know that about BAYER ASPIRIN. Know by experience that it brings the quick relief you want when in distress.

Keep this in mind the next time your work or play is handicapped by a bad headache, neuritis or rheumatic pain. And ask for Bayer Aspirin by its full name "BAYER ASPIRIN" when you buy. Learn for yourself how fast you can get relief.

Despite her 6,000 and more Dishwashings—

...Her Hands Keep Smooth and White!

Mrs. R. McAdoo, Jr., 14 W. 52nd St., N. Y. C.

... How Super Suds has made it possible for Mrs. McAdoo to wash dishes daily for six years—and still have beautiful hands. Why other soaps failed.

YOU, too, can keep your hands soft and young and lovely in spite of daily dishwashing! Just do what Mrs. McAdoo and millions of other women have done for 5, 6, even 7 years—wash all your dishes with Super Suds.

For Super Suds is a new form of soap. Made in tiny hollow beads, it dissolves instantly, completely! Unlike the average, slow-dissolving soap, it leaves no undissolved particles that irritate tender skin and give hands that red, ugly, "dishwashing" look!

And Super Suds also makes dishwashing far quicker and easier. It leaves no gummy, undissolved particles to streak your dishes. A quick rinse and they shine like new—even without wiping.

ENGLAND'S Beauties TELL YOU HOW TO KEEP LOVELY "ALL OVER!"

"BECAUSE PALMOLIVE IS MADE WITH OLIVE OIL, IT KEEPS FACE, ARMS, SHOULDERS SOFT AND SMOOTH. AND THAT'S WHY IT IS THE FAVORITE BEAUTY SOAP IN EUROPE."

Marguerite Hoare

15, BRUTON STREET, MAYFAIR, W. 1
FAMOUS BEAUTY SPECIALIST OF LONDON, ENGLAND

MADE WITH OLIVE OIL TO KEEP YOUR SKIN Lovely

WHY are these English beauties... like other European women ... so attractive to men?

Because they know the allure of "all over" loveliness! They keep face, arms, shoulders ... all their skin ... exquisitely smooth!

So use their simple "all over" beauty treatment ... Use Palmolive for your bath, as well as face.

See how this beauty soap ... because it is made only with olive and palm oils ... actually soothes and beautifies while it cleanses. See how utterly different its lather is. Rich, velvety, deeply penetrating ... but never irritating!

As a matter of fact, it is olive oil, nothing else, which gives Palmolive its soft, olive-green color. This very color assures its purity.

So keep lovely "all over" with Palmolive. Use this wonderful soap made with precious olive oil for your complexion and bath. Learn for yourself why Palmolive is the favorite beauty soap in France, Italy, Germany and seven other European countries.

AN OPPORTUNITY TO WIN AS MUCH AS $2,000 WITHOUT ONE CENT OF COST!

Ten Thousand Dollars will be given away by the Chicago Tribune. Doesn't that statement T-H-R-I-L-L you? Do you want to know how YOU can win? Then read this announcement carefully.

Look at the three Misplaced Faces of Movie Stars printed at the right. Can you cut them apart, put them together and name them?

Note that each photograph is in three pieces. As printed here the pieces do not match. But when cut apart and put together properly, they DO match.

Try it and see. Instantly you will recognize three of the most famous stars of the screen. If you go to the movies you have seen them countless times. Can you tell who they are? Simply write their names in the spaces indicated.

A new set of Misplaced Faces will appear in the Picture Section of the Chicago Sunday Tribune each Sunday for 12 Sundays. Save the entire set. Then send them in. The Chicago Tribune will pay $10,000 in Cash Prizes to the persons who send in the best answers. No subscriptions to solicit—no tricks—no catches. Everybody has an equal chance. Simply prove your skill.

This offer is made for the entertainment of our readers. It costs you nothing. It is open to every man, woman, boy, and girl, except employes of the Tribune, employes of Balaban & Katz Theaters, and members of their families. It does not matter where you live. There are 428 Big Cash Prizes.

Read the rules carefully and start with the first set of pictures printed here. Get the next set of Misplaced Faces next Sunday.

OF
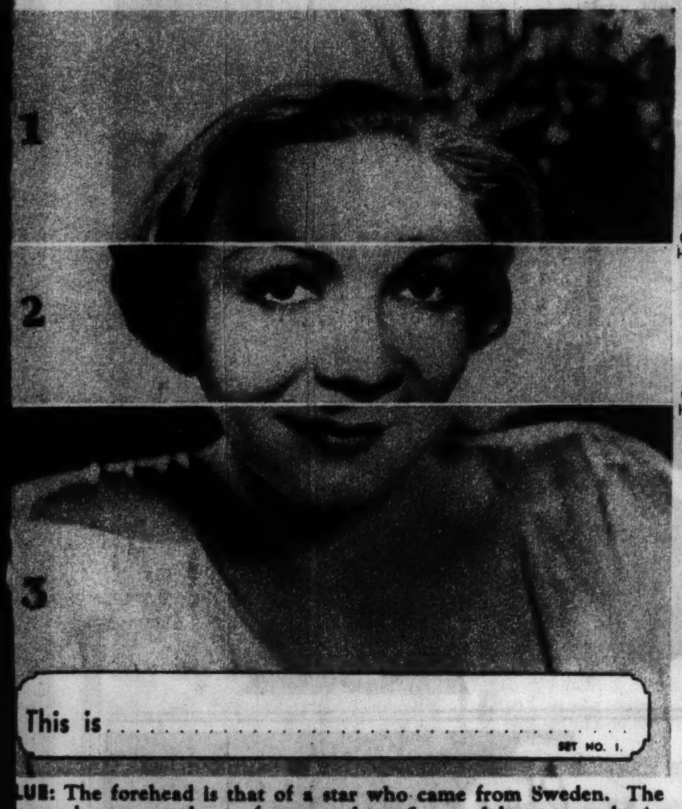
STARS

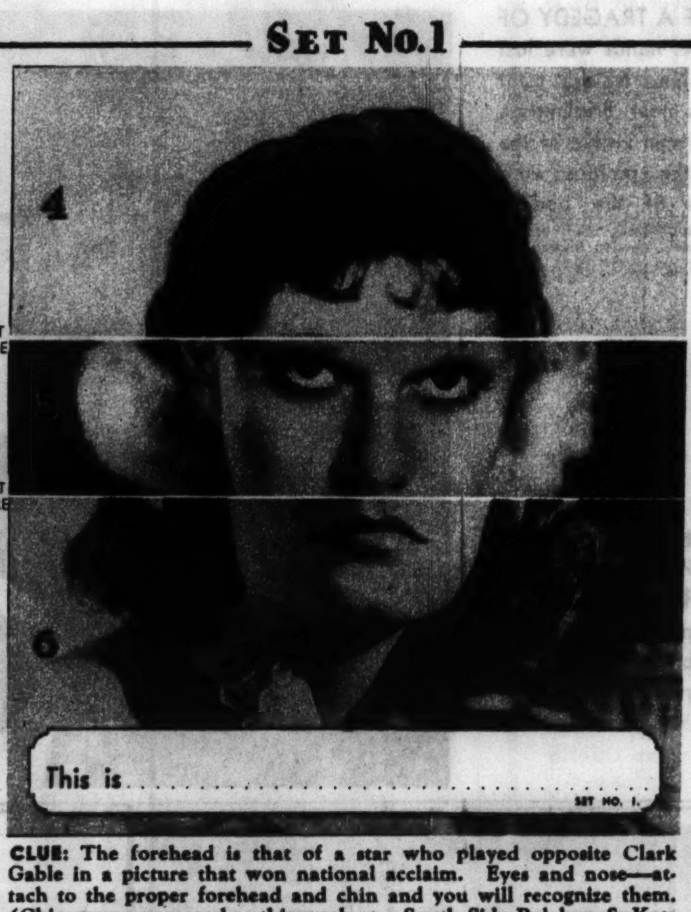
CAN YOU PUT THESE PICTURES TOGETHER AND NAME THEM? THEY ARE FAMOUS MOVIE STARS

Set No.1



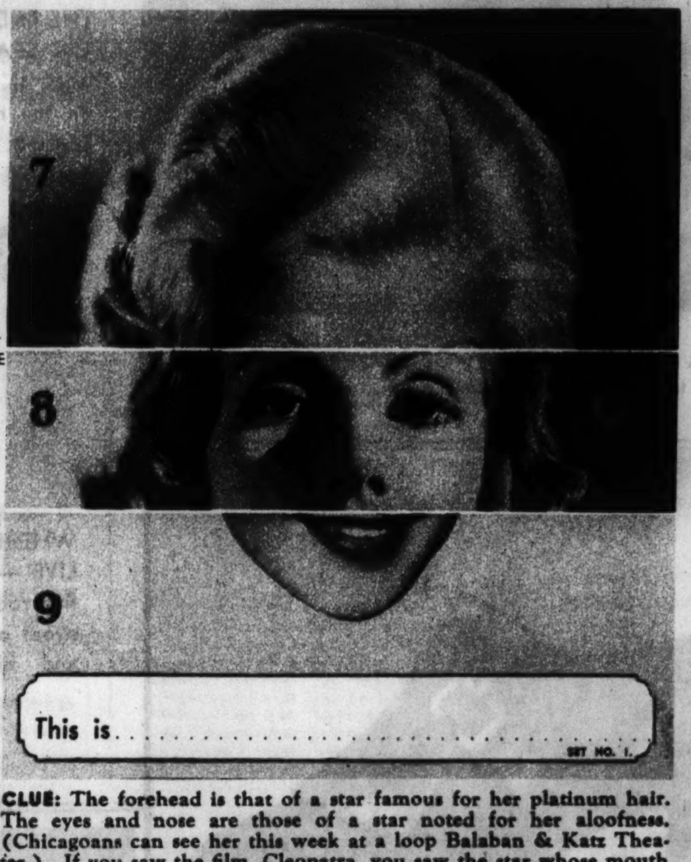
This is.. SET NO. 1.

LUE: The forehead is that of a star who came from Sweden. The es and nose are those of a star whose first and last names begin th the same letter. (Chicagoans can see her this week at an tlying Balaban & Katz Theater.) The mouth and chin are those a star currently playing in "China Seas."



This is.. SET NO. 1.

CLUE: The forehead is that of a star who played opposite Clark Gable in a picture that won national acclaim. Eyes and nose—attach to the proper forehead and chin and you will recognize them. (Chicagoans may see her this week at a South Side Balaban & Katz Theater.) The mouth and chin are those of a star known for her dramatic roles.

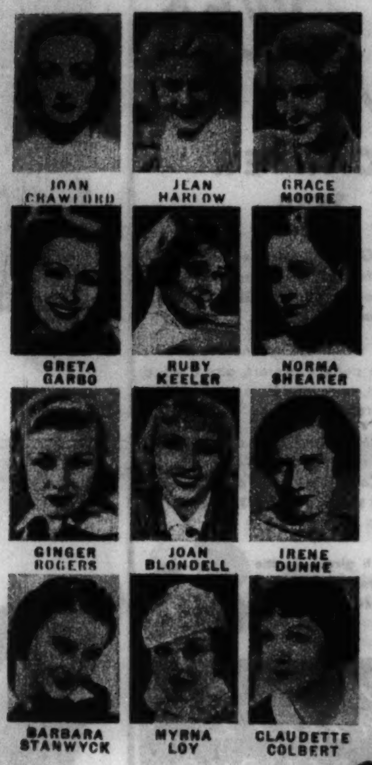


This is.. SET NO. 1.

CLUE: The forehead is that of a star famous for her platinum hair. The eyes and nose are those of a star noted for her aloofness. (Chicagoans can see her this week at a loop Balaban & Katz Theater.) If you saw the film, Cleopatra, you saw the star whose mouth and chin are pictured here.

THIS WILL HELP YOU

The stars in the first set of Misplaced Faces are among those shown below. This will help you get started.



HERE ARE THE SIMPLE RULES:

WHO CAN ENTER: Every man, woman, boy, and girl is eligible, regardless of residence, excepting employes of the Chicago Tribune, employes of Balaban & Katz Theaters, and members of their families.

WHAT TO DO: The pictures must be cut apart, assembled and pasted together. Below each picture must be written the name of the star. You may trim off rough edges if you wish to make perfect rectangular pictures. Three pictures will appear each Sunday in the Chicago Sunday Tribune until 36 pictures have appeared. Each set of three pictures, when cut apart and assembled properly, will make complete portraits.

WHERE TO SEND ENTRIES: DO NOT send in pictures one at a time. Hold all pictures until you have the complete set of 36. Then send them to "Misplaced Faces," Chicago Tribune, Postoffice Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois. No entry will be returned. All entries must be in by midnight 15 days after Set No. 12 is published. Each entry must be sent by first class mail, postage prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Postoffice Department.

THE PRIZES: The Chicago Tribune will pay 428 cash prizes totaling $10,000 to the persons who send in the nearest correctly solved and neatest complete sets of pictures in accordance with these rules. See prize list at right. You do not necessarily have to solve each of the 36 pictures correctly to win. Prizes will be paid to the persons whose entries rank highest. Elaborate entries are not necessary. Just make your entry simple and neat.

JUDGING: Entries will be judged by a committee appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Entrants agree to accept this committee's decision as final. Accuracy in assembling and naming the pictures, and neatness of entry will be the sole determining factors. In case of ties, duplicate awards will be paid.

NOTHING TO BUY: It is not necessary to buy the Chicago Tribune to compete. You may copy or trace the pictures. The Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at public libraries free of charge.

Youth-Molde
The NEW Head Band and Chin Strap that is ELASTIC without rubber and WASHABLE

USE the inexpensive Youth-Molde Head Band (single style) to protect the hair against creams, lotions and powder. It fits snugly around the hairline and gives attractive, comfortable protection.

Use the Youth-Molde combination Head Band and Chin Strap (double style) to keep face and neck young. As a head band it protects the hair. As a chin strap it lifts and supports relaxed, sagging muscles. If you use astringent compresses under the chin, Youth-Molde holds them firmly in place.

Wear Youth-Molde when you read, knit or are physically relaxed so that the under chin muscles will be lifted and held in place. Youth-Molde may be laundered and lasts indefinitely.

Your baby's life NOW MADE safer

Libby's special method of preparing Baby Foods . . . Homogenization . . . makes vegetables, fruits, cereal and soup far easier to digest . . . far more nourishing . . . than the finest strained foods. Recommended by thousands of doctors.

No other Baby Foods, scientific tests show, are so easy to digest, so well-balanced, so nourishing as Libby's.

Homogenization . . . the special process Libby uses in preparing baby foods . . . "explodes" food cells so all nourishment is released for easier digestion . . . and reduces coarse fibers into tiny, non-irritating particles.

All natural bulk needed to protect against common constipation is retained . . . but it is smooth bulk that cannot injure baby's delicate intestinal tract.

Doctors who have conducted clinical feeding tests agree . . . when Libby's Homogenized vegetables, fruits, cereal and soup are fed, there is much less danger of serious digestive upsets.

Grateful mothers everywhere are delighted with the way their babies are thriving on Libby's Homogenized foods. Ask your doctor when to start feeding them to your baby. Sold by most grocers . . . and priced so low you can feed them every day. Remember to ask for Libby's Baby Foods . . . only Libby's are Homogenized.

GREAT ADVANCE OVER STRAINED FOODS

See how Homogenization makes baby foods far easier to digest

BEFORE. Nourishment is imprisoned! In strained foods, whole food cells like this imprison nourishment within a tough wall. Baby is robbed of food essentials he needs to build a strong body.

AFTER. Nourishment is set free! Food cells in Homogenized foods are "exploded" like this by Libby's special process. All nourishment is set free so baby can digest it easily, completely.

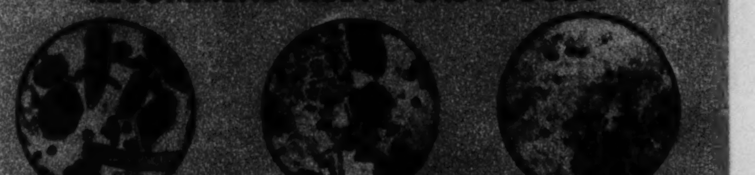
BABIES GETTING HEAD START IN HEALTH

Fewer upsets . . . Homogenization makes baby foods far easier to digest. Clinical feeding tests show Libby's Baby Foods help to safeguard against the digestive upsets that all too often have tragic endings.

May be fed earlier . . . So much smoother, Libby's Homogenized vegetables are being fed as early as 3 months . . . with a spoon or mixed with the milk in baby's bottle, to protect against nutritional anemia.

Better weight gains Libby's Baby Foods actually yield far more nourishment than the finest strained foods, scientific tests show. Babies fed Homogenized foods every day gain weight faster!

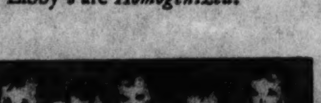
CAMERA SHOWS WHY THOUSANDS OF DOCTORS RECOMMEND LIBBY'S BABY FOODS



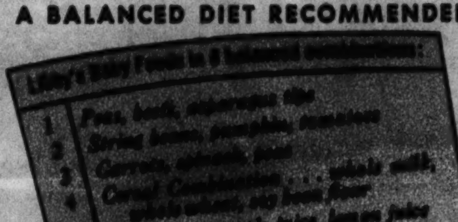
Home-strained [illegible] Libby's

Dark areas in first two photographs (greatly magnified) are whole food cells not broken up by straining. These cells imprison valuable nourishment. Notice how food cells in third photograph have been completely broken up by Libby's Homogenization process. All nourishment released for quick, easy digestion. No wonder baby gets a head start in health from Libby's Homogenized foods!

THE "QUINTS" . . . who owe their lives to the magic of modern science. Libby's Homogenised Foods for Babies have been a regular part of the daily diet of the famous Dionne Quintuplets.



A BALANCED DIET RECOMMENDED BY MEDICAL AUTHORITIES



Libby's Baby Foods in 6 balanced combinations:
1 Peas, beets, asparagus, [illegible]
2 String beans, pumpkin, tomatoes
3 Carrots, spinach, peas
4 Cereal Combination . . . whole milk, whole wheat, soy bean flour
5 Prunes, pineapple juice, lemon juice
6 Soup—vegetables, chicken livers, barley

Another Libby improvement . . . Homogenized foods come in combinations. This new dietetic advance makes three or more of the foods baby needs available in a single tin.

BABIES LIKE THEM . . . Unseasoned except for salt. In enamel-lined tins.

Amazing 2-Minute Oatmeal Facial

COMBATS ROUGH-DRYNESS BLACKHEADS, COARSE PORES OILY SKIN!

A 60c package makes over 10 jars of marvelous facial treatment cream!

1 BLEND a little Lavena with water.

3 NOW! Skin is radiant, vital! Velvety and fresh!

● Every day, when your skin is tiredest; when blackheads, blotchiness, large pores look their worst, give yourself this 2-minute oatmeal facial. Instantly you'll notice the difference. Your skin will look so clear, so refreshed and rested. You'll find blackheads combated. Large pores counteracted. And oh, how soft, how velvety, how fresh and young your complexion looks!

That's because Lavena deep-cleans every tiny pore. And, unlike soap, it does not irritate. Unlike cold cream, it cannot clog pores with grease. If you want your skin to look like a creamy gardenia, get Lavena today at all drug, department and 5-and-10c stores. 10c and 60c sizes.

AMAZING New ANTI-FREEZE

Radiator being padlocked by Chief Constable Taylor. (Key was mailed to Divisional Superintendent, Pan-American Airways, Mexico City.)

THE START: Medicine Hat, Alberta. January 12, 1935. Radiator of Test Car 3 is filled with solution of THERMO ROYAL to protect to 60° below zero as Weatherman Charles Pickering and Chief Constable James Taylor look on.

Test Car 3 snowbound overnight at 49° below. Still no trouble with radiator.

Asking the way. The Mexican says "You just keep on going 'til you get there!"

The hot spot of the trip! 102° above on the desert near Ciudad del Maiz.

THE FINISH: Mexico City, February 18, 1935. Division Superintendents D. J. Mallet and E. J. Kennebeck of Pan-American Airways unseal radiator with key received from Medicine Hat. Only 17 ounces lost in 10,000 miles of hard driving. Victory for THERMO ROYAL!

Defeats Extreme Heat and Cold in 10,000-MILE TEST Medicine Hat to Mexico City

From 54° below zero to 102° above, yet the radiator did not freeze or boil. That's the astounding stock-car record of THERMO ROYAL—the modern anti-freeze for the modern automobile.

10,000 miles of hard driving were put on the car before radiator was unsealed at Pan-American Airways, Mexico City. Yet radiator solution showed a loss of only 17 ounces.

THERMO ROYAL'S amazing record is matched by an equally amazing price. 35c a quart for an anti-freeze liquid that lasts—and lasts — and lasts. Contains no harmful salts. Guaranteed not to turn gummy or rancid. Prevents rust. A stubborn, tough-tempered product that stays put and thus costs less per mile. Buy it today for carefree winter driving.
